Survivors said that as the Olga began to roll in the Lake Erie's swell when the motor choked, passengers who had been lolling on the cabin-top and in the cabin crowded first to one side of the small craft, then to the other. The boat listed heavily and shipped a lot of water.

Then she straightened up and settled until, one man said, only the top corner of the cabin showed above water.

Men, women and children leaped overboard as she went down or rolled off the cabin, shouting for help. Some were trapped in the cabin and broke out through windows.

A group of boys—Bill Adili, 16, Rowland Fraser, Raymond Young, 14, and Donald Sproule, 15—swam in a circle around Bill's nine-year-old brother Joe (among the missing), trying to keep track of him and help hold him up. But Joe disappeared.

Louis Van Hooste of Port Stanley, watching the Olga from the pier through field glasses, saw her roll on her side and ran to give the alarm. As the R.C.A.F. crash boat and other small craft came up, many who had been clinging to bits of wreckage or to the submerged boat let go their hold.

Some apparently were drowned then, with rescue at hand.

Among those saved were: Bill Adili and another brother, Peter, 13; McKenstrie; Rowland Fraser; Weldon R. Westman; Raymond Young; Donald Sproule, all of London; George Ede, 16, Toronto; L.A.C. R. L. Holmes, L.A.C. N. Barr and A.C 2 Fred Palmerchuk, all stationed at the St. Thomas R.C.A.F. establishment; Vining and Mrs. Smith.

city at two points about 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. respectively and a few hours later had pushed on to within its official limits.

"The principal break-through toward Rome was made in a sector defended by the Hermann Goering Division, which fought vainly in North Africa and Sicily as well to stay Allied advance.

"One American force moving forward from the southeast, generally along Highway 6, advanced nearly eight miles, then met stiff resistance from the enemy on the eastern outskirts.

"Elements severed Highway 5 at the northeastern entrance to Rome. Meanwhile an advance group pushed on into the outskirts to the southeast at 9 a.m.

Stubborn Defence

"Three miles due east of Rome stubborn enemy defences were met, with leading tanks encountering many mines.

"Other 5th Army forces meanwhile had moved forward to points four miles south of Rome and Highway 7."

A simultaneous advance from the Alban Hills northwestward by-passed some pockets of resistance. The towns of Gottaferrata, Marino and Genzano were taken in that area.

British troops on the left flank pressed to within six miles of the Tiber south of Rome and began bridging the Rio Torto.

The 8th Army, pushing into the rugged mountains north of the Liri and Sacco valleys, encountered demolitions on a grand scale, many covered by fire from well-situated guns to prevent repairs.

An Allied spokesman said the towns being taken were perched on rocky eminences several hundred feet high, and the Germans had mined all the approaches and covered the roads with fire that destroyed virtually every bridge and culvert.

Gain Steadily

Driving north along Highway 82 on the right edge of the offensive front, the 8th Army closed in steadily on Balsorano, centre of a strongly-fortified area.

Evidence of the disorganization of the German forces was seen in the fact 377 prisoners taken at Velletri were members of 50 different Nazi companies.

German losses mounted hourly as the 5th Army hammered at retreating rearguards, Allied warplanes strafed fleeing Nazis on the clogged roads north of Rome, and the mopping up of trapped enemy pockets proceeded.

Just how great a catastrophe Kesselring suffered in his vain effort to hold the Italian capital until he could disengage and withdraw the hard-pressed troops between Rome and the sea was impossible to determine immediately.

There are few crossings of the Tiber south of Rome over which the enemy can pull back the divisions which have been in action between the coast and the Alban Hills.

The main highways 1, 2 and 3 leading north of Rome and a number of secondary roads all were hit in raids by fighter-bombers with virtually no opposition.

The biggest air battle took place Friday over Truk in the Carolines where 30 enemy fighters tried vainly to break up a strong daylight raid by heavy bombers. Gunners shot down at least 10, perhaps three others, during a long running fight, and bombers dropped their 36 tons of explosives on Dublin township. All got back to their Admiralty bases.

Aground along the New Guinea coast, a growing toll was taken of Japanese trapped by a series of leapfrog landings.

Further deterioration of the Japanese position of Bougainville in the Northern Solomons was indicated by the seizure of abandoned fortifications in a new cutback landing southeast of the American position at Empress Augusta Bay.

Servicing Foreign Trade

It is an historical fact that Canada's prosperity has always been dependent upon export trade.

This will be equally true after the war, when our greatly expanded productive capacity, now devoted to war needs, must find new markets for its surplus output.

Distance, risk and time, however, place obstacles in the way of foreign trade. They can be overcome only by greater mutual knowledge and confidence between parties involved, and by enabling payments to be made easily and without tying up capital.

Bankers' Letters of Credit guarantee prompt payment and help to break down these barriers of distance, uncertainty and time.

This and other services rendered by The Dominion Bank will continue to be of great importance to those interested in foreign trade after the war.

Thousands Welcome Corvette Peterborough At Cobourg
Adopted Ship Toured By Expectant Sightseers

COBOURG, June 5 — (ENS) — Thousands of Peterborough citizens flocked to Cobourg Sunday to see their corvette, "H.M.C.S. Peterborough," which tied up at the harbor in Cobourg for the civic reception tendered by Peterborough to their adopted ship. Due to Peterborough's inland position, Cobourg was chosen as the most convenient location to stage the reception.

It was a reception the warmth of which brought lumps to the throats of many of the officers and crew. When the ship docked shortly after noon Sunday there was already a crowd of several hundred, many of whom had come in early by car from Peterborough. Lieut. Jack Raine, commander of the corvette, told The Examiner that it was a surprise to see so large a crowd on hand before the reception was scheduled to start.

Soon after the ship tied up, Mayor Hamilton leaned over to the rail to shake hands with Lieut Raine. The gang plank was laid across and Mrs. Raine came aboard and greeted her husband. With her were little Diana and Douglas McLean, niece and nephew of the corvette's commander, and Mrs. Raine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Worboy of Peterborough. Members of the corvette committee and others followed on board and were shown through the ship. Later the general public were admitted on board and as many as possible were shown through the ship before the reception ceremonies began.

Sailed From Kingston

Making the trip up from Kingston on the corvette were Stan Longhurst, O.C. of Peterboroufh sea cadets; Dick Raine, past president of Peterborough Kiwanis Club; Alderman Adam Sands; Harold L. Garner, general manager of the Examiner; Gordon Miller, chairman of the Citizens' committee Mill Hardill, chairman of the Sea Cadets committee and W. H. McGuire, member of the Cobourg Corvette committee.

By two o'clock in the afternoon the large area of the esplanade near the dock was jammed with people. Shortly after three o'clock a train arrived on the siding just back of the esplanade and hundreds of Peterborough citizens spilled out of the crowded coaches and hurried over to the corvette. In a few moments the stirring music of the Peterborough Sea Cadet band could be heard from the ship as the band, heading the sea cadets down from Division street and swung right and along the esplanade, getting a warm round of applause from the huge crowd.

Alderman A. Sands was master of ceremonies and in his opening remarks thanked the town of Cobourg for the use of its dock facilities, on the same sight as that of the reception given the Cobourg corvette on May 24.

Mayor Welcomes Crew

Mayor Hamilton extended a welcome to the ship's personnel

"We are assembled here today to dedicate to the service of our King and Country, the latest addition to our fast growing Canadian Navy H.M.C.S. Peterborough," said Mayor James Hamilton.

"Our Navy has seen action in all parts of the world and has already made a glorious name for itself. Perhaps its greatest feat has been the safe convoying of the large convoys and merchantmen and troop ships across the Atlantic.

Without this successful accomplishment the Allies could never have been able to carry on the war in Africa and Europe as successfully as they have. Just now the danger of German submarines is practically banished from the Atlantic, and we do not think it will ever come back This has been carried out almost altogether with vessels of the Corvette type, just like the ship we see before you today.

So H. M. C. S. Peterborough has a tradition to live up to, but we do know that this sturdy ship and her gallant crew will bring additonal laurels to our Caadian Navy, and will bring new honors to themselves, to Peterborough, and to Canada.

We in Peterborough are highly honored to have a ship in H. M. C. N. called Peterborough, but we feel that the honor should go to the 700 boys and girls from Peterborough, who have already joined the Navy, many of their mothers, fathers, husbands, brothers and sisters are here today, and to them we extend our

Got Athlete's Foot? —Use Lysol

1 Soak feet 15 minutes in a lukewarm Lysol solution (1 teaspoon of Lysol to each quart water) every day for one week. Dry thoroughly without rinsing. Repeat every 2 or 3 days for some weeks afterwards.

2 To help prevent reinfection, have the good wife soak socks, bath mats, towels for 1 hour in Lysol solution (same strength) before laundering. Also wipe inside of shoes, especially seams, with same Lysol solution on cotton swab.

3 Don't let it spread! Protect other members of your family from Athlete's Foot by washing bathroom floor regularly with Lysol in cleaning water. (2¼ tablespoons to 1 gallon water.) Lysol is soapy in nature, helps clean. Lysol deodorizes, too.

4 Lysol
Avoid walking barefoot at all times! Severe or stubborn cases may require a doctor's attention. Lysol costs little because it's so concentrated—you dilute it for use. Get Lysol today, at any drug counter.

Sackville Couple 25 Years Married

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Sackville, 20 Maria street, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary Sunday, with several members of the immediate family in attendance, to extend heartiest congratulations, and recall many pleasant incidents of family associations throughout the years.

Among those present were: Mrs. Sackville's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Glenney, of Lindsay, who recently celebrated their forty-eighth wedding anniversary; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Rogers, Miss Margaret Rogers and Master Ronald Rogers, of Oakwood; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Souch, and Master Raymond Souch, of Oshawa; and Mr. and Mrs. Alex S. Russel and Miss Lenore Russell of Old Orchard Grove, Toronto.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

From now on, with juniors, its going to be pretty, pert cotton dresses and suits. They are counting on them to brighten their busy, young lives. Although the younger set will have to work harder than they have ever worked before, the sparkle and freshness of the new cottons are a grand match for peppy juniors who simply love them, and will live in them all summer. The poster stripe makes such an attractive suit dress. The short cardigan jacket has such a youthful look, with its white pique vestee. The colors shown mostly are blue and white, green and white, tan and white, and gray and white. Gingham checks are very popular with a trimming of ric-rac braid on the inset waist-band on the front of the dress to form a little pinafore, and on the waist-band to tie into a bow at the back. Another smart style for the young girl is a white cotton skirt, with a blouse of the new ric-rac braid print, in many bright shades, of a waist of white organdy spotted with bright red or blue polka dots. Another combination is a gay flowered print skirt and a plain colored blouse.

Adults are also wearing bright skirts and waists. Favorite are a blue or citron rayon taffeta skirt, boldly striped, in white or dove gray, or a narrower stripe in royal citron or scarlet with a blouse in a corresponding solid color. Another smart dress is a bold diamond shaped checked rayon. This dress has cap sleeves and a cool and youthful high neckline. The dress is becoming in blue and wine, pink and green or acquamarine, and lime. There is a new material on the market called "Koolmist" which can be worn all summer. It is a sheer linen-like rayon with tiny openings woven to catch the faintest breeze. A costume I saw of this material was very stunning. The skirt was made in wrap-around style in a beautiful wine shade. The waist was made in over-blouse style of blue and was scalloped around the bottom, buttoned up the front with three large buttons and a matching frill of embroidery. It has three-quarter length sleeves. With this costume was shown a very large hat in wine straw, with a scarf trimming of the same blue as the blouse. Pearl beads and earrings completed a striking ensemble.

Trinity Bride Wears Taffeta

Trinity United Church was the setting for a pretty wedding on Saturday morning, when Jean Moore, daughter of Mrs. Thomas J. Moore, 340 Reid street, became the bride of Andrew Barrie Jack, B. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jack, 274 William street. Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart officiated. Miss Mildred McIntrye, a friend of the bride, played the wedding music, and accompanied Miss Helen Parkinson when she sang, "Where'er You Walk," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her brother, J. H. Claire Moore, the bride was gowned in white faille taffeta, fashioned on princess lines. A Mary Queen of Scots headdress held her long veil of white net, and she carried a cascade bouquet of sweet peas and lily of the valley. She was attended by Mrs. F. W. Todd, as matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of hand painted flowered taffeta, with a Mary Queen of Scots headdress and a shoulder length veil. She carried a ring bouquet of sweet peas.

David Walker of Kingston was best man, and the sushers were LAC Colin Jack, R. C. A. F., and Sgt. J. Donald Charlton, R.C.A.F.

A reception, held at the Walkerfield House, the guests were received by the bride's mother, and the groom's mother

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore: I have a recipe for an Eggless Applesause Cake that I have felt I should send you for years. Now I am having to rest up in bed for a while and am getting some of my correspondence caught up.

Mrs. Moir's Eggless Applesauce Cake.

One-half cup shortening (butter is best in peacetime), 1 cup suger, 1½ cups unsweetened applesauce. (I use dried apples and strain them when cooked), 2 or 3 tablespoons molasses, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon and allspice, 2 teaspoons soda in 2 teaspoons warm water, 1 cup raisins, ½ cup walnuts, 2¼ cups flour. Cream the shortening, and add the sugar, and after creaming well, add the unsweetened strained applueasuse, and molasses. Sift together the flour and spices and sprinkle a little of them over the nuts and raisins. Add the moistened soda, then sift in the dry ingredients. Add the raisins and nuts and stir well. Pour into large square pan, buttered and lined with buttered paper, and bake at 375 degree Fahr. for about 40 minutes. Frost with fluffy corn syrup frosting.

Mrs. Moir.

This cake is delicious to use as a cottage pudding, when you would serve a sauce such as lemon or Foamy Egg instead of frosting. It is delicious while hot, to serve unfrosted with plain ice creamb. I hope your convalence is shot, but if you are resting long remember this space needs your help often.

Dean of College Is Retiring

TORONTO, June 5.—Miss Annie Allison Maxwell, who has been Dean of the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, Ontario, for 29 years will retire at the end of the current term. She has had a unique career in having taught in three United Church Colleges also been on the staff of her Alma Mater, Mt. Allison Ladies' College and Lady Principal of the former Methodist College, St. John's, Newfoundland. Graduating in Arts from Mt. Allison University, she took her M.A. at Cornell and after teaching in United States schools, came as Dean to Whitby in the second year of the last war. Miss Allison, when interviewed during the preparations for Baccalsureate Sunday which took place yesterday and Commence Exercises on Wednesday next, said there was very little difference in college life during the many years she had taught and been responsible for discipline. The honor system in force at the college has stood the test of two wars and proved satisfactory. There has been a trend away from the finishing school idea which stresses the social graces and fine arts towards academic work and preparation for the professions; and during the depression parents began to ask for preparation of their daughter for earning with a consequent strengthening of the commercial department. There are 105 resident students in the college this year including girls from St. Hilda's College, Whitby, England, who are war guests. Some have returned and the others are writing their senior matriculation examinations. Miss Maxwell will live in Toronto.

IS URGENTLY NEEDED FOR VITAL WAR USES

● Millions of containers, made from waste paper, carry vital supplies to our armed forces.

Waste paper is essential to the production of these containers . . . those sent overseas cannot be salvaged for re-use!

To replace them . . . and supply additional containers for overseas and essential civilian requirements . . . CANADA NEEDS 20,000 TONS OF WASTE PAPER EVERY MONTH.

WHAT IS WANTED
You can remedy this critical paper shortage by saving every scrap of Waste Paper, namely: wrapping paper — store bags — cardboard — cartons — corrugated board — old magazines and books—envelopes and letters—newspapers. These represent the raw material for making vitally needed Paper containers.

HOW TO DO IT
Tie securely in separate bundles. (The little time you take will save thousands of man hours.) Then dispose of it through your local voluntary Salvage Committee or other War Voluntary Organization, or sell it through any known trade channels, your pedlar, dealers or others. The important thing is to get your Waste Paper moving to the mills.

Australia Seeks To Boost Its Population

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 5 — (CP Cable). — A falling birth-rate, war casualties and recent absence of immigration has brought home to most Australians that something must be done to swell the Commonwealth's population after the war.

In line with this is the recent announcement by Francis Forde, Acting Prime Minister, that the Government plans to embark on a positive post-war immigration policy. Discussion centres on how the Commonwealth can best attract suitable settlers.

Although the decision to lower immigration barriers represents an about- turn from Australia's pre-war policies, Forde in some circles has been criticized as being too cautious, with one newspaper remarking editorially "the question isn't so much whether or when we want them (immigrants) as whether they'll wish to come."

Like British Soldiers.

In making his announcement the Acting Prime Minister said the "extent to which migration to Australia can be promoted will be controlled largely by Australia's absorptive capacity, having regard to economic conditions, the housing situation, and rehabilitation of our own people in the services and war industries." Special consideration would be given, he said, to the movement of British servicemen and selected children from Britain and Europe.

Australia's Labor Party has been the chief opponent of immigration hitherto, apparently fearing an influx of cheap labor, but Party leaders have shown an increased tendency to believe one of the Commonwealth's greatest needs now is a labor population. It now has 7,000,000 people, few concrete plans for post-war immigration have yet been advanced, however.

W. M. Hughes, the veteran statesman and former Prime Minister, has declared repeatedly that Australia is "dying on its feet" for want of a better birth-rate and the Pacific War has underlined the difficulties of holding the continent with a meagre population.

Observers here anticipate Australia will have to do more than merely open its doors to immigrants and they see Canada as a likely and active bidder for settlers from Great Britain.

Lack of social security schemes here is seen as one objection which might be voiced by prospective migrants, labor in Australia having refused to contribute to health or unemployment insurance. Introduction in Britain of further measures such as those recommended in the Beveridge Report would be a further deterrent to migration, it is thought.

DOROTHY DIX . . . .

WISE GIRL REFUSES TO MARRY
Boy, Cool Now, Will Thank 17-Year-Old For Saving Him From Folly of Hurried Ceremony.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 17 engaged to a boy of 18. I love him very much and hope some day to marry him, but I certainly do not intend to do so until we are out of school and he is in a position to support a family.

Last week we went out with two other couples of our own age and something was said about getting married. They all agreed to except me. I tried to talk them out of the crazy idea, but it did no good and the two other couples got married in a little town near our home. Now they are trying to make me believe they are very happy and glad they did it, but I believe deep down inside they are sorry they didn't listen to me.

But my trouble is that since that night Bill has treated me differently. He has seemed so distant. He isn't like he used to be. Do you think I did right by not marrying him then? I did only what I thought best for both of us.

JANE.

Girl Acts Courageously

ANSWER—You did exactly right, Jane. You showed yourself not only a level-headed girl, but a courageous one, and the time will come when Bill will thank you on his knees for saving him from the folly of going into a marriage for which he was not prepared.

Just at the moment his vanity may be a little hurt by your refusing to marry him when the other two girls were marrying their boy friends. He may think that it indicated that you were not as much in love with him as they were with their sweethearts. Boys of that age are very touchy, you know, and they were very anxious to be thought mature, old enough to marry, etc.

But he will get over this and respect you all the more for not being over persuaded to do what you knew to be wrong and foolish. As for your friends, by their boasting so much about how happy they are, they are singing to keep their courage up, they are putting up a bluff, and you may be perfectly sure that they are already regretting their hasty marriage.

How are they proving their pride and joy in their marriage? Have they told their parents? And have their parents set them up in homes of their own? Or are they keeping it a secret and living in fear of their marriage being found out? Are the boys able to support their wives? Believe me, my dear, the marriages that have a chance of being successful are those which are celebrated publicly and with the consent and approval of the parents and the good wishes of the community.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — I go around with six very nice girls with whom I want to be friends, but I seem to always be saying or doing something that gets me in wrong with them. I do not intentionally offend them. How can I keep from hurting their feelings?

JINKS.

ANSWER—Some people seem to be brusk by nature and to lack a certain sense that warns them about how to keep from stepping on other people's toes. They blurt out home truths when they should keep silent. They make uncalled for criticism, and even when they try to be complimentary they offend instead of please. As, for example: Haven't you heard a woman tell a wife with a philandering husband that she saw him having dinner with a pretty girl; or that the new baby a mother is proudly showing off has the Jones' hooked nose; or ask a fat woman if she isn't putting on weight?

A good way to be sure you will always say the right thing is to metally try your speech out on yourself. If it makes you feel good, you can pass it on.

Invasion Report Sent In Error Girl Is Blamed

NEW YORK, June 5 — (AP). — A young girl teletype operator employed in the London bureau of the Associated Press punched out a strip of practice tape on Saturday night and within a matter of moments was responsible for transmission throughout the United States, Canada, and Latin America of an erroneous announcement that the Allies had landed in France.

Through almost incredible circumstances, the error slipped through the most elaborate system of safeguards and censorship ever established both by the Associated Press and Allied authorities:

The girl, Joan Ellis, had been practicing on a disconnected machine, and in violation of instructions included in her exercise this urgent message:

"Flash Eisenhower's Headquarters announce Allied landings France."

At 4:39 p.m. E.D.T. the flash appeared on the AP's direct London printer in New York and was relayed immediately throughout the United States and to Latin America and to Canada by The Canadian Press.

Corrected in Two Minutes.

Less than two minutes later came a message, "bust that flash,'" and word was flashed to editors to withhold publication. At 4.44 p.m. another London message directed that the flash be "killed," and this was done.

Millions of Americans were electrified when they heard broadcast the erroneous report, but the excitement subsided quickly when, in a few minutes, the error was discovered.

In churches, in baseball parks, theatres, and in their homes the populace heard the report.

Newspapers and radio stations throughout the United States were flooded with inquiries.

Possibly the calmest city in the country was Washington, where few seemed surprised at the report and, when it was subsequently corrected, many officials said they were confident it was "only slightly premature."

Clergymen hurried to call special services which had been announced for D-Day when they heard the "flash" and many church bells were rung to summon congregations to special prayers.

Silverleaf Lard

Now in good supply and very reasonably priced, this fine cooking fat should be on every housewife's shelf

There was a time not so very long ago, when there seemed to be a real risk that we in Canada might find ourselves short of cooking fats. Fortunately, the efforts of Canadian farmers have averted that danger and now there is no reason why every kitchen in Canada should not be supplied with a pound or two of that wonderful standby, Silverleaf Lard.

Not only is lard a very valuable source of energy but it also contains other vital elements absolutely essential to health. Use lard in all kinds of delicious dishes, for pan-frying and of course in baked goods. It is good—good for you —and we now have enough.

Martha Logan

RHUBARB PIE

1½ cups sifted pastry flour
½ tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
7 tbsps. chilled Silverleaf Lard
Ice cold water

Mix and sift into a bowl the flour, salt and baking powder. Cut half of lard into these dry ingredients, to the size of wheat grains—then cut in remainder of lard, to the size of small peas. Sprinkle with cold water, and mix with a fork, adding enough water to make a dough which will just form a mass that cleans easily from the bowl. Chill.

FOR THE FILLING:

5 cups ½-inch pieces of rhubarb
6 tbsps. flour
1½ cups sugar
1 tbsp. butter

Prepare the rhubarb. Add combined flour and sugar. Turn mixture into a deep pie dish (the sides may be lined with rolled-out pie-paste, if desired); dot with butter. Moisten edges of dish. Roll out paste, slit for escape of steam, and place over the rhubarb. Trim and crimp edges. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, for 12 minutes, then reduce heat to moderately hot, 375 degrees, and bake until rhubarb is tender and crust baked and nicely browned. Note: A support may be placed in the centre of the pie dish before turning in the filling.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, June 6.

An extremely active and enterprising state of affairs, with excitement, commotion, and upsets of vital and far reaching importance is foreseen. Financial matters may be enhanced, with property and investments reaching new values, through shrewd and determined manipulation. There may be certain surprising or irregular developments, in which elders or superiors may not prove co-operative. Public or community interests may be involved. Litigation should be favorable, but be wary of forced issues. Work for stability and endurance, shunning complications.

Those whose birthday it is should have a fairly successful year, with matters moving at high tempo and initiative. This should give enhanced credit, property values and investments, although there may be signs of certain irregularities or complications, possibly involving public or group projects of high importance. Litigation should be favorable, but in all transactions use practical and determined efforts to place the affairs on a firm and enduring basis, keeping alert to surprise and subtlety, especially in dealing with elders or old institutions.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, possess much ingenuity and skill, although it may be subject to sudden reversals or upsets in life.

"IT'S FIT FOR A KING," SAID KING RAINBOLT

1. Old King Rainbolt was fairly morose.
He called for his men and he said,
"Stop your fiddling... where's my bowl of coffee?"

"And the men said,
"The Crown Prince has lured Cook away.
Her Majesty is doing the marketing herself,
Sorry, Sire—no Cook, no Queen, no coffee."

2. So he popped off of his throne and holding his crown behind him so that he looked like a subject, he snucked into line with the King's Guard
when they lined up for breakfast.
And the Queen happened by with her market basket.
So she said, "Get out of that line right away. I've got some Postum."
And the King said, "What's Postum?"

3. So the Queen smiled and said,
"It isn't like coffee and it isn't like tea,
It's a grand mealtime drink
And it can't hurt anybody because it doesn't contain any caffeine."
So they went into the kitchen and the Queen made him a cup of Postum.
He smacked his lips over its rich flavor.
"It's fit for a King," said he.

4. And the Queen, seeing that he was in rare good humor, brought out a silly and somewhat expensive hat
she had bought.
And the king said,
"You look cute as a button in that new hat." And he never asked her
what she paid for it.
But he did ask for another cup of Postum.

POSTUM

Postum is a cinch to make. Instant Postum is made in the cup, just by adding boiling water or hot milk. Postum Cereal Beverage is the kind you boil, percolate or drip.

Thousands Welcome

greetings, and best wishes for a safe return home of their loved ones.

We are all very pleased and gratified with the Personnel of the Crew. The officers and ratings are all men of the highest type, and we are glad to call them sons and citizens of Peterborough.

The choice of Lieut. Raine as Commander is, of course one of special satisfaction to us all. Under his leadership and guidance and with his splendid crew we know that the "Peterborough" will at all times more than measure up to our expectations, and bring fame and glory to Peterborough.

"Now although this ceremony is primarily one of dedication, still it must also be one of farewell to our Ship and her crew, and as the "Peterborough" sails down the St. Lawrence to the Atlantic and to duty our hearts, our thoughts and our prayers go along with her and her crew. We wish them success; we wish them happiness, but most of all we wish and pray for a speedy and safe return.

"To the crew I want to say from everyone in Peterborough that we are looking forward with great expectations to the day, when duty done, we will have you all with us once more. We promise you an even better celebration than we had last Monday. Now remember this is not only an invitation it is a "date". So take care of yourselves and come back to us safe and sound he declared.

Welcomes Guests

Mayor Jack Burnet in a brief address, wished the men of the corvette Peterborough "good hunting."

"On behalf of the people of Cobourg, may I extend a sincere welcome to the corvette H.M.C.S. Peterborough, and I trust that you men of the corvette will have a pleasant time here. To the officials of the committee responsible, we feel highly complimented that Cobourg was chosen as the scene of the dedication of the corvette Peterborough. To the officers and men of this corvette, we bid you a most royal welcome. It is an honor to have you here and we will follow your future career and destiny with an interest only second to that of our own corvette. So, may I say good hunting and a speedy and safe return," said Mayor Burnet.

Mayor Charles Stephenson also expressed pleasure in being present and thanked the committee for the honor thus extended to Port Hope. There were now on active service, the minesweeper, "Port Hope" and th corvettes, "Cobourg" and "Peterborough".

"I wish you all, on behalf of the people of Port Hope, bon voyage, good hunting and a safe return", said the mayor of Port Hope.

Guest Speakers

Senator J. J. Duffus declared that it was a signal honour for him to be present at the reception.

"We owe much to Gordon Miller, Mayor Hamilton, the ladies who have done so much for his ship, Alderman Sands and the other officials for this most successful event. We know of the wonderful record of the airmen, soliders and sailors in this war and the past war, as top notch fighters. It is a pleasure to us in Peterborough to know that like Cobourg and Port Hope, we have a ship too. We would like to see the war over before our ship gets to the ocean but we know that they'll want a crack at the Hun subs," said Senator Duffus.

Harold Scott, M. P. P. of Peterborough, informed the crowd that Senator Fallis, who was unable to be present because of a throat affliction, had asked him to convey her regrets. Gordon Fraser, was also unable to be present, due to previous appointments.

"Colonel Drew this morning asked me to convey to the men of this ship his assurance that the province is taking steps to see that they will be recompensed on their return for the sacrifices which they are making," Mr. Scott said.

G. A. Macdonald, chairman of the Corvette Committee bid the men of the corvette good luck and a safe journey in the days ahead.

As Chairman of the Corvette Committtee, I welcome this opportunity to express to Lieutenant Raine and his crew our sincere good wishes and to assure him that the services rendered by the citizens of Peterborough and the Corvette Committee in securing added comforts for the men, is insignificant as compared with the service which we know will be rendered by the gallant men of His Majesty's ship, Peterborough.

"The British navy has a glorious heritage and our own Canadian navy has proven herself an able and worthy partner, and we are confident that H.M.C.S. Peterborough will continue to uphold these glorious traditions. The practice of naming ships after communities and having those communities undertake to supply comforts to the crew is one that has grown common with the wartime growth of the Canadian Navy, and it is a practice that has reached a high degree of favor.

There are many things needed to brighten up the long days at sea which are not supplied by the naval department, and it is these needs that the Corvette Committee and the patriotic citizens have attempted to fill. The fortunes of H.M.C.S. Peterborough will be followed with deep interest and we are happy in the fact that there will be a ship in the navy bearing our city's name, and that in some small way we have had the privilege of contributing to its equipment and the comfort of the crew. On behalf of the Corvette Committee, I wish Lieutenant Raine and his crew Godspeed, good luck and safe journeys," he declared.

Presents Cheque.

Gordon Miller of the Citizen's committee declared that last Monday was a day of greeting to the ship's personnel in Peterborough and that this day was a day of farewell and it was fitting that it was held on a Sabbath.

"The time has come to say farewell to our sponsored ship. May the Great Navigator steer you all safely to your home port after this war is over. I now have great pleasure in presenting to Lieut. Raine this cheque for $200 to be turned over to the ratings for the canteen," Mr. Miller said, handing the cheque to the commander of the ship.

"Words cannot express our thanks to you all," said Lieut. Raine as he looked out over the crowd. "There are so many who have done so much for us that we cannot thank them all individually. I never saw such a crowd as here to-day to bid us farewell. The hard-working corvette committee deserve so much thanks. Anything we wanted we asked for it and we got it. Thank you Peterborough and thank you Cobourg for the use of your facilities here to-day."

After the ship was dedicated by Rev. W. A. Filer of Peterborough, rector of All Saints' Anglican church, Mrs. Cora Macdonald, whose son was the first naval casualty in the present war, spoke a few words.

"Lieut. Raine, officers and ratings of H.M.C.S. Peterborough—To-day you have received many messages of good will and wishes for your future. There is, however, one message, that is going out to you each and every day from someone at home. It is with sincere pleasure that I pass this on to you. On behalf of the Peterborough and District Women's Auxiliary to the Navy, I am sure, speaking for the mothers of each one of you, I wish you clear sailing on all your voyages and safe anchorage at the end of each run.

"On us falls the task to wait and pray, but we send you forth to answer the call of duty with these words, 'Godspeed and good hunting.'" Mrs. Macdonald said.

The ship was then opened to the public and for several hours long lines of people filed through the corvette.

LEARN BRIDGE FAST
13—High Suit Openings

MANY HANDS justify an opening suit bid of more than one. Most important among them is the holding so powerful that a game seems virtually certain for your side, even if your partner could not respond to a bid of one. The overwhelming majority of players open these with a suit bid of two.

This conveys the message: "Partner, my hand is so strong that we must play this in at least a game contract, no matter what you hold; I want your help in selecting the final declaration; you must keep the bidding open as often as necessary until we are in a game contract at least, unless we get a chance to double the opponents and beat their contract for more points than a game is worth to us."

As most players use this, the partner must keep the bidding open with 2-No Trumps with a worthless hand, can raise the original suit with a safe trump fit and a total of at least one high card trick somewhere in the hand, can bid any other biddable suit with at least one high card trick somewhere in the hand, and can bid 3-No Trumps with no biddable suit, no trump fit and at least 1½ high card tricks in the hand, but must not pass. The partner must keep it open again any time the bid which reaches him is less than a game, and help in choosing the best final contract if the original bidder names more than one declaration.

Thus a suit opening of two is the strongest that can be made—and requires at least eight playing tricks if the hand is made up predominantly of major suits, one more if of minor suits, or enough alternative No Trump strength to feel sure of a game in that declaration unless a suit contract appears better.

All higher opening bids than two are used by most fine players to proclaim a hand weak in honor strength, but with a great long suit. The purpose is to try to shut out the opponents from the bidding because it is feared they may have a game. Seldom should this bid be used with any ace in the hand, or with as much as a couple of kings in suits other than the one bid. But the suit should be quite long.

Those original bids, of three or more, indicate ability to take enough tricks to prevent too great punishment if the opponents double them and defeat them. Experience has shown that the number of playing tricks should be within two of the number bid for if the player is vulnerable, and within three if not vulnerable. For a bid of 3-Spades, for instance, which is a bid for nine tricks, the player should be able to take seven tricks in his hand if vulnerable, six if not vulnerable.

A freakish hand with no high cards except the queen-jack-ten of spades would justify a bid of 3-Spades if the suit was nine cards in length if vulnerable, and eight if not vulnerable. An opening bid of four is measured just the same, except that it must have one more playing trick to be safe against too much punishment. Remember that the purpose of such a bid is defensive, to shut out the opponents. A partner who considers raising it or bidding something else must be very gingerly about it. And if the opponents bid, he must not double unless he thinks he can beat them with his own hand.

Some of your partners will use bids of three differently, showing perhaps solid suits with certain guaranteed high card strength on the side. It will be well to follow such a partner's method, to avoid misunderstandings, but if you favor the use outlined here, you will be in line with most expert practice. Some also use special responses to opening two bids, such as showing an ace by bidding the suit containing it. If you get such a partner, it will generally pay to accede to his wishes.

Tomorrow: Opening No Trumps.

7,000 Patriots Oppose Vichyites

BARCELONA, Spain, June 5—(AP) — French advices said today the entire Limoges District of Central France was gripped by fratricidal war with 7,000 patriots holding at bay nearly 5,000 Vichy troops in a prolonged battle for a main line railroad town.

The fight in the wild, mountainous Limoges region was said to have started May 27 and lasted for three days, subsiding last Tuesday when Vichy reinforcements drove the patriots from the beseiged town on the Paris-Toulouse main line. The battle was reported renewed today.

The Germans were said to have not yet entered the action. The reports said thet outnumbered patriots in some sections were being forced back into the forests of mountains south of Limoges. The patriots, known as the Maquis, were reported well supplied with light arms but hopelessly outclassed by Vichy artillery and armored cars.

Canadians Win Great Praise From Sir Olive Leese, 8th Army Head

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, June 5. — (CP).—The performance of the Canadian Corps in smashing the Hitler line south of Rome was "magnificent and well worthy of Vimy Ridge and Ortona," Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, commander of the British 8th Army, said Saturday.

Chatting beside the dusty road where Canadian formations of the 8th Army linked up with the Allied 5th Army. Gen. Leese praised both the Canadian division commanded by Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes of Winnipeg and Ottawa, and that under Maj.-Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister of Vancouver.

The latter division, he said, reacted excellently in its first major battle

He singled out several battalions for special mention, praising men of Ontario. Western and Maritime units which combined to make the first break-through in the Hitler Line and pave the way for yesterday's occupation of Rome.

"You cannot give too much publicity to the Canadians' achievements," said Gen. Leese, who lunched Saturday at the headquarters of Gen. Vokes after meeting the British lieutenant and American warrant officer who sealed the breach between the 5th and 8th Armies by meeting just south of Anagni, which Ontario infantrymen occupied Saturday morning. Anagni is about 33 miles east of Rome.

Previous front-line stories have named the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec, the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, and the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantrjy of Winnipeg as among the units which distinguished themselves in the smash through the German defense lines.

Armed Bandits Murder Teller

WININPEG, June 5 (CP)—Police spread a dragnet throughout Manitoba Saturday in their man-hunt for the three armed, masked bandits who shot and killed S. W. Caughey, 48-year-old senior accountant at the North-end branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce yesterday during an attempted holdup. The men escaped in an automobile. Five men have been picked up by the police and held for questioning.

The trio—one armed with a sawed-off shotgun and the others with revolvers—were between 20 and 30 years of age and all had foreign accents, said Chief Constable George Smith in announcing a reward of $1,000 for information leading to their arrests and conviction. Royal Canadian Mounted Police, railway police and police in nearby towns all were taking part in the search.

Do You Suffer From Headaches?

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

A headache need not be an illness in itself, but it may be a warning symptom that there is intestinal sluggishness within.

To help overcome the cause of headache it is necessary to eliminate the waste matter from the system. Burdock Blood Bitters helps to remove the cause of headaches by regulating the digestive and biliary organs, neutralizing acidity, regulating the constipated bowels and toning up the sluggish liver, and when this has been accomplished the headaches should disappear.

Woman Given Suspended Sentence

LINDSAY, Ont., June 5—(ENS)——Mrs. Bertha McNeish of Bexley township, pleaded guilty before Judge J. A. McGibbon to the charge of "wilfully attempting to obstruct, pervert and defeat the cause of justice, contrary to the cirminal code" and was allowed off on suspended sentence or two years on payment of the costs of the case.

The charge arose out of the theft of a few sticks of wood, which were found in the McNeish motor car, when her sons were charged with taking the wood from a school house yard.

Mrs. McNeish was stated to have offered Constable John Dixon $10 to say nothing about the matter. The constable, however, was not in uniform and Mrs. McNeish claimed she did not know he was an officer of the law.

● Hope springs eternal in the prospector's breast. It's a hope borne of courage, of initiative, of worthy reward at the end of the trail.

This plodding quest for hidden treasure is to your advantage, too. Many a prospector's find, proved on slender capital, has been developed to make a giant contribution to Canada's unexcelled living standard.

The wealth that flows from Canada's mines is new wealth. It permeates the country's whole economy, creating new jobs, new products, new business opportunities and a fuller life for all. For instance, in a single year (1940), the production of Canada's metal mines alone was valued at $382,503,012.00. To produce this new wealth, millions of dollars were poured into the pockets of miners as wages; other millions were spent for supplies, equipment and taxes; $106,660,418.00 or about 27.6% was distributed in dividends to many thousands of shareholders—all this money enriching the entire nation as it entered circulation and stimulated trade.

The free enterprise of men and women building business does this for you. In such freedom lies your hope of the future. Preserve it for peacetime progress.

ALLIES INVADE FRANCE

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 6 –(AP)–All ied forces landed in the Normandy area of Northwest France today and have thrust several miles inland against unexpectedly slight German opposition and with losses much smaller than had been anticipated. The grand assault—scheduled for yesterday but postponed until today because of bad weather—found the highly-vaunted-German defences much less formidable in every tremely small" losses in the air, head-department than had been feared. Airborne troops who led the assault before daylight on a huge scale suffered "ex quarters disclosed tonight, even though the great plane fleets extended across 200 miles of sky and used navigation lights to keep formation. Naval losses for the seaborne forces were described at headquarters as "very, very small," although 4,000 ships and several thousand smaller craft participated in taking the British, Canadian and American troops to France. Coastal batteries were almost silenced by the guns of the British and Allied fleets, including battleships, and the beachhead were speadily consolidated. (A dispatch from Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent datelined with the Canadian Forces in France, said two landing-craft Flotillas of the Royal Canadian Navy carried a portion of the Canadian assault troops to France and put them down on the beaches in the first wave of attack).

The German radio said the scene of the landings was a 100-mile stretch of coast from Cherbourg to Le Havre, around the bay of the Seine and the northeast shore of the Normandy peninsula.

Prime Minister Churchill, in announcing the successful invasion to the House of Commons at noon—six hours after the first seaborne troops landed—said the landings were "the first of a series."

11,000 ALLIED PLANES ARE AVAILABLE

Mr. Churchill disclosed that 11,000 Allied planes were available as needed for the battle. The Allied bombers, climaxing 96 hours of steady pounding, lashed German coastal defences this morning with 10,000 tons of explosives.

The Germans were known to have probably 1,750 fighters and 500 bombers to meet the attack. Why they did not use them at the start was not apparent, but Allied airmen warned that a fierce reaction might be expected soon, noting that Herman Goering in an order of the day had told his airforces, "The invasion must be beaten off even if the Luftwaffe perishes."

German broadcasts said the Allies penetrated several kilometres between Caen and Isigny, which are 35 miles apart and respectively nine and two miles from the sea.

German opposition apparently was less effective than expected, although fierce in many respects, and the Germans said they were bringing reinforcements continuously up to the coast, where "a battle for life or death is in progress."

The seaborne troops, led by Gen. Montgomery, surged across the Channel from England by 4,000 regular ships and additional thousands of smaller craft.

They were preceded by massed flights of parachute and glider forces who landed inland during the dark. Eleven thousand planes supported the attack.

The German radio asserted the landings were made from Cherbourg to Le Havre—a strip of coast roughly 100 miles long—and later said additional landings were being made "west of Cherbourg," indicating that the Allies intended to seize the Normandy peninsula with its ports and airdromes as the first base of their campaign to destroy the power of Nazi Germany.

FIRST LANDINGS SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT

The initial landings were made from 6 to 8.25 a.m. British time (midnight to 2.25 a.m., E.B.T.). The Germans said subsequent landings were made on the English Channel Isles of Jersey and Guernsey and that invasion at new points on the Continent was expected hourly.

Aside from confirming that Normandy was the general area of the assault, Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force was silent concerning the location for tactical reasons.

From Moscow came word that the Russian Army was massing in preparation for another great attack from the east as its part in defeating Germany.

All reports from the beachhead, meagre though they were, agreed that the Allies had made good the great gamble of amphibious landing against possibly the strongest fortified section of coast in the world.

BEACHES SECURED AND TROOPS MOVED INLAND

Reconnaissance pilots said the Allied troops had secured the beaches and were slashing inland. The unofficial word at headquarters confirmed this, while the Vichy radio admitted the Allied drive inland was going right ahead.

More than 640 naval guns, ranging from 4 to 16-inch, hurled many tons of shells accurately into the coastal fortifications which the Germans had spent four years preparing against this day.

Prime Minister Churchill was able to tell Parliament that the shore batteries had been "largely quelled and the underwater obstructions had proven less dangerous than feared, and the whole operation was "proceeding according to plan."

Allied planes preceded the landings with a steady 96-hour bombardment which reached its pinnacle in the hour before the troops hit the beaches.

The air attack was thrust home through cloud banks 5,000 feet high.

GERMANS REFUSE TO RISK THEIR GUNS

The absence of German aerial opposition was remarked by nearly all returning fliers and correspondents. The Germans are known to have about 1,750 fighters and 500 bombers available for the Western front, but it was supposed that they had chosen not to risk them in an all-out first-day battle.

German naval opposition was confined to destroyers and motor torpedo boats which headquarters said were being "dealt with." The Germans, as expected, blared on their radios all sorts of claims of vast destruction done to Allied fleets and forces, but with no confirmation.

In one defiant gesture, some of the German cross-Channel guns opened a sporadic fire on Dover during the afternoon.

Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief of the invasion force, who in his order of the day sending the men into battle, expressed full confidence in their courage, devotion to duty and skill in battle. ## Allies Gain In Drive From Coast

Churchill States Invasion Going Favorably

LONDON, June 6 — (CP) — Allied invasion forces have penetrated in some cases seven miles inland after an effective landing on a broad front, Prime Minister Churchill informed the House of Commons tonight.

The Prime Minister said in his second invasion report of the day that "the landings along the whole front have been effective and the troops have penetrated in some cases seven miles inland."

Mr. Churchill, after visiting Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters with King George, told the House he had been at centres where the latest information was received and could state that "this operation is proceeding in a thoroughly satisfactory manner."

He said that Allied air-borne troops had captured several strategic bridges in France before they could be blown up and that "there is even fighting proceeding in the town of Caen."

"Many dangers and difficulties which this time last night appeared extremely formidable are behind us," the Prime Minister added. "The passage of the sea has been made with far less loss than we apprehended.

Bombs Effective

"The resistance of the batteries has been greatly weakened by the bombing of the air force and superior bombardment of our ships reduced their fire to dimensions which did not affect the problem."

"The outstanding feature has been the landings of airborne troops on a scale far larger than anything ever seen before," he said. "These landings took place with extremely less loss and with great accuracy. The airborne troops are well established and the landings and followups are all proceeding with very much less loss than we expected.

"There is fighting proceeding at various points and we have captured various bridges which are of importance and which were not blown up. There is even fighting proceeding in the town of Caen inland."

Earlier he told the cheering House that the Allied liberating assault was "proceeding according to plan—and what a plan."

Mass air-borne landings also have been successfully effected behind the enemy's lines, he said.

"There are already hopes that actual tactical surprise has been attained," he continued. "And we hope to furnish the enemy with a succession of surprises, during the course of the fighting.

"The battle which is now beginning will grow constantly in scale and in intensity for many weeks to come and I shall not attempt to speculate upon its course.

Allies Trying For Peninsula

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, June 6 — (AP). — Normandy jutting out along the English Channel opposite British invasion bases forms a natural peninsula pathway into France, and from the first Allied commanders have recognized it as one of their best bets for beachheads.

The gun-bristling coastline, rock shoals, and in some places bad tide made initial landings hazardous, but once a foothold is established the Allies can attack along either side of the peninsula, protected on the flank by the sea.

The Cherbourg peninsula — Old Normandy — thrusts out to the Cape de La Hague and Cape de Barfleur 86 miles from the Isle of

Fliers Report Beach Attack Progressing Favorably Allied Tanks Drive On Caen

By LOUIS HUNTER—Canadian Press War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, June 6—(CP Cable).—Canadian fighter pilots, returning from their third sortie of the day over the invasion beachhead, reported a few hours before dusk tonight that Allied land troops were penetrating inland from their beachhead, particularly around Caen. At Caen, 10 miles inland from the sea, the fliers said they saw fires. The airmen added that they had seen tanks approaching the town from both sides—Germans from the south and Allied tanks from the north.

"It looks as if fierce fighting is going on around there," one flier said.

The airmen, who had been flying since early morning, said they still had not encountered any opposition in the invasion area. A smattering of cloud which appeared at noon cleared and the weather was beautiful this afternoon.

Wing Cmdr. Johnson, an R.A.F. ace leading a Canadian fighter wing, returned from his third trip to the beachhead area and said, "I am getting a bit tired sitting down in my cockpit."

Lt.-Gen. Clark's troops have crossed or reached the Tiber all the way from Rome to the sea and the enemy divisions still in the flatlands south of the city are in desperate straits.

Canadian Ships In Action

Infantry Landing Craft Carries 200 Men

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 6 —(CP Cable)— Two landing-craft flotillas of the Royal Canadian Navy carried a portion of the Canadian assault troops to France and put them down on the beaches in the first wave of attack.

A reserve formation which went in on the heels of the assault wave was taken to France entirely by Canadian craft and crews, and other follow-up troops were also carried by R.C.N. craft.

This was the biggest task ever undertaken by the R.C.N. landing craft flotillas. The craft they used were what is official designated as Landing Craft Infantry.

They are large, about 200 feet long, and look like a miniature destroyer. They carry about 200 soldiers. They nose upon the beach and long ramps shoot up on either side.

Around the sharp bow the infantry goes to the beach along these ramps.

In addition to the LCI barge, a Royal Canadian Navy Landing Ship Infantry, a much larger craft, of about 10,000 tons, also shared in this huge operation.

11000 Planes Pave Way For Invasion

Huge Air Umbrella Greatest Yet Batters French Coast

BY W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 6 — (AP) — Through a rolling ocean of clouds 5,000 feet thick Allied Air Forces threw 11,000 aircraft of almost every type into the grand invasion of Europe today, bombing and strafing miles of Normandy's beaches and flying inland to break the enemy's communications.

Two things stood out in the air operations launched in support of the landings in northern France. The first was the mass of airplanes the Allied were able to put into the sky in weather described as "just fair."

The other was the absence of German resistance.

R.A.F. Sends 1300

These raids came after the R.A.F. bomber command sent more than 1,300 of the biggest British and Canadian planes roaring across the Channel last night and early today in the heaviest aerial attack ever aimed at German batteries along the French coast.

The Air Ministry said the heavy bombers dropped more than 5,000 tons of bombs on 10 French coastal batteries.

Meanwhile airmen in the first 10 waves of American fighterbombers to take part in the non-stop operations since 4.30 a.m. reported no serious opposition from German fighters anywhere over the Channel or the beachhead.

Ten attacks were executed between 11:30 p.m. and sunrise, each with 100 or more of the heavy bombers.

Other British aircraft attacked the northwestern German railroad city of Osnabruck without loss.

The stunning aerial bombardment fell on the Normandy landing beaches as the first phases of the co-ordinated assault began.

All Canadian Force Used Hits France In First Wave Of Great Pre-Dawn Attack

By ALAN RANDAL—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 6—(CP Cable).—In pre-dawn darkness today, while London and southeast England reverberated with the thunder of aerial armadas, Canadian troops landed with British and American units on the coast of Northern France. Three hours later, Louis Hunter of The Canadian Press reported from an R.C.A.F. airfield that returning fliers said operations on the beach seemed "well organized."

Unconfirmed by the Allies, the Germans placed the landings on the north coast of Normandy—the land William the Conqueror left in 1066 to subdue England — and the south side of the bay of the Seine. The Allies thus were back in a country which British troops and a scattering of Canadians left four years ago, vowing to return.

Part of the mammoth assault was all-Canadian. Ships of the Royal Canadian Navy carried the troops from the Dominion who landed in the first assault waves and their reinforcements and then began a ferry service to the beachheads.

Planning the great operation included making during the last two years more original maps of France than the country itself made since the days of Julius Caesar.

Largest In History.

Just as there never had been anything to compare with the seaborne landing force, so there never was such an aerial bombardment as the pre-dawn assault delivered on the invasion area long before the German radio put out first reports that a second front had been opened.

There could be no doubt in Londoners' minds that D-day was here. After hearing the thunder of aircraft during the hours of darkness they could see aircraft of all descriptions coming and going over the capital when darkness lifted.

Churches Hold D-Day Services

By The Canadian Press

Ontario's home front took the news of the invasion of Europe calmly to-day and after learning from radio newscasts and special newspaper editions of the arrival of D-day, many went to their churches to pray for the success of Allied arms.

In Toronto a great public service was held at the City Hall in downtown Toronto where noon-hour crowds blocked traffic. It was conducted by Lt.-Col. Sidney Lambert, First Great War padre.

Services were held during the morning in churches of all denominations and all were open during the day for personal intercession.

Such services were held throughout the province. There were special masses for victory in Roman Catholic churches and services of intercession were held in Protestant churches with many planning services this evening.

Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and primate of Canada, will conduct a service of intercession at Peterborough late this afternoon.

In some centres the news was heralded by the ringing of church bells or the sounding of factory whistles or sirens, among them being Stratford, Welland, Kitchener, Galt, Brockville Woodstock, Belleville, Cornwall and Brantford.

Mine Sweepers On The Job

Clear Path For Invasion Fleet

LONDON, June 6.—(CP).—In the face of enemy shore batteries and aircraft a gallant minesweeping force of 10,000 Britons and Americans guided D-day's seaborne assault with the greatest mine-sweeping operation in history.

The great armada of little ships —converted fishing trawlers, coal burners which served in the last war, ships still on the secret list and recently launched in British and American yards, performed their task on a huge scale. The sweep wires used to tear loose moored mines stretched nearly 70 miles in all.

With the sweepers steamed other ships which dropped markers to guide the invasion fleet through the cleared seas.

The job had to be completed on a time-table despite gunfire, attacking aircraft and tricky tides. Doggedly the little craft kept perfect formation to make sure the swept lanes went straight to the designated landing points.

Forces Carry Minimum Of Equipment

Troops Are Trained To Last Detail On Leaving Britain

BY WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE ALLIED INVASION FORCES, June 6 — (CP Cable) — Allied invasion forces smashing at the continent sailed from Britain trained to the last detail and stripped to the fighting minimum of equipment.

For soldiers keyed to the great operation by years of intensive training, "two F"—second front—has begun.

Long before they crowded into landing-craft which took them into battle, each man had been grounded in the last detail of what he must do when once ashore.

Enlarged reconnaissance photographs enabled officers briefing their men to say: "There is a house. Your job is to take care of Germans who will be behind such and such a window."

Only one detail was withheld until the hour of departure—the exact name of the landing-point.

In the camp area where they awaited embarkation, the men went over their "two F kits" and joked about their short "two F" haircuts and "two F jitters".

24-Hour Ration Packs

Each man carried everything he would need in the hours immediately following landing. Ammunition and grenades bulged web pouches, water bottles and 24-hour ration packs hung from belts, respirators were strapped on back below gas capes rolled up to contain a towel and shaving kit, and each carried a lightweight trenching tool for digging in.

The men advanced by stages through the camp area to embarkation point, shedding unnecessary equipment as they progressed. Some of it will follow them once the beachhead has been consolidated;

Seek Transfer Of Pensions

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 6—(CP)—Two of the objectives to be sought by the federal government at the proposed Dominion-Provincial conference for which no date has yet been set now have been set forth.

In the House of Commons yesterday Finance Minister Ilsley gave them as:

1. Agreement for complete transfer of jurisdiction over old age pensions from the provinces to the dominion to the end that a contributory pension scheme with more generous pensions at a lower age may be brought into being.

2. A revision of the financial setup of Canada involving possible shifts of sources of revenue as between the provinces and the Dominion.

"We have a fairly satisfactory agreement with regard to taxation fields for the war period," said Mr. Ilsley, "but it expires at the end of the war and we shall have to get our minds down eventually to the question as to what taxes may be imposed by what authority."

Mr. Ilsley spoke as the House ended a long and interrupted debate on old age pensions under the item in the War Appropriation Bill which provides for the increase in the statutory pension authorized last year. Member after member pleaded for action to both increase the amount of pension and lower the eligible age which now stands at 70. They also voiced many protests against regulations under which the present pension system is administered.

That and other finance department items in the bill were approved as well as items under the Mines and Resources department for completion and maintenance of the military road in British Columbia eastward from Prince Rupert and for payment of Japanese employed on departmental works projects.

The German radio to-day flooded the air with reports of invasion developments, few of which found confirmation or drew comment from Allied quarters.

Such announcements as will be made by Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force doubtless will be designed to give no information to the enemy in the important early stages of the operation, and enemy reports should be read with that in mind.

The Germans are notorious for their "fishing" announcements aimeded at drawing information from the Allies.

At Washington Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, suggested Axis reports be treated warily. "Anything the Axis radio puts out is in their own interest," he said.

over 2,000 prisoners apparently will be unable to scramble out of the Allied net because all Tiber bridges from Rome to the sea either have been blown up or captured.

In still-jubilant Rome, however, 11 crossings remained intact, and 5th Army formations poured across in a constant stream to chase the Germans fleeing northward in disorder.

Allied armored forces fanned out over a wide area. Infantry also has crossed the river in force and was reported driving due west of Vatican City. The only resistance anywhere came from isolated rearguards.

The peninsula is 70 miles long and ranges from 25 to 60 miles wide, with the Port of Cherbourg at the tip as a keypoint of coastal defence. Cherbourg is 75 miles from Bournemouth, England.

From German accounts, the Allied objective appeared to be establishment of a broad beachhead along the curving coast between Le Havre and Cherbourg.

Penetrations inland would clear all of Normandy, with its good air field sites, and provide a pathway down the Seine Valley to Paris.

Le Havre, 100 air line miles northwest of Paris on the Seine River estuary, is France's second seaport and has 14 ship basins and eight miles of docks.

One of France's main trans-Atlantic terminals for peacetime trade, the city itself lies mostly on a level strip of ground except on the north where a great bluff overlooks the entrance to the Seine estuary. Before the war it was France's 11th city in population, with about 165,000 persons.

AN 8TH U.S.A.A.F. BASE, June 6 (AP)—Allied landing forces have established beachheads on the coast of northern France and are slashing their way inland, the first photo reconnaissance pilots back from the scene of the initial thrust said today.

From a ringside seat only 500 feet above the burning, smoking rim of the continent, two airmen watched the Allies strike the first blow.

One is Lt.-Col. C. A. Shoop, Beverley Hills, Calif., a former army test pilot who arrived in this theatre six weeks ago and became commander of this group only yesterday and flew his first mission today.

The other is Maj. Norris Hartwell, Cheyenne, Wyo. formerly acting commander of this unit.

DEDICATE ALTAR—St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, has erected a new altar which will be dedicated Wednesday afternoon at a ceremony performed by Most Rev. D. T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of all Canada. The altar is the work of Sidney Watson, art master of Grove School.

St. Mark's Altar To Be Dedicated

Otonabee's old and lovely country church, St. Mark's, will be the scene of the dedication of a new altar Wednesday afternoon at a ceremony to be conducted by Most Rev. D. T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto. At 3 o'clock that afternoon, an English-style altar, the work of Sidney Watson, art master of the Grove School will be dedicated in the little church of which Rev. E. C. Moore of Peterborough is the rector.

The altar, made of ordinary pine, is noted for its dignity and simplicity, and it shows the influence of medieval spirit. Mr. Watson is under the influence of the English-style-altar school and he is an associate of W. Rae of Toronto, outstanding ecclesiastical architect of the Church of England in Canada.

The centre panel of the altar shows the lion of St. Mark, while the Gospel side depicts the Crucifixion and the epistle side the chalice and host.

Confirmation will also form part of the service on Wednesday at St. Mark's, which was built in 1861.

WITH INVASION FORCES — Capt. R. T. F. Brain, former curate of St. John's Anglican Church, is one of a group of padres to go into action with the invasion forces today. Also listed in the group is Capt. R. L. Seaborn of Cobourg.

Warn Patriots Wait For Signal

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE June 6.—(AP). — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the supreme Allied commander, went on the air this invasion day, telling the peoples of Europe the grand assault on the continent had begun and "all patriots, young and old, will have a part to play in the liberation."

He pleaded against premature uprisings, saying: "Be patient, prepare. Wait until I give you the signal."

He was followed by King Haakon of Norway, who broadcast special orders to both organized and unorganized groups in Norway, but warned his people not to rise against the Germans prematurely.

It was announced that Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who had just arrived in London, would broadcast a message to the people of France later in the day.

Earlier in the day the BBC had broadcast communique No. 1 from invasion headquarters, first in English and then in French and immediately thereafter an "alert" to the people of Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium and Denmark.

French people were told additionally to stand by in 14 minutes for a special announcement.

Announcements also were carried by ABSIE (American broadcasting station in England) and it was announced that all wave lengths of the BBC, ABSIE and the world broadcasting station in the United States and the United Nations radio in Algiers were surrounding Europe with the same announcements.

Alerts were repeated continuously for a 10-minute period in French, Dutch, Danish, Norwegian and Flemish.

fighting, is the most important road junction in the southeastern part of the Cherbourg peninsula. On the River Orne, 10 miles from the sea and 160 miles northeast of Paris, Caen was founded by William the Conqueror and offers direct and swift access to Rouen, Le Havre and Cherbourg. From Rouen roads branch out north and east to Le Havre, Fecamp, Abbeville, Amiens, Beauvais and Dieppe, where Canadians would like to avenge the 1942 landings by the 2nd Division when the bulk of the force was casualties or captured.

Short Part of Coast

News so far released refers to such a short length of coast that even if it is a serious beginning it conceivably is only a small part of the great plan. Obviously ports of the size of Cherbourg and Le Havre are needed for big ships carrying heavy material.

R.C.A.F. fighter pilots flew the day's first sorties over the beachhead area. Returned to base to refuel and continued throughout the day to provide cover for Canadians in the assault force.

Canadian naval participation in the ferrying operations recalled the pre-invasion "feints" which the supreme command watched from RCN Infantry Landing Craft. Canada was well represented in that dress rehearsal, with H.M.C.S. Prince Henry and H.M.C.S. Prince David, former auxiliary cruisers converted into invasion ships, Canadian corvettes, minesweepers and flotillas of Canadian-manned motor torpedo boats.

Canadian bombers also had a hand in the operation. The R.C.A.F. bomber group joining R.A.F. aircraft in last night's hammering of military installations on the French coast. One Canadian bomber was lost in the assault.

Bombing of coastal batteries, which present a very small target, was one of the most difficult jobs ever given bomber command and the Canadian bomber group reported it had done well in the attacks. The German guns were in casements entirely enclosed in concrete fortresses comparable to the Maginot Line.

Old Employees Honored By Turner Co.

"The loyal co-operation of you employees has made the business a success. It is our utmost desire to work and play fair always," were among the words of welcome and appreciation spoken by Chill Turner, president of J. J. Turner & Sons Ltd., to employees of the firm gathered Monday evening at dinner in the Empress Hotel in celebration of the company's 70th anniversary.

Mr. Turner, presiding as chairman at the first dinner of its kind ever held by the nationally-known tent-making concern, made mention of the founding of the company by his father, J. J. Turner, Sr., and said that since its earliest days the company's record had ever been marked by the loyalty and service of its people. He added that all were proud of those former employees now serving in His Majesty's forces, of whom there are eight, and wished to send them warmest greetings.

Old Employees Honored

Special tribute was paid to eight of the company's employees who have been working in it for more than 25 years; and these men and women, with records of service extending to as many as 38 years, were presented gifts of watches. They include George Chandler, John Dallin, Roy Rutherford, Robert Gavine, Robert Hendry, John Hobson, Miss Emily Trotter and Mrs. Annie Anderson.

On behalf of the 78 employees of the firm, Mr. Hendry spoke the thanks of his fellow workers, their pleasure in working for J. J. Turnner's and their high opinion of the company, which, he said, "we are proud to consider the best plant of its kind in the Dominion." In quality and service, he stated, it was second to none.

"This occasion takes my mind back to thoughts of the founder," Mr. Henry said. "Would that he could have lived to see this day. Until today the firm has been much the same, and now it is much different. We the employees, are 100 per cent behind you."

Following the dinner the employees, as guests of the management, saw the motion picture, "Watch On The Rhine."

Canadians In Third Landing On France

LONDON, June 6 (Tuesday) — (CP)—The Allied Invasion of France marks the day for which Canadian troops have been in training without let-up for almost four years.

Exact extent to which Canadian forces are involved has not yet been disclosed but there could be little doubt that they would be among the vanguard of invading forces.

For them it will be an opportunity to prove themselves in battle as has the Canadian Corps in Italy.

This is the third time in this war Canadian forces have landed in France. The first time was in 1940 when a force landed at Brest, struck out for Paris and then withdrew before engaging German forces which were achieving the defeat of France.

The second time was in August, 1942, when a major part of the 2nd Divsion landed at Dieppe in a brief but fiercely-fought combined operation.

Fire Destroys Last Sawmill

LAKEFIELD, June 6 — (ENS).—Fire of an unknown origin broke out suddenly about 8:30 on Monday night and levelled the last of Lakefield's sawmills. Site of one of the original mills and on land once owned by the Strickland family, founders of Lakefield, the mill had been burned twice before on the same site.

Unusual feature of the spectacular blaze as the tinder dry structure went up in flames 100 feet high, was the burning of the ice-house around thousands of cakes of ice, the village's summer supply. However, it is believed the ice can be salvaged providing a new frame is erected around the huge pile of blocks encased in sawdust.

The mill, which is owned by J. McManus & Sons, had been doing booming business with a heavy cut of logs still on hand. Mr. McManus and one of the boys had left the mill shortly before with everything in good order for the night. Fireman John Sabatino reported he was at the mill 20 minutes before the blaze and saw no sign of fire. The alarm was telephoned in by Ray Hopkins and Lloyd Allen and a full brigade and both engines under Chief Allan Clark went into action.

Fifteen minutes after the fire started the building was completely demolished, but the firemen were working until 11 o'clock playing water on piles of burning lumber and slabs in the yard, and preventing the flames from spreading to nearby boathouses. The hose had to be carried over the rock pile by the firement as the ground was too soggy to drive the trucks in.

Loss was estimated at approximately $2,500 to $3,000, with no insurance.

Eisenhower Expresses Confidence In The Courage Of Allied Forces

LONDON, June 6 — (AP). — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower issued the following order of the day to his invasion troops to-day:

Soldiers, sailors, and airmen of the Allied Expeditionary Force:

You are about to embark on a great crusade. The eyes of the world are upon you and the hopes and prayers of all liberty-loving peoples go with you.

In company with our brave Allies and brothers in arms on other fronts you will bring about the destruction of the German war machine, elimination of Nazi tyranny over the oppressed peoples of Europe, and security for ourselves in a free world.

Your task will not be an easy one. Your enemy is well trained, well equipped and battle hardened. He will fight savagely. But in this year of 1944 much has happened since the Nazi triumphs of 1940 and 1941.

The United Nations have inflicted upon the Germans great defeats in open battle, man to man. Our air offensive has seriously reduced their strength in the air and their capacity to wage war on the ground, our home fronts have given us overwhelming superiority in the weapons and munitions of war, and have placed at our disposal great reserves of trained fighting men. The tide has turned, and free men of the world are marching together to victory.

I have full confidence in your courage, devotion to duty and skill in battle. eW will accept nothing less than full victory. Good luck, and let us all beseech the blessing of Almighty God upon this great and noble undertaking.

King George Calls For Prayer

King Broadcasts To People Of Commonwealth

LONDON, June 6 — (CP) — The King tonight called upon his subjects to offer up "earnest and continuous and widespread prayer throughout the present crisis of the liberation of Europe."

Prayer, he said, would fortify the "determination of our sailors, soldiers and airmen who go forth to set captives free."

"At this historic moment surely not one of us is too busy, too young or too old to play their part in the nationwide, perchance worldwide, vigil of prayer as the great crusade sets forth," the King said in a BBC broadcast.

"After nearly five years of toil and suffering we must renew that crusading impulse on which we entered the war and met its darkest hour. We and our Allies are sure that our fight is against evil and for a world in which goodness and honor may be the foundation of life of men in every land.

"That we may be worthily matched with this new summons of destiny, I desire solemnly to call my people to prayer and dedication.

"We are not unmindful of our shortcomings of the past and present. We shall not ask that God do our will but that we may be enabled to do the will of God; and we dare to believe that God has used our nation and empire as an instrument for fulfilling His high purpose."

Plaintiff Loses Damages Suit

Injured by a bicycle at Rubidge and Townsend streets June 4 a year ago, Mrs. Gertrude Hagger failed to recover damages in her action for $500 against John Murray in the opening of the sessions of the County Court before a jury and Judge Coleman of Whitby Monday afternoon.

The jury found that the plaintiff was not struck by the bicycle on which Murray was riding, and on that verdict Judge Coleman dismissed the suit with costs, if demanded by the defendant. Three cyclists were mentioned in the evidence which was interpreted by the jury as exonerating Murray.

Mrs. Hagger was walking across Rubidge street at Townsend from west to east, and near the east side she was hit by a bicycle which she alleged was ridden by the defendant, and at excess speed. She suffered a fractured left leg, other bruises and shock.

T. J. Carley, K.C., was solicitor for Murray, and W. J. A. Fair for the plaintiff.

Judge Coleman Presides At County Court

The great improvement in the world situation and the happier prospect facing the citizens of the Allied nations was the subject of brief comment by Judge D. B. Coleman of Whitby, presiding at the opening of the June Session of the County Court in Peterborough Monday.

Judge Coleman told jurors that it had been two years since he had sat in this county and that he was glad to be here again. "In that time," he said, "world conditions have changed greatly; and Sunday we were further uplifted to receive the grateful news of the fall of Rome.

"Four years ago I opened the court sitting in Lindsay. Then the invasion of France had begun and the fate of all free peoples was very much in doubt. Now that is all past." he said

Judge Coleman told jurors that "your duties will be very light." He said that because of recent inspections by grand juries, the inspection of county buildings would be dispensed with at the present time. Only two minor csaes, the judge announced, would be handed the grand jury for decision as to whether a true bill should be brought in.

In closing, he expatiated very briefly on the duties of the grand jury and informed its members that at any point during the hearing of evidence they could vote to return a true bill. Jurors were permitted, he said, to interrogate the witnesses themselves; but he advised them to listen to the Crown Attorney, who, acquainted as he was with points of law, would help to shorten the proceedings by a good deal.

Alderman James Dutton was nominated foreman of the jury.

Three Men Apply For Citizenship

COBOURG, June 6 (ENS) — Two non-jury civil actions were on the docket when the June sittings of county court opened Monday with Judge S. Smoke of Peterborough presiding. Three applications for citizenship were heard, George Genetin of Bowmanville; John Jurko of Enniskillen and John Malinowski of R. R. No. 1, Port Hope. The first two are Czechs and the latter is a Pole. Two former applicants, Andrew Velic of Port Hope and Martin Bediki of Hope Township, took the oath of allegiance.

Settlement was reached in the action brought by Lillie Parker of Brighton village against George and V. Montgomery of Brighton township, plaintiff receiving back the deed and settlement in connection with the cash claim agreed upon. Plaintiff was the owner of a house in Brighton which she conveyed to the plaintiffs, including a house on condition that the defendants would care for and maintain the plaintiff for the remainder of her life, her age being 67 years. In the event of the plaintiff not residing there, defendants were to pay rent for the house. Mrs. Parker alleged that she had to do housework, paid the taxes and loaned the defendents money. The house was to be rent-free for two months prior to her taking up residence with them, on condition that some repairs to it were made. These were not made, plaintiff alleged.

Hearing of the action brought by Victor Rowe of Hamilton township against his father, Mark Rowe and his brothers, Roland and Percy, started Monday and didn't get finished by the end of the day. Plaintiff alleges that the defendants for a period of five months up until April 1, of this year, unlawfully entered upon land purchased by him from his father and cut timber. Plaintiff asked damages of $500 and costs. Victor Rowe testified that although he had granted permission to the defendants to take off firewood from the land, he designated a certain section which was wooded but the defendants started to take the wood off from all sections of the farm.

Walter Thomson New President Of Central Ontario Liberals

PORT HOPE, June 6—Walter C. Thomson, K.C. of Pickering was elected president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association at a well attended meeting held here on Monday afternoon. Delegates were present from the eleven ridings making up the association and a keynote of enthusiasm and optimism in the results of the next Federal election was most apparent.

WALTER C. THOMSON, K.C.

John McLaughlin of Lindsay, the retiring president, plesided, and on the platform were W. A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland, Col. Harry Hamilton of Sault St. Marie, president of the Ontario Liberal Association, Senator Rupert Davies of Kingston and William Dwyer of Kingston, the secretary.

Speakers during the afternoon were the president-elect; Co. Hamilton, W. A. Fraser and Bruce McNevin, M.P. for Victoria.

Annual Meeting

Col. Hamilton announced that the annual meeting of the Ontario Liberal Association will be held in Toronto on June 26, and it was decided that following that meeting a big rally would be held either in Peterborough, Belleville or Lindsay, when Prime Minister Mackenzie King will be invited to speak and also several of the cabinet ministers.

Col. Hamilton in his brief address told of the re-organization of the Ontario Liberal Association and the putting it back on its feet. Gone are the days of non-co-operation between the Ottawa and the Ontario Association and he declared a spirit of co-operation was now evident whereby all were working towards a successful conclusion of the war.

He urged the gathering to be big, generous and not so critical, for there was a war to be won and controls were necessary if the Allies are to win. The same controls which Canadians are kicking about today are in force in Great Britain, United States and every other nation supporting the Allied cause. "Ottawa government has done a good job and no matter what the Tories say the record will stand and go down in history. The job has been something higher, something bigger than to court popularity, or win elections, it has been to keep face with the boys who are fighting. The criticisms being offered are not in the way the war is being carried on but in the controls. However regardless of all this the Ottawa government will go forward and do a mighty job."

W. A. Fraser told the gathering that the Progressive-Conservative party could not win in the next election and forecast that the only party able to form a government would be the Liberals. "We have a good government in Ottawa, a government courageous enough to concentrate all its efforts on winning the war in spite of the opposition being placed in its way by the other parties."

"There have been no favors given, there have been no scandals and there have been no five per cent bonds. The Conservative party all through this war has worked, in spite of all its flag waving, insiduously at politics. "He said in his estimation there likely would be a federal election before the snow flies in the fall, but into this many things can enter and make a postponement necessary.

Senator Rupert Davies also spoke.

The following is the list of officers elected: President, Walter C. Thomson of Pickering; 1st vice president, Bruce McNevin of Lindsay; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Harold Davies of Kingston; secretary, William Dwyer of Kingston; treasurer, Senator Davies.

On motion of Mr. Thomson votes of confidence were expressed in Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Harry Nixon and Col. Hamilton.

Minister Warns Soldiers Expect Fair Treatment

"Some of the men who entered Rome with the victorious 8th Army were men who had to ride the rods during the depression. We will be making a mistake if we think that those men are not coming back expecting to take the place in society that their services have earned for them."

Such was the statement of Rev. James Semple, B.A., D.Th., minister of the Bridge Street Methodist Church, Belleville in addressing the local Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon Monday on the subject "The Church and the Present Crisis."

Rev. Dr. Semple is chairman of the Belleville Presbytery, an ex-president of the Bay of Quinte Conference and chairman of the settlement committee. In addition he is a member of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church, chairman of the Hastings County Children's Aid Society and a member and past president of the Belleville Rotary Club.

He was introduced to the gathering by Rotarian R. F. Downey.

Church Fought On

Rev. Dr. Semple declared that he proposed to give what might be termed a classification talk and he added that he had no apology to offer for championing the cause of the Church. In that connection he referred to the fact that Einstein had been forced to declare that the Church which he described as "an institution which I have despised and of which I am not a member and which I have thought of as insignificant in society" should be the one agency in Germany that had opposed Hitler. Einstein had looked to the press and to the university to do so but they had failed and only the Church had stood its ground.

The speaker first referred to the Church as the place of worship in the life of the individual and in the corporate life of the community and added that there was no man present who could do without that fundamental thing called worship.

Secondly Dr. Semple stressed the fact that the Church must take its place in the present crisis and thirdly that it was necessary that the Church should evince a deep concern for youth.

Rotarian Donald J. McGrath moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

A number of ministers attending the Bay of Quinte Conference as well as a delegation of local pastors were guests of Rotary to hear the thought-inspiring address of Dr. Semple.

The Day Of Invasion

The day for which we have all been waiting has come at last, and the largest invasion force in history has crossed the English Channel. At the time of writing the news is still too scant of detail to provide material for profitable comment; and indeed it is fitting that the ready tongues of commentators should be still on this momentous occasion. For what is there to say? Nothing except that the land invasion of Europe has begun and that, God willing, it will free all of Europe in time.

The preparations for this moment have been long and arduous. The assault from the air was an invasion in itself, and it is impossible to calculate the number of soldiers' lives which have been spared, which would otherwise have been lost in doing the work which has been done by the air forces of the United Nations. For the past week there have been thrusts and feints at the European coast to confuse the enemy and to trick him, if possible, into a foolish disposition of his troops. The invasion was no surprise to the Nazis; the only element of surprise lay in the actual points at which most pressure was applied.

It may very easily be several days before the pattern of the fighting emerges, and it is quite possible that the full strength of the United Nations' forces has not yet been put into action. Meanwhile it is essential that we should give no credence to any news which does not come from an authentic source; that we should avoid all public speculation, particularly of a pessimistic character; that we should not expect miracles; that we should keep our courage high. The next few weeks will bring good news and bad; until the end of the campaign is in sight we must guard against any too sudden and violent exaltation or depression. For we may be assured that the United Nations' cause will triumph in the end.

Source Book Of Canadian History

Elsewhere on this page we reproduce an editorial from the Ottawa Journal commenting on a speech which was made in the Senate by the Hon. Rupert Davies on Senator David's motion that a uniform text-book of Canadian history be prepared for use everywhere in this Dominion. The facts which were brought forward by Senator Davies should be of concern not only to educationists, but to every citizen who cares about the proper instruction of the young people of Canada. Consider this, for instance: in Ontario the authorized Canadian history books used in High Schools and Public Schools are by Professor William Stuart Wallace, and this is what Senator Davies has to say about them: "I do not believe it is in the best interests of the children of Ontario that from the time they start to learn history in the public school, probably at the age of ten or eleven years, until they matriculate from the high school, their opinions on the history of this country should be formed largely by one man... Professor Wallace's high school history is called The History of the Canadian People. I am sorry to find that it is not up to date. It was first published in 1930. Since that time fifteen new editions have been printed, two of them as late as 1942. Yet what do we find? We find that on pages 333 and 334 the author undertakes to deal with the Imperial Conferences. He devotes about one page and a half to these important Conferences. He tells his students that the 1926 Conference laid down the principal that Great Britain and the Dominions are "autonomous communities within the Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic and external affairs though united by a common allegiance to the Crown and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of nations". The author then goes on to say that the principle, though embodied in a unanimous resolution of the conference "has not as yet perhaps the force of law". This is what we are still teaching students in the high schools of Ontario in 1944, despite the fact that the Statute of Westminster became law in 1931". The fact that the Ontario histories were out of date was only one of the interesting and often disquieting details which the speaker brought to light.

The Examiner is of the opinion that a carefully prepared uniform text-book of Canadian history would be of great value to this country, but it would go farther. We should like to see such a text-book used in continual association with a Source-Book of Canadian History. In the Source-Book let us have significant passages from the records of the great explorers; let us have the actual words of the Quebec Act and the British North America Act and the Statute of Westminster; let us have some of the correspondence of Sir John A. Macdonald and his colleagues, so that we may see that Confederation was not an act of God, but a speculative and risky undertaking. Let us, in fact, have a book which will enable our students to see the bones of history under the fat which the historians load upon them. Let us recall the words of W. G. Sumner: "Every student during his academic period ought to get up one bit of history thoroughly from the ultimate sources, in order to convince himself what history is not".

Let no educationist say that such a book would be beyond the capacities of high school students. It is time that those young ladies and gentlemen really learned something in blood, toil, tears and sweat, instead of being spoon-fed and protected from the chill winds of knowledge. With a good text-book and a good source-book, they could hardly matriculate as innocent of Canadian history, or of any kind of history, as they do now.

Rome Is Free At Last

Now that Rome is in our hands all questions about the relative values of its ancient monuments and the lives of Allied soldiers become academic; under Allied care, no harm will come to the great city, and it is a matter for deep gratitude that we were able to take it without a bitter and destructive fight. It is true that there was some fighting in Rome, and that the Nazis destroyed certain of the essential services of the city before they left it, but there was no fighting on a great scale, and so far there has been no report of damage to objects which ingenuity cannot restore.

The Nazis have taken the line that their yielding of Rome was a foxy device to leave the Allies with all the problems of city administration and feeding the Romans, but with no real gain. We cannot believe that even the German public will be deceived by such nonsense. With Rome in our hands the fighting spirit of the Italians has been immeasureably strengthened, for their capital city is free at last, and there can be no German vandalism there: Rome is the first capital city in Occupied Europe to be set free, and the first scene of Fascist triumph to see the fall of Fascism; and as, with Rome, we take the heart of the Italian system of communication, it is idiotic to say that we have gained nothing by its capture.

Having taken Rome, the next Allied objective is the annihilation of the German armies under Kesselring. Already five German divisions have been wiped out, and the slaughter continues; the position of those German troops who have not withdrawn to the north from positions around Rome is exceedingly dangerous. For the main body of German troops there is little to do but withdraw to the Rimini-Pisa line, 160 miles north of Rome, and make a stand there—if they can. But in order to do so they must first reach the line, and with our troops in full pursuit that will not be easy.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Kingston Whig-Standard says that lending money is one way to improve your memory. Yes, but look what it does to the memory of the borrower!

Jean-Francois Pouliot, the voluble M.P. for Temiscouata, complains that he has been called upon to withdraw a statement which he never made. When we consider the amount of talking he manages to do each session, we are surprised to learn that there is such a thing as a statement which Mr. Pouliot has never made.

Commenting on destruction wrought by a bomb which fell in the St. James' district of London the St. Thomas Times-Journal writes:

"The most surprising revelation about the bombing is that merchandise to the value of many millions of dollars was destroyed in the adjacent shopping district in Pall Mall and St. James's Street. No one looking around there would dream that the very unpretentious looking shops harbored anything of great value. There is not one that looks as smart as the average store in any main street of a small Canadian city".

A chromium front isn't everything. The shop destroyed was Christie's, the most famous auction room in the world.

Mr. Curtin In Ottawa

By B. I. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA.—Behind John Curtin and behind present-day Australia lies long years in which Australians regarded themselves as the isolated bastion of European civilization and British institutions in the western Pacific. Its defence, as Mr. Curtin explained at his Ottawa press conference, was Singapore. "You know the ghastly story," he said, "the fleet didn't come and Singapore collapsed."

Few nations confront such dire transformation in their security as did Australia in 1942, which Mr. Curtin called "the dark year." It was a narrow escape. The story of Australia's war effort is a record of Australian efforts to save themselves. Now that the black cloud has lifted, the Australians are casting about to shape new policies and erect new foundations for their future.

Mr. King introduced Mr. Curtin to the press by saying the prime minister of Australia is a world figure who needed no introduction. Few world personalities have attracted so much close attention and study in Ottawa as did Mr. Curtin. The questions of newspapermen, reflecting the public interest, concentrated mainly upon Australia's new position in the world and in the British Commonwealth. It is one of contrast with Canada's and the people of Canada are just beginning to understand Australia's position.

THE contrast lies even in the prime ministers. Mr. King, with his spectacles perched on his nose, the black ribbon fluttering down, is short and plump. He is heaven's gift to the cartoonists. Mr. Curtin is lean, lanky, in the Australian mode. His accent has the world-famous Australian tang. Mr. King's accent is Ontairo-Canadian, one of the minor dialects of North America. One finds few lines of identity in their political backgrounds. Mr. Curtin was a Labour journalist; Mr. King a Harvard-trained economist. But those things belong to the past. As they sat together, while Mr. Curtin talked to the press, the flow of history had drawn the threads of their careers together from opposite sides of the world. Each has spoken to the world, one for a vast, sun-baked commonwealth under the Southern Cross, the other for a sprawling confederation under the North Star. Each is a world figure, leader of nations at war.

Mr. Curtin fitted a cigarette into his holder, scratched a match. He talked conversationally. In 30 minutes he outlined Australia's war effort, a story too little known. The line in the southwest Pacific against the Japanese was held by Australia's efforts. This historical fact explains the new pride Australians feel. It was not always easy to follow Mr. Curtin. Inevitably he was asked about his idea for a permanent empire secretariat. "I have asked for more frequent consultation," he replied, "it is desirable to have some permanent element associated with the departments of state in which particular problems will have continuity of examination. That is all."

MR. CURTIN has not changed his mind about the secretariat. That was plain enough. But the new note in his explanation, absent in the reports from Washington and London of recent press conferences he has held in those capitals, is his emphasis on the responsibility of each government to its own people. He was asked if he thought the British commonwealth should act as a unit. The official report shows this answer: "Well, do you mean that it should be a robot unit? I did not say that at all. They are self-governing dominions and each of them is responsible to its own people for every penny it expends and for every policy it supports." Mr. Curtin clearly conceives of the British Commonwealth as one of the main elements of "the central core" of a new world organization, in which other elements would be United States, Russia and China. It is obvious that in this respect his views differ in some degree from those of Mr. King. The purpose of having a permanent secretariat to provide what he called "continuity of examination" of particular problems, as he explained it, would be to assist each government of a British dominion to reach decisions beforehand and then in conference attempt to attain a concensus of agreement. The British Commowealth, according to his thinking, would operate within a larger world organization.

MR. CURTIN was sure that the capacity for association and planning in war, which the United Nations have developed, will project itself into the postwar era. He said he had no "blueprint" for the future but had "general ideas" of a world organization and the British Commonwealth participating in it. The big powers must play the major role. The small countries must look to their own defence, but they must have associates.

That there are difficulties in the way of world organization, he admitted, but urged that they should not be exaggerated. "If everybody is going to cancel out the capacity for collaboration," he said, "of the nations in the arts of peace by this premature attempt to raise points of conflict, we should only be asking for trouble. "Nations had been able to reach agreements in the past. "You are not going to impose upon my mind," he said, "the defeatfist idea that in seeking with other countries the common good and true welfare of man, I am lessening the sovereignty of my own people."

Unconsidered Trifles

Mrs. Jones (during row): "You ought to carry two gas masks, Mr. Harris."

Mrs. Harris: "Why "

Mrs. Jones: "'Cos you're two-faced!"

Two soldiers were eagerly reading letters from home. Suddenly Bill gave a shout.

"Strike me pink," he exclaimed. "My son's got three feet."

"Chuck it," retorted Tom. "'Tain't possible."

"'Strue!" said Bill. "See what my missus says 'ere."

He handed the letter to Tom, who read: "You won't know little Johnny now. He's grown another foot."

After a long and searching cross-examination, the little woman in the witness-box remained quite unperturbed. At last the barrister who had been gruelling her remarked:

"You say you had no education, but you answered all my questions smartly enough."

"Yes, sir," replied the witness, meekly. "But you don't have to be a scholar to answer a lot of silly questions."

ANOTHER "UNDERGROUND" THAT WORRIES HITLER

Senator Davies Digs For Facts

(OTTAWA JOURNAL).

PEOPLE sometimes ask: "What service can be given by the Senate?" Senator Rupert Davies, of Kingston, discussing last week a proposal that there be a common Canadian history text-book for the schools of all our provinces, provided one answer. By tackling the subject as a realist, as a newspaperman with knowledge of public needs and psychology, he made all of us his debtor.

Senator Davies told the senators that his first "snap judgment" on the principle of a common history text-book was that "it must not be in the best interests of this Dominion." Said he:

"I do no like 'made to order' histories, and I was afraid that if the suggestion of the honourable senator from Sorel were carried out, we should have a history of Canada which would be an innocuous sort of thing written to please everybody. I wondered what sort of history Lord Macaulay would have written and what sort of a history of the English people John Richard Green would have written if each of them had been writing his history to please various groups and sections. I like history to be written in the same way that Oliver Cromwell wanted his picture painted, warts and all."

Not satisfied that he was right, Senator Davies began an extensive research by correspondence and otherwise, made inquiries from authoritative sources in every province, came up with a speech that packed Hansard with valuable information, plus valuable common sense.

One of the things discovered by Senator Davies is that in the public and high schools of Canada today, including French schools in Quebec, we are using more than 20 different histories of this country, with some of them not particularly up-to-date. Still another thing he discovered was that Canadian educationists and teachers, people who should know what they are talking about, are not satisfied that we are teaching history as it should be taught.

The Journal has already expressed approval of the plan for an impartial, objective story of Canada; one that could be used in all the schools of this country, whether French or English, Protestant or Catholic. After reading Senator Davies' contribution to the subject it is more sure of its position. Also, it feels that because of his speech, with its detailed information, the proposal—sponsored by Senator David—has more chance of succeeding.

If we had more speeches of this character in Parliament—less of generalization and more digging for relevant facts—both the Senate and the House of Commons would be more useful places.

Pass The Fluorides, Please

(By J. H. GRAY)

WHATEVER the brave new world may hold for the rest of us, we have a sneaking hunch that the dentists are not going to like it. And while dentists may get distemper from contemplating the plans now afoot for their ruination, another hunch tells us that everyone else is getting ready to cheer lustily if the experiments are successful.

Some months ago Ontario public health officers came upon a hamlet in which dentists starved to death. Regardless of the food they ate, nobody in this town ever had toothache. No teeth ever decayed. The discovery got the avid attention of all fugitives from dentist chairs.

"Hey, what goes on there?" everybody asked.

The strange behavior of the teeth of the inhabitants of the Ontario town was quickly traced to its drinking water. It contained, analysis showed, unusually large quantities of fluorides. Don't ask us what fluorides is, or are. All we know is that it prevents decay in teeth, and that's all we need to know to be very much pro-fluorides.

The discovery of fluorides has set two communities—Brantford, Ont., and Newburgh, N.Y. to experimenting. These cities are going to pump their drinking water full of fluorides and sit back and watch the dentists go broke. This, it seems to us, is one of the most laudable social experiments yet devised.

There are, of course, some obstacles. Fluorides may be expensive and the cost to the taxpayers might be considerable. But is there any price a fellow with a jumping toothache would refuse to pay for perpetual freedom from tooth decay? We think not.

It may turn out, though it pains us to mention this alternative, that the cause of the cavityless community lies elsewhere than in fluorides. Perhaps it is some quantity in the soil, or a special element in the atmosphere. Maybe it is something they eat. Whatever it is, it will be tracked down in the end. There are enough people at large putting off going to dentists to give the search the energy that is required to push it to a successful conclusion.

A year ago we would have launched a tremendous campaign here to get our own water-works department to do what Brantford and Newburgh are doing. Now we find ourselves perfectly willing to allow these towns to spend their money on this great humanitarian undertaking. We are content to let them spend their money while we sit back and wait for the verdict. Since last year we have visited our dentist. As a result our interest in decaying teeth has considerably abated. By the time it revives, we hope the results are in from Brantford.

Wartime Rules

Rules and regulations which harass the tradesman and the consumer are designed to provide a basis of fair trade in the midst of wartime scarcity. These regulations assume that there are dishonest people about who are out to catch the unwary. Unfortunately, in preventing dishonesty, they also trap honest men who find difficulty in keeping abreast of all the Whitehall Orders. Now what should be done? 1. No prosecutions of honest men who err unwittingly. Let the State lay its traps to catch the big fellow—the whisky racketeers, for example. Let the State help the small man who is doing his best to operate in an honest and decent fashion. 2. Put the regulations under constant review for the purpose of abolition whenever possible. 3. If regulations are necessary, state them in clear and simple terms.—London Daily Express.

Simplified Socialism

The party line of the C.C.F. is indicated by the following advertisement recently published under their sponsorship:

Question: What is Socialism?

Answer: Our provincial highways and county roads are examples of Socialism that are already here.

Question: What is free enterprise or individual initiative?

Answer: Free enterprise or individual initiative as opposed to our public highways would be private roads with toll gates every few miles.

Two parallel questions and answers may be suggested for the next advertisement of the series. These are:

Question: What is Socialism?

Answer: Our penitentiaries and county jails are examples of Socialism that are already here.

Question: What is free enterprise or individual initiative?

Answer: Free enterprise or individual initiative as opposed to our penitentiaries and jails would be free citizens living in homes of their own choice.—The Printed Word.

PARLIAMENTARY HUMOUR

(From Hansard—May 11, 1944)

Mr. G. K. Fraser (Prog. Cons., Peterborough W., Ont.): I do not want to be too hard on the C.C.F. because only the other day I was told by a Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario assembly that the C.C.F. opposition in the Ontario House was a model opposition.

Mr. C. Gillis (C.C.F., Cape Breton, South, N.S.): Surely.

Mr. Fraser: "Surely," the hon. member for Cape Breton South says. I have looked up the definition of "model" in the dictionary and I find that it means an imitation of the real thing.

A Bible Message

These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God....

And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them with the earth. Make thee an ark of gopher wood; rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch....

And the Lord said unto Noah, Come thou and all thy house into the ark; for thee have I seen righteousness before me in this generation....

And the flood was forty days upon the earth; and the waters increased, and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.... And every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: and Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark....

And the sons of Noah, that went forth of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japheth...., God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem. (Gen. 6: 9, 13, 14; 7: 1, 17, 23; 9: 18, 27.)

FOREIGN POLICY

Prime Minister King will not sacrifice anything British to please the United States, nor will he agree to anything that will annoy the United States. He will render unto Churchill that which is Churchill's and unto Roosevelt that which is Roosevelt's. And he will never forget that Canada is on the American continent, not the European, and that she has 4,000 miles of frontier with United States. Geography is a determining factor in the Prime Minister's modified imperialism.—Ottawa Citizen.

DOUBLE LOSS

One Sunday morning, a young clergyman was hastily summoned to preach in a certain church. To the congregation, which was entirely unknown to him, the young man spoke from the text: "Without money and without price."

The minister noticed, much to his annoyance, that every time he quoted his text the entire congregation shook with suppressed laughter.

After the exercises were over the young divine asked one of the vestrymen the meaning of all that unseemly mirth.

The vestryman laughed heartily and replied, "Our own minister — the one whose pulpit you filled today—is named Price, and he absconded yesterday with a large sum of money." — Wall Street Journal.

LILAC TIME IN LETHBRIDGE

Lethbridge citizens are this week enjoying some of the fruits of the early "Lethbridge Beautiful" campaigns in the burst of lilac blooms.

We doubt if, in spite of the lack of rain, Lethbridge has ever presented a more beautiful picture than it does today, with lilac bushes in practically every home grounds a mass of bloom ranging all the way from deep purple to the most delicate mauve—all accompanied by the scented atmosphere that can only come from lilacs in the mass. As the rose is to Portland, the lilac has come to be Lethbridge's favorite bloom.

Whether this lilac display will live up to the saying so often heard in the past, that a good lilac year is a good crop year, we will have to wait and see. We will hope so anyway.—Lethbridge Herald.

KEEPING A BEE

The City Council has had to concern itself with a good many different kinds of livestock in the past. Now, however, it is confronted with the apparently insoluble problem of the honey-bee.

Probably as a result of the sugar shortage, an increasing number of Calgary people have taken to raising bees. Their pets are beginning to cause trouble for the neighbours. Anyone with a flower garden or a lawn full of clover is liable to a mass invasion. Clashes between citizens and bees—with the bee the invariable winner—are becoming more numerous. As a result, complaints are being made to the council and that body is being urged to do something.

No one objects to a family keeping a few bees for its own use; but commercial bee-keeping is an occupation that should be carried on in the country.—Calgary Albertan.

Events Of Four Years Ago Recalled As Allied Armies Once Again Invade Soil Of Conquered France

BY CARL C. CRANMER
Associated Press Staff Writer

The long trail of blood and heartbreak winding through nearly five years of war from Warsaw and Dunkirk turned toward Paris again today with the long-planned Allied invasion of the shores of France.

The avenging forces, the greatest amphibious expedition in this or any other war, opened a fateful chapter in one of the most thrilling stories of nations — the story of France, great in history, fallen in defeat, awakening today to the battle shouts of soldier friends and Allies.

Tossed into the scale were the lives of many thousands of determined young men — Britons, Americans, Canadians and scattered European exiles whose countries have been both friend and foe of France in the long drama of her history.

At last, the black "clouds of planes" for which Premier Paul Reynaud vainly called four years ago, fill France's skies — manned by the equivalent of many divisions of men, flying to smash a way through the Nazi's vaunted Atlantic wall on the shortest route to Berlin.

The fate of Adolf Hitler, evil genius of the 20th century, promises to be settled on the soil of Northern France or Belgium, as was the fate of the Kaiser a quarter of a century before that.

Fateful May 1940

It was at dawn, May 10, 1940, that Hitler hurled his army of 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 men, his air force and 12 armoured divisions consisting of 6,000 tanks against France and the low countries with the admonition that the outcome would determine the fate of Germany for 1,000 years.

Believed To Have Good Army.

On that day France was believed by her Allies to have the most efficient army in the world. Still unsuspected was the terrible power which the German army had barely unfolded in its blitzkrieg on Poland. The Poles had relied on old-fashioned horse cavalry and fighting toughness. Now, it was thought, would be witnessed a battle between Titans.

But on June 27, just a month and seven days later, a stunned world heard Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, 84 year old hero of Verdun, shakenly announce: "It is with a broken heart that I tell you to-day it is necessary to stop the fighting."

He had asked the adversary, he said, as one soldier to another to grant an armistice with honor. He still did not suspect the depth of his delusion.

Paris had fallen, the swastika waved over Versailles, the Maginot Line, France's $500,000,000 line of fortresses had been flanked. The German army, with armored cars and majestic air force, was sweeping southward, cutting demoralized French forces to ribbons.

France, the second greatest empire in the world, the greatest republic in Europe, with its wealth, culture and fashion, had been swept away like a straw in the Nazi flood.

The bitter cup of a second Compiegne was prepared.

Hitler stomped his feet and clapped his hands when he received the news. He dramatized his astounding victory with sardonic irony when he coldly received the French emissaries in the old railway car of Marshal Foch where the 1918 armistice was signed.

That was the first battle of France.

Thought Allies Done.

Petain, and probably most of the French, believed that the Allies were done. Certainly it was much closer to defeat than they ever had come in the First Great War.

In Berlin and Paris German soldiers sang "We're sailing against England." The German radio blared it.

The battle of Britain was about to begin.

"Our neck is in a noose," Petain brokenly explained.

But across the channel, Prime Minister Churchill defiantly bid his people to fight.

"We have become the sole champions now in arms to defend the world cause and we shall do our best to be worthy of the high honor," he declared. "We shall defend our island home and with the British Empire around us we shall fight on unconquerable until the curse of Hitler is lifted from the brows of mankind."

Six days after he had declared his grief for the "galaint people" of France, Mr. Churchill rose in the House of Commons to upbraid "the Bordeaux Government" which he said had callously broken a promise not to let the French Fleet fall into enemy hands.

Then, on July 4, he told with anguish one of the most dramatic occurrences of the war.

French Fleet Broken.

The Royal Navy had fallen upon the French Fleet at Oran and Mers-El-Kebir off Algeria, and broken its backbone.

A tense House of Commons heard of the "drastic and grievous" action against old comrades in arms, but Mr. Churchill said it was necessary to deal with a threatened "mortal injury."

There followed the Allied charges of Vichy treachery when Indo-China was surrendered in September, 1940, to Japanese occupation as a springboard for the attack in South-east Asia, though Petain ordered his forces to fight the Allies in Syria in 1941 in Madagascar and at Dakar.

The blood spilled at Algiers and Casablanca in November, 1942, the wrangles over Martinique and St. Pierre-Miquelon in the Western Hemisphere, kept the sore spots open.

Power of Dictator.

On July 9, 1940, the Third French Republic died when the Parliament, the enemy's bayonets at its back, gave Petain power to govern by dictatorial decree and write a new constitution on totalitarian lines.

Petain's bias in favor of a more rigid, disciplined society seemed evident in his explanation that France's defeat was because she was too soft and easy-going under her democratic regime.

Pierre Laval emerged as the cunning political manipulator at Petain's elbow.

On October 24, 1940, was born the policy of collaboration with Hitler at the conference between Petain and the German dictator.

On Oct. 24, 1940, was born the policy of collaboration with Hitler at the conference between Petain and the German dictator.

But the ghosts of hostages shot by Hitler's squads of gunmen, the martyred heroes of a close-knit underground, the continuous stream of stories dogged French resistance to the invader, made it apparent that Petain and Vichy did not represent France.

Allied bombs aimed at Germans hit Frenchmen, but the French welcomed the airmen, guided them with signals, and hid them when they were forced down.

When British commandos attacked St. Nazaire in March, 1942, the French rose and attacked the Germans in the streets and continued to fight after the raid was over. Similar scenes occurred Aug. 19, 1942, when Canadian forces led the great 'Reconnaisance in force" at Dieppe — at heavy cost.

Sailors sunk their Fleet

Finally, proof that the patriotic soul of France was sound came when Hitler made his abortive effort to seize the remainder of the French fleet at Toulon Nov. 27, 1942 and French sailors courageously set off the basts that sent their own ships to the bottom.

The pandora's box that was opened with the Allied invasion of French North Africa Nov. 8, 1942, may be duplicated many fold by the invasion of France.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, one of the few Frenchmen who dared openly cast his lot with the Allied cause in the dark days of 1940, became the symbol and spark of resistance thereby. He now heads the French National committee in North Africa which is insistent upon taking over the reins in a liberated France.

De Gaulle has called Petain an "Evangel of Decadence," and De Gaullists propose to purge French National Life of the collaborationists whom they regard as traitors to France.

Petain wavered in his policy based on belief in German victory when the Allies invaded North Africa and Russia's armies sent Hitler's divisions reeling.

He protested sharply against Hitler's hasty occupation of the southern or "unocupied" zone of France on Nov. 11, 1942, took defiant cognizance of Hitler's occupation of Toulon and demobilization of the French army, and in an order of the day, decalred "France will not die."

In November, 1943, he was reported to have drafted a new French constitution along more democratic lines for France which the Nazis hushed up. It was believed the old Marshal was intent on preparing the way for a more liberal regime which might stand up in a rivalry with de Gaulle when the Allies arrived.

REHEARSAL FOR INVASION — Split-second timing is the secret for an operation like this to be successful. Undergoing intensive training for their task in the invasion of Europe, hundreds of Canadian paratroopers float earthwards in a mass jump while the troop-carrying aircraft which bore them aloft pass overhead. These soldiers took their initial training with parachutes in Canada, added polish and finesse in Britain.

Germans Taken 2 Years To Build Western Wall

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

For more than two years, the Germans labored over their defences in Western Europe—preparing for the invasion-reply promised from the 1940 day the British were pushed into the Channel from the beaches of Dunkirk.

The Germans never missed the opportunity to boast of an impregnable "Atlantic wall," a concrete-and-steel rim around the western edge of the Continent. In recent months they talked so much about the strength of the defences that military observers in London wondered what they were trying to hide.

Pre-invasion information published in London indicated the Germans had established a coastal defence zone, principally of concrete pillboxes and gunposts with large minefields covering the areas around these static emplacements.

For miles barbed wire was strung Many coastal ports and villages now are believed fortified in the same manner as the Germans used at Cassino and Ortona in Italy where scores of houses were turned into strong points and the guns placed in cellars.

This fortified coastal strip, regardless of whether or not it is only the cushion to take the first shock of the assault, is considered a formidable obstacle.

Inland Defences.

Farther inland the Nazis undoubtedly have erected strong defences hinged on key towns and cities and bolstered by more mine fields. German reserve divisions are likely concentrating on this line, prepared to strike at formations advancing from bridgeheads.

Hundreds of heavy and medium guns are certain to have been moved into areas in Western Europe in an effort to halt the invaders.

At Salerno and at Anzio the Germans sighted guns well, particularly their artillery.

The Germans must choose the most appropriate time to commit their reserve divisions. Coastal forces can be considered "throw-away" troops in taking the first blast from the Allied assault, but once main landings have been established and consolidated by the Allies, disposition of the Nazi reserve, in which the Germans place great hope, may well decide how the battle will be fought from the enemy point of view.

For defence the Germans can be counted upon to make predominant use of artillery and heavy mortars, including rocket mortars like those employed in Italy and Russia. They also have flame throwers, the radio-controlled "beetle" tank and the devilish booby traps and mines.

THIS SIMPLE PLAN WILL HELP YOU

BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY

Send for the Budget Calendar without obligation—Then join the Budgeteers!

HERE'S a new kind of budget book to help you do your part on the home front! It shows a simple way to plan your spending in wartime—a way to make your dollars do more for you and for your country.

Your job on the home front

Out of your pay cheques must now come larger contributions, war savings, higher taxes—money you gladly give or lend to help bring victory sooner. On what's left you have the job of keeping your family going—of paying all your regular expenses—of staying out of avoidable debt. That's a big job. But the better you do it the more you help to keep the home front strong.

You can make that job easier if you plan your spending. Know what you are going to do with each pay cheque before you spend it. To help you plan your spending we want to send you the Budget Calendar. This is a budget method first published by Household Finance as a service to customers. Now, when war makes budgeting so important for everyone, we are sending the Budget Calendar to all who request a copy.

A simple way to budget

You will find in the Calendar a new way to go about budgeting—a way that makes your planning easy and simple. The book doesn't attempt to tell you how much you should allow for this or for that. It doesn't ask you to try to fit your life into a fixed spending pattern. You merely start with the expenses you now have and then plan to pay those expenses with what you have to spend. It's this new approach to budgeting—this looking squarely at what you yourself face—that makes this plan really work. At the same time it does away with endless bookkeeping!

Budgeteers get special help

Those who use the Budget Calendar seriously are invited to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts. They are always welcome to ask for individual help with their problems. Special recognition is given to all Budgeteers who complete a full year of budgeting.

We here at Household Finance, Canada's oldest and largest Small Loans Company, have been dealing with money problems for many years. We have seen what the right kind of budgeting can do for families who must stretch their incomes as far as possible. The Budget Calendar comes out of our long experience. # St. Paul's Lose To Knox By 7-4 Count

Knox Bantams defeated St. Paul's 7-4 last night at Queen Mary School grounds in an exciting and close game between two evenly-matched teams. Dyer also had a triple and a home run. Chalmers of Knox clouted a triple. St. Paul's stars were Taylor, who knocked a three-bag hit and Ross Johnston, who caught five fly balls while playing short.

Mark St. Juveniles Swamp George St.

Mark Street Juveniles surprised the George Street team in a Church League game last night, winning 19 to 11.

The winners played some of their best ball of the season and got good pitching from Cornwall who, although a little wild, tightened up in the pinches.

Nicholls for George Street ran into trouble in the fifth and was replacer by Griffin who had little better luck. Both pitchers suffered from poor support.

Major Tracks Close

NEW YORK, June 6—(AP)—Major race tracks throughout the country called off their programs today in observation of D-Day but major league baseball and boxing went ahead with plans to hold their contests, marking them with appropriate ceremonies.

New York, Chicago, Boston and Detroit tracks announced darkening of their plants today soon after word was recived that the Allies had landed in France.

Major league baseball went ahead with the idea of holding its scheduled two night games, but the Eastern League postponed its entire program and the International League previously had said it would hold no games on D-day.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

On account of the scarcity of "Jacks" and "Bowling Mats", the Greens committee is asking the skips to please see to it that these articles are removed from the greens at the conclusion of the evening's play. Thank you.

We are just passing this little hint along for all bowlers. Sometime when you have a few minutes to spare look up a rule book and then turn to rule 4 delivering your ball off the mat. Some of us might be surprised just how this rule reads.

The next night we go up to the greens we are going to stay till the games are over. It seems we missed a lot of exciting finishes last night.

When we left G. Gimblett was up on Jim Harrison, yet Jim comes out on the long end of a 15-12 score.

H. Freeman was trailing R. Burns by about seven shots yet he finishes one up.

C. Williamson was ahead of G. Sorenson, yet big Geo. finishes eight up. And by the way we think this 29-21 score, a total of 50 points for 18 ends must be a record.

Fred Dearborn as taking quite a trimming, but by the score given to us he must have made a good finish.

And so it went on score after score, but that's Lawn Bowling.

The schedule games continue tonight, Wednesday night and Thursday night.

On Friday night its more than likely we will have a tournament, more details later.

School Teams Battle To Tie In Finals

Queen Alexandra and Prince of Wales teams met in the first game of the Public School playoffs yesterday and had to be satisfied with a 2-2 tie.

These two teams went through the regular schedule in great style, each losing but one game.

In yesterday's playoff fixture both teams got good pitching and the game was tight all the way.

Queen Alexandra took the lead by scoring a run in the first inning but Prince of Wales evened it up in the second. Queen Alexandra again flashed in front in the third but once more Prince of Wales tied the score in the sixth and the teams could not break the deadlock.

Queen Alexandra — Richardson, Welsh, Simmons, Carper, Dracup, Morgan, Nicholls, Jary, Nolan.

Prince of Wales: Ashby, Archibald, Kimberley, McMullen, Bowes, Kidd, Miller Moore A. Miller Dyer.

Umpires D. T. Crawford at the plate and A. Olmstead on the bases.

The second game will be played at the Bowl on Wednesday afternoon and should be a real argument between two well-matched teams.

Arena Project Gradually Taking Shape

Continuous management of the proposed ice hockey arena by a commission was approved by the council last night in a motion by Alderman Dutton, seconded by Alderman Swanston, which also declared the council's readiness to make application for enabling legislation as proposed in a statement presented by J. A. Jebson and Frank Buckland, of the citizens' committee engaged in a preliminary investigation of the project.

"The building of an arena will involve a large sum of money," Mr. Jebson explained, "and we should be in a position to tell the public who is going to handle it."

The citizens' committee had arrived at the question of the management of the arena, Mr. Buckland added. St. Catharines placed the supervision of their arena in the responsibility of a parks commission, as provided by provincial legislation. The question arose in recent discussions whether Peterborough would be prepared to adopt a similar plan and turn over all its parks to a commission which would also assume charge of the arena.

Before any plan of financing should be undertaken, said Mr. Buckland, the public should be fully informed as how the arena would be managed.

Mayor Hamilton said he did not think it was necessary to place all the parks in the care of such a commission.

Alderman Bradburn said he had attended a meeting of the committee Monday afternoon at which the commission idea was proposed according to provincial statute. At least the arena and its adjoining land should be placed under the control of a commission, and possibly the parks system could be added later. "The St. Catharines plan has been successful, and it seems to me it is something we should do here," Alderman Bradburn said. "A commission and their manager would be responsible for the supervision and operation of the arena."

Owned By People

A guarantee to the public that their investment was to be permanently protected, and would not pass into other hands, was the purpose of the deputation in their presentment to the council.

The following is quoted from their statement: "It is of great importance that the Arena is to belong, not to any private organization, but to the public themselves, held in trust for them by a Parks Commission. This Commission should be a body of sound citizens, interested in the welfare of such a centre. It should be possible to take care of the entire cost by donations from the city, from business firms and from citizens in general. Thus, with no great payments to meet, there will be surplus revenue from the operation of the arena, which is to be used in the development of additional facilities for recreation such as playgrounds, swimming pools, etc."

Test Holes Dug

Alderman Bradburn reported that the property owned by the city on the west side of George Street between Rink and Townsend streets had recently been sounded with test holes. "The result showed that we could not get a satisfactory base there and we have to look elsewhere."

The committee had gone over the ground on both the north and south side of Hunter street at Burnham street. Preference tended toward a strip of the park property on the south side of the Bowl, extending east and west toward the Riverside Ball park, and between two streets, one of them the extension of Robinson street. Its dressing facilities could be used in connection with the baseball park, Alderman Bradburn said.

The composition of the proposed management commission was six members, two appointed by the council every year, and for a term of three years, thereby assuring continuity of management.

Mayor Hamilton said there was no objection to having Riverside Park and an arena conducted by a commission as an athletic centre.

Alderman Dutton's motion was unanimously adopted endorsing the commission plan of supervision, and promising to obtain statutory permission when that stage of progress is reached.

Several of the members remarked that the detail of a precise name for such a commission should not be magnified at the present time because it was chiefly a distraction from the enterprise as a whole.

Want No Brock Street

Alderman Swanston said he hesitated to say anything which might seem to be discouraging the work of the committee, "but if we are going to have a Brock Street affair we don't want it in Ashburnham. The people living on Brock Street have a lot to contend with, and we have some good property over in that section of Ashburnham, and I know they don't want any Brock street experience."

"What about the property to the north side of Hunter street at the end of the bridge?" Alderman Dutton asked.

"We did look at that on our first trip," Alderman Bradburn said, "but the second time over the committee was more impressed with the lot on the south side of the Bowl."

City Engineer Parsons said there was a sharp fall in the level of the ground on the north fringe of the property on the north side of Hunter street.

Alderman Glover asked "what about the Exhibition Park", and Alderman Sullivan mention the property at the northeast corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets.

However, those were only passing suggestions. The council was content to leave the preliminary details to the citizens' committee with the immediate assurance of support for the commission plan of control.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

One losing streak will be wiped out tonight in the City Softball League—unless Jupiter Pluvius intervenes or there happens to be a tied game. The Military Training Centre club and the U.E.W. outfit, both of whom have lost three games in a row are the opposing teams in this evening's fixture and that should mean that one or other of the rivals should finally land in the win column and take over possession of fourth slot. Both clubs report lineup alterations and a strong team all around and the result should be a lively argument. It is likely that Don Procyk, the Winnipeg pitcher, who made a good showing for the Soldiers in the face of disheartening circumstances the other night will be sent to the mound by the Military Training Centre while U.E.W. will probably pin their faith on Don Isaac or Andy Anderson. Tomorrow night, Switchgear and St. Peter's will meet for the second time this season. Switchgear just managed to nose out the Saints 10 to 9 the last time and it was anybody's game until the final out. In fact another hit in the last frame would have changed the entire complexion of affairs. Tomorrow night's clash should be one of the best of the season.

* * * * * *

After a miss since last Thursday the Ladies' Softball League takes over the stage at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight when the Westclox Second team will clash with Johnson Motors and that should produce an entertaining contest all the way. The Baby Bens won their opening game and made a good impression while Johnson Motors after starting out with a victory over Lock Works were beaten by Aircraft on their second start. The teams look evenly matched on paper and tonight's game should prove well worth seeing. Tomorrow night the Brintons, intermediate champions, who gave the Westclox a real scare in their first game of the season and were only beaten by a Big Ben rally in the final inning will clash with Aircraft and they are hopeful of giving the girls in the swing skirts a memorable battle. Norma Strickland will probably get the pitching call from the Aircraft management and reports from the Aircraft camp are that the team is at full strength for tomorrow night's important game.

Tonight Will Tell

Will virtue triumph at the Brock St. Arena tonight or will the powers of wrestling skulduggery prove invincible? In other words will the laurels of victory in the tag team bout in the Tunney show rest upon the brows of the mat rowdies John Katan and Al Bunny Dunlop or be placed on the heads of the exponents of clean wrestling, Frankie Sexton and Wilbur Tear Morgan? Opinion is divided on that point but if wistful thinking can affect the result the downfall of Palermo John and the Toronto strong man is certain for local fandom is a unit in hoping for the complete discomfiture of that biffing and beefing pair. The Sexton-Morgan team will carry the best wishes of all and sundry which must be very gratifying to both members of the hero pair but we hasten to add that they shouldn't count too largely upon the moral aid of the crowd. It would be a poor defence against the kind of stuff Katan and Dunlop will start handing out from the opening bell and keep right on handing out unless something is done about it. Katan and Dunlop pride themselves upon their power as a team and claim that there isn't another pair of wrestlers in the game today who can combine more effectively in tag team wrestling than they do. They bar nobody in that boast.

* * * * * *

However we have the feeling that they will begin to wonder soon after the team wrestling starts tonight whether they have not over-estimated their ability or under-estimated the prowess of their opponents. The Sexton-Morgan pair are big, strong, fast, clever and young, and both have shown plenty of courage. They have both faced doughty opponents here and never backed an inch and they are likely to set a pace for the boastful bad men that will have the latter scurrying for cover. Sexton showed what he could do against the pair last week, in spite of the fact that he had to do two-thirds of the wrestling himself. Morgan will of course be a big help to him. The tag team classic will be ushered in by a preliminary bout featuring a pair of speedsters whose fast work in other bouts here has earned them a following. Jumping Joe Maich, the Brantford boy will meet Irish Tom Collins, who also can take to the air without any difficulty and the two should stage a speedy battle that will set the tempo for the big event.

Will Help The Navy

Peterborough softballers staged a successful benefit game last night for the British War Victims' Fund when the proceeds of the Switchgear-Plaza City League game were turned over to that worthy cause, a $62 donation. Saturday evening another splendid war service will be helped when Plazas will stage a benefit game with the Trenton R.C.A.F. team with the total receipts to go to the Peterborough and District Women's Auxiliary to the Navy. The Fliers have a very strong lineup and were selected last season to go a long way toward an O.A.S.A. championship if the ban on travelling had not forced them to drop out of the contention. This year's team is even stronger than the 1943 aggregation and they are coming here at their own expense Saturday to help out a sister service. As a result there will be no expenses and the Navy Auxiliary should reap a handsome sum from the game, the first opportunity the fans have had of seeing any outside competition this season. Better make it a date to be at Riverside Park Saturday evening for this worthwhile game in aid of a worthwhile cause.

* * * * * *

Switchgear and Plazas staged the snappiest ball game of the season in the City Softball League last night and the fielding of both teams had the fans applauding all the way through. A few more exhibitions of that kind and record crowds will be the report from future league games. Manager Murph Chambers' club won a cleancut victory over the champs by 4 to 1 and in our book the chief credit for that result should go to the veteran pitcher Freddy Elliott. The little right-hander had the usually hard-hitting Plazas almost completely baffled. They did manage to bunch three of their six hits for their only run but outside of that flurry which Elliott quickly shot down by refusing to allow Eddie Starr and Joe Blewett to hit the ball out of the infield, the Switchgear pitcher was top man all night. He had singular success in stopping the left-handed hitters of the Plazas, quite a feat for a right-hander. Much of the Plaza power comes from that side of the plate but Heal was the only left-hander to get a hit and his was a bunt that he beat out. Frank McCormick's catch of Blewett's bid for a homer will probably be the feature defensive play of the whole season. They can't make them any more sensational than that one.

St. Luke's Cub Pack

Akela was greeted in the opening Grand Howl by Norman Thomas and prayers led by Baloo. Following the inspection, the game "Snatch the Flag" was played and test work got under way with Raksha teaching the Knots and Baloo, flags and somersault. Malcolm Sadler passed knotting tests; Douglas Baptie, leap frog and hopping; Peter Rose, Union Jack, knots, leap frog, hopping, somersault; Hugh Rose, knots, somersault, leap frog, hopping; Ronald Fuller, knots, somersault, leap frog, hopping, ball throwing. Akela gave out some details regarding the week-end camp that is to be held on Saturday and Sunday June 17 and 18. Akela would like parents to send a notice with each Cub stating that he can attend camp. This will have to be done as soon as possible so that arrangements can be made for food. Each Cub will be given a list of the articles he needs to bring. The Pack will meet at 2:30 on June 17 at St. Luke's Sunday School. Cubs will meet this week on Wednesday June 7 instead of Tuesday.

Scouters Club

The monthly meeting of the Scouters Club will be held on Wednesday June 14. Meeting at the Scout headquarters, the members will proceed to the Scout grounds and join the members of the local Scout Executive at that point at 6.30.

St. John's

Owing to the severe storm the program had to be changed. It had been arranged to hold an outdoor meeting but at the last minute this proved impossible. Several games were played and instruction given. During the evening Roderick Delaney passed cleanliness test, David Bacon and Trevor Mitchell, hopping, and Terrance Chapman, message. Only about 50 per cent of the Pack were in attendance.

The Troop: Map reading was the main item of study in the Troop with Scouter in charge. After conducting a relay race, Scouter was forced to leave and P.L.'s Jamie Collis and Art Dobson carried on with Kim's Game and Tenderfoot tests. Plans were made for the Troop to hold a week-end camp out at the Scout grounds over Saturday and Sunday.

SUPER LENS—Science has come to the aid of workers who are unfortunate in getting splinters in fingers or toes. It's all done with the use of a lighted, magnifying lens which helps to locate the sliver and nurses use a professional touch in removing it. In the above photo Nurse Beegle of the first aid department of the eclipse pioneer plant of Bendix Aviation Corporation in New Jersey, begins to loosen the splinter with a sterilized sealpal. She holds the finger under the lighted magnifying lens to assist in her work.

Games Called Off

Because of the civic service of intercession called by Mayor James Hamilton for the Ashburnham Bowl Wednesday night the softball games scheduled for Wednesday night in both the Girls' League and the Men's City League have been postponed. In the girls' loop Brintons and Aircraft were to have met while the attraction in the City League was a game between Switchgear and St. Peter's. Tonight's games will be played as announced.

TORONTO, June 6 — (CP). — Canada's oldest tennis club, and one that possibly has produced more top-ranking stars than any other, this year celebrates its 50th anniversary. The Toronto Lawn Tennis Club has completed half a century of existence, and looks to enjoy its best season in 10 years or more, with membership on the rise.

The Toronto Club, organized in 1894, has produced such Davis Cup team members as Gilbert Nunns, Ross Wilson, Bob Murray, Walter Martin, Bill Pedlar, Lee Rennie, and Bob Baird. In fact, the Toronto Club boasts that it has more active and inactive Davis Cuppers on its lists than any other club in Canada.

Besides the younger players, there are numerous old-time tennis leaders in the club, like Col. J. F. Foulkes, who was Canadian singles champion in 1907, 1909 and 1910. He was the only Canadian representative on the 1908 Olympic team in London.

Female members of the club also have held their share of titles. Mrs. Olive Wade Worsley was the Canadian women's singles champion in 1929, and with her sisters, Mrs. Elsie Wade Grey, won the doubles title that year.

Going back further there were other outstanding players, like Mrs. H. Bickle, who won the Dominion singles championship in 1914, 1920, 1921, 1922, 1924, and was runner-up on other occasions. She also teamed with Miss Frances Best to take the ladies' doubles Gonfalon in 1919, 1921, 1922, 1923, and 1924.

The club isn't planning any elaborate celebration this war year to mark its jubilee, but will be satisfied with a few rounds of club play and a banquet. Tentative plans had been made to have some of the old-time players give exhibitions, but these could not be followed through.

Lou Nova of California was awarded the decision at the end of his 10 round bout with Buddy Scott at Oklahoma city last Friday but the Oklahoma City Athletic Commission, after a review of the score cards, ruled the bout had ended in a draw. In a statement, the Board announced it was correcting the announcer and not the judges pointing out one judge and the referee had called the match a draw and the other judge had given Nova the edge on points. Collectively, the score showed the most rounds for Nova and the announcer took it that way. However, the dispute all leads up to another scrap between the pair scheduled for June 20 at Galveston.

Elon (Chief) Hogsett, veteran pitcher, was unconditionally released by Detroit Tigers yesterday and he was quickly on his way to rejoin the Minneapolis Millers of the American Association, with whom he had previously played.

Vice-President Jim Gallagher of the Chicago Cubs yesterday announced third-baseman Stan Hack, 34 year old veteran of the club, would forsake his Oregon ranch and rejoin the team next week. He had retired from baseball after 12 seasons with the Cubs.

In order to have a double-header for Sunday, Aug. 6, the Newark baseball club last night announced the postponement of to-day's scheduled game in the International League with Montreal at Newark. The Bears and Toronto open a six-game series at Newark Thursday with double bills Thursday and Sunday.

Wilfie Shanks of Montreal withdrew from the 10-round feature at Springfield, Mass., last night and his substitute, Louis (Tiger) Jones, 163, of Augusta Ga., took a walloping from Marvin Bryant, 162½, Dallas. Tom Murray of Montreal, was kayoed in the first round of a scheduled eight-round semi-final by Steve Kronis, 130, of Boston.

Buffalo Trims Lowly Chiefs

By the Associated Press.

Six teams are playing .500 ball or better in the International League to-day, but the Syracuse Chiefs and Newark Bears continued to burrow into the lower regions.

Syracuse saw its losing streak extended to 13 as Buffalo grabbed a 3-2 edge last night to take over second place, a half length back of the pace-setting Jersey City Giants. W. Wilson held Jewel Ens' slumping Chiefs to eight blows, but needed Eddie Kobesky's seventh homer of the year in the fifth for a one-dun edge.

Newark and Montreal both got four-hit pitching, but 21 walks were issued in a wild and woolly affair taken by the Royals 6-4.

Al Jarlett snapped Jersey City's four-game winning streak, but had to have relief help from Bud Browson to preserve Toronto's 4-2 edge in the last of the ninth.

Rochester fell to third place although Eldred Byerly yielded only four hits to Baltimore. Eight walks were decisive in the Orioles' 4-2 victory.

90 Home Runs In 7 Days Puzzles Pitchers

By the Associated Press.

Major league pitchers took to the storm cellars to-day after counting up 90 home runs during the last seven days and noting the new menace to their trade in renovated Braves field in Boston.

Since President Bob Quinn moved the right field fence back 20 feet two weeks ago to help the left handed hitters, 22 round-trippers have sprouted where only four grew before.

Fifty-one homers have been lifted into the New York Polo Ground stands in the first seven weeks, almost half as many as were belted all last season when 115 were recorded. Of the 51, exactly 38 were clouted in the Giants' two-week home stand against the western clubs.

Although the Yankees no longer have their murderer's row of yore, 28 homers have been belted at the Stadium, 14 each by the Yanks and the visitors. The fourth highest park in home run production is the Briggs Stadium in Detroit where 21 have been authored.

Strangely enough while the American League clubs have hammered 20 round trippers at Philadelphia's Shibe Park, the National Leaguers have been able to collect but seven, low for the circuit. Washington's spacious acres have yielded only three.

The hitters have found Sportsman's Park in St. Louis easy picking with a total of 33 homers, but that represents every-day duty with both the Cards and Browns using the field.

As the clubs prepared to resume action after a one-day layoff with two National League night games the senior circuit led in circuit clouts 150 to 137. The American League picks up to-morrow, but the week's schedule is spotty with only 23 games in both leagues.

Switchgear Nips Classy Plazas In City League

Switchgear, playing heads-up ball, helped Manager Murph Chambers celebrate a birthday anniversary Monday night by knocking off Plazas 4 to 1 in a City League battle held as a benefit for the British War Victims Fund. It was the second triumph of the season for the league leaders over the former 4th Battery team and put Switchgear two full games in front.

By long odds the best-played game of the season the argument between the two chief contenders for top honors netted $62 for the British War Victims' Fund.

Manager Chambers came through with a surprise pitching selection by sending Freddy Elliott in against Plazas and the veteran responded by handcuffing the second-placers. Elliot allowed only six hits, did not give another base on balls after walking the first batter to face him, stopped Eddie Starr's consecutive hitting streak which had run all through last season and continued until last night in the current campaign, and kept Joe Blewett out of the hit column for the first time this season.

Terry Woods pitchers for the losers and his effort would have been good enough to have won most games the Plazas have played. He yielded only seven hits, three of them coming in the first inning but unlike Elliott his control was bad and he walked six men, passes figuring in the run-getting.

The two clubs turned in the finest defensive display of the season with sparkling fielding plays in almost every inning. It remained for Frank McCormick, right fielder for the Switchgear, to come up with the gem of the evening in the sixth inning when he robbed Joe Blewett of a homer by a startling diving catch of a liner down the right field foul line. Playing out near the foul flag McCormick dashed out, left his feet in a side dive, clutched the ball and still held it after he had hit the ground.

That was the play of the night but Padgett, Heal, Tompkins, Nicholls, Hawks, Burton and Brockley all interjected some flash fielding during the performance to make the game the best exhibition of the year.

Switchgear really won the game in the second half of the first inning. Padgett drew a pass. Woods struck out Tompkins but Playford doubled over Hawks' head on a screaming drive that the third baseman partially stopped after jumping for the ball. Padgett went to third on the play and then Barney Ashmore singled solidly to left to send in Padgett and Playford. Brockley singled to centre, Ashmore going to third. Mowry hit into a double play with a roller to Heal who tossed the hitter out at first and Ellis made a quick throw to Starr to nail Ashmore at the plate.

Plazas got their only run in the third. With Woods out of the way on a nice running catch by Brockley after the same player had given the hitter a life by dropping his high foul, Hawks singled through short. Tucker doubled to left, sending Hawks to third. Burton crashed a single down the third base line which Tompkins partially stopped and Hawks went home. With two on and Starr and Blewett up Plazas' chances for more runs looked good but Elliott stopped the Plaza power-houses cold. Starr popping to Ashmore and Blewett grounding to the same player.

Woods got out of a hole in the fourth when Switchgear filled the bases with only one out on a pass to Brockley, Mowry's single to centre and, after McCormick had popped to Heal, a walk to Nicholls. Burton made a fine running catch of Elliott's fly to short left and Brockley was held at third and Padgett flied to Tucker.

Switchgear added another run in the sixth. Brockley walked, went to second on a wild pitch and to third while Heal was tossing out Mowry. McCormick fouled ot Hawks for the second out. Nicholls rolled to short and Hawks fumbled just long enough to lose the runner, Brockley scoring. Elliott popped to Ellis.

Plazas lost a good chance in the first of the seventh but Elliott was master of the situation. With one out Art Heal bunted safely and Woods' tap down third base line also went for a hit. Elliott bore down on Hawks and Tucker, with the result that Heal and Woods were both cut off at third on rollers to Cal Nicholls at short.

Switchgear got the final run of the game in their half. Padgett opened by singling to left. Tompkins flied to Pryde but Playford walked. Ashmore flied deep to Burton in left and the runners advanced after the catch. Brockley scratched a hit on a bad hopper to Heal, Padgett scoring but Brockley was cut off at second on the play.

Allied Forces Establish Beachhead In Normandy

Unconfirmed reports said Adolf Hitler was rushing to France to try his intuition against the Allied operation. Presumably Field Marshals Karl Gerd von Rundstedt and Erwin Rommel were directing the defences from their headquarters in France.

BITTER FIGHTING AT MOUHS OF ORNE AND VIRE

German accounts through Sweden admitted that steady streams of Allied troops were continuing to land, particularly in the vicinity of Arromanches, about midway between Le Havre and Barfleur, and that tanks were ashore at several places. They said there was especially bitter fighting at the mouths of the Orne and Vire Rivers.

The airborne troops' principal scenes of operations were placed by the Germans at Caen and Barfleur. The Germans said the American 82nd and 101st Parachute Divisions had landed on the Normandy peninsula, along with the American 28th and 100th Airborne Divisions. They said the British 1st and 6th Airborne Divisions were operating in the Seine Bay area. The Germans complained that at some points dummy parachutists were dropped, exploding on touch.

The tenor of their accounts lent support to Prime Minister Churchill's assertion that "there already are hopes that actual tactical surprise has been attained" and that "we hope to furnish the enemy with a succession of surprises during the course of the fighting"

If the Germans were correct about the locations, the Allied plan apparently was to seize the Cherbourg peninsula and make Normandy the initial beachhead for a drive up the Seine valley to Paris.

The German radio began broadcasting a constant stream of invasion flashes almost as soon as the first troops landed. And continued with extensive reports of the gigantic naval and air bombardments that covered the assault.

Allied Headquarters, however, kept silent until 9.32 a.m. B.S.T. (3.32 a.m. E.D.T.) when the following communique was issued:

"Under the command of General Eisenhower, Allied naval forces, supported by strong air forces began landing Allied armies this morning on the northern coast of France."

A high officer explained that General Eisenhower had kept resolutely silent until he was absolutely certain the landings had "taken hold."

It was disclosed that a number of unannounced feints had taken place in the pre-invasion period, so the Germans would not know when the real blow was coming.

It came this morning as the climax of 96 hours of constant heavy air bombardment which reached a crescendo at H-hour.

British and United States warships, including battleships, hurled shells into the coastal defences which the Germans have been building for four years. The Germans acknowledged that this fire was tremendous and that it had set the whole bay of the Seine area afire.

The parachutists and glidermen went in after a personal farewell from Eisenhower. The Germans said they landed at Caen and made deep penetrations at many points. With at least four British parachute divisions employed besides Americans and Canadians.

Great flotillas of minesweepers led the way to the beaches for the Allied ground troops, and the sweeping operations alone was described by Shaef as "the largest in history."

The German air force reacted very slowly, although a high Allied officer said it had probably 1,750 fighters and 50 0bombers it had been hoarding to meet the invasion.

The German navy was represented only by a few destroyers and E-boats.

The channel was rough and there was a shower of rain at dawn. At Supreme Headquarters it was stated the condition of the sea had caused some great anxiety, but that the troops had gone ashore, even though they were seasick.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons to-day that the parachute and glider men had made successful massed airborne landings. He said 4,000 ships and thousands of smaller landing craft took the land forces in.

The Allies have about 11,000 first-line aircraft which they can draw upon as needed.

"The landings on the beaches are proceeding at various points at the present time," Mr. Churchill said. "The fire of shore batteries has been largely quelled....Obstacles which were constructed in the sea have not proved so difficult as was apprehended.

Mr. Churchill called the operation "undoubtedly the most complicated and difficult which has ever occurred."

Swedish correspondents reported from Germany that the Allies had landed at 12 points between the Orne and Vire rivers with the central assault directed at Caen, 10 miles inland and at the base of the Cherbourg peninsula. The Germans themselves caled Caen the "centre of gravity" of the attack.

Germans Admissions

The German radio called it "a grand-style operation" both in area and numbers of troops and admitted Normandy had been penetrated by the airborne troops "in great depth."

There was no confirmation from Allied sources of a rumor that the Caen airfields already had been captured.

While the Allies described German naval activity as negligible, the Germans claimed a furious sea battle had developed off Le Havre between Nazi motor torpedo boats and the invasion fleet.

Low-hanging clouds and artificial fog with which the Allied forces covered the landings made it difficult to obtain a clear picture of the great assault.

The Channel weather was somewhat unsettled, but sun broke through occasionally, and the wind had moderated.

A high officer at Allied Headquarters described the landings as actually the third phase of the battle to crush Hitler, the first having been the gigantic air assault and the second the offensive in Italy.

New High Hit

The air assault hit a new high today, with constant streams of bombers of every description dumping repeated loads on the chosen coastal area from which French patriots had been warned by Allied radios to withdraw at least to a depth of 350 kilometres (22 miles).

While the French thus were warned away from the immediate attack area, an Allied officer at Headquarters declared: "We have high hopes of the underground in France which we have aided so long."

General Eisenhower broadcast during the morning an announcement to the peoples of Western Europe, telling them of the landings and declaring. "All patriots, young and old, will have a part to play in the liberation."

He urged against premature uprisings, however, saying: "Be patient. Prepare. Wait until I give you the signal."

Eisenhower also issued an order of the day to his forces, telling them:

"You are about to embark on a great crusade. The eyes of the world are upon you and the hopes and prayers of all liberty-loving peoples go with you.....Your task will not be an easy one. Your enemy is well-trained, well-equipped, and battle-hardened He will fight savagely....

"I have full confidence in your courage, devotion to duty and skill in battle. We will accept nothing less than full victory."

Plenty of Shooting.

Roughly three hours after the invasion started, Canadian fighter pilots reporting back to their station said "things seemed well organized on the beach," though there was "lots of shooting going on" at the beachhead. One pilot said: "Ive never seen so many ships in all my life."

Hun Radio On Air

The German radio filled the air with invasion flashes for three hours before the formal Allied announcement came at 7.32 a.m. G.M.T. (3.32 a.m. E.D.T.)

It acknowledged deep penetrations of the Cherbourg Peninsula by Allied parachute and glider troops in great strength

The assault was supported by gigantic bombardments from Allied warships and planes, which the Germans admitted set the coastal areas ablaze. The fleet included several British and United States battleships.

A senior officer at supreme headquarters said rough water caused "awful anxiety" for the seaborne troops but that the landings were made successfully, although some soldiers were undoubtedly seasick.

The sun broke through heavy clouds periodically this morning after a daybreak shower. The wind had blown fairly hard during the night but moderated somewhat with the dawn. The weather outlook remained somewhat unsettled.

Supreme headquarters' first communique was this single sentence:—

"Under the command of General Eisenhower, Allied naval forces supported by strong air forces began landing Allied armies this morning on the northern coast of France."

It was announced moments later that Britain's Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery, hero of the 8th Army victories in North Africa. Sicily and Italy, was in charge of the assault and the announcement added: "this army group includes British, Canadian and United States forces."

No other Allied commanders were anounced immediately for the thousands of battle-trained troops, but it as apparent that Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, who took over command of the Canadian Army in Britain in succession to Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton early this year, was leading his forces in the attack.

A dispatch from Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent with the Canadians, gave the text of Gen. Crerar's personal message to his troops "on the eve of embarkation" in which the General said: "As the hour approaches when we go into battle, I have complete confidence in our ability to meet the tests which lie ahead."

Landings Varied.

A senior officer at Headquarters said the times of landings varied to take advantage of the various tide stages at different beaches. Except for the airborne troops, the first landing times varied from 6 a.m. to 8:25 a.m. (British double summer time (midnight to 2:25 a.m. EDT).

Although the Germans almost immediately announced that the grand assault had started, Eisenhower delayed his announcement in order to make absolutely certain the landings had taken hold before saying anything.

The Allied forces had been ready for days, but were awaiting the best moment from the weather standpoint.

"We have been months and years waiting for this," said a senior officer giving correspondents the story at Headquarters.

"Geography made it evident to the Germans as well as us that the shortest way to Europe was across the Channel.

"I don't know how much tactical surprise we achieved. It is too early to tell."

Allies Control Air

First reports from across the Channel, however, indicated the Allies definitely controlled the air over the scene of operations.

The Allied officer commented that landing against the fixed defences of Western Europe was a task quite different from that in the Mediterranean and sketched briefly the German defensive plan of underwater barriers and shore guns.

He said the Germans had possibly 1,750 fighter planes and 500 bombers to oppose the Allies.

If the landings were in places listed by the Germans, the Allied aim apparently was to pinch off the Cherbourg peninsula and the good ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, make Normandy their first main beachhead and drive up the Seine Valley to Paris.

Eisenhower himself wished godspeed to the parachutists who were the first to land on the enemy-held soil of France.

For three hours previous to the Allied announcement the German radio had been pouring forth a series of flashes reporting that the Allies were landing between Le Havre and Cherbourg along the south side of the bay of the Seine and along the north coast of Normandy.

This would be across the Channel and almost due south of such British ports as Hastings, Brighton, Portsmouth and Bornemouth.

The Germans also said parachutists had descended into Normandy in great depth.

Artificial Fog

Allied soldiers leaped on to the shores which the Germans have spent nearly four years in fortifying, while Allied planes and ships hurled into those defence barrages which the Nazis admitted were terrific.

The Germans announced also that American reinforcements began landing at dawn, aided by artificial fog, and that in some places dummy parachutists were dropped to confuse the defence.

French patriots previously had been warned by Allied radio broadcasts to get out of areas within 35 kilometres (22 miles) of the coast to escape the shock of battle and the gigantic aerial bombardment.

The Germans said the bombers ranged as far north as Dunkerque, the unhappy port from which the beaten British army escaped almost exactly four years ago.

All England resounded with the thunder of their coming and going.

An Associated Press correspondent flying over the French coast in a medium bomber reported seeing the fields inland strewn with hundreds of parachutes and dotted with gliders, while great naval forces fired into the coastal fortifications.

Eisenhower told his men they were "embarking on a great crusade toward which we have striven these many months," and warned them that they were facing a tough, well-prepared enemy.

Berlin said the "center of gravity" of the fierce fighting was a Caen, 30 miles southwest of Le Havre and 65 miles southeast of Cherbourg.

10 Miles Inland

Caen is 10 miles inland from the sea, at the base of the 75-mile-wide Normandy peninsula.

Heavy fighting also was reported between Caen and Trouville.

The thousands of battle-trained British, American and Canadian troops hurled themselves at Hitler's western defences after months of preparation.

Huge troopship armadas slipped out of English ports in the darkness and sped toward Europe where four years ago almost to the day Britain brought back the last battle-worn defenders of Dunkerque.

The German radio gave the first reports of the invasion while correspondents were hurriedly summoned from bed to Supreme Press Headquarters and locked in a press conference room until the communique was released several hours after the landings were made.

The great Allied armadas dwarfed anything yet seen on the sea.

Huge transport planes filled with paratroopers and pulling airborne troops in gliders roared over the German westwall to drop their cargoes in the rear.

Just before taking off in the darkness the paratroops were wished Godspeed by Eisenhower.

He was accompanied by several others of his commanders and his face was tense but confident as he strode down the long lines of fighting men.

The forces thrown into operation were by far the greatest ever used in an amphibious operation. They had to be. An estimated 1,000,000 German troops waited in their fortifications for the great onslaught under crack Nazi field marshals, Runstedt and Rommel.

It was reported earlier this week that Hitler himself had a special train ready to rush him to France to take over personal command as he did on the east front.

Despite these reports Allied military men expected Rommel to be the main tactician on German defence but on the Allied side were the team of Eisenhower and Montgomery—the men who chased Rommel from Africa.

During the 48 hours previous to the landings R.A.F. and American bomber fleets dropped a stupendous tonnage of bombs on the west wall's defenders.

Jagged Mass

A canopy of Allied bombers and fighters turned the Todt fortifications on which Hitler had pinned his hopes into a jumping, jagged mass of flames.

The Allies did not hope to knock out everything from the air, but to cripple and hamper German troop movements.

Fliers Claim

vice to protect the ground forces from air attack which during the first hour of the invasion at least never materialized.

The Canadian fliers reported great barrages were thrown out by powerful German coastal batteries but said jubilantly they could see "our little men" reach the beach successfully.

The first Canadian fliers said they spent an hour over the beaches between Le Havre and Cherbourg Peninsula and returned without loss. There was no opposition from enemy aircraft and only light flak was encountered.

The Canadian fighters did not even fire their guns.

But with them were some 2,200 heavy and medium bombers which plastered the invasion coast with an estimated 1,200 tons of bombs.

No Opposition

On the second Canadian fighter patrol—as on the first—there was no fighter opposition encountered. There was "lots of shooting going on" at the beachhead in France when ships started disgorging invasion troops, said returning Canadian pilots.

The heavy and medium bombers dropped their loads just before an estimated 1,000 naval ships of all types hit the beach to land the invasion troops.

Lack of German air opposition left the impression the Luftwaffe is being saved until the enemy can mount his inevitable counter-attack.

Chadburn In It

First to return from the air over the beaches of France was the City of Oshawa squadron with Sqdn. Ldr. Freddy Green of Toronto first home. Two other Canadian squadrons also from this station were commanded by Group Capt. W. R. MacBrien of Ottawa who personally led the first sortie. In sections with him were Wing Cmdr. Lloyd Chadburn of Aurora, Ont., Sqdn. Ldr. R. A. Buckham of Vancouver and Sqdn. Ldr. Walter Comrad of Richmond, Ont.

Ground crews had worked most of the night preparing the Canadian planes, and were up at three o'clock for a final checkover.

Pilots were in their cockpits fully five minutes before take off, making last-minute checks of their gear. Then they queued up for the take-off and roared away four abreast, with succeeding sections following at seconds' intervals.

When they returned Chadburn was unshaven, his blond hair mussed. He said: "There were countless ships in the sea. The flak was light. I didn't see any Huns in the air."

Wing Cmdr. Johnny Johnson, R.A.F., leading another Canadian squadron, reported he also saw no aerial opposition to the invasion.

Soon, as pilots who had breakfasted prepared for more sorties during the day, and as I telephoned this story to the London office of The Canadian Press, there were more planes heading out to France.

There is a constant stream of them.

Churchill Says

are proceeding at various points at the present time," Mr Churchill said.

"The fire of shore batteries has been largely quelled."

He said that "obstacles which were constructed in the sea have not proved so difficult as was apprehended."

The Prime Minister said the Allied forces are sustained by about 11,000 first-line aircraft, which can be drawn upon as needed.

"So far," he said, "the commanders who are engaged report that everything is proceeding according to plan."

"And what a plan," he declared.

Mr. Churchill said the vast operation was "undoubtedly the most complicated and difficult which has ever occurred."

Mentions Rome.

To cheers, Mr. Churchill took "formal cognizance of the liberation of Rome," and added:

"American and other forces of the 5th Army broke through the enemy's last lines and entered Rome, where Allied troops have been received with joy by the population.

"This entry and liberation of Rome means that we shall have power to defend it from hostile air attacks and deliver it from the famine with which it was threatened."

Britain's war leader paid high tribute both to Gen. Sir Harold Alexander and Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark in Italy and said: "Complete unity prevails throughout the Allied armies . . . There is complete confidence in the supreme commander. General Eisenhower, and his lieutenants and also in the commander of the expeditionary force, General Montgomery."

In discussing the Italian campaign, where he said the Allied forces "with the Americans in the van are driving ahead northwards in relentless pursuit of the enemy," Mr. Churchill said it was hoped that the 20,000 prisoners already taken would be followed by further captures in the near future.

No Turning Back.

Of the new European operation, Mr. Churchill said "this great new front will be pursued with the utmost resolution, both by the commanders and the United States and British governments whom they serve."

In response to a question he told the House that certainly in the early part of the battle he would endeavor to keep the House fully informed.

"It may be," he added, "that I shall ask their indulgence to press myself upon them before we rise tonight."

There was grim news as well as good in Mr. Churchill's address.

In discussing the battle of the Anzio beachhead in Italy, which was established last January and held against heavy German counter-attacks, he said the Allies lost about 20,000 men, and the Germans 25,000.

But the Anzio landing had in the end borne good fruit by forcing Hitler to send south of Rome eight or nine divsions "which he might well have needed elsewhere" he added.

the senior and junior leadership is of the highest. As Canadians, we inherit military characteristics which were feared by the enemy in the last Great War. They will be still more feared before this war terminates."

Have Vital Role

"Canadian formations in the assault landing will have a vital part to play. Plans, preparations, methods and technique which will be employed are based on knowledge and experience, bought and paid for by the 2nd Canadian Division at Dieppe. The contribution of that hazardous operation cannot be over-estimated. It will prove to have been an essential prelude to our forthcoming and final success.

"We enter into this decisive phase of the war with full faith in our cause, with calm confidence in our abilities and with grim determination to finish quickly and unmistakably this job we came overseas to do.

"As in 1918, in Italy and in northwest Europe, we will hit the enemy again and again, until, at some not distant time, converging Allied armies link together and we will be rejoined, in victory, with our comrades of the First Canadian Corps."

Forces Carry

the rest will be held pending their return.

Roads outside troop concentration areas teemed with activity reminiscent of Sicily before the invasion of Italy last September. Jeeps darted in and out among noisy carriers and heavier tracked equipment, long convoys of laden trucks and artillery.

Hundreds of signs lined the roads or were painted on the pavement to guide drivers to the points where they unloaded invasion supplies, which included high-riding, amphibious "ducks." Sometimes big convoys of assault troops rolled by on their way to assembly points behind the barbed wire that guarded the area.

Never had the men looked fitter than when they moved into the embarkation zone after weeks of living in tents and carrying out exacting drill which trimmed off the last ounce of surplus weight.

The strain of waiting was eased by entertainments. Like a breath of Canada were the Canadian Army shows whose members included girls of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

And for these men preparing to face death were church services to which some referred without flippancy as their "spiritual waterproofing."

There were constant warnings on all sides against careless talk. The words "death penalty" glared from posters in type visible 50 feet away as a reminder against disclosing information of value to the enemy.

No one was allowed to leave the concentration area without official approval.

Military personnel who remained behind in the camp were identified by white shoulder flashes and took no part in the briefing conferences which were in progress 24 hours a day.

Shown Special Maps

At these conferences troops were shown special maps on which place names and grid lines had been changed. Only when invasion was under way were the properly named and gridded maps issued.

Quizzes were conducted in which soldiers were questioned on their reactions to hypothetical situations.

Plans were worked out to a point where each man knew whether it was likely he would jump ashore dry-shod or have to swim for it.

Behind the bustle of preparation the loudspeaker system blared endlessly, calling officers to headquarters and issuing instructions in mystifying code letters and numbers.

The men worked to the last adjusting their equipment, some even stowing an extra pair of socks inside their steel helmets, the exteriors of which were covered with camouflage nets strung with bits of brown and green material.

All ranks filled out embarkation cards which were turned in as they stepped aboard invasion craft. This was one of the lessons learned in the Canadian-led Dieppe operation of August, 1942, when some soldiers who were believed to have embarked actually did not get away and were temporarily listed as missing.

Japanese Threat

LONDON, June 6 (CP).—Tokyo radio today asserted Japan "is ready to launch the most formidable offensive ever against the Allies—an offensive which will cut China in two and foil American strategy. The moment to strike has come."

lit skies in an awesome operation.

Twin-engined C-47s — sisters of American standard airline flagships—bore the human cargo across the skies, simultaneously towing troop-laden CG4A gliders — to merge in a single sledgehammer blow paving the way for frontal assault forces.

Armed with weapons from the most primitive to the most modern, the paratroopers' mission was to disrupt and demoralize the Germans' communications inside the Nazis' own lines.

There was no immediate indication that their dynamite and the flashing steel and well-aimed fire was not succeeding in the execution of plans rehearsed for months in preparation for the liberation of occupied Europe.

The steel-helmeted, ankle-booted warriors wore a red, white and blue American flag insignia on the sleeve and camouflaged green-splotched battle dress.

4 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

June 6, 1940:

The second day of the Battle of the Somme river rages two days after the last British soldier had escaped from Dunkirk and after Prime Minister Churchill had declared that Britons would fight on "until God's good time the new world wth all its power and might sets forth to the liberation and rescue of the old"; French troops try to absorb German tank thrusts toward Paris with "feather pillow" system, but the Germans gain up to 13 miles and reach the Bresle and Aisne rivers.

Council Decides Dance Hall Must Be Closed

Dancing on the second floor of the Mayfair restaurant at 380 George street must be discontinued at once, the city council decided last night adopting a motion by Alderman Sullivan, seconded by Alderman Glover.

Present use of parts of the second and third floors as sleeping quarters was referred to the legal committee for their consideration and recommendation.

Action followed promptly from a report prepared by Fire Chief Gimblett and Sanitary Inspector MacPherson. In their inspection of the premises on June 1 their findings as submitted to the council were:

Third floor—one sleeping bed, and narrow steep stairs leading to this floor.

Second floor—dance hall; five sleeping beds; paper decorations.

Second floor, rear—four sleeping bedrooms made out of wall board partitions; front stairs narrow, with turn half way up; rear stairway open to the kitchen; one bedroom at the top of the stairs; door way to dance hall.

"We recommend that this building be discontinued as a dance hall and sleeping quarters, and that a proper ventilating system be installed to carry off the grease fumes. Also that sleeping quarters above all restaurants be prohibited. That separate entrances and stairways to women's toilets be installed. And we recommend that a bylaw be passed covering the above items."

Alderman Sullivan said he understood the Mayfair did not have a license to operate a dance hall, but that the management had some arrangement by which dancing was provided with a cover charge.

Danger From Fire

"There is no question," said Mayor Hamilton, "that it is an undesirable place as it is. The owner may not be breaking the law."

Alderman Glover enquired "aren't there sleeping quarters over most of the restaurants?"

Mayor Hamilton touched off a glint of humor in a remark: "Some of the restaurants have about as much light as a harem."

Alderman Sullivan: "I wouldn't know."

Mayor Hamilton's blushing deepened with the remark by Alderman Dutton: "We didn't know you had travelled so extensively."

Alderman Sullivan: "I'd like to see some action at once that will stop the dancing at the Mayfair."

Mayor Hamilton: "We can tell them that if it is not stopped at once we'll cancel their restaurant licence."

Alderman Swanston said he agreed with Alderman Sullivan in the proposal that the dance hall be boarded up.

As to the recommendation by the two inspectors relating to sleeping quarters, Alderman Dutton said: "We should satisfy ourselves whether the management is transgressing any statute regarding sleeping quarters over their places of business."

For that purpose of information the relative section of the inspectors' report was passed on to the legal committee.

Citizens Protest To City Council Changing Centre's Administration

Unanimous commendation of the Salvation Army's administration of the Uptown Recreation Centre for service men was expressed to the City Council Monday night by a numerous deputation, mostly of women, objecting to any change of stewardship.

It seems that a citizens' committee which has been generally in charge of the social quarters for the men in uniform recently proposed to the military authorities that responsibility for its operation be transferred from the Salvation Army to the Canadian Legion.

Apparently resentment of this recommendation has been general, that is in the quarters concerned about the first-class work the recreation centre is credited with since its opening, and leading the opposition have been the members of the Canadian Legion, who were represented by their president, Chief Gimblett, and Albert Hope.

Doing Good Job

"The Legion feels that the Salvation Army is doing a good job, and we would like to see them carry on, and the citizens' committee and everybody get together satisfactorily so there will be no hard feelings when this is over," Chief Gimblett said. "We don't think the citizens' committee has acted justly to the Salvation Army in asking the military authorities to have the recreation centre taken over by the Legion."

Mrs. L. H. Deyman, speaking for a bevy of hostesses who have been helping all winter at the recreation centre, said she knew of no reason for the proposed change. The practical help provided at the social headquarters, on the second floor of the former Peterborough Hardware Company, was indicated by the attendance and work figures.

In March 9,000 men visited the centre, and 540 pieces of knitting and sewing were done for them, and 1,200 letters and parcels posted. In April the number of men registering was 8,000, and for them 300 mending jobs were done and 1,000 letters and parcels posted.

More than 300 hostesses from the various churches and other organizations have been assisting in the operation of the social quarters, Mrs. Deyman said, and added the comment that the large deputation of young ladies was an evidence of their satisfaction with the Salvation Army's management.

All the expenses of the recreation centre have been borne by the Salvation Army Auxiliary War Services. Mrs. Deyman said that $3,100 had been spent on new furniture and alterations, and that $1,200 of new furniture had been bought but has not been placed, pending decision in the present controversy.

"We have a group of men who possess some prestige in this community," said Mr. Hope, father of four boys in the armed services. "They have shown good judgment, and are willing to do everything asked of them in going on duty at the recreation centre. There has never been an evening that one of our men was not on hand. I think the Salvation Army is doing a grand job, and I don't see any reason for a change."

Mayor Hamilton had greeted the deputation with the compliment that the council was singularly honored, and at the close of the hearing a special committee composed of Aldermen Glover, Swanston, Curtis and Mark was appointed in a motion by Aldermen Dutton and Bradburn to consider the deputation's request. At one stage toward the end of the session the council seemed to be heading toward a decision without reference to the special committee, but Mayor Hamilton suggested that it would be better to follow the course that was previously marked.

Nothing in the discussion indicated motives or causes of the reported action of the Citizen's Co-ordinating Committee in recommending to Brigadier Logie Armstrong, Kingston, substitution of the Legion for the Salvation Army in control of the recreation rooms. It seemed to be expected that the committee would promptly carry out its enquiry and that a counter request to the military authorities would be soon forthcoming, confirming the Salvation Army's management of the local social headquarters.

Two Farm Laborers Held On Liquor Count

They were remanded in custody until Thursday with bail fixed at $100.

Jean Vilneff 17, of R.R. 10, Peterborough, arrested with the two men was also remanded on a charge of vagrancy.

The arrests were made by Sergt. G. T. Puffer and Constable W. A. Clarke while on patrol early this morning.

Council Likes Idea Of Post-War Survey

The survey of prospective purchases by Peterborough householders after the war, as planned by the Chamber of Commerce, was endorsed by the council Monday night in a motion by Alderman Bradburn, seconded by Alderman Glover.

"I read in the Examiner of the canvass the Chamber of Commerce is undertaking," Alderman Bradburn said, "and I would like to see the council endorse this work the Chamber proposes to do. A similar survey was made in Kitchener, and it was ascertained that a large volume of buying of household and other goods is likely to take place after the war.

"It seems to me there is some feeling among members of the Chamber that the council is not sympathetic to them. I do not know how such a feeling could have arisen and I would like to assure the Chamber that we are willing to co-operate with them."

Alderman Bradburn's motion included that affirmation. It endorsed the canvass plan and also expressed the council's appreciation of the Chamber's activities.

Council Investigates Playground Program

"Scores of children never have the privilege of spending a few days at some lake or farm, but they could derive similar healthful benefits from the use of city playgrounds." This is a quotation from a letter to the council Monday night by Clarence A. Corbett, superintendent of Park Street Baptist Sunday School conveying its plea for organized playgrounds.

Incidentally, the council adopted the parks committee report by Alderman Curtis: "That the chairman of this committee endeavor to arrange to operate a supervised playgrounds during the summer."

Alderman Curtis told the council the committee intended to begin a playgrounds program at King Edward Park.

Softball Game Makes $62 For War Victims

The Peterborough Softball League and their supporters sure went to town on Monday night in giving a boost to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund to assist those who have been stricken through enemy air raids over Britain.

In previous years ever since the fund started to operate, this group of real sports have made their opening game of the season an occasion to give the fund a helping hand, but this year circumstances were such that they delayed this for a short while, and the net result proved even greater than on any previous occasion recorded.

In the first place the game scheduled between the Switchgear and the Plaza teams involved the immediate leadership of the League between teams that so far have proved themselves the cream of the local habitat, giving to both an ambition that would serve as an impetus to the best playing that each could deliver, and sports fans do love a real honest-to-goodness struggle where something of this nature is involved.

Draw Nets Fund $62

Two fine prizes in the shape of a Kenwood blanket donated by the League itself and a rug donated by the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd., were offered as an attraction for a draw, the tickets selling at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents, this being the only monetary consideration asked for, and by good work on the part of Dave Leether, president of the League, Fred Scates and Fred Griffin, members of the executive, and Bill Dormer their regular ticket man, the splendid sum of $62.00 was realized, exceeding by a substantial margin any similar previous record to their credit.

When the draw was made, the Kenwood Blanket went to a business visitor to the city in the person of W. G. Downs of Toronto, and the rug was won by Helen Zakos, daughter of the sponsor of one of the two contesting teams of the evening, which might offer a little compensation for that particular group otherwise being on the losing end of the evening's battle.

Having litttle experience in describing sports events of this kind, the writer will leave that end of the story to far more experienced hands and ask all sundry who are interested thus, to turn to the sports page of this day's issue of the Examiner, and in passing will just add that the Switchgear team were the victors by a score of 4 to 1.

This story however would hardly be complete without paying a tribute to the Umpires and Officials who gave their services as a contribution to the cause in the persons of Fred Craig, Harold Dormer and Bob Batley, who in so doing enabled the sum raised from the fund to be kept at its maximum, and in closing one can hardly help feeling that having as good sports done something of a well worth-while nature to help other people in distress, the League itself should surely prosper and receive the support of all to make their season a real success.

Council Debates Advancing Election Date

"I'd rather postpone the elections to the second week next January to make sure that the incoming citizens from North Monaghan are given a vote in electing the Council for 1945," said Alderman Swanston as the Council Monday night wondered about the potential effect of a clause in the finance committee report proposing advancement of election day to the first Monday in December.

City Solicitor Huycke pointed out to the Council that annexation did not actually take place until January 1, 1945. Hence, if election date was moved forward, the North Monaghan neighbors, not being citizens of Peterborough on that date, "would be out of luck" for voting in the city.

City Clerk Outram said that according to Mr. Huycke's opinion of effective annexation no resident of the suburbs could be nominated for any of the elective posts in the city on December 23. He was inclined to the view that the incoming new citizens were qualified to vote in the city in advance of January 1 and in accordance with the order and statute of annexation.

"Well, we don't want to get started wrong," said Alderman Glover, "and have them think probably that we were doing something to prevent them from voting. We want the North Monaghan people to vote with the rest of us for 1945 whenever the voting day may be."

E. Outram, city clerk, was requested to consult some of the law authorities for guidance.

Another interesting feature of this celebration is the presence of the bridesmaid at the wedding, Mrs. Swain's sister, Mrs. Arthur Jackson, of Vancouver, B. C. She has been present at the reception, and is receiving the guests with her sister and brother-in-law. Mr. and Mrs. Swain are "at home" to friends and neighbours from 3 to 6 in the afternoon and 7 to 9 in the evening.

Friends of the bride served the buffet luncheon. They were Mrs. K. Braithwait, Mrs. A. Brockley, and Misses Kay Dunsford, Reta McQuigge, Millie Rome, Betty Watson, and Muriel Post.

The bride's gifts to the maid of honor and bridesmaids were bracelets, and the flower girl received a gold locket, and the soloist, a silver pin. The groom's gift to the best man was a fountain pen, and the ushers received gold tie sets.

MARRIAGE FALLACY DIES HARD

Some Women Still Feel Miserable, Defrauded, Unless They Have Some Sort of Husbands.

One of the old superstitions concerning the feminine sex that dies hardest is the belief that every woman is crazy to marry and that, no matter what else she has in life, she feels that she is a poor, miserable, defrauded creature unless she has a husband. This time-worn theory does not take into consideration the woman's temperament, or taste, or occupation, or pocketbook, or any of the things that make, or mar, her happiness. If he is an asset, fine and dandy, but no matter what sort of a liability he is, she is supposed to be thankful for whatever she gets.

And the curious thing about this fallacy is that so many women believe it themselves. They are sold on the idea that if they have missed a wedding ring they have simply lost out on life, and when they get along towards forty it throws them into the jitters and they pick up any crooked stick of a man they happen to run across and marry him, and spend the balance of their days regretting it.

Thousands of women marry men with whom they do not even imagine themselves to be in love and with whom they have not a single thought or taste in common; men whom they know they will have to support, just because they are victims of the delusion that wives are happier than spinsters, no matter what sort of a man they drew in the matrimonial lottery.

Women Fail to Appreciate True Facts

Now if a wedding ring were a passport to an earthly Elysium and every married couple lived together like cooing doves, it would be easy to see why a woman thought she must get a husband, even if she had no compulsion either emotional or financial to drive her into doing so. But such being far from the case, it is hard to understand why intelligent women do not feel that marriage is something they can take, or leave, as they choose.

For not all women have a matrimonial complex. Just as many women as men are celibate by nature and would prefer to live their lives untrammeled by domestic complications. They earn good money. They have set up their own homes. They are engaged in work in which they have a never-failing interest. And, above all, they have their own latch keys and tote their own pocketbooks and are free to come and go and spend what they like, without giving an account to anyone.

Yet millions of these women who don't want to marry do so just to be a-marrying, and because they are afraid that if they play safe they may wish some day they had gambled. They lack the philosophy of the old maid who said she had a chimney that smoked, a parrot that swore, and a cat that stayed out nights, so she had never missed not having a husband.

Funny things, women, anyway you take 'em.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, June 7

A PROSPEROUS and progressive day is read from the predominant astral influences, with money and possessions as well as the position enjoying expansion, promotion and general good fortune. However there may be stubborn obstacles as well as subtlety and trickery to handle shrewdly and with acumen. It is propitious for making new deals of magnitude. Romance and friendship, with festive celebrations, are quite in the picture, but take pains not to overdo or be carried to any forms of excess or extremes, in either business or social functions.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of happiness, expansion, promotion and good luck with possible inheritance or gifts of substantial quality. It should be a time for closing deals and aiming at high goals and ambitions, despite impediments or tenacious situations. These should be handled with sagacity, alertness and clever manipulations of fraud or treachery. Romantic celebrations, courtships, marriages may be in order, but call for moderation and good judgment lest excess or reckless behavior beget serious regrets.

A child born on this day may have splendid abilities to carry to high goals cherished ambitions and desires. While it may inherit it may likewise be prone to be lavish indulgent and be subject to fraud or treachery.

Canadian Army Dagger Tempered In Four Years For Invasion

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The Canadian Army dagger at last penetrating towards Berlin was forged and tempered over four years and successfully tested on operations extending from Spitzbergen and Kiska to the Mediterranean.

But always during the long period of waiting since the first contingent of the 1st Canadian Division landed in Britain December 17, 1939, the chief thought at the back of every Canadian soldier's mind has been the push toward the German capital by the shortest route across the Channel.

During the years he carefully built up the Canadian Army in strength and efficiency, Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, the former commander, encouraged this frontal attack psychology and he once made the now often quoted statement that his Canadians were "a dagger pointed at the heart of Berlin."

Canadians probably went into battle with the cry of Dieppe on their lips—for that Canadian-dominated "reconnaissance in force" of August 19, 1942, was a full-dress rehearsal for invasion. Lessons learned at Dieppe saved lives in Mediterranean amphibious operations and probably will save lives in the invasion from the west.

But the Canadian Army — now numbering about 250,000 men overseas—has since been split up with one group heading toward Berlin from Italy.

Crerar in Command.

The 1st Canadian Army under Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar has much the same complexion as the famous British 8th Army. It is made up of the 2nd Canadian Corps of three Canadian divisions in command of Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds and other Allied formations.

The Allied formations, bringing the 1st Army up to full strength, take the place of the 1st Canadian Corps in Italy under Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. (Tommy) Burns.

In their first year in England the Canadians had some false starts. Once they were rushed to embarkation points destined to help in the Norwegian campaign, but this was called off. Later they were rushed to Channel ports destined to help the B.E.F. in France. Some of them finally got to France—the day Paris fell — but after penetrating 200 miles they were ordered, by changing circumstances, to turn back.

Back in England they formed the bulwark of that nation's defence through the dark hours after Dunkirk. Anthony Eden recalled that when he was at the British War Office there was a week when the trained and equipped forces on the island did not number a division. He was obviously referring to the Canadians and the reason the number was less than a division was that the 1st Canadian Brigade had destroyed its transport in France and the 1st Division was not, therefore, fully equipped.

The year 1941 was a period of intensive training and the strength of the Canadian force was doubled. A successful raid on Spitzbergen highlighted activities.

Year of Dieppe.

The following year saw the formation of the 1st Canadian Army under General McNaughton, and this was the year of Dieppe. After the French coast battle, replacements were quickly made and the army, by the end of the year, was, in the words of Defence Minister Ralston, "in proportion, probably the most highly-mechanized and mobile in the world." This year also saw some Canadians go to North Africa for battle experience with the famous 8th Army.

This experience was put into use as activity for the Canucks increased during 1943. On July 10 the 1st Division landed in Sicily and took part in the heavy fighting as the left flank of the 8th Army in a six-week campaign leading up to the cracking of the Mount Etna line. September 3 saw them across to Italy proper and advance toward Rome with their strength raised to a corps. Meanwhile a Special Service battalion—made up of Canadian and United States troops — was doing rough work for Gen. Mark Clark's 5th Army moving in from Salerno and later in extending the Nettuno bridgehead.

The year's end saw the retirement of the beloved commander—Gen. McNaughton— and the temporary appointment to the Army command of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, who as Chief of Staff had previously had his headquarters in Ottawa.

Last year also saw the Canadian troops take part in the bloodless occupation of Kiska in the Aleutians and brought reorganization of the Canadian home defence forces. Two divisions were disbanded and a third reconstituted.

Personnel from these formations as they became available, were directed into the overseas reinforcement stream and others were detailed to strengthen certain coast defence installations.

MATTER OF OVERTIME

LONDON — (CP) — A "clippie" on a London bus, Rose Clare Bennett, has won an overtime case from the London passenger Transport Board to the tune of $1.75. She claimed her bus was late finishing its run. The board claimed that the driver-clippie team had slowed down the bus deliberately.

RCAF Squadrons Played Part In Softening Up

BY JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian airmen figured prominently in these phases of aerial warfare that preceded invasion; softening up the channel coast, strategic bombing, cutting off enemy supplies and production, and providing the protective umbrella over the invasion forces.

Most of the 45 all-Canadian R.C.A.F. squadrons are concentrated in Britain and probably participated. And for every Canadian aircrew man in the R. C. A. F., which has a total enlistment of more than 200,000, there are 10 R.C.A.F. men flying with the Royal Air Force.

Just how many tons of bombs were used in preparing the coast for the landing of Allied forces is not known. R.C.A.F. squadrons operating from Britain dropped 13,000 tons of bombs on Europe in 1943. Canadian Wellingtons in North Africa contributed 2,100 tons of bombs to the pre-Sicilian campaign. Bombing missions have taken up most of the R.C.A.F. activities during the year when the monthly tonnage dropped by the Canadian group fell below 1,000 only twice.

Canadian bombers and fighters accounted for more than 160 enemy planes destroyed last year, destroyed or damaged 110 locomotives in train-busting sorties, made 32 unsuccessful attacks against enemy shipping and participated in other activities including bomber escort, intruder raids and U-boat attacks.

Bigger Each Year

Canada's role in the European aerial bombardment has increased from year to year and R.C.A.F. formations have dealt out death over such big enemy targets as Berlin, Essen, Stuttgart and Cologne, as well as the invasion coast itself.

At the close of the year, with Canadian squadrons operating in most of the war theatres and Canadian air personnel serving with R.A.F. units in widely-scattered zones, Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, thick-set and tough Chief of the Air Staff, went to England as Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief of the R.C.A.F. overseas, succeeding Air Vice-Marshal Harold Edwards.

Retracing the activities of the R.C.A.F. from the time it was organized in 1924 with 61 officers and 262 airmen and the arrival of Group Capt. Ernie McNab and No. 1 Fighter Squadron in Britain in June, 1940, a story of growing power and achievement is unfolded.

At Dunkirk the R. C. A. F. formed a part of the aerial curtain over the retreating British Army. When Nazi Field Marshal Rommel made his drive on Cairo the air force was there fighting side by side with the R.A.F. When Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery sent Rommel reeling back across 1,500 miles of desert to Tunisia then across the Mediterranean to Italy, the might of the R.C.A.F. was there helping to pound the German armies.

U-boats in the Atlantic, the Japanese in the Pacific and defence work on the Dominion's own coasts have also been on the R.C.A.F. agenda over the last four years.

Participating in the great air raids on Germany and German occupied territory has been a regular chore for the last few years. The R.C.A.F. issued its first communique of the war in 1942, long after it had assumed an active role in the conflict. In January the Army Cooperation Wing came into being. Canada's tactical air force — taking on the lion's share of today's R.C.A.F. activities—grew form that wing.

The wing had three squadrons, of which two got their baptism of fire at Dieppe. From that experience, a new phase of operational flying was developed.

Each pilot spent a month with various army units, studying infantry, tank and artillery tactics before going out on low-level reconnaissance raids. This rehearsal was to assure that Canada's airmen would know how to operate and co-operate most effectively when the invasion came.

THE SNIPER PLAYS HIS PART — The man with the rifle is still a main cog in battle and Canadian soldiers, many of them expert marksmen like this sniper drawing a bead on the enemy from his post in a shell-ruined house, will take a heavy toll of Nazi defenders of Europe on invasion day. # Canadian Navy Helped To Convoy Invasion Force

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The Canadian Navy, which carried out 40 per cent of the Atlantic convoy work that built up the invasion force in Britain, participated in moving that force to scene of its long-awaited action.

R.C.N. policy changed from defensive to offensive since the early days when doughty Canadian corvettes and their crews had to fight U-boats most of the way to Britain. Now a growing "fighting" Navy and some of Canada's 80,000 sailors are participating in offensive operations.

Perhaps the old four-stacker gift destroyers from the United States, the corvettes and the Bangors of early-war vintage will play a role in the invasion operations, but more likely the biggest share of the Navy's job is assigned to the newer fighting ships and landing craft.

Details of the makeup of the Canadian naval formation taking part in the Second Front's massive combined operation were not immediately available, but there was a possibility that two cruisers and half a dozen destroyers—newly acquired by the Canadian Navy—participated in the naval covering bombardment of the invasion coast.

It was also possible that two Canadian-manned Royal Navy flat-tops helped to provide a Fleet Air Arm screen. What was certain, however, was that many of the landing craft— moving the tanks, guns, men and supplies — were skippered and manned by Canadians.

Authorities say that if Canadian landing craft happened to carry Canadian Army personnel it would be merely by chance for the pool of amphibians is divided on a basis of utility, not by nationality.

Canadian seamen have had plenty of experience handling this type of craft or they participated in amphibious operations at Dieppe and in North Africa, Sicily and Italy.

Supervised by Nelles.

General supervision over Canada's share of the naval operation is held by Vice-Admiral Percy Nelles, the R.C.N.'s former Chief of Staff and now senior Canadian flag officer in Britain. His appointment in January resulted in his deputy, Rear - Admiral George Jones, succeeding him at Ottawa.

The Canadian Navy, built up from peacetime strength of a dozen ships and a few thousand men, has seen service in most actions in this war. Its ships took part in many North Atlantic and Mediterranean brushes and its men saw service on every sealane from Murmansk to Darwin and from the Mediterranean to the Caribbean.

Canadians were serving in H.M.S. Jamaica which applied the coup de grace to the Scharnhorst, while Capt. H. T. W. Grant, of Halifax, and many Canadians in the crew of the Royal Navy cruiser Enterprise took part in the rout of a German destroyer flotilla in the Bay of Biscay last summer.

There was the action in the Caribbean in November, 1942, in which the corvette Oakville disposed of a U-boat after a boarding party shot it out in a fight on the wave-washed deck with the sub crew. Sister corvettes such as the Chambly, Moose Jaw, Ville de Quebec, and Port Arthur also bagged U-boats while destroyers such as the Assiniboine, disposed of a U-boat and participated in the capture of a German supply ship.

The sea war has brought many losses to the Canadian Navy. Destroyers Fraser, Margaree, Ottawa, and St. Croix, the corvettes Bras d'Or, Otter, Levis, Windflower, Spikenard, Raccoon, Charlottetown, Louisburg, Weyburn, and Chedabucto have all been lost with many men of their crews.

ANTI-INVASION CHIEF — Opposing Gen. Eisenhower on D-Day will be Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundsteadt, 68, supreme commander of Germany's anti-invasion forces in the West. Rundstedt is a veteran of the Polish, French and Russian fronts. He was a general staff officer during World War I.

SALE! Dollars at Half Price!

Sounds like a sure-thing bargain. But how many of us realize that in Canada we're getting dollars at less than half the price of other years ... at a fraction the price in many other countries to day. Here's what we mean. A dollar is worth as much as it will buy. And to day your dollar buys at least twice as much as it did in the last war. For instance, your 5¢ buys a bar of laundry soap that cost 15¢ in those days. To day, you can buy the same quality felt fedora for that set you back then. Truly your dollar is half price since it buys twice as much. Price ceilings and other anti-inflationary measures have kept its value HIGH! And you protect your dollars worth every time you buy a bond ... pay off a debt ... refuse to hoard goods or frequent black markets. That's how to make dollars count MORE!

Make This Pledge Today!

I promise to give my support to keeping the cost of living down. I will buy only what I need. I will observe the ceiling whether buying or selling goods or services. I will pay off old debts, save for the future, invest in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. And I will support taxes which help lower the cost of living.

Keep Your Dollar Value High!

Invasion News Received Little Comment

Invasion news broke on a sleeping Peterborough. The late workers and radio listeners had a intimation that something was brewing on the invasion front shortly after one o'clock when reports came through that German news services and radios had announced that the invasion has started.

At 3.32 Allied Supreme Headquarters announced that Allied armies had begun landing on the northern coast of France and at 3.37 Canadian Press, Toronto had telephoned the Examiner's managing editor "Canadians Land In France. Open wires immediately" and within a few seconds the invasions news was rolling directly into the Examiner's office direct from Allied Headquarters in Britain and London.

How did Peterborough take the news? With its traditional spirit of never getting excited over anything little comment could be heard. It has been expected for months and at last "D-day" had come was the general feeting. There was no blowing of whistles or ringing of bells people went about their ordinary task but no doubt there was a prayer from the heart of many a man and woman for the safety of those boys who were in the midst of battle.

This evening at five o'clock His Grace Archbishop Derwyn Owen primate of Canada of the Anglican Church will conduct a special service of intercession in the St. John's Church. On Wednesday evening a civic service of intercession has been arranged by Mayor James Hamilton. The service is to be held in the Riverside bowl and will commence at 7.30. It will be conducted by the Ministerial Association and the Salvation Army band will provide the music. Loud speakers will be used.

Third Offenders Given 3 Months

John "Goldtooth" O'Brien, 73, who was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning to three months in jail after he had pleaded guilty to having been drunk on Rubidge street Monday and admitted two previous convictions, promised the court that he would be back in the fall.

"There's no use pleading not guilty" said O'Brien when he was asked for his plea this morning "I'd be found guilty anyway."

"I have told you before that you will find yourself facing a charge of contempt of court if you keep on talking that way" warned His Worship.

"I wasn't bad" said O'Brien "I could have stood a lot more. I just got out of jail Saturday and I was weak. You don't get much grub up at the jail. There are too many there."

"I have a job up at Camp Borden" he continued "if you could let me go. If you don't and I have to go to jail for three months I'll be back here in the fall."

Charles Fleetwood who also pleaded guilty as a third offender drew a similar sentence of three months in the county jail.

Citizen Praises Fire Department

"I am deeply grateful to Chief Gimblett and his boys for the excellent care and protection they gave my property," W. T. Fanjoy, 627 Homewood avenue, wrote the Council Monday night in appreciation of the firemen's efficiency at a recent fire that was overcome with comparatively light damage to his house.

"There was positively no unnecessary 'fireman damage' which some citizens complain about," Mr. Fanjoy also mentioned with special reference to economy of water in smothering the blaze.

"I think we ought to acknowledge that letter," Alderman Glover said. "You don't get many thanks in public life. That's the second compliment we have heard recently, the one about the new system of garbage collection and now the fire department."

Further down in the file of communications was a third missive of amenity, a letter from W. C. Bennett, president of the Ladies' Softball League, thanking the Council in general and the parks committee in particular for co-operation in the allotment of the park and for the work done in improving the girls' softball diamond, which the writer said was equal to any other girls' diamond in Ontario.

And for that kindly expression, W. C. Bennett also will receive an acknowledgment through City Clerk Outram.

Two Norwood Men Kicked By Horses

NORWOOD, June 6 (ENS) — Several minor accidents have happened in the village and district recently, including two instances of men being kicked by horses. John McKay suffered a fractured nose and lacerations to the hand when he was kicked by a horse; and Max Scart received a wound above the ear which required four stitches.

Sitting on a log at the swimming pool Joyce Giffen was accidentally hit on the head with a stone thrown by one of the boys, and five stitches were necessary to close the cut.

Picking up a pedestrian on the Hastings road George Oitment lost control of his car when he reached across the passenger to close the door properly. The automobile swerved, took down five spans of a rail fence and finally stopped against a stone just before hitting a tree.

Pioneers Honor Thomas Sproat

A very pleasant gathering took place at the Wawartha Golf and Country Club Friday evening, when upwards of 150 telephone executives employees and their wives met to pay tribute to Thomas Sproat of this city, on the occasion of his retirement from active service.

THOMAS SPROAT

Among those present at the dinner representing the executive were A.P. Ross, Assistant Vice President and H. G. Young, General Manager, both of Toronto. The Telephone Pioneers Association was represented by F. S. Routley, Toronto Chairman of the Champlain Council, Miss Olive Geach of Lindsay, Lady Vice President, and many others.

The guest of the evening, who was accompanied by Mrs. Sproat, has had a very long, as well as a very enviable record in the telephone field, having joined the service of The Bell Telephone Company at London some forty-four years ago. After a period during which he gained experience in the construction and other branches of the service, and which took him to many parts of the Province, he finally located in Peterborough where he has held the responsible position of Construction Superintendent for many years.

A very pleasing feature of the gathering was a series of presentations to the guest of the evening, including a Life Membership Certificate in the Telephone Pioneers Association, the Company President's Certificate of Service, a book of remembrance carrying the signatures of all present and many others, a set of pipes from the Peterborough Bell Social Club, and lastly the gift of a chesterfield chair from his many associates.

During the evening honour was paid to Mrs. Sproat, who was made the recipient of a gift of roses on behalf of her husband's associates.

LEARN BRIDGE FAST

14—Opening No Trumps

JUST AS an opening suit bid of one should contain at least two-plus tricks made up of the primary defensive values counting an A-K as 2, A-Q as 1½, A or K-Q as 1 and K-x as ½, so should any opening No Trump bid. An opening No Trump call should also have two other characteristics. It should show a hand with stoppers in at least three suits—some require them in all four—at least a singly-guarded king, twice-guarded queen or thrice-guarded jack being a stopper. And the hand should be strong enough to promise a satisfactory total number of tricks if played at No Trumps.

There are several ways to count No Trump strength. Many players use the same valuation table for high cards as for opening suit bids, and require at least 3½ or 4 of them, the number depending on the number of lower honors held. A more accurate measure in the long run, because of the way that honors in opposite hands promote the strength of each other, is by means of what is called the No Trump count.

By that count, you rate an ace as 4 points, king as 3, queen as 2 and jack as 1. Thus an average hand containing one card of each size would have a total "count" of 10. When using this method, it is generally considered sound to open 1-No Trump with a total of 15 count if your pair is using the usual "strong no trumps." With them, bidding 2-No Trumps originally would not be done with less than 19 count and all suits stopped, and 3-No Trumps would not be bid originally except with at least 22 count and all suits surely stopped. Many hands strong enough for any of these bids would make a better opening suit bid because of distribution. Two 10's are counted as equal to a J by many players.

To raise any of these bids directly, bear in mind two figures ascertained by experience as sound. They are 22 and 24. If your "count" added to that shown by your partner indicates that the side has a total of 22, then 2-No Trumps should be a sound venture, and if the total is 24, 3-No Trumps is worth reaching for.

That does not mean you should jump to those points, after hearing your partner bid No Trump, just because you have enough count. It indicates you can do it, though often some suit response to his No Trump call will be better.

To estimate your ability to make the higher No Trump bids, such as two and three, after your partner has made a lower suit call, you can usually treat his suit bid as showing a hand containing at least 10 No Trump count, add your count to it and see if it reaches a total of 24. If so, you are able to jump him with No Trumps, in case you have the other suits safely stopped, and feel confident your side has a profitable play for game.

In case he has made an overcall of the opponents, and you are prepared for No Trumps through having their suit stopped, you can make a fair estimate of the probable No Trump strength in his hand and add it to what you have.

With greater totals than 24 in sight for the side, you then think in terms of possible slam and govern your actions accordingly.

Allied Generals Score Again

NAPLES, June 6—(CP-Reuters)—The "Eighth Army News" to-day congratulated Gen. Sir Harold Alexander and his 5th Army on the fall of Rome. An editorial in the paper said:

"Once more Gen. Alexander has out-generalled one of the aces of the German High Command.

"It was Rommel in Egypt, Von Arnim in Tunisia, now it is Kesselring in Italy.

"It is a proud record.

"The men of the 5th Army were the first to enter Rome. We of the 8th Army, from the commander downwards, offer warm congratulations.

"We may also justly reflect that our own contribution to this success has not been small."

RECTAL SORENESS AND ## PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid, and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

3 Major Parties Warm Up For Elections

REGINA, June 6—(CP)—Political issues were tossed at electors in many sections of Saskatchewan during the week-end as the three major parties—Liberals, C.C.F., and Progressive Conservatives—warmed up with election day less than a fortnight away.

Federal Agriculture Minister Gardiner in an address at Sturgis asserted the C.C.F. Socialistic plans would lead to Dictatorship.

D. C. Disbery of Saskatoon, speaking in a provincial broadcast in support of R. D. Ramsay, Progressive Conservative Leader, claimed the C.C.F. wants to use Saskatchewan for a "Guinea Pig" to set up the only Socialist government in the Dominion after election day, June 15.

M. J. Coldwell, National C.C.F. leader, advocated control of banks by the government and said under a C.C.F. administration the People's Bank Savings would be "safer than ever." Another C.C.F. spokesman, E.B. Jolliffe, leader of the opposition in the Ontario Legislature attacked editorials in newspapers.

Just A Joke

Mr. Joliffe told a Shaunavon audience that attacks on the C.C.F. last summer of 34 or 35 Ontario newspapers "was a joke". The same criticism was appearing in the Regina Leaderpost and the Star-Phoenix now, he added, in reminding those at the meeting that the people in Ontario didn't take the advice of newspapers.

"In Ontario the result was a joke on the newspapers for the papers had represented, not the opinion of the people, but of the publishers who insulted the intelligence of the people with their silly notions."

Mr. Gardiner warned that in a Dictatorship people either support it or "you'll be taken out and lined up against a stone wall." After mentioning that the C.C.F. has outlined what they intend to Socialize, the Federal Minister spoke of interruptions. "I notice that some of the C.C.F. storm-troopers are in the audience."

"Liberals stand for trade with other countries and not for self-contained Canada such as the C.C.F. has proposed," he said.

Cheese Makers Arrange Dinner

"We'd have no cheese for the people in Great Britain if our own people were consuming as much milk as dietetic experts estimate as necessary," said Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, in a comment today about the expected address by Dr. J. B. Reynolds of Port Hope as guest speaker at the Peterborough Cheese Producers' Association supper at Warsaw Wednesday evening.

One of the topics Dr. Reynolds will discuss is the food value of milk, but it will be mainly incidental in his address to the farmers and their city guests.

The cheese producers last winter decided, in their own words, that it was about time they reciprocated the hospitality they had received from various city service clubs, and they agreed to arrange a dinner to be held somewhere in the country early in June.

The engagement is almost here, and it is understood that invitations have been sent to one hundred or more men and women from the city. George Elliott of Norwood, president of the association, will be dinner chairman, and the entertainment features have been turned over to Clare Rouse of Toronto. It may be that some of the tables will be outdoors.

Mr. Paterson said he expected Dr. Reynolds would touch upon the shortage of dairy products throughout the world, and even in Canada whose cattle supply and population is comparatively large.

THIS is Main Street somewhere in Europe.

These shattered buildings were once busy shops and offices.

The rubble-strewn sidewalks were once thronged with people. It will be a busy street again . . . someday.

The ravaged cities of Europe and Asia must be rebuilt. When V-Day comes the world will look to Canadian factories and farms for materials of reconstruction and repair, for food and clothing and household goods . . .

In the face of such a need, is it conceivable that we should have idle hands or minds in Canada after the war? Canada will be a busy place when Victory is won.

What is PRIVATE ENTERPRISE? It is the natural desire to make your own way, as far as your ability will take you; an instinct that has brought to this continent the highest standard of life enjoyed by any people on earth. It is the spirit of democracy on the march . . .

Religious Training Praised In Schools

LINDSAY, June 6 — (ENS). — "You can safely say that religious training in the Public Schools has been quite popular and beneficial," says J. W. Deyell, chairman of the Lindsay Board of Education. "I can proudly say that during the past week some 50 special religious certificates have been presented to the boys and girls in different schools by local ministers, all of whom gave their time and energy gratis to this splendid work. Every Wednesday morning the following ministers visited the schools, presenting religious topics: Rev. Donald McQueen and Rev. J. J. Black at the North Ward School, Rev. C. D. Cross and Rev. P. C. Reed at the Central School, and Rev. H. C. Wolfraim and Capt. John Dougal at the East Ward School.

Training was conducted according to the curriculum laid down by the Department of Education and tests conducted by the ministers.

HomeDecorating Important Duty

NORWOOD, June 6 (ENS)—At the regular meeting of the Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Davey, a paper on Home Economics was given by Mrs. F. Parker. Mrs. Parker mentioned how the housewives have accepted the necessary wartime regulations and restrictions and their reasonable attitude toward wartime shortages; their willingness to carry parcels whenever posible and their patience with new and young clerks who are really trying to do their best. By avoiding black markets and by buying from established businesses housewives have made success possible in the fight againt inflation. The task ahead is still a tremendous one but housewives will meet it in that spirit of co-operation which makes victory certain, she said.

Regarding homes Mrs. Parker said beautiful homes do not come in packages ready for family life, but are put together little by little as time and money will allow.

"We cannot all be professional decorators but we can borrow from the decorators ideas which will suggest to us a better way of planning our homes. It is not necessary however to conform to any rigid rules of right or wrong. Decorating can be carried out with a paint brush knitting needles and a needle and thread and patience for the tedieous tasks that makes any decorating effort what you want it to be. A little money well spent and a big imaginations for fitting ideas around what you have help make a beautiful home."

All-Purpose Room

A dining-room isn't used solely for dining, its location and its furnishings usually make it a good place to spread sewing. It is a convenient place for homework and the right place for a more than four hand game of cards. Equally as important as the living room it reflects the family's way of living, Mrs. Parker explained.

Under wartime conditions living costs could rise so quickly expenditures just could not be kept within an income and for this reason the ceiling price is set on articles and food. Every dime counts and every dollar so women must buy wisely. They must make things over and resist luxuries by economizing in every way possible.

Plans were made for a picnic to be held on August 2 at Mrs. F. Stewart's cottage as there will be no regular meetings during July and August. It was decided to send a box of fruit to a patient in hospital and $10 each to the Salvation Army and the Blind. Mrs. C. Davey and Mrs. F. Stewart gave a report of the district annual held recently in Peterborough. And other items on the programme were an accordion solo by Mrs. A. Davey; readings by Mrs. F. Parker and Mrs. F. Stewart; and a recitation by Mrs. W. Golloher and a little song by Shirley Davey.

Staff Changes Made At Lindsay Collegiate

LINDSAY, June 6 — (ENS). — J. W. Deyell, chairman of the Board of Education, announced that the folloing replacements will be made in Lindsay Public Schools and the Collegiate Institute following the resignations of ten teachers:

325 Hun Prisoners Refuse To Work

CHATHAM, June 6 — (CP) — For the third successive day German prisoners of war at a summer internment camp near here to-day refused to go to work on the Kent County fields, camp officials revealed. Approximately 125 refused work on Friday and were joined by about 200 more prisoners who arrived at the camp on Friday night.

The work stoppage is said to be in protest against failure to receive certain privileges within the camp. The camp commandant said last night that no agreement had been reached. Extra precautions were taken as soon as the prisoners revealed their attitude, but no incidents have occurred.

The prisoners were brought here recently on a voluntary basis from other camps to work on farms. While working in the fields they have been guarded at all times. The work done by them so far has been satisfactory.

New Health Course

"I'm in there punching for Morale and Victory!"

"My physique may not be particularly impressive but in my own sphere of action I'm rated tops with both dealer and public who know me as the Congoleum Trade Mark. I've always stood for floor covering quality and value, factors that are more important today than ever, now that replacements are so hard to come by. The care that has always gone into the making of the goods I identify, is intensified as we do our modest bit for morale and victory by providing that touch of colourful brightness — fine, easy-to-clean, budget-saving Congoleum floors — that make any home a happier place to live in. And on top of that, we at Congoleum are happy that our complete machine-shop facilities have been devoted to specialized war production ever since the outbreak of hostilities."

HOW TO HELP MR. GOLD SEAL MAKE GOOD

You can get added wear out of your Congoleum floors with very little effort. Brush and mop them regularly and renew the brightness of their surface with an occasional waxing. Make sure too, that the floor underneath is smooth and free from crevices or knobs. If it's a rug, move it every few months to "spread" the traffic. Yes, a little care will pay big dividends.

Canadians Overrun Beaches In Daylight Under Fire

By ALLAN NICKELSON—Canadian Press Staff Writer

ABOARD H.M.C.S. PRINCE HENRY OFF THE FRENCH COAST, June 6—(Delayed)—(CP Cable). — Men who helped take Canadian troops ashore from this ship today returned to report that the Canadians swept across the French beaches in broad daylight in the face of considerable opposition. Hundreds of the Canadian landing force were taken ashore in Canadian - manned assault craft from this parent ship and men who ferried them reported well-directed mortar fire was the main German weapon on the beachhead and it was surprisingly strong despite a fierce bombardment of the area.

Many Seasick

Crews of the assault landing craft returned to report the beach already had been won when the Canadians they carried waded ashore just 45 minutes after their H-hour. Many soldiers became seasick as the small craft bounced in the heavy seas.

The enemy mortar fire from concealed positions beyond the beach and in the shelter of a cliff caused many casualties and knocked out several tanks before their carrying craft landed, these crews reported.

Heavy seas also swamped some tank landing craft miles from shore, they said.

One flotilla of eight landing craft failed to return to the Prince Henry after its troops got safely ashore. The flotilla had been knocked out by the enemy on the beach and a few crew members suffered minor injuries from shapnel.

Lieut. Jack Davie of Duncan, B.C., a flotilla leader from this ship, said that as his craft, carrying crack soldiers, approached the beach in broad daylight it looked as if the landing would be almost unopposed.

Anti-Tank Fire

"It wasn't until we almost touched down that they opened fire from mortars well back on the beach," he said. "The beach seemed clear of enemy guns but close to shore were

Huns Identify 2nd Division

LONDON, June 7 — CP Cable). —The German DNB Agency was quoted to-day by Reuters News Agency as saying that the 2nd Canadian Infantry Division in the Allied beachhead in Northern France was considerably reinforced during the night.

The first identification of a Canadian unit was not immediately confirmed by Allied or Canadian sources.

There was no identification by the Allies of the Canadian formations which went ashore in France as the invasion was launched.

It was 2nd Canadian Division which provided the men who landed at Dieppe in August, 1942, in a reconnaissance in force designed to probe enemy defences in Northern France.

Speaking of troops landed near the River Orne, which flows into the English Channel just north of the city of Caen, the German agency asserted:

"Although the formations which landed here, which comprise small forces of the 6th British Air-borne Division, were mostly wiped out, and the 7th and 9th British Tank Divisions, the 50th British Infantry Division, and the 2nd Canadian Infantry Division, were considerably reinforced during the evening and during the night, they failed to include Caen in the bridgehead position."

None of the Allied divisions taking part in the operations have been identified by Allied sources as yet.

Ross Munro Scores Again

First With Eye-Witness Invasion Yarn

(By The Canadian Press)

Ross Munro, whose eyewitness stories were ahead of those of all other correspondents at Dieppe and in the invasions of Sicily and Italy, scored his fourth consecutive beat on the invasion of France.

Munro, one of two CP war correspondents with the assault wave of the invading Canadian forces, got his story back from the battle area 20 hours and 30 minutes after the landing began. The first Canadian troops landed at 8 a.m. Tuesday. Munro reported in a story filed from London at 5:30 a.m. today (Wednesday) (10:30 p.m. E.D.T. Tuesday).

It had not been considered likely the first story would be transmitted from the battle zone sooner than 36 hours after the landing—the time it took for Munro's first story on the Dieppe raid to get out.

For the invasion from the west Munro was teamed with CP's William Stewart, as in Sicily and Italy.

Another CP war correspondent, Maurice Desjardins, is with the French-Canadian troops and Allan Nickleson is with the Royal Canadian Navy. Louis Hunter, CP war correspondent with the R.C.A.F., has been filing stories regularly since the start of the operation, but he has been in England throughout.

Allies Control Air Over French Coast

53 Enemy Planes Destroyed During Tuesday

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 7—(AP)— Allied air forces, taking supreme command of the air over invaded France, flew more than 13,000 sorties from dawn yesterday until dawn to-day in support of assault forces and surged out again this morning in new attacks beyond the beachhead.

Last night more than 1,000 heavy R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers poured a stream of explosives upon German reinforcements moving toward the fighting front. As they returned United States raiders headed out over Dover strait toward the small portion of France which has been recaptured.

Sun broke through rain clouds as the formations swung out.

Night crews found the sky moonlit over the battle area, with patches of cloud. Through clear spots they saw a heavy traffic of ships crossing the channel in both directions.

Over France fires flickered and the air was cut by arcs of star shells.

Because of unfavorable weather and a determination to put their bombs where they will count most, almost all types of Allied aircraft operated at lower levels than usual. Almost total lack of opposition in the air made these tactics possible although danger from anti-aircraft fire increased considerably.

Never before had the world seen such a mighty demonstration of air power.

The measure of the almost incredibly weak opposition from the German air force was reflected in the loss of 13 R.A.F. and Canadian heavy bombers, one American heavy bomber and 17 Allied fighters. Yesterday 53 enemy planes were destroyed.

The Allies maintained constant fighter patrol over a 60-mile square of France, with Le Havre approximately at its northeast corner. At least 200 fighters were protecting it every minute and enemy planes which attempted to penetrate it were virtually condemned to death.

Get 4 JU-88's

First enemy air attack on the beachhead was made by 12 JU-88's which attempted a surprise raid under low clouds. Spitfires knocked down four and the Nazis retreated without causing any damage.

In a departure from usual tactics, the RAF's medium Mitchell bombers flew for a second time as night bombers, battering roads, bridges and railways in a large feeder area behind the battlefront.

Mosquito bombers, out with them, flew low to pick out pin-point targets, Airmen reported a great ring of fires at Liseau and a sinister glow over Caen.

The four-engined British craft, in number at least equalling the force that paved the way for the ground invasion forces Tuesday morning, dropped an estimated 6,100 tons of bombs last night, concentrating their attacks on roads and railways 15 to 40 miles behind the Normandy landings.

Each strong air attacks was designed to block or delay the movement of men and material which the enemy is attempting to bring up by every available means of transport. Flying only short distances from their bases, the big British Lancasters and Halifaxes carried tremendous loads of explosives.

12,000 Italians Join French Forces

BARCELONA, Spain, June 7 — AP). — Italian guerilla forces, estimated at 12,0000, were reported from the French border to-day to have moved from the Italian Piedmont along smugglers' trails into French Savoy where they have joined French guerillas awaiting orders to take the offensive.

In this region, which would be vital in event of an Allied landing from the Mediterranean, a considerable force of German troops was reported pinned down.

American Units 10 Miles Beyond Rome

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

NAPLES, June 7 (AP)—Allied 5th Army troops pounding after the retreating Germans are advancing rapidly in the direction of Civitavecchia, 35 miles northwest of Rome, it was announced tonight.

Civitavecchia is the nearest important port to Rome on the Tyrrhenian Sea.

The advance on this sector parallels drives north and west of Rome which had already reached more than 10 miles.

It was noted that the German communique said the Allies achieved "a major break" in the German lines on the coastal road west of Rome, and had "again launched a big attack" with superior infantry and tank forces.

One column pushing beyond Rome earlier was reported only five miles from Lake Barrciano.

New Zealand troops of the 8th Army, meanwhile, were reported to have captured Balsorano, about six miles north of Sora, in their advance up highway 32 toward Avezzano.

Destroy 34 Planes

Thirty-four enemy aircraft were destroyed during the day. Sixteen heavy bombers and 17 other aircraft failed to return.

Fifth Army infantrymen, chasing Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's fleeing army, have punched their way 10 miles north of Rome to a point only five miles short of the Lake of Bracchi.

Another column has driven at least 10 miles northwest of the Italian capital after crossing the Tiber and still is forging steadily ahead behind enemy rearguards.

Patrols probing west from Rome reached points three to five miles from the sea and nearly a dozen miles north of the Tiber's mouth.

Only spotty resistance was being encountered by Allied 5th Army forces but the British 8th Army was engaged in brisk battles with strong German delaying forces in the mountain sectors east of the capital.

Canadian Corps troops, which fought with the 8th Army during the early stages of the offensive which opened May 11, now are out of the line.

The newest gains were reported

Twelve Gliders Lost In Attack

WITH THE UNITED STATES 9th AIR FORCE, June 7—(AP)—Twelve C-47 troop carriers and 12 gliders were reported missing today from overnight reinforcing operations beyond the beachheads in Normandy. This was the first specific report of losses from air-borne operations since the invasion began.

In three waves the C-47 skytrains and gliders flew equipment and reinforcements to the beachheads late last night and early this morning. Two of the waves were towplane-glider combinations.

Air-borne engineers were among the troops dropped. The planes also released parapacks filled with rations, ammunition and other supplies.

Returning fliers said the whole Cherbourg peninsula was a mass of white and colored parachutes this morning where the troops had descended.

Reinforced Allied Troops Fight Inland Along 100-Mile Front in Normandy, Fresh Airborne Operations Announced

13,000 Sorties Were Flown First Day
Another Canadian Assault Force
Believed To Be In The Cherbourg Area

SUPREME ADVANCE COMMAND POST, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 7—(CP).—Allied troops have struck inland in France in heavy fighting, repulsing Nazi counterblows near Caen nine miles from the coast, after clearing the enemy from all their landing beaches and linking up some of the beachheads.

Reports from the Cherbourg peninsula invasion front showed "decided improvement" at midday, and the Allies are making "considerable progress on the whole front" despite bad weather and stiffening resistance, a headquarters officer said.

Both sides dropped air-borne troops into the flaming battlefront, with Allied parachutists and glider troops pouring down early today from a 50-mile-long reinforcing sky train.

Caen is at the base of the Cherbourg peninsula, and southwest of Le Havre.

REPORTS FROM FRONT SHOW IMPROVEMENTS

Headquarters said front reports showed improvement by midday after being "disappointing" early this morning.

Though the initial beachheads — which the Germans asserted extended over more than a 50-mile stretch—have been cleared and some linked with those nearby, a few may still be under German artillery fire.

Air headquarters declared the Allied air forces in mammoth support of the invasion thrust had flown more than 71,000 sorties between June 1 and last night.

The huge numbers of air-borne Allied troops seized key positions and helped throw back Nazi tank-led counterblows. The Germans likewise rushed in parachutists.

For four months the Germans have been building an airborne army for just this purpose, led by Lt.-Gen. Kurt Student who engineered the landings in Crete. R.A.F. Mosquitoes last night destroyed five Junkers-52 troop carriers.

Reuters News Agency recorded a German DNB Agency report which asserted that the 2nd Canadian Infantry was in the fighting. The enemy report—unconfirmed immediately by any Allied source—said this division was in the beachhead area and was considerably reinforced during the night.

In New York the British information service said the British Air-borne 6th Division has captured and is holding bridges north of Caen.

The Germans asserted they beat off new landing attempts near Calais, 150 miles northeast of Cherbourg, but later their reports indicated German coastal guns merely fired at Allied ships in the area, and there were no indications Supreme Headquarters was trying to invade there.

FEINTS STAGED BY TASK FORCES

Allied invasion task forces have been sailing in feints past many points, keeping the Germans in doubt where the next landings would come.

Various unconfirmed reports said penetrations had been made as deep as 12 miles at some places, but the fighting was so confused it was doubtful if any regular lines were established.

Berlin asserted Field Marshal Rommel was rushing up reserves of the German 7th and 15th Armies.

"Satisfactory progress" is being made in the historic invasion continuing under thundering blows by great sea and sky fleets, headquarters said, and cautious officers described the tricky air-borne operations as "a complete success."

LE HAVRE THREATENED GERMANS ADMIT

The reinforced Allied troops battled inside the old Gothic port city of Caen and fought their way inland along a 100-mile front in Normandy. The Germans reported fierce counter-attacks against the invaders east of Cherbourg, major Allied peninsular objective.

There was no official word here so far on the extent of the penetrations into the Normandy peninsula, aside from yesterday's statement to the House of Commons by Prime Minister Churchill that Allied troops had begun street fighting in Caen, nine miles inland on the Orne River.

Nor was there further word of the part Canada's forces are playing in the great attack. They last were reported to have won their immediate objective, an unidentified beachhead on the gun-studded French coast, after little more than 2½ hours' fighting yesterday, and to be moving inland.

The first despatch from France came from Ross Munro, veteran Canadian Press war correspondent, who is with one of the Canadian invasion spearheads. He said in his "beat" from the invasion coast that the Canadian invasion commander had reported to headquarters:

"Beachhead taken. Well on way to immediate objective."

That was at 10.45 p.m. Tuesday. There has been no further word directly from the beachhead.

An indication that another Canadian assault force was in the Cherbourg area came from William Stewart, CP war correspondent who told in a dispatch from an invasion forces headquarters last night how the formations he was with moved across the Channel.

Visible from the ship he was aboard, Stewart said, as the forces moved into the French coast were many flares and he quoted a member of the ship's company as saying: "Looks like Cherbourg."

Soldiers Carry Invasion Bicycles

By CMDR. PETER MACRITCHIE, R.C.N.V.R.

HEADQUARTERS, COMBINED OPERATIONS, R.C.N., OVERSEAS, June 7—(CP Cable) — While big ships of the Allied navies and air force squadrons pounded German-held positions behind the Bay of Seine beaches, landing craft flotillas of the R.C.N. smashed their way through minefields and submerged booby traps yesterday to land a unit of the Canadian army.

Last night these little ships limped back to England, some under their own power, and others under tow. Two had to be left on the beach after crews transferred to other craft.

But officers said men who sailed them were happy They had done what they had set out to do, and to-day that same Canadian unit

Churchill Wanted To Go On Invasion

LONDON, June 7 — (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill, it was revealed by Sir Bertram Ramsay, was dissuaded "only with great difficulty" from accompanying the invasion fleet in Tuesday's assault against France.

Sir Bertram, commanding the Allied invasion forces, was quoted by an Australian war correspondent aboard the H.M.S. Hilary as saying when he visited the ship, that the Prime Minister was eventually convinced by high Allied officers that his presence in the invasion fleet would involve a great deal of extra work in assuring him protection.

Canadians Meet Resistance In Beach Landing

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN FORCES LANDING IN FRANCE, June 7 (CP Cable).—Canadian assault forces bounced through the stormy sea in landing craft yesterday and in broad daylight stormed the French beaches and battled their way inland.

There was some stiff opposition on certain sections of this particular beach but 1½ hours after the landing, reports of success came in rapidly to this headquarters ship.

One Canadian regiment after another flashed back messages that it was advancing through the coastal defence strip, part of the Germans' so-called west wall. Hard fighting was expected inland, however, but the Canadian forces expected that.

A number of enemy strongpoints on the beach zone resisted and they were being fired on by naval craft.

The big surprise in the second front attack was that it went in during daylight

As we were crossing the Channel R.A.F. heavy bombers struck at the beach defences and specific targets up and down the coastline. When daylight came, United States medium bombers took over the attack and hundreds of planes dropped high explosives all along the beaches.

After that, United States heavy bombers went in with a roar that drowned out the sound of naval gunfire and struck other targets.

I saw gigantic flashes along the coast as the bombs exploded.

40 Minute Barrage

Cruisers started off the naval bombardment, which was by far the heaviest coastal shelling of the war. For 40 minutes, hundreds of guns were shelling without a let-up. The coast was clouded with smoke as warships, destroyers, gunboats and support craft plied up and down the coast and hit every target that could be seen.

Under cover of this colossal barrage, Canadian infantry and engineers in the first assault waves plunged through the white-capped channel water in small landing craft and the first regiment touched down early.

Japs On The Run In Kohima Area

KANDY, Ceylon, June 7 (AP) — The Japanese are withdrawing rapidly in the Kohima area of north-eastern India owing to their heavy losses, and the British have occupied a village six miles east of the town, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Japanese retreat was said to be so rapid that British troops were unable to keep contact.

British gains also were recorded on the Aradura Spur to the south and to the northwest of Bishenpur, the area below Imphal to the south.

At Myitkyina in North Burma the Allied line was advanced slightly in the southern part of the town, while to the west in the Mogaung Valley the Chinese closed in to within five miles west of Kamaing.

Invasion Machine Smooth

Men, Supplies Being Rushed To France

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 7 — (CP Cable) — The mighty invasion machine in Britain rolled along with utmost smoothness today as great protective air armadas and bomber forces thundered out to France and the movement of troops and supplies to the continent continued on a vast scale.

Huge convoys roared along Britain's roads and the work of loading ships at countless embarkation ports continued uninterrupted.

At the same time ships and landing craft were beginning to return from the beaches to home ports, some bringing back wounded.

Somewhere on the south coast, doctors and nurses were on hand at dawn to care for the wounded who were taken straight from ships to a waiting ambulance train.

Most of the wounded had been hit within a few minutes of landing. They were not allowed to talk to civilians or correspondents but many were still well enough to wave a cheery greeting.

Tommy Hughes Guilty On Assault Charge

Looking like a "katchumbo" job that Valtin wrote about in his story of the ungently persuasive methods of the Gestapo were photographs by Fred Cripps of the face of Wheeler Windsor the day after he was beaten by Tommy Hughes as accepted by a jury in the June sessions of the County Court here Tuesday afternoon with Judge Coleman of Whitby presiding.

The jury found Hughes guilty of having assaulted Windsor, causing actual bodily harm, during the Yuletide of last December and its atmosphere of "goodwill" and happiness and peace. They attached to their verdict a recommendation of clemency, and Judge Coleman reserved judgment until the conclusion of the sessions.

The Cripps photographs of the Hughes facial treatment were something for the court attendants to remember as almost incredible especially after comparing them with Mr. Windsor's normal appearance in court, something of a recommendation of the skill of Dr. C. M. Scott, who attended Windsor and gave evidence Tuesday afternoon.

Struck Twice.

Thomas Hughes is an automobile wrecker on the east side of Monaghan Road, between Lansdowne Street and the C.N.R. He was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair, and the prosecution was conducted by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Mr. Hughes stated in defence that he had struck Windsor twice on the face, open hand blows, in the kitchen of the Hughes house, and then told him to get out. It was dark and Windsor rushed out the north door of the kitchen, an unused entrance except during the summer months, toward a pile of junk. Inference might imagine Windsor stumbling into the tangle of jagged iron and broken glass.

The accused said Windsor's automobile was found the next day about 150 feet from his (Hughes') house and near the highway, its headlights broken and some minor damage to other frontal features of the car. Inference again might consider that Windsor had been injured in an automobile accident.

But Windsor, recalled to the stand by Mr. McElderry, denied that he had been in an accident, and swore that he had left his car in front of the Hughes house. He did not know what had caused the damage to the headlights, but he told the jury that Hughes had got him down and pounded him on the face and head about fifteen times, or something like that.

The jury accepted the testimony of Windsor, who was employed by Hughes, and followed him to the prisoner's box on an indictment having stolen some money from Hughes.

Japanese Units Reach Changsha

CHUNGKING, June 7—(AP)—Japanese troops were reported today to have reached the outskirts of Changsha, their major goal in the renewed offensive in Hunan province.

Previous dispatches told of bitter resistance by the Chinese against the Japanese drive on the province capital, a bar against enemy control of the Hankow-Canton railroad.

Six Japanese columns had been reported slashing southward against the thrice-ravaged city.

Earlier a Chinese communique said that in continued attacks along the Salween front in Yunnan province, the Chinese forced the Japanese out of Chiaotou, and that Chinese troops reached Chiangtso and Watien in the drive toward Shweli River valley.

Canadian Fliers Set Record In Coast Raids

LONDON, June 7 — CP Cable)—In a quick follow-up to the great invasion-eve assault on the German-held French coast the R.C.A.F. bomber group set a record last night during its participation with the R.A.F. in the attack on coastal defences.

At least 1,000 tons of bombs were dropped by R.C.A.F. heavy bombers. Targets were roads and railways back of the beachheads and bridges inland destruction of which would delay reinforcement of the German coastal defence forces.

The Canadians went out in two waves 90 minutes apart, one wave attacking coastal objectives and the other the inland targets. Not a plane was lost.

Flashes on the ground showed where the Allies were engaged in fighting and in the moonlight over the Channel the fliers could see shipping moving back and forth across the water.

One of the most active Canadian aerial units during the night was the noted City of Edmonton Mosquito Squadron, the pilots in which were gleeful this morning at having at last—for the first time since the invasion opened— exchanged gunfire with Nazi airmen.

City of Edmonton Mosquitoes knocked down six enemy aircraft and damaged another without loss to themselves.

This squadron is the intruder unit which has been making a name for itself since the start of the year with successful sorties almost daily and nightly.

MORE ABOUT—

13,000 Sorties Flown

The tremendous aerial bombardment was highlighted by the attack last night of more than 1,000 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers which swung over the beachheads to lay a wall of bombs in front of German reinforcements moving toward the fighting front.

An estimated 5,000 long tons of bombs were dropped, concentrated on roads and railways between 16 and 40 miles behind the Normandy landing points. The Canadian bomber group participating in the assault set a group record in the tonnage dropped. The R.C.A.F. planes suffered no losses.

War Vessels Attacked.

The German radio, meanwhile, continued to pour out its version of the landings. Berlin said strong Nazi bomber formations had attacked Allied warships and landing craft just after midnight off the coast north of Le Havre. This was the area in which the Germans first erroneously reported Allied landings early Tuesday, later explaining that "dummy parachutists" had been dropped there.

The German International Information Bureau broadcast that at least 18 troop carriers and 84 other Allied aircraft were downed yesterday. That agency also asserted that German naval forces surprised and attacked three Allied destroyers in the mouth of the Seine River at 3:39 a.m., setting one of them afire.

Berlin radio claimed that two British airborne battalions were almost wiped out at Deauville last night, while at Le Havre, it asserted, Allied airborne units were pressed back to the coast.

(The BBC said to-day in a broadcast recorded in New York that Allied tanks were moving up toward Caen and had penetrated 10 miles inland at some points along the coast. It did not specify the sectors.)

(The BBC reported another Allied airborne landing south of Cherbourg this morning and a Blue Network Correspondent broadcast from London that Allied troops had occupied a 50-mile stretch of the French coast. The correspondent, Herbert M. Clark, said Allied forces had advanced inland a' some points to a depth of 12 miles or more.)

From Louis V. Hunter, Canadian Press War Correspondent with the R.C.A.F., word came today that returning Canadian fighter pilots reported that "things generally are going well" on the American-held stretches of the invasion coast.

Hope To Seize Cherbourg

Allied troops already have cleared Normanday beaches of shell-dazed Axis coast defence units and are pushing on inland with the apparent objective of seizing the peninsula with its prize port of Cherbourg on the tip, returning airmen said.

Engineers were using their big bulldozers, landed in the first hours of D-day, to hack out landingstrips for succeeding waves of reinforcements which Berlin said hit the beaches during the night after a 100-mile trip across the Channel.

One fighter-bomber flight leader yesterday reported:—

"The American beachhead was going along very successfully, but the British and Canadians were getting the hell beat out of them for a while. In the afternoon their position eased off."

Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, Allied Naval Commander-in-Chief, made the statement that the Navy had been "100 per cent. successful" in putting the original assault forces ashore in France. He said that 10-per-cent losses had been expected because of Nazi water obstacles and other defences, but those defences proved surprisingly ineffective.

Admiral Ramsay said the forthcoming days would be marked by a supply race between those two wily antagonists of old, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, Commander of Allied ground troops, and Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel.

Some unconfirmed reports reaching here said the troops fighting in the Caen area had severed the Paris-Cherbourg Railway, major feetder route for the Germans garrisoned on the 5,000-square-mile Normandy Peninsula, which also has airfields the Allies could use to gain a substantial foothold in western Europe.

Official spokesmen said Allied casualties were unexpectedly light in the first day of operations. Naval casualties were said to have been "very, very light."

No Full Scale Counter Offensive

Thus far there was no indication that any full-scale German counter-offensive had begun to shape up. It has been expected that the Germans will wait for perhaps 48 hours before deciding to their own satisfaction exactly what are Allied intentions.

Then, with German mobile reserves beginning to move to the battle zone, will come the critical days for the Allies.

Allied airmen ware watching for this development. The German Air Force also apparently is waiting because thus far it has not made any conspicious showing in the Allied-dominated coastal skies despite Reichsmarshal Goering's reported assertion that it must be sacrificed it necessary, in trying to halt the Allies.

A Vichy radio broadcast recorded by the Ministry of Information said that Rouen, ancient French cathedral city 41 miles east of Le Havre, is now "almost completely deserted."

It was north of Rouen that the Vichy radio last night said a vicious fight was raging "between powerful Allied Paratroop formations and German anti-invasion forces."

Thousands of Allied ships were in service in the broad channel, turning their huge guns, including 16-inch rifles, on Axis gun batteries and arching their shells inland in support of the attacking ground forces.

The Warspite was among the British and American battleships in action. The Warspite was the vessel that threaded a narrow Norwegian fjord during the 1940 German invasion of Norway and sank seven German destroyers in Narvik. She since has fought in the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and other seas.

Also aiding in the bombardment of the enemy coast were the Canadian destroyers Sioux and Algonquin, it was announced.

Nevade in the Fight.

Among the American battleships engaged was the 29,000-ton Nevada which arose from the wreckage of Pearl Harbor.

Mr. Churchill's statement that Allied troops had reached the streets of Caen, where ancient buildings founded by William the Conquerer still stand, was denied by the German High Command.

Additional statements by the Prime Minister on the progress of the invasion were expected to-day. And one Swedish report said a speech by Hitler also might be forthcoming to-day.

The Paris radio announced that its Paris-Normandy and Paris-Brittany train services had been cancelled. Presumably passenger services to western France now have been taken over, by the Nazis for military purposes.

From west to east along the 100-mile invaded Norman coast, Axis accounts located the fighting areas as:

The port of Barfleur, 15 miles east of Cherbourg on the northeast tip of the Normandy peninsula; the fishin village St. Vaast La Hougue, five miles south of Barfleur; both sides of the Valognes-Carentan highway, a section of the important supply road to Cherbourg running five miles inland from the coast; a 27-mile long area between Carentan and Bayeux on the same highway; the Orne river estuary nine miles north of Caen; a stretch in the Villers-Trouville area across the broad Seine estuary from Le Havre; and the town of Honfleur, on the Seine six miles southeast of Le Havre.

Farmer's Credit Bill Permits Loan Guarantee

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 7 (CP)—Parliament yesterday showed a disposition to speed up its disposal of business as Canadian soldiers, along with other Allied armies fought forward in their greatest undertaking of the war, the invasion of western Europe.

After nearly four months of intermittent discussion the Commons last night granted committee approval to the last of the items in the $3,650,000,000 War Appropriation Bill.

The measure under which the moneys for the war effort are provided stands for second reading when the House resumes Thursday. In prolonged debate since its first presentation on Feb. 11 the resolution preliminary to the Bill drew hundreds of speeches, particularly on the items relating to the Labor Department, the Army and the Prices Board.

The session opened amid an uproar of desk-thumping as Mr. King said that Canadian forces invading Europe had gained their initial objective and were making good progress.

Mr. Ilsley said the Farm Credits Bill will provide a partial guarantee to banks against loss on loans to farmers after the pattern of the Home Improvement Act.

Farmers will be enabled to borrow at five per cent interest. The government will guarantee the banks against loss to the extent of 10 per cent of loans totalling $250,000,000 over a 10-year period where the loans are for purchase of equipment or livestock, electrification, drainage fencing improvement of buildings and a few other purposes. The government will not guarantee loans exceeding $3,000.

The Minister said he proposed to refer the proposed Bill to the Banking and Commerce Committee for study. That committee already has before it the revised Bank Bill and a Bill to create an industrial development bank.

Replying to criticism, Brooke Claxton, Parliamentary Assistant to Mr. King, said that Canada's Wartime Information Board had never attempted to interfere with the freedom of the press nor had it been used to spread political propaganda.

The political affiliations of members of the board and of the staff were unknown, he said. However, none of them had any interest in spreading the propaganda of one political party or another.

The job of the board was to publicize Canada and the Dominion's war effort and the job had been done "admirably" with the available resources, he said. There had been a steady increase in the amount of attention Canada was receiving in the United States and British publications. The board was ever ready to provide material for articles and to help the press.

Salvage Drive Well Received

A considerably better response, both in the business district and the residential area, greeted the opening of the June salvage drive in the city on Tuesday. Though no figure was available this morning on the actual weight of paper collected, it was known that the total of salvage picked up was well in excess of any one day in previous drives; and it was said that "almost everyone had some salvage put out."

Mrs. R. Whalon, chairman of the Salvage Committee, said: "It was mostly light stuff, but there was lots of it."

It happened that the school children were making a collection of paper on the same day and this cut into the possible proceeds of the drive to some extent. Nevertheless, it was not until 8 o'clock that the salvage truck had completed its rounds.

On Thursday the south section will be collected.

Other units followed in rapid succession, some coming under heavy machine gun fire and shelling. They fought their way forward, and gained their first objectives on scheduled time.

Allied tanks also landed with the assault force and went into action with the infantry.

The deliberation with which the huge invasion fleet stopped off the coasts after dawn and formed up for the assault was astounding. The navy had everything under control and there wasn't the slightest interference in the early part of the morning from enemy surface craft.

Sea Was Calm

After the landing, destroyers and gunboats cruised up and down the coast line, banging a way at the last coast points of resistance on our beach. Smoke drifted over the coast, partly obscuring the green fields and tiny towns.

All the way across the channel there was no interception for our Canadian convoy in which landing craft of the Royal Canadian Navy carried some Canadian infantry.

A Running Story.

On the way across the channel, I wrote the story hour by hour as it happened and here are highlights of the trip to France: —

During Monday afternoon and evening invasion ships gathered in the channel, coming from a dozen ports to the rendezvous. There was not a single German plane over and no reconnaissances of our partcular section of the fleet had been attempted for days.

As the evening drew on, the armada melted into the twilight and then only the dark blobs of a few of the nearest ships could be seen.

Very Little Noise.

The R. C. N. destroyer Algonquin cruised along right behind the ship I was on and a flotilla of speedy landing craft, carrying an assault commando, trailed her.

There was no sound save for the throbbing of our ship's engines and the splash of water against our sides.

In our wardroom, officers sat around playing cards or working over maps and photographs of the targets. To look around that room you would never know they were in a ship far out into the channel on the greatest combined operations ever attempted.

is thrusting its way inland from the beaches where the Canadian navy landed it.

To this unit went the honor of establishing the beachhead—a job to which they had not been detailed. But this beach, set as the army's first objective, had been a particularly tough one to crack.

Small assault landing craft were having a hard time of it trying to maintain a spot on which to land. There were concealed mines and booby traps everywhere and it required vessels of larger type to create a breach.

It was here that the combined operation units of the R.C.N. entered the picture

Three hours after the first landing was effected, the order to beach came to the Canadians in a most dramatic way. The signal said in effect "assault landing craft having hard time. Will you have a go Canada?"

Surge Onto Shore

With the beaches ablaze, the 12 Canadian craft assigned to this particular beach, spun around and surged through the surf at full speed, and in a moment had crashed their way on to the sand. The ramps were down and led by a piper playing his regimental march, the soldiers were wading ashore with rifles and bicycles held high over their heads.

Mines and other Nazi devices were exploding at second intervals under the ships but in the entire flotilla there was only one casualty, a signalman who suffered slight wounds.

When the troops reached shore they undertook a job which was different from that called for in the pre-invasion plans. This unit was a follow-up unit and the men were supposed to lead on their bicycles and force their way inland to a certain spot and there to dig in.

But as we reached the beach we could see it was not being held by Allied troops. The unit therefore was obliged to create a bridgehead until such a time as another unit moved in to take over this part of the operation. Then they moved inland on their bicycles to take up the task to which they originally were detailed.

Bay Of Quinte Conference Opens In City

The 20th annual session of the Bay of Quinte Conference opened on Tuesday afternoon in Trinity United Church. It was a sad and historic occasion— sad because of the absence of Dr. George S. Easton, who was prevented from officiating as President of the Conference because of illness, and historic because its first item was to listen to the King's message on the invasion. His last words, "The Lord will show them His people, the Lord will give strength to His people, and the blessings of peace," were followed by the singing of the National Anthem, and special prayers for the King, Country, and the Armed Forces, by Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's Church

The Conference Communion service followed immediately, conducted by the acting president, Rev. J. J. Black, M.A., B.D., of Cambridge Church, Lindsay, who was presiding at his third Conference, being President at Lindsay in 1942, and again in March, 1943, officiating at a special wartime ordination service also at Lindsay.

Members of Trinity Chuch choir assisted in the service of praise, and a solo, "O Rest in the Lord," was sung by Miss Alma Blanchard. Also taking part in the Communion service was Rev. William McDonald of Peterborough and elders of the Trinity Church. The address was delivered by Rev. George Telford, St. Andrew's Church, Oshawa. The memorial service for the ministers who have died followed the Communion service. The secretary of the Conference, Rev J. E. Bickel, read the names of those who had passed away and prayer was offered by Mr. McDonald.

Names of Ministers who died during the year were: Rev. Joseph Barnes, Dr. J. D. Ellis, J. P. Falconer, H. W. Howley, W. D. Harrison, Dr. F. E. Malott, Dr. W. E. Millson, E. S. Smith, M.D. formerly missionary to West China.

Conference was constituted for business after the Memorial service and proceeded to organize, setting up its Roll and Sessional Committees. The following were named as conveners of the Sessional Committees which will meet at St. Andrew's United Church on Wednesday afternoon: Archives, Rev. A. J. Terrill; Church Property and Boundaries, Rev. W. P. Wornell; Christian Education, Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh; Colleges and Secondary Schools, Rev. Dr. George A. Brown, Evangelism and Social Service, Rev. G. W. Chidley; Finance Rev. J. E. Glover; Home Missions Rev. George Telford; Industrial Relations, Rev. E. W. Young; Memorials, Rev. H. H. Hillis Missionary and Maintenance, Rev. E. W. Rowland; Missionary Education and Foreign Missions, Inspector T. O. C. Smith; Pensions, Rev. G. T. McKenzie; Publications, Rev. W. W. Patterson; Statistical, Rev. Andrew McLaughlin; World Relations, Rev. Oscar Wagar.

Extend Welcome

Rev. William McDonald extended a hearty welcome to the Conference on behalf of Trinity Church and acknowledged the kindness of St. Andrew's congregation in providing accommodation for all Committees. He shared the regret of members that Dr. Easton had been unable to enjoy the climax of his term of office as president and preside at the sessions and expressed also appreciation to all those who have helped the Conference carry on during the sickness of Dr. Easton, particularly acting President Rev. J. J. Black of Lindsay, Mr. McDonald announced that Dr. and Mrs. Easton were at present in Brantford; and members were very delighted to learn that Dr. Easton has made considerable improvement and there was hope of his return to his beloved work after a prolonged rest. He conveyed the thanks of Dr. and Mrs. Easton for the widespread sympathy and prayers on their behalf.

Dr. G. A. Brown of Kingston, said the Conference could not allow this first session to pass without an expression by resolution of regret at the sudden and protracted illness of Dr. Easton, and an acknowledgment of the work he was doing and has done in this church. The resolution which expresses the hopes and prayers of the Conference for his recovery will be wired to Dr. Easton. Rev. E. W. Rowland seconded the motion, describing Dr. Easton as 'a real brother and a great leader." Conference stood in silent tribute to their sick president and prayer was offered by Rev. J. J. Black.

Rev. A. L. Bishop, whose son in the R.A.F. was the first Canadian soldier to be killed in the war, asked that "D-Day" be not let pass without some expression of Conference, Rev. A. D. Cornett, M.A., O.B.E., of Simcoe Street church, Oshawa, who was a senior Chaplain in the last war was appointed with a committee to draw a resolution of loyalty and gratitude to His Majesty and tribute to those who are putting their lives in jeopardy for the cause of Freedom Conference decided to delay its evening service on Wednesday evening till 8.15 to permit members to attend the special Invasion Service at Riverside Park, announced by His Worship Mayor Hamilton.

Arnold Olmstead, teacher of Queen Mary School, Scoutmaster of the 12 Peterborough Troop Boy Scouts with boys from troops from Parkhill, Knox, St. Andrew's and St. James' (Sea Scouts), was in charge of taking the delegates to their billets.

Evening Session

At the devotional service the ladies' trio from St. James' Church, Mrs. L. McLaren, Mrs. R. C. Searles and Miss M. Smart sang a trio, "Bless This House," by Brahe. Miss Clary accompanied them at the organ.

A letter of sympathy was ordered sent to Rev. E. W. Morgan, formerly missionary to China, who is ill at Janetville.

A message regreting his inability to have spoken within the conference during his term of office was read from the Very Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, moderator of the United Church. Dr. Sclater is attending the Maritime and Newfoundland conferences at present. He expressed his unshakeable pride and confidence in the church and a new realization of the responsibility and dignity of the ministry.

Happily Remembered

New York, June 7 — (AP) — JOAN ELLIS, 22-year-old British Teletype Operator who sent the false flash three days ago reporting the European invasion was happily remembered by newspaper editors when D-day finally arrived. Many American editors sent cables telling her not to worry about her mistake.

Peterboro Men Leading Units

LONDON, June 7 (CP) — Major R. T. Potter, Tottenham, was a company commander of an ambulance unit which lived for weeks under canvas in the concentration area in England and drilled for their important role in the invasion. These units have been trained to move easily and quickly with frontline medical equipment on the heels of Canadian assault troops. Capt. Ed. Miller, Toronto, the quartermaster, is a veteran of the first Great Wad and wears the Military Medal and Bar.

Headquarters personnel of one Canadian Second Front group receiving special training which included street fighting, moving up under smoke screens, clearing houses of Germans and taking advantage of whatever cover offered itself, included Major Peter Bennett, Toronto, Capt. F. G. Megill, Ottawa; Capt. H. Palmer, Ottawa.

Kennedy on Staff

Major Hugh Kennedy, Windsor, who won the Military Cross at Dieppe, was back as a staff officer at headquarters. Other Ontarians are Major Archie Hamilton, Major Neil Gemmell, Lieut. Reg. Dixon, all of Peterborough; Capt. Shan Lafontaine, Tweed, and Major Archie MacDonal, Lancaster.

The Signal Corps network for the attack is "as complicated as an income tax return," according to one press correspondent. Capt. Jack Brodie, Toronto, is one of the officers sharing in the secret planning. Lieut. Murray Telford, Pembroke, is one of the officers doing a special job for a Canadian formation.

many mines and anti-tank pockets which holed my craft. As the troops touched down they ran across the beach, ascended a small cliff about 100 yards up and disappeared over the other side.

"I saw some men lying on the beach, apparently dead, but there weren't many. On the way back I saw several dead being buried at sea from returning craft of other ships."

Davie said the flotilla sailed through many beach obstacles to reach shore. In addition to rusty-looking mines and concrete pickets, there were trip wires stretched nearly along the water's edge.

Davie's holed craft was taken in tow by two other craft and brought back to the ship. The crew bailed furiously because they didn't think they could make it.

The crew took the precaution of transferring to another vessel a wounded Canadian corporal whom Davie had picked up from a beached craft.

A craft commanded by Lieut. George Nuttal of Calgary was holed by machinegun and shrapnel fire but returned to the mother ship on one engine for repairs.

Nuttall's craft then went back to the beachhead for a special job. The crew included Able Seaman Duncan Tennant, Hamilton, and Coxswain Bill Lee, Oshawa.

The Flotilla passed cruisers, destroyers and gun-landing craft which, said Lieut. Gordon Hendery of Westmount, Que., were "knocking hell" out of land targets.

Beer Barrel Polka

Hendery said he never would forget the Canadian Sergeant in his craft who started singing the "beer barrel polka" when things got hot 50 yards off the beach.

"It was wonderful," he added, "because some of the soldiers were deathly ill of seasickness. It bucked them up—you could see it in their faces—and while the firing went on all around us they all joined in. So did I."

Hendery said all the soldiers in his craft reached the beach unwounded. He was too busy to notice much after that because the anchor fouled in a mine trap and had to be chopped off. One engine failed but the craft maintained a steady speed on the other and was the first back to the ship.

A veteran of both the North Africa and Sicily landings, 24-year-old Walter Darnborough of Toronto, said this operation was the hardest in his experience. A crewmate, Leading Stoker Tommy Gillie of Windsor, Ont., called Dieppe the toughest. He was there aboard a demolition ship and also took part in the North African and Sicily landings.

TheT Canadian clambered into their landing craft after a short prayer on the quarterdeck. A great cheer went up from the ship's company when the little craft started on their mission. These were echoed by the men in the assault craft as the ships jockeyed for position.

Several hours later a group of Canadian engineers went down scramble nets and were taken ashore in a small infantry landing ship.

STOPPED CHILD TRAFFIC

The custom of English parents selling their children to the Irish for slaves was prohibited by King Canute about 1017.

Kingston Pastor Elected Conference Head

Rev. Basil W. Thompson, who had been nominated by four Presbyteries for the office, was elected president of the Bay of Quinte Conference on the first ballot on Tuesday night. Mr. Thompson is a native of Pembroke where he received public and high school education. He is a graduate in Arts of Queen's University, Kingston, and of Victoria College, Toronto, in theology. He held three pastorates in Ottawa, Rosemount Avenue, now Parkdale, Dominion and St. James. Other pastorates have been in Winnipeg, London and Toronto. In his present charge, Queen Street, Kingston, for ten years, he will complete his fiftieth year as a minister next year. "D-Day" was a memorable one for him not only because of his election to the highest office of the church, but it was the 43rd anniversary of his wedding, which took place in Renfrew. Mrs. Thompson is the only sister of the late Hon. Thomas Low. They have four children, one of whom is a Wing Commander in the R.C.A.F. overseas. Rev. Harold B. Neal, who was the nominee of three Presbyteries, moved that the election be made unanimous.

Other officers of the Conference were re-elected: Secretary, Rev. J. E. Beckel of Elgin treasurer, Rev. J. E. Glover of Hastings; and statistician and press secretary, Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, Toronto. Rev. John R. Trumpour is in charge of the business committee which controls the agenda. Rev. W. W. Patterson is chairman of the scrutineers.

An unusual feature of Tuesday night's session was the reading by Inspector R. F. Downey of the message usually delivered by the President of the Conference, Mr. Downey, member and official of Trinity church who was so intimately associated with Rev. Dr. G. S. Easton, that the committee asked him to do it. Probably no layman ever did so before

Mr. Downey said what he thought would be in Dr. Easton's mind—first to thank the Conference for electing him, then to report on what he had attempted in the seven months he was active in office. He would express appreciation to the officials and folk of Gananoque, who were hosts at last year's Conference, and also to Bridge Street church, Belleville, where the Ordination Service took place last September. Dr. Easton's message at the Ordination showed his view of the ministry, "The Ministry As Shepherd of the Flock." He had visited every presbytery of the Conference in the interest of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, and the Pension Fund to which he gave a great deal of time.

Dr. Easton was taken ill in Toronto, at a meeting of a Commission which was to formulate plans for closer union between the churches.

Mr. Downey welcomed the Conference in the name of the President, Dr. Easton, and on behalf of the members of Trinity church.

Greetings Expressed

Rev. W. A. Filer, President of the Ministerial Association brought greetings. "The common purpose of all is to bring in the Kingdom, and have the animosities and controversies of the past buried. We agree upon far more than we disagree on, and like the early church, must be "a fellowship", he said. Mr. Filer expressed the hope that under the guidance of the spirit, the members will return refreshed in body and spirit. He invoked the blessing of God on the Invasion forces, in order that victory and lasting peace might be brought forth.

Mr. Filer introduced His Grace, The Primate of All Canada, The Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto, who spoke on "The Ecumenical Spirit", as a necessary factor in further church unity. His Grace said he was happy that his travels in the diocese had made it possible for him to accept the invitation to speak. Speaking on ecumenical spirit, he said that the great hope of the future of Christendom lay in the cultivation of the spirit. He told of the contibution of Dr. John R. Mott in that spirit at the Edinburgh and Oxford Conferences.

He said that the nearer men got to Christ, the nearer men got to each other. "An extra-ordinary change has taken place in my lifetime in the attitude of church leaders towards each other which has become one of confidence rather than distrust," His Grace declared.

He defined the ecumenical spirit as a real desire to face the difficulties ahead, and to discover what measure of agreement there is. In the Toronto Synod, His Grace said, he had invited other groups to hold conversations. The United Church had accepted his invitation, and many conversations had taken place with its leaders. He sought confidence in small groups, rather than large, and the spirit of confidence, rather than the temper of debate. By facing the difficulties squarely in the long run, good things would be a mistake."

He believed unity to be a gift of God. To receive this precious gift, men would need to be patient, self-sacrificing, self-restrained, and hard working. But God will give it when men are ready.

"It is for us, in penitence, faith, hard self-sacrificing work; and patience to make ourselves ready for that gift. Only in him are we going to come together" he said, with emphasis, "but when we get close enough to Him, it will come."

Men In The Armed Forces:—

The names of the following ministers of the Conference were read and prayer for them offered by Rev. James Semple. They are all in the Champlaincy service except Rev. W. R. Brown who is a Lieut. in the R.C.A.S.C. at Camp Borden. Rev. S. A. R. Delve; Rev. P. J. McLellan; Rev. J. W. Houston; Rev. Gregory Vlastos; Rev. W. R. Trisham; Rev. W. P. Bannister; Rev. W. H. Jobbin; Rev. D. S. Gault; Rev. E. R. Zufelt; Rev. M. E. Rowland; Rev A. M. Leverty; Rev. W. E. L. Smith, M.C.; Rev. G. A. Meikeljohn; Rev. R. R. Elliott.

13 Men Guilty Of Disobeying Captain's Orders

COBOURG, June 7 (ENS) — Thirteen employees in the hold of car ferry Ontario No. 1, who refused to work under the new schedule of three hours on and six hours off when directed to do so on June 5, appeared in police court Tuesday on a charge of refusing to obey the command of a superior officer under the terms of the Canada Shipping Act. One of the accused was a juvenile.

The case opened in the morning and after the noon recess, Percy Scott, manager of the car ferry company, told the court that he had spoken to the accused men and they had agreed to work out the seven-days notice under the 3-6 arrangement. Mr. Scott expressed the hope that they might find the new time schedule satisfactory. The company did not want to be hard on its men but there was a war on and schedules must be maintained, Mr. Scott said.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter acordingly allowed them on suspended sentence, with the exception of Carl Palmateer who was allowed to go when the charge was withdrawn.

The charges were read against the following:

David Mason of Cobourg, Carl Palmateer, Whitby; Patrick McAleese, Robert Brown, Andre Lisle, Patrick Hogan, Emile Hrehoruk, James Dance, Reginald Byford, John Batruccio, James Hurst, Phillip Saxe all of Montreal, and a Cobourg juvenile. With the exception of Palmateer, all were found guilty.

Too Much Pleasure

"Most of you are French Canadians. For you it is a most significant day today with the invasion going on. I imagine the ship has been laid up too long for you. You have been having a good time and when you saw the change in the watches might cut your leisure short, you would have none of it. You must remember that the captain's word aboard ship is law. If you want to leave you must give seven days notice and during that time you must obey the captain's orders," said the magistrate in allowing suspended sentence.

Captain W. Bryson, who laid the charges, told the court that the car ferry had been laid up for 30 days repairs and was ready to sail now. He was advised by the men on Monday that they would not work on a three hours on and six off basis but wanted to remain on the four and eight schedule. Captain Bryson denied the statement of several of the accused that he had told them to go up and get their pay if they wouldn't work.

John Crate, chief engineer, testified that he made out the list of watches on the three and six schedule and gave it to the men. They refused to work the watches and went to their quarters. After urging them to work without results, the chief engineer then reported the matter to the captain. Mr. Crate said that the new schedule had been ordered in order to fit in better with the meal schedule as both fore and aft crews would be on the same time.

Murray Maxwell, purser of the ship produced the ships articles as signed by all the accused.

Told To Leave

Andre Lisle told the court that the men wanted the old schedule maintained and that when they declined to work on the new watches the captain told them that if they didn't want to work to pick up their pay.

John Battruccio testified that the men didn't refuse to take the boat out but had declined the new hours arrangement. No reason was given for the new system.

"You want to be captain and run the ship with the captain in the stokehold," commented the magistrate. "There are a lot of fellows fighting in your country right now and they didn't stop to ask the reason why they were in their battling."

David Mason told the court that the captain could have fired the men but the magistrate in reply reminded him thet he and the rest of the men were under contract to obey orders.

Patrick Hogan testified that he had a lung condition and had suffered a fractured back and could not work under the three and six hour system because after a bath and a meal on leaving the watch, there was not enough time left for sleep. Hogan stated that he had served part of his match on Monday.

James Dance testified that Captain Bryson had told them to pack up and get their time after they had refused to work under the new schedule. Patrick McAleese said that under the new watches, there was not time to go ashore "for some fun."

LIBERALS MEET IN PORT HOPE—The Central Ontario Liberal Association held its annual meeting in Port Hope this week when Walter C. Thomson, K.C., of Pickering, and son of the late Dr. D. D. # General Talked Gets Demoted

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 7 — (AP)—One of the best known major-generals in the United States was demoted to lieutenant-colonel and sent home for indicating in advance the time of D-Day.

The supreme command allowed this information to be cabled abroad today after holding it up several weeks for security reasons.

His name was not given.

Marmora People Pray For Troops

MARMORA, June 7— ENS). — Citizens of all creeds assembled in large numbers at the Town Hall Tuesday evening for a service of intercession for the Divine blessing on the offensive just launched.

Rev. Father H. J. Farrell commenced the service with an impressive address. He carried thoughts of the congregation back to the evening in 1939 when in the same hall farewell was taken of a large number of local boys who had enlisted in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He reminded his hearers that he had asked the question in his address on that occasion, "What would fate play with those fine young men?" "To-day," he continued, "we wonder where they are. We are gathered here for a solemn commemoration of an event that will go down in all history as one of the greatest. We don't realize at this time the full significance of the event that happened at the dawning of this day. Every one of us should go down on our knees to-night to ask God to help our boys, even those who have not gone on their knees before."

Rev. E. M. Cadigan, of St. Andrew's United Church announced as the hymn "Abide With Me," Mrs. W. H. Litt being the organist. Scripture readings were taken by Rev. L. Ball, pastor of Marmora Free Methodist Church, after which prayer was offered by Rev. Father Farrell. The benediction was pronounced by the pastor of St. Andrew's Church.

A short service was conducted at Marmora Public School at 9 a.m. by Rev. E. M. Cadigan, who spoke on the significance of the day. At Marmora High School at 11 a.m. Rev. H. J. Farrell and Rev. E. M. Cadigan took part in in impressive service, the former touching upon the significance of the day in a lucid address and the latter taking Scripture reading and prayer.

Navy Lays Down Record Barrage

By PIERRE HUSS
Distributed by The Canadian Press

ABOARD A BRITISH WARSHIP, June 7.—Six hundred naval guns, opening fire on the French coastal stretch west of Le Havre, laid down a mighty barrage of 2,000 tons of shells each 10 minutes beginning at 5.15 a.m. Tuesday as the Allied invasion of Europe began.

Under supreme command of Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, Allied naval commander, two great naval assault forces participated. The eastern task force, comprising mostly British and Canadian vessels, was under Rear-Admiral Sir Philip Vian, former skipper of the famed destroyer Cossack which rescued Allied prisoners from the German "hellship" Altmark in Norway in 1940. The western task force, consisting mainly of American warships, was under command of Rear-Admiral Alan Kirk.

Apparently taken by surprise, the Germans replied from under a smoke screen land down by our aircraft to hide us. The red glare of flames enveloped targets.

Campbellford Holds Street Prayer Service

The mayor stressed the need of prayer in this critical hour, when people were under such a strain and whose thoughts were with their loved ones in the danger zone. He noted tha the King's speech was prayer and asked the gathering to sing "O God Our Helps In Ages Past." Rev. Mr. Babcock read the 46th Psalm which was followed by O Canada and prayers by Rev. Mr. Byrant, Rev. Mr. Ralston, and Rev. Mr. Lennox.

Invasion Dims Interest In West Election

REGINA, June 7 — (CP).—Most speakers in the Saskatchewan election campaign last night included reference to the day-old Allied invasion of Europe while spokesmen for all parties agreed election campaigns now would be "the second fiddle" in public interest, perhaps even on election day, June 15.

C.C.F. Leader T. C. Douglas, in a speech at Yorkton, said the German nation is likely to "crack up" quickly under attacks from three sides. "When it breaks up, we face problems of peace as great or greater than those of war," he said.

He charged the Liberals had failed to keep promises made to men returning from the First Great War. "But men who returned from the last war were treated like princes compared with those returning from this war."

The election issue, he said, was whether Saskatchewan would lead the rest of Canada into a new society based on co-operation and social justice, or go on "under the so-called free enterprise under which we have suffered. We have to go forward or backward."

After speaking of the "momentous events occurring on the coast of France," he said there was a real period of prosperity in Canada from 1926 to 1929, when war did not enter the picture. The following slump could not be blamed on the existing system.

"Its cause lay in feverish preparations for war then being made by Germany and Italy bent on conquest and defensive measures. They started to build up reserves of food and materials, making them as self-sufficient as possible. That meant trade was throttled and Canada became one of the chief sufferers."

The King Speaks

When the first darkness had fallen upon our invasion forces in France, His Majesty the King spoke to the peoples of the British Commonwealth and to the world about the great task which had been undertaken. Though he lacks many of the gifts of the orator and has indeed the positive defect of a hesitation of speech, His Majesty is one of the great speakers of the world. When we hear Mr. Churchill or Mr. Roosevelt we expect them to tell us things which we did not know before, to explain, to recall the past, and to hint at the future; from them we expect policies and subtleties. But when we listen to the King we expect none of these things. We expect comfort, reassurance, and authority; whatever changes the passing of time may have made in the status of the monarchy, we expect the King to speak to us as a father speaks to his children. King George VI never disappoints us.

The King's sincerity is always apparent in his voice. Although his speeches are prepared and polished until there is not a superfluous word left in them, they never give an impression of artifice. They are straightforward assertions of courage and faith which hearten us for whatever tasks, great or small, we may have in hand. In speaking of the present great operation as a crusade His Majesty expressed what has been felt in many hearts. Our fighting men have crossed to France to free our former allies and to come to grips with our greatest foe, it is true, but they have also gone to carry light and hope into lands where darkness and despair have reigned for four long years. That is a crusade, indeed, and the earnestness with which the King spoke of it echoed the earnestness which all his subjects have felt in their hearts.

Naming The War

Many attempts have been made to fit a name to the present war. Large numbers of people call it World War Two, which is clear if not especially euphonious or characteristic; others call it the Second World War, which comes to exactly the same thing, and is better English. President Roosevelt called it "the War of Survival" for a time, and then he tired of that name; obviously we were fighting for a little more than survival, and the implications of the title were not complimentary to our cause.

Now the President is trying out a new name, "the Tyrant's War", and some of his hearers seem to think highly of it. In their opinion the name is a good one because it pins the responsibility for the war directly on the men who began it, and the means which they used. As the New York Times puts it:

"It has the merit of putting the responsibility for the catastrophe where it belongs. The world is at war because a new breed of tyrants arose who plotted to use the instruments of the Twentieth Century to conquer continents and reduce nations to servitude. The great conspiracy was to use modern weapons to restore feudalism, and the great coalition formed to fight it will appear in the long view as the revolt of modern man against the prostitution of the tools of progress to the service of savagery. But it is better to call it the Tyrants' War than the war against tyrants, first, because they started it and must bear the eternal odium of the death and destruction it has wrought upon the earth, and second, because tyrants are always warmakers, and in the final analysis this is the revolt of civilization against war".

We doubt very much if this war will be known to future ages by any of the names which we attach to it now. For this war and the First World War are parts of a world revolution which certainly will not end when this fight ends and the consequences of which we cannot as yet foretell. Our present war may not be named for a century or two after all those who beheld it are in their graves.

Trouncing a Reporter

There is a section of the press in most countries which seeks to distinguish itself by impudence rather than by more worthy journalistic characteristics. The press of the United States, which is one of the finest in the world occasionally suffers from the antics of impertinent representatives. Consider, for instance, the case of Howard Whitman, who is in London at present representing the Chicago Tribune. Mr. Whitman recently presented himself at the gate of Buckingham Palace and announced, "I am an American citizen; as one ally to another, I'd like to see the King". Mr. Whitman wrote what he thought was a very funny story about the amazement which his demand caused, and the pains which were taken to explain to him that Buckingham Palace was a private residence, and that he could only see the King by making arrangements through the proper channels.

The editor of the Detroit Free Press has undertaken to give waggish Mr. Whitman the spanking he needs, and in doing so we think that he expresses the feelings of the majority of his countrymen. We cannot do better than repeat his words:

"Let's put the shoe on the other foot. If a British newspaper man came over here and did the same thing at the White House he would not be treated with courtesy. He would be grabbed by the Secret Service men, frisked, handcuffed and taken to the police station to be held until his head was examined. Then, through the State Department, it would be suggested to the British Ambassador that he be sent home as an undesirable nuisance.

"But the English do not do things that way. They have a tolerance born of the ages and no matter how rude and vulgar the intruder they do their best to overlook the fellow's eccentricities — making sure always that neither the person nor the dignity of their ruler is threatened.

"The major cause of friction and misunderstandings between the British and American peoples has been this brash-brat business on the part of American tourists who think they prove themselves smart by ridiculing the habits and customs of another people.

"The unmitigated gall of this American reporter presenting himself as an 'ally' on equal footing with the British ruler is only one example of it. He is there as the guest of a nation and if he were a gentleman with any understanding of the amenities would conduct himself accordingly.

"There is nothing ridiculous about the traditions of the British people. Through them they have built up a system of living together. They respect personal rights. They never intrude where they are not asked. No wonder they look upon us sometimes as barbarians when they see such exhibitions as Reporter Whitman staged."

Apart from its objectionable character as a display of bad manners in a foreign country this incident does harm to the press as a whole. Reporters, considered as a group, are courteous men and women who have no wish to intrude in matters which are not of public concern; they do not always see eye to eye with the people whom they meet professionally as to what is really of public concern, but they have a code, and they stick to it strictly. A good reporter knows that nothing is so bad for his job and his paper as a broken pledge of secrecy. That is why eminent statesmen feel free to tell off-the-record facts at their press conferences.

But some reporters and some papers seem to lack any sense of decency or respect for the public. The Detroit paper gives another instance:

"A while ago in Detroit Frank Gervasi, another American correspondent, boasted of how when the present Pope was being elected in the College of Cardinals at the Vatican he sneaked in and sat on the throne and had his picture taken. His only regret was that he had no robes to wear! He seems to think this proved him a great reporter because he displayed contempt for other people's rights.

"And, he told of an audience with Mussolini, who received him courteously as an American representative and asked him to be seated. Gervasi told with glee of how he sat on Mussolini's desk. If he had done that to an ordinary American business man he would have been tossed out on his ear".

The real difficulty, as the Free Press editor points out, is that some papers and some reporters have a very limited idea of democracy; they imagine that they are themselves privileged persons who are above the laws of courteous, respectful and urbane behaviour. They sometimes make things very hard for the rest of the journalistic craft, of which they are only a small and obnoxious minority.

A Frenchman Writes About Love

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

FOR a long time French love-making has enjoyed a reputation for special address and technique, like Italian organ-grinding and Chinese laundry work; the French have had no hesitation about representing themselves to the rest of the world as a nation of great lovers; they insisted that they were not gross like the Germans, or cold like the English, or crude like the Americans; they had finesse, delicatesse and tendresse in a measure which lesser nations could not hope to rival. We have taken them at their word. The French, we have admitted, understand both the spiritual and the physical aspects of the sex relationship as we shall never do. But the present writer confesses that there have been moments when a doubt has shadowed his mind; he has wondered whether the French are really great lovers, or merely tireless and boastful talkers.

SUCH a doubt possessed my mind while I was reading Andre Maurois' latest book, "Seven Faces Of Love." This book, in my opinion, is being sold under false pretenses. It is handsomely produced and bound for the boudoir trade, and from the dust-jacket there smirks one of those cat-eyed houris whom Vertes draws so well. Here, the prospective buyer might think, is an erotic book, and so thinking, he would either buy it or not, according to the needs of his nature. But he would be greatly deceived. "Seven Faces Of Love" is a book of literary criticism, in which Maurois discusses seven French concepts of love as they are represented in French literature.

IF you are interested in the academic discussion of love you will find this book interesting. But I do not think that the majority of people are interested in the academic discussion of love; in fact, I do not think that the majority of people are really interested in love at all. Nature has disposed matters so cleverly that a biological need causes most people to mate, and thus the continuance of the race is assured. The processes which precede mating cause a pleasant intoxication of the spirit which is usually called love, but the intoxication quickly wears off after marriage, and is succeeded by a form of tolerant affection, or by a more or less polite indifference, or occasionally by out-and-out abhorrence. Consider, Gentle Reader: how many couples do you know, of any age, whose relationship is a strong spiritual and physical inspiration to them both? I say 'of any age' advisedly, because contrary to the accepted North American notion, the capacity for love does not die on one's thirtieth birthday.

THIS indifference to love, I am certain, is like indifference to God; most people will fight like tigers to preserve their intellectual and emotional apathy intact, and the majority of them die with it. God, Love, Art and Science all stir us up and make us uncomfortable, and few of us care enough about the enrichment of experience which a consideration of these matters may bring to sacrifice our comfort to it. Consider the matter of love, alone; do we not mate and and bring forth young? Does Eros demand more? Most decidedly Eros does, and Maurois' book is concerned with those demands and the answers which the French people have made to them.

THE reader who is unfamiliar with French literature may consider these answers unsatisfactory. The love of the Princess of Cleves for Monsieur de Nemours is almost too noble to come to any climax at all; the lovers in Rousseau's "New Heloise" are too sensitive to live without complete emotional exhaustion; the love affairs of the people in the novels of Balzac and Stendahl are too absorbing to be possible to men and women who have many demands on their time; Madame Bovary, seeking a rich experience of love, finds only disillusion and sordidness; the lovers in Proust's great novel are so absorbed in examining their own thoughts and emotions that they seem to have little time for each other; and all these types of love are possible only to people who have infinite leisure to cultivate them.

SURELY there must be some middle ground between the people who know nothing about love, and who consciously exclude it from their lives, and people like those whom Maurois discusses, who make love their principal work in life, and their sole excuse for being? Surely there is an approach to love which does not mean freezing it, or running away from it, or alternatively dissecting it and mauling the life out of it as these French novelists appear to do. How are we to strike a sensible balance between denial of love, which is common in the Anglo-Saxon world, and which shows itself in the drabness and emotional infantilism of a large part of that world, and the feverish, speculative approach of the French people as revealed in their literature? Do not expect me to answer these questions, Gentle Reader; answer them yourself. But do not look for your answer in a philosophical or devotional work, nor in a Boy Scout's manual, nor yet in the current reports on marketing trends. The answers are to be found only in an examination of life.

THIS book is written with the skill and the clarity which have long distinguished the work of Andre Maurois. The book is, in effect, a paean to the legend of French supremacy in the art of love, although the last chapter contains a painful obligatory compliment to American writers of the school of Hemingway—a not very subtle device to appease the American market. It is an admirable book of dinner-table chat of the highest order. You will like it if you ever chat about love at your dinner table; but if you regard love as a subject outside the realm of polite conversation—as a subject, indeed, which is liable to verge upon the indecent or emotional—you had better leave it alone.

BACK ROOM STUFF

A civic body conducts public business and its business should be open to the public. The only apparent reason for resorting to the "back room" is that some aldermen are reluctant to take a stand on any controversial matter in public. If that is the case, such men should not be in office—they may be reluctant to take a stand for what they consider to be right when in the "back room" also, and allow themselves to be swayed by their more positive fellow aldermen.

In order to vote with any degree of intelligence at the municipal elections, citizens must know what each man has done throughout the year. Citizens must know how each man voted in order to decide if that man is the sort he wishes to represent him.—Guelph Mercury.

HE WAS RIGHT THE FIRST TIME —By Thomas

The King Of The Wood

(NEW YORK TIMES)

OUR armed forces in Italy are now among the Alban Hills, a region of ancient fame. Of lava and tufa, rising from a plain covered by volcanic ashes, they are the relics of antique explosions. There is a theory that the first settlers, coming from the north, occupied the Alban, before the Roman, hills. On the northeastern side of the present Lago di Albano was the primeval town of Alba Longa, said to have been founded by Ascanius, son of Aeneas. A generation or two ago "every schoolboy" knew it as the site of the white walls of the home of Horatius of the Bridge.

To the southeast of the Alban Lake is the far more famous lake of Nemi, on whose northern shore stood the temple and sacred grove of Diana of the Woods. Legends of Orestes, Hippolytus and Egeria are connected with it. Within the sanctuary grew a tree, not a bough of which could be broken save by a runaway slave. If he succeeded in breaking off a branch, he was entitled to fight the priest in charge, and if he killed him to take his place. It was ancient opinion that this branch was the Golden Bough which the Sybil bade Aeneas pluck before he began his journey to the land of the dead.

Sir James Fraser gave this name to his golden book, which begins at Nemi. Who that has read it can forget "The priest who slew the slayer And shall himself be slain?" In an immemorial line every priest won his office by killing his predecessor. Sir James has left upon his readers an indelible impression of every holder of this perilous post. Day after day in age after age the King of the Grove paced up and down about the sacred tree, a sword in his hand. "Year in, year out, in summer and winter, in fair weather and in foul, he had to keep his lonely watch, and whenever he snatched a troubled slumber it was at the peril of his life." He knew he was a man condemned. Any moment his office and life might end.

Pondering this somber legend while our soldiers are on the Alban Hills, how can we help finding in it a terrible symbol of Mussolini and Hitler, of power, murderously won and exercised, palpably slipping now, at no distant time sure to be lost? What fears, what apprehensions of inevitable doom possess these priests of murder as the inexorable hour draws near!

Untamed Professor

ON the ground, that it was none of an independent citizen's business, Mr. Justice Archibald of the National War Labour Board informed Professor John L. McDougall of Queen's University, and an authority on the special subject, that he could not appear as a witness in the application of the railway brotherhoods for advances in pay. It is an incident the memory of which is not likely quickly to fade. If this wage question is none of the public's business why was it not relegated to the position of a negotiation between the railways, as employers, and the unions, as representatives of the men? If wage matters are not of public concern, why it is that employers of even one person are legally bound to get governmental permission to raise a salary by even a trifle above the ceiling?

Professor McDougall, if one may judge from his published material, had something important to say—important to workers and the nation generally. He was prevented from testifying, we believe, solely because representatives of the brotherhoods didn't want him to be heard. It seems highly probable that the Board—which earlier had agreed to his appearance—was obeying the dictates of a government which had endeavoured to appease labour leaders throughout this war, ever since the order-in-council establishing the cost-of-living bonus for even the highest paid labour in the country. The independence of the Board certainly is now to be doubted.

The brushing off of Professor McDougall was not as easy as likely was expected. Ottawa has had quite a lot of experience with professors, more or less tame, since war began and it may have been thought that the merest intimation that Mr. McDougall's views were not wanted would cause him to pick up his briefcase and toddle home like a good little boy. But here was a man. Here was a man who dared to question, who was not to be awed by the august whims of an all-powerful and all-wise administration instructed by an engine-driver on leave from his employer.

He stayed in Ottawa, insisting on being informed in writing as to why he could not place his facts on the record. And then he penned a reply to Mr. Justice Archibald which must have caused that gentleman to blush with shame that political expediency of a Government should sink a member of the judiciary so low. And it is a document to which the stickler for the amenities could take no exception. It is a model of clarity, monumental in moderation and yet devastating in its revelation of the utterly false position the Government and the Board have assumed.—The Printed Word.

A Bible Message

And when Abram was ninety years old and nine, the Lord appeared to Abram, and said unto him, I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect.... And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God. (Gen. 17: 1, 8.)

And it came to pass after these things, that God did tempt Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham: and he said, Behold, here I am. And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.... And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar upon the wood....

And the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham: and he said, Here am I. And he said, Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me.

And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering instead of his son. (Gen. 22: 1, 2, 9, 11-13.)

Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham... So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham....

Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, and to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ... And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. (Gal. 3: 7, 9, 16, 29.)

Holding The Bag

On the bottom corner of this page last week, there was a letter from a rural correspondent, who mentioned, among other things, that farmers not far from Fergus have had to take 75 cents for potatoes this month, when they were $2.35 a bag a few weeks ago. Evidently those farmers who were rescuing large sums of money from burning houses, or dropping $100 bills on the streets, must have sold at the $2.35 price. Seriously, however, the potato situation in Dufferin, Simcoe and Peel counties, and we suppose, in a great part of Wellington, shows poor management somewhere and many farmers did lose a great deal of money because they failed to sell at the high ceiling prices. In Fergus, and in many other towns and cities, potatoes were desperately scarce a couple of months ago. In our own family, we were grateful to the friend who helped us out when we would not have been able to purchase potatoes in the Fergus stores. It must come as a shock to town people to know that some farmers, not so far away, were holding as many as a thousand bags of potatoes at that time—and apparently are still holding the potatoes, or the bag.—Fergus News-Record.

A LONDON HAWK

My daughter was passing Broadway (Westminster) when her attention was called by the unusually loud notes of a sparrow, and then saw a sparrowhawk on the pavement a few yards in front of her with a sparrow in its claws. A moment later it flew off, not in the direction of the park, but in the direction of Victoria street. The daring of this hawk in a frequented street seems to show that it feels at home in the district, and it would be interesting to know if others of your readers have seen it, as so many saw the notorious kestrels.—Lord Noel-Buxton in London Times.

Contemporaries

NOT UNCOMFORTABLE

Whether free or imprisoned, Mohandas K. Gandhi, India's mystic, is fortunate in his domicile: A palace was his jail, and following his release he dwells temporarily in a stately mansion. Which indicates that the authorities don't want the strange little man to be as uncomfortable as he is trying to make them. — Toronto Globe and Mail.

PUT NEEDS FIRST

Measures to avert unemployment after the war are imperative—but here and there throughout the country the attitude of "any old thing will do" crops up. And it isn't good enough. There are too many necessary, worth-while projects in Canada awaiting action for this Dominion to spend money and energy and materials on unproven scemes. Let the needs of the country be the first consideration.—Halifax Herald.

WHAT ABOUT STRAVINSKY

There is this about music, for the sake of music, that never yet has it stirred men to violence, and often it has calmed them. It is the universal language; with nothing to sell, nothing to take away, only the riches of fairland to add to all who come within its strange and lingering charms. Mankind has no sweeter memories than those which begin and end with the soft, repeated echoes that lodge not alone in the brain, but most often in the heart. — Victoria Colonist.

HOW NOT TO DO IT

Mr. Nicholson said in the House that the Progressive Conservatives perhaps hoped to ride into power with John Bracken, their national leader, "milking cows across the country," and benefiting from the unpopularity of the present Government. But Mr. Nicholson should remember that George S. Henry once tried to get elected on "plowing a straight furrow."—Renfrew Mercury.

PAYING FOR AIRPORTS

The Aeronautical Institute of Canada urges that municipalities be aided by the Dominion and the provinces in building airports and landing strips for post-war air traffic. It can be argued that municipalities should not have to stand any part of this cost—the local taxpayer did not have to pay to help the railroads build their stations!—Ottawa Journal.

CAREFULLY WATCHED

We do not believe there has been any deliberate waste in Canada's war effort. We hear mighty little in this war about the "war babies" the war millionaires of the last war. The Government isn't letting munitions-makers charge what they like, nor does the excess profits tax allow them to keep it if they do overcharge in the first place.—Lethbridge Herald.

AN OLD-TIME OFFICER

Through the death in Victoria of Colonel C. C. Bennett, Vancouver lost the last surviving officer of the first military battalion to be organized in the city. This was the 2nd Battalion of the 5th Regiment of Canadian Garrison Artillery. Forty-five years ago, Colonel Bennett was adjutant of the battalion.—Vancouver Providence.

FLOUTING PARLIAMENT

Before Prime Minister Mackenzie King gets back to Ottawa, the "secret weapon" which he saw in action will probably have been revealed in the invasion. If not, watch for a politically-minded Opposition Member to demand a full report on the device, and then accuse Mr. King bitterly of acting as a dictator because he refuses to tell about it.—Windsor Star.

WHISKEY TAX

This week, Mrs. I. H. Perigoe told a W.C.T.U. meeting in Toronto that Ontario liquor sales for 1942-1943 amounted to $98,161,047, from which the revenue to the Government was $17,275,000. Apparently the lady did not explain that this was the Ontario Government's revenue. The Federal Government also got a total of $34,000,000.—Fort Erie Times-Review.

Canadian Paratroopers In Attack For First Time On Continent

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY INVASION FORCES, June 7 (CP)—For the first time in Dominion history, Canada had parachute troops ready for action when the Allies invaded Europe. Nearly two years ago this Canadian parachute force was formed for just such an assignment.

(Reports from supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force said today Canadian airborne troops were among those which landed successfully in the opening assault on northwestern France.)

Every officer and man in the Canadian force is a volunteer from an infantry, artillery or tank regiment of the Canadian army as well as other services.

They trained at Fort Benning, Ga., and at Shilo Camp, Man., before coming to England in August, 1943.

In England they joined a British airborne division marked for the invasion attack and are the most highly specialized force in the Canadian army.

The commanding officer comes from Saskatoon and as a junior officer in the Saskatoon Light Infantry went on the Spitsbergen raid in the summer of 1941. He has commanded the force since it was organised.

Major Jeff Nicklin, Winnipeg Blue Bomber football star, is second in command.

Other majors in the unit include E. T. Munro, Ottawa, and Kingston, Ont.,

Among the lieutenants is W. R. Croxford Kirkland Lake, Ont., a hard rock miner.

DEFENDS CHANGSHA—Gen. Hseuh Yueh, commander of the Ninth war area in which Changsha, capital of Hunan province is located. The general is also the governor of the province.

African Progress Shown In Pictures

HAVELOCK, June 7 — (ENS) — As a representative of the Upper Canada Bible Societty, Rev. F. B. Allcutt, B.D., of Toronto, showed three sets of interesting slides in the United Church on Sunday evening. The pictures were mostly from African agencies, Rhodesia, the Cape Provinces and Natal, Central and Equatorial Africa, depicting many of the hardships of shelter and transportation to be overcome by the missionaries. Seven new translations have been made during the past year, three for Africa, two for Oceania, one for South America and one for China. This makes a total of 756 out of 1,066 translations in the world to-day.

The offer of $150 was accepted from Henry Pearce for municipal property known as garage property at the rear of a store, on motion of Stevenson and Bonds. It was moved by Lynch and Bonds that the amount of $836.17 be accepted for the municipal property known as elevator property from Arthur Dowell.

On motion of Lynch and I. Bonds the resignation of William McEachnie as councillor for the village of Hastings was accepted. A motion by I. Bonds and C. Lynch followed, authorizing the clerk to call a nomination and election for one councillor, date of nomination to be June 19. It was also moved by I. ## Small World

FLT. LIEUT T. G. REID

Deloro Airman Awarded D.F.C.

MARMORA, June 6 — (ENS) — Flight Lieut. Thomas G. Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reid of Deloro whose award of the D.F.C. has just been announced, was born in Milton, Ontario, and is now approaching his twenty-second birthday.

After his enlistment at Hamilton, he trained at Toronto and graduated from Aylmer. He proceeded overseas in November, 1941, and saw service in the Middle East in January, 1942. Later assignments took him to Africa, Sicily and Italy. He went to India on October 31, 1943.

His father saw service in the First World War enlisting with the Engineers and afterwards transferred to the 4th Battery, Canadian Infantry, where he received his commission as lieutenant.

The young airman received his award for his courage and efficiency in transport work over Burma for many months, and for action in which he participated in the Mediterranean area.

Ploesti Oil Output Cut To 25 Per Cent

NAPLES, June 7—(AP)—Productive capacity of Romania's Ploesti oil refineries has been slashed to less than 25 per cent of normal as a result of the last five Allied attacks on the vital German fuel sources, Allied officials estimated today.

A total of 4,500 tons of bombs have rained down on the rich oil region in those five raids, which took place between May 5-31.

It is estimated here that the Ploesti oilfields in April of this year were capable of producing oil at the rate of about 9,000,000 tons annually. Now it is doubtful if they produce at the rate of 2,000,000 tons.

Aerial photos show great oil tanks with their tops ripped open like tin cans, while important distillation and cracking plants have been heavily damaged.

HELD IN SLAYING — Frank Raymond de Ford, 13 years old, is being held at Hillsboro, Missouri, in connection with the slaying of his foster mother, Mrs. Gertrude Kley, in a shooting, in which his foster-father, Andrew Kley, was also seriously wounded.

Urges French Use Discretion

LONDON, June 7—(CP)—The Paris radio to-day broadcast an appeal by Marshal Petain to Frenchmen to refrain from actions "which would call down upon you tragic reprisals."

"France has become a battlefield," saiad the aged Vichy chief. "The circumstances of battle may compel the German army to take special measures in the battle area. Accept this necessity."

He called on officials, railwaymen and workers to remain at their posts—where they would serve the German military machine—"in order to keep the life of the nation and in order to carry out your tasks."

"Do not listen to outside voices calling on you not to listen to our decrees," he said.

The Marshal appeared to be speaking under emotional stress. The broadcast was heard by Reuters News Agency.

Guns Knocked Out

NEW YORK, June 7—(AP)—An NBC reporter who flew over 20 miles of the invasion coast this morning said "not a single German coastal gun was firing in the entire invasion zone." And NBC said this indicated "we have completely knocked out the initial line of defence of the much-vaunted Atlantic wall."

it's the truth!
You Can Have Brighter Teeth!

Impartial laboratories made hundreds of tests. Scientists checked their findings with photoelectric measuring devices and authorized this statement: PEPSODENT POWDER PRODUCES A LUSTRE ON TEETH TWICE AS BRIGHT AS THE AVERAGE OF ALL OTHER LEADING BRANDS ... BRIGHTER THAN ANY OF THEM—BAR NONE! These results have been double-checked by identical twins who made practical in-the-home tests ... by technicians in dental clinics ... by dentists in their own offices. The result is always the same: Pepsodent Powder with Irium makes teeth far brighter.

You Can change a child's face!

This young boy, for example, had badly-arranged "baby" teeth that made his lower jaw protrude ... threatened to affect his future looks. But modern dentistry, by corrective treatment, improved his looks ... made the permanent teeth come in properly, too. Yes, dentistry can do wonders in straightening crooked teeth. Or, like the movie stars, you can have chipped or broken teeth recapped. So watch children's teeth carefully. Visit the dentist regularly. For it's the truth ... a child's personality and future may depend upon the condition of his teeth and how bright and clean they're kept!

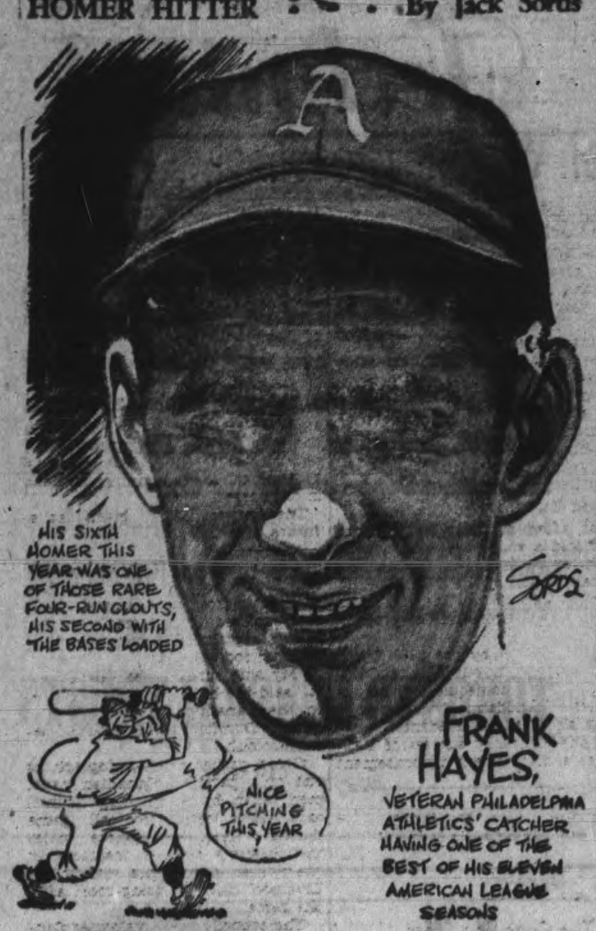
HOMER HITTER . . . By Jack Sords



With high taxes, increased living costs, and a ceiling on wages and salaries, enough money can still be saved to pay for life insurance. For example, compare the cost of an Ordinary Life Policy with the cost of a few everyday items.

$2500
The price of one pound of candy per week buys a Great-West Life policy for $2500. That means $2500 of protection till your family is self-supporting, then cash or an income in your later years.

$6000
The price of four movie tickets per week would buy a Great-West Life policy for $6000. For your own peace of mind, you must have insurance. In no other way can you provide, at such low cost, for whatever may happen.

$7500
The price of one package of cigarettes per day would buy a $7500 policy with the Great-West Life. That means a guarantee of $7500 in cash for your family if you should die, a nest egg for you in the future if you live.

The price of one game of golf each week would buy a Great-West Life policy for $10,000. If you paid the first premium today, your family would get $10,000 cash if you died tomorrow. What would they do without life insurance?

Life insurance is not a luxury. It is an essential you must place first on your list along with food, clothing and shelter. Life insurance alone can guarantee food, clothing and shelter for your loved ones if you should die, and for you in your later years if you live. A Great-West Life man will be glad to help you with your insurance problems.

The above examples are based on an Ordinary Life Policy taken at age 25. Life Insurance premiums, of course, vary with the age and plan selected.

Soldiers Beat Union Team At Softball

Paced by Tony McIlveen, who had four hits, Soldiers broke into the win column in the City League race last night when they defeated the U.E.W. team at Riverside Park 15 to 5 and thus left the Union team in undisputed possession of the cellar.

It was bad baseball weather, cold and with a strong wind blowing across the field and as a result it was a loose affair, with both teams coming through with some costly defensive slips.

The winners started Don Procyk, the Winnipeg boy and he pitched the first six innings in fairly effective style. Red Szalai, a diminutive southpaw, finished the game and the U.E.W. squad got to him in the eighth for three runs. Ed. Young went the whole distance for the U.E.W. and suffered from loose fielding by his team mates.

The U.E.W. team broke in front in the first inning when they filled the bases on Platt's safe ount and passes to Quigley and Beauchamp and Thrasher's fly to centre sent in Platt.

Soldiers came back with four in the second on a pass to Procyk, Anderson's double and three costly errors.

An error by Morgan, Whaley's single and a bad throw to third by Morgan gave the Unionists a run in the third but the Soldiers struck back with three in the fourth and broke the game wide open with six more in the fifth. In that inning McIlveen got a hit when Platt failed to hold his Texas leaguer after a good try back of second and when Beauchamp retrieved the pill and went to throw the ball slipped out of his hand and McIlveen circled the bases on the play.

Junkin's homer with Procyk on the runways gave the winners another pair of runs in the eighth, and U.E.W. got three in their end of the frame. With one out Griffin singled to centre and went all the way around when the ball got away from Mortimer. Young drove one over Procyk's head in left and should have had a homer but he fell after rounding third and had to go back to that corner. Platt walked, Quigley's fly to Mortimer scored Young and Platt went in on Patterson's double to left.

Johnson Motors Defeat Westclox

Johnson Motor girls, behind good pitching by Helen Mark won their second victory of the season in the Girls' Softball League last night when they defeated the Westclox second team 12 to 4 in a game played under bad weather conditions.

A cold wind drove some of the fans to cover before it was over but the teams completed the nine innings.

The junior Westclox team, made up of players new to the loop made a good stand against the Outboard Marines but a big fifth inning in which the winners chased five runs in proved too large a margin for the Baby Bens.

Up to that stage the battle had been fairly even and Westclox by scoring three runs in the first of the fifth had climbed close to the winners.

The teams:

Outboard Marines: E. Young c, B. Phillips ss, O. Smith 2b, Vera Mitchell 1b, Helen Mark p, Marg. Smith 3b, Fay Kelly cf, E. Smith lf, B. Smith rf.

Westclox Seconds: M. Dunford 3b, V. Ferguson cf, M. Miller rf, D. Johnston 2b, June Nice c, R. O'Heron 1b, A. McIver p, B. Moore ss, E. Townes lf.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

As announced yesterday there will be no action on the softball front here tonight, fixtures scheduled for this evening in the Men's City League and in the girls' loop having been postponed because of the service of intercession to be held at the Ashburnham Bowl. Both leagues will be operating again tomorrow night, however. The attraction in the City League will be the Military Training Centre and the Plazas and should be a lively battle. The Soldiers broke into the win column last night with a 15 to 5 victory over the U.E.W. team and they feel that now the jinx is broken they are going to stage a surge toward the top of the heap. They have dug up a promising pitcher in Doug Procyk, a Winnipeg boy and he will probably be called upon to deal with the champs. Plazas who were beaten Monday night by Switchgear need a win over the Soldiers to keep in sight of the fast-travelling Switchgear gang who are out in front with five straight wins. Big Dave Wilson will likely be the pitching choice for the hockey squad. The game is called for 7 o'clock. Incidentally the fixture between St. Peter's and Switchgear, scheduled for tonight will be staged on Friday night.

The announcement that the powerful Trenton R.C.A.F. club will be here Saturday evening to meet Plazas in a game in aid of the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy has been received with enthusiasm by the fans. In the first place the game will afford some entertainment for an otherwise dull Saturday night; in the second the sport-loving public is glad of the opportunity to see some outside competiton for a change and thirdly the chance to help such a worthy cause as the Auxiliary which is doing so much for the Peterborough boys in the blue of the Navy, is generally appreciated. This Trenton R.C.A.F. softball squad is replete with class, according to all accounts and they will be plenty tough to head off. They have a capable pitchng staff and are strong in all departments of the game, Trenton reports say. The Plazas will have to play their best ball of the season if they hope to head off the Fliers. The game should be one of the sport features of the summer and draw a real crowd to Riverside Park.

Because of the arrival of D-Day and the long-awaited invasion Promoter Frank Tunney of Toronto decided yesterday to postpone the weekly wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena. "With the invasion on it seemed to me that for the first day at least people's minds should be centred upon that event rather than on entertainment," Tunney said in announcing his decision. "There is a place for sport, of course, in wartime and we will be back with our Tuesday night show next week as usual. But for this one day, the day of the invasion, I thought that it was up to us to call the thing off." The Toronto impressario added that the card that was to have been seen last night will be booked for next Tuesday night. That means that the fans have not lost their chance of seeing the tag team battle between John Katan and Al Bunny Dunlop and the team of Frankie Sexton and Wilbur Toar Morgan. The four will be here next we.. and it is probable that the opening bout will be the same as had been planned for last night, that is a thirty minute tussle between the fast-moving Tom Collins and the acrobatic Brantford boy, Jumping Joe Maich.

The attraction in the Girls' League tomorrow night will be a game between two of the new teams in the league, the Lock Works and Quakers. They were scheduled to have played last week but a sudden thunder-storm washed that out so this will be the first meeting between the two outfits. Incidentally one of the two is going to garner its first victory of the season in this tussle for neither has an entry in the win column up to now. On paper they look to be very evenly matched and so the clash between the two should provide an interesting argument. In the Friday night game Westclox who are leading the league with two straight wins will hook up with Johnson Motors. The latter have already won two games this season and their one loss has been at the hands of Aircraft. They beat the Westclox second team last night and now, having disposed of the Baby Bens in convincing fashion they are out to perform a similar feat at the expense of the Big Bens. The latter of course have different ideas about the game but in any event it should be quite a ball game and attract a real crowd to the Bowl.

They're Durable

Having been the Athletics' catcher in all of the 42 contests the Mackmen have played to date, Frankie Hayes is getting deserved recognition for his durability from American League partisans, says Doug Vaughan in the Windsor Star. Hayes is something of an iron man among major league catchers, but his admirers who place him at the top of the list are likely to get an argument from National League followers on behalf of Ray Mueller of the Cincinnati Reds. Those who insist that Mueller, who weighs 170 pounds, is more durable than Hayes or any other catcher in the major leagues for that matter, have much to back up their contention. Attention must be called without delay to the distinction Mueller attained in last Thursday's game with the Philadelphia Phillies. It marked the 100th consecutive game he had caught for the Reds. How about that for durability? Mueller finished last season with the distinction of having appeared behind the plate in 62 consecutive games. This year he picked up where he left off when the 1943 campaign closed. So far the Reds have played 42 games this year and he's been in all of them. He catches in the afternoon, at night and in all the doubleheaders played by his club.

The injury which put George Case, Washington speed boy, out of Ossie Bluege's lineup, has been termed one of the most unusual ever to disable a ball player. George dislocated his left shoulder—believe it or not—while putting on his overcoat. That was One for the Book, yet it has been topped by some training camp accidents. Several years ago, when George Metkovich, Red Sox infielder, was a promising rookie at Casey Stengel's Brave camp at Bradenton, Fla., a large catfish attacked George, rammed one of his tentacles through his foot. George had stepped on the catfish while trying to get the hook out of its mouth. But Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, now managing the Phillies, came up with one that was even more unusual. Taking his siesta on the porch of the training hotel at Sarasota, Fla., after a morning workout, Fitz rocked on his own right fingers, and let out a yell which could be heard all over Sarasota. Freddie was out for a fortnight. "Imagine that happening to me!" said John McGraw, his manager, much aggrieved. But the pain required no imagining to Fitz, the guy whose fingers were hurt.

Sporting Chil Con Carne: City League playoffs this year call for the first three teams to meet in the extra series for the pennant.... That means, of course, that two clubs will be climnated during the regular schedule.... Success of Freddy Elliott against the Plazas the other night calls attention to the fact that another veteran, Tom Montgomery is still going strong in the Industrial League.... Softball fans heard with interest that Jim Gillespie had been mentioned in first day stories in regard to the invasion.... He was long an outfield star in the City League.... There were more folk on the bases in last night's City League game between Soldiers and U.E.W. than there were in the stands.... Mike O'Leary, formerly a well-known local City League player will be with the Trenton R.C.A.F. when they play Plazas here Saturday in a benefit game for the Naxy Auxiliary.... Baseball does come back. Smiths Falls has a town league for the first in years.. The executive of the Men's City League will hold a meeting at Riverside Park Thursday night following the Plazas-Centre contest. A full attendance is requested.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 7—(AP)—Overseas Sports Roundup:

D-Day interrupted army sports program in Britain. But it appears that the boys are putting their training to good use...Cpl. Vince Murphy, with the United States 15th Air Force in Italy, recently wrote: "We are getting the baseball scores every night by short wave. We have a Yankee fan, a White Sox fan, and a Red Sox fan in the house so you can imagine the discussions that go on here of an evening."

Sgt. Billy Goodrich of the Marines, former Brooklyn sports scribe, bemoans the fact that the Dodgers don't draw the most applause from the aviation unit to which he is attached in the South Pacific although Billy maintains they're the most respected club..."They still yell 'them Bums,' however," he adds. Lieut. Joe Burk, twice Diamond Sculls champion, recently described his job of chasing Japs on a P-T boat as "a good duty and its beats rowing all hollow for thrills and competition—no holds barred."

Iceland

Ever hear of a basketball season running into June?...It does in Iceland, from where Lieut. Dave Zinkoff reports the army court champs of Greenland will have it out with Iceland's champions this month... Boxing still is going strong there, too...Just to show that Iceland isn't all ice, the softball season is well under way.

Children Took Over

118 Ball Games Decided By Single Run

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

If winning tight one-run games means a pennant as the experts say the second place Pittsburgh Pirates and the fourth place Chicago White Sox today are bound for the big league flags.

As the majors resumed operations after a two-day rest period caused jointly by the schedule makers and D-Day, a survey of the first quarter of the major league races revealed that of 341 games played roughly one-third or 118 have been decided by a single score.

Frankie Frisch's Pirates have the best record of pulling those tight ones out of the fire, winning eight of 11 for a .727 percentage far above the Cincinnati Reds who placed next by taking 10 of 18. Brooklyn and Chicago have won at least as many close ones as they've lost.

Strangely enough the St. Louis Cardinals have grabbed but four of nine close fits but lead the league by four games, indicating they don't often make it close. The New York Giants have the poorest record, winning but six of 15.

Just as doping the American League race is strictly a job to do with a blindfold and a hat pin, separating the best 'clutch" teams calls for a decimal point expert. The bare facts of the league standings showing only five and a half games from top to bottom indicate there is no standout club.

The White Sox have the edge in one-run games by taking seven of 11 but Detroit with 10 of 16 is close behind. Cleveland has been involved in 22, winning 10 and the world champion New York Yankees have been hard pressed to get an even break in 12 starts. Washington has had the worst luck in the close ones, losing 10 of 15.

GALS' PRO LEAGUE UNDERWAY—All-American girls' pro baseball league gets underway at Milwaukee with the South Bend, Ind., team the winner over Milwaukee in this contest. Shirley Schultz, Milwaukee centre fielder, is tagged out at home on this play. The league, which operated last year with teams in Racine, Kenosha, Rockford and South Bend, is governed by a board of directors which includes such major league magnates as Branch Rickey and Phil Wrigley.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 7 — (CP). — Western Canadian race tracks have produced more than their share of jockeys who have gone farther afield and reached the top of their professions, which is riding. George Schilling, a Western race judge, thinks he has the solution, and it all boiled down to two reasons — the short half-mile tracks and the work the boys get.

The tracks at Calgary, Saskatoon, Edmonton, and Regina are of the band-box size and a jockey has to be clever to tool his mounts around the sharp turns. When he goes East to the larger tracks it's just duck soup for him, and he can see an opening before it's there, Schilling says.

Then there's the work. With the supply of jockeys none too plentiful, every boy gets at least five or six mounts a day, and besides that usually spends his mornings exercising the horses. After that there isn't much he doesn't know about the business.

The West has produced such top-notch riders as Johnny Longden, Donnie Meade, Red Pollar, Johnny Gilbert, Herbert Litzenberger, Earl Steffens, Tom Luther, Tod Leishman, Scotty Craigmyle, Albert Bodiou, and Rex Leavitt to name a few listed by Schilling.

Incidentally:

Hamilton took advantage of the new amateur baseball ruling in Ontario to import two crackerjack United States players. One is Huck Geary, formerly of Pittsburg Pirates, and the other is Cy Williams who played with Albany in the Eastern League....Harvey Bennett who backstopped Oshawa Generals to the Memorial Cup this spring, has been rejected by the Army. He has been lined up to tend goal for Boston Bruins next season....Dick Irvin, Montreal Canadiens coach, is also a pigeon fancier. One of his birds took fourth place in a Broadview, Man., to Moose Jaw, Sask., and Regina pigeon race......Dave Castilloux, recently discharged from the R.C.A.F., has been ordered to report to Army Headquarters June 10. Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson comments: "It is possible he will acquire still another manager in addition to the plethora of same now managing his affairs." Jimmy Darou, popular pony rider who was injured in a fall at Ottawa, has been appointed broadcaster for the race meets in Montreal.

Syracuse Loses 13 Games In Row

By The Associated Press

D-Day sidelined the International League along with most professional baseball but the double A circuit prepared to resume its "streaky" season today with a schedule of six games.

Streaks have been the rule rather than the exception in the first quarter of the campaign with Syracuse's 13-game losing slump the longest.

Since the Chiefs blanked Baltimore May 23, they haven't managed a victory while dropping one to Newark, six to Jersey City, three to Baltimore and three to Buffalo. The Bisons, who have surged into second place only a half game back of Jersey City, bar the door to a Syracuse victory tonight in a doubleheader.

Baltimore and Rochester each have compiled eight-game win streaks and Syracuse, Jersey City and Toronto have managed six in a row. Next to Syracuse, Newark's stretch of seven defeats in the longest. The Bears also were losing a suspended game called to allow them to make a train connection.

Montreal has been playing .500 ball, alternating its triumphs and defeats so evenly that a three-game winning streak and two consecutive defeats are their contributions to the list of streaks.

Athlete Dies

OTTAWA, June 7 — (CP). — Albert F. Hillman, 75, who operated the Bijou Hotel here fifty years ago and was a member of the University of Ottawa championship football team of 1887, died in hospital yesterday.

Gore's Landing Stands First In Field Day

GORE'S LANDING, June 7. — (ENS).—Sixteen schools participated in the Field Day for the schools of Hamilton township, held at Baltimore school recently. Teachers of the various schools, assisted by Rev. Lloyd Delaney of Gore's Landing, conducted the many sports events. These included races for seniors, intermediates and juniors, standing broad jump, softball throw, shuttle relay and many other activities.

The final score showed S.S. No. 16 (Gore's Landing-Plainville) 71 points; S.S. 15 (Bewdley) 56 points; S.S. 12 (Coldsprings) 30 points; S.S. 1 with 24; S.S. 13 with 21; S.S. 2 with 19; S.S. 17 with 16; S.S. 5 with 14; S.S. 9 with 13; S.S. 16 (Harwood) with 11; S.S. 7 with 10; S.S. 8 with 10; S.S. 11 with 8; S.S. 10 with 6½; S.S. 14 with 5½ and S.S. 4 with 1 point.

See Pops Pius

VATICAN CITY, June 7.—(AP).—More than 150 soldiers, some of them Canadians were received by Pope Pius yesterday in a surprise audience. The soldiers had gathered before St. Peter's when word came out that the Pontiff would see them and the group was led into the Consistory Hall where Catholic and Protestants alike knelt as the Holy Father blessed them.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press.

Tony Lazzeri, who in less than two seasons had been shunted around four major league clubs, was given his unconditional release by the New York Giants five years ago to-day. A standout second baseman in his heyday with the New York Yankees, Lazzeri in one game with the Giants made two errors and batters twice beat out bunts in his direction.

Give Day's Pay

CHEMAINUS, B.C., June 7. — (CP).—Between 300 and 400 workers at Chemainus Lumber Company here, will give a day's pay to the Red Cross to mark invasion day. "We feel that now the invasion is started the Red Cross will need all the help it can get and more," a spokesman said.

DODGERS BEST—Fred "Dixie" Walker, who flunked out of the American League in 1939, now carries on for the Dodgers with a .400 stick average. And Walker, whose best major league batting mark is .311, gives credit for his rabid hitting rate on a journey he took last winter—to the Aleutians army camps. In a recent interview the popular Dodger player says that he "can't forget" that he's playing ball for "those fellows."

Lord Astor Believes High Profit Can Win The Great English Derby

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 7—(CP)—Lord Astor's greatest turf ambition is to win the Derby and his only hope this year is a long-shot colt on which United States breeders are keeping a close eye.

The colt, High Profit, probably will go to the post for this blue-ribbon classic June 17 at close to 20-1, and, should he win, the offers of purchase will be many and great. For High Profit is three-parts to Pensive, winner of this year's Kentucky Derby.

Related To Pensive

Just after the war began Lord Astor sold a young mare, Penicuick, which never had won a race, to Warren Wright of the Calumet Stud Farm in Kentucky. The mare was in foal at the time and the progeny was Pensive.

High Profit is by the 1933 Derby winner Hyperion out of the Oaks' winner Pennycomequick, who is Pensive's granddam.

English breeders, incidentally, regard the Kentucky success of Pensive as a magnificent advertisement for British bloodstock at a time when prices are booming in anticipation of heavy postward trade.

Wars may come and wars may go, but English cricket goes on forever. Witness this interlude in the House of Commons.

Flt. Lt. William Telling, Conservative member for Brighton, asked whether, since professional cricketers are allowed to enter the restricted area of Brighton and Hove, the War Secretary will allow amateur members of the same teams as professional to take part in matches in that area.

The answer will be given "at a future date."

When Mrs. G. W. Green of 222 15th St., Lethbridge, Alta., opens the next letter from her husband, she'll find enclosed the autograph of Matt Busby, captain of Scotland's international football team.

"My wife sure will be glad to get it," said the husband, a petty officer in the Canadian Navy. "She was born at Dumfries and is proud of being Scottish."

Green gathered the autograph as one of a party of Canadian naval men taken by the British Council to a major league football game during a brief stay ashore. They met Busby, a sergeant instructor in the British Army, on a visit to the Liverpool club's dressing-room after the game.

The council, which welcomes Canadian sailors to British ports and provides tours of interest, has arranged for Canadians to meet top-ranking soccer players and exchange views.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

With the exception of racing at two tracks and a soccer game at New York the gross receipts of which were donated to the Red Cross, the sport world was inactive on D-Day as a mark of respect to the young men in uniform who had launched the invasion to liberate Europe. Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, ordered the suspension of boxing in that state while the Sammy Angott-Ike Williams 10-rounder at Philadelphia was also postponed. At Delaware Park, the only eastern track which functioned, there was trouble when the jockeys held up the racing until better payments were forthcoming. Bay Meadows, in California, donated its proceeds to war charities.

Coming out of a five-months' retirement subsequent to losing his N.B.A. featherweight title, Jackie Callura of Hamilton bowed to Pat Demers of Brockton in a 10-round bout at New Bedford, Mass., in one of the few ring engagements on D-Day. The decision was unanimously against Callura.

Eddie Carnett of Tulsa, Okla., first-baseman of the Chicago White Sox, is being touted as the star rookie of the 1944 crop. Converted from a pitcher to an outfielder with Seattle last season and now performing at the initial sack, Carnett is currently hitting a .373 clip.

Albert Francis Hillman, 75, a member of the Ottawa College championship football team of 1887, died yesterday in a hospital at Ottawa.

In exhibition baseball games yesterday, St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Blue Rocks of the Interstate League 4-1 at Wilmington, Del., while the St. Louis Browns handed at 10-0 setback to Navy Wings of Lambert Field at St. Louis.

TO-MORROW'S HORIZONS

Man takes wing; intrepid airmen blaze new global trails; the world shrinks under the speed of air travel, and vast new regions are laid open to development.

Post-war skyways, following the Great Circle routes to the north, will place Canada at the cross-roads of the world, with wide scope for promoting international trade, travel, and understanding.

With the progress of to-morrow, Canadians will, as in the past, find The Royal Trust Company ready to serve them in safeguarding the fruits of their labours, while at home or on missions to new horizons.

The "bomber" boys know a good sauce when they taste it. And how they go for roast beef with H.P. There's nothing like good old H.P.—that grand English type sauce—to bring out the hidden, juicy goodness of not only meats but also fish, fowl, stew, bacon and eggs, salads and sandwiches. Rich—fruity—economical — its mellow goodness makes ordinary foods good and good foods better. Don't be fooled. There's no substitute for H.P. Get a bottle today.

Mrs. R. Patterson In 83rd Year

LINDSAY, June 7 — (ENS). — Over 50 friends and relatives gathered at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Love, Lindsay, to felicitate Mrs. Rachael "Granny" Patterson on the celebration of her 83rd birthday. The grand, white-haired lady, who looks a score of years younger than her actual age, is beloved by everyone who knows and admires her for her charming manner and keen Scottish wit.

"Granny" was born in Berwick-on-Tweed, Scotland, and is the surviving member of a family of 18 children, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Somerville. When 22 years of age she married John Patterson and lived on a Scottish farm until the death of her husband in 1917.

In 1920, at the request of relatives in Canada, she left her beloved Scotland and came to Canada to live near Greenbank with her nephew, John Somerville. Following the marriage of her daughter Jean to O. C. Love, she took up residence with them at Greenbank. Later she moved with them to Manitoba, coming to live in Lindsay from the West, about four years ago.

Mrs Patterson loves farm life, and takes a special interest in looking after the young goslings and turkeys. She is a source of admiration to all her young friends and never fails to tell them to leave rouge, lipstick and other cosmetics alone. Her own amazingly clear, rosy complexion she attributes to the fact that she has never used anything on her face but soap and water.

Mrs. Patterson has four children living, Mrs. O. C. Love of Lindsay, Mrs. R. Jeffrey of Greenbank, William of Prince Albert, and John of London, Ontario.

Name Mrs. R. Sheehan League President

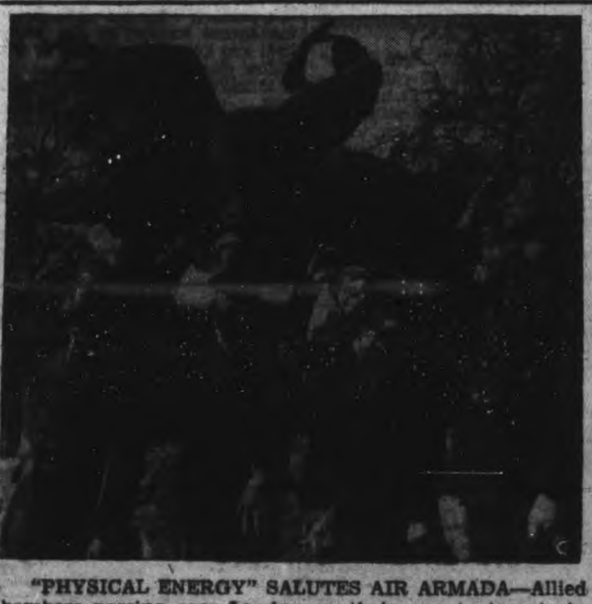
DOURO, Jan 7 (ENS) — The annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held recently. Election of officers was the chief business. And results were as follows: President, Mrs. Richard Sheehan succeeding Mrs. Maurice O'Leary who has held office since last July 1; Vice-president, Mrs. Patrick Cavanagh; second vice-president, Mrs. L. D. Leahy; third vice-president Mrs. Frank P. O'Brien; secretary Mrs. Ray Carlow treasurer Mrs. Joseph O'Connor.

A beautiful bed spread was made a few weeks ago and was raffled. Gross receipts were $100.10 with a net of $90 which was a splendid amount. Badly handicapped as the League is, with no parish hall and no hall that can be rented the executive by hard work succeeded in raising a considerable amount during the year. Boxes were sent to local boys overseas twice during the year and a donation was given to the British War Victims' Fund. A few entertainments were held in different schools during the year.



"PHYSICAL ENERGY" SALUTES AIR ARMADA—Allied bombers passing over London on their way to targets in Naziland attract the attention of a U.S. soldier, sailor, an R.A.F. observer and his girl friend, while the horsemen on the statue behind the group seems to be joining them in their salute to the passing air armada. Left to Right: Sergt. Wm. Hewitt, Bridgetown, N.J.; Storekeeper Jessie Watkins, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Muriel Canepa and Flt.-Sergt. J. Ainsworth of Montreal. The statue is the well-known "physical energy" in Hyde Park.

FEATURES "BEAUTY-AIDS"

"Beauty Culture" or the "Art of Make Up" is almost as ancient as the human race and what appears to be the newest method of beautification may be one of the oldest. Cosmetics—or those products designed specifically to aid beautification—on the other hand have immeasurably improved both as to quality and variety and today are indeed a long way removed from the primitive articles used by the "Beauties" of yester year. By reason of this our modern Ladies find little difficulty in selecting, from the vast range procurable, those preparations most suitable to their individual types and colorings. Your Tamblyn Drug Store as you know at all times carries for your selection a most complete and varied assortment of "Make up Requisites" and this week is again featuring these products and stressing the importance of their acquisition now at these most economical prices. So may we suggest a visit to your nearest Tamblyn Store where will be found a most comprehensive display of "Beauty Aids" from Lipsticks to Leg-Do's. As an added convenience, a number of these items have also been included in this list of Incidentally it should be noted that the fines are being stepped up.

Gerald Devlin entered a written plea of guilty to driving more than thirty miles an hour on a city street and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Two bicyclists, Clair Cecil Savage who entered a written plea of guilty and Michael Cadigan, 18, who made a personal appearance and likewise pleaded guilty, were fined $2 and $2.50 costs for carrying passengers on their bicycles.

John Keyes who pleaded guilty to a charge of parking too close to a fire hydrant was fined $2 and $2.50 costs.

Failing to bring their motor vehicles to a full stop before entering a through street resulted in fines of $2 and $2.50 costs for nine motorists. They were Langton Carveth, Harold Gray, James Conroy, E. V. Morphet, Arthur Hunter, J. T. Thompson, the Gillespie Garage, Grant and Loucks and the Lakefield Creamery.

Benjamin Swartz, similarly charged, pleaded not guilty and objected when the police asked for a week's adjournment.

"They should be ready to go on when they issue a summons," he said. "I have to close my store to come down here. It's ridiculous."

"It's not ridiculous at all," replied Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. "If the police had to have their officers here for every one of these traffic cases there would be no one on duty."

H. Reeves entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of speeding in Lakefield laid against him by Chief Garnet Samis of Lakefield and was fined $7.50 and $2.50 costs.

Police Honor Andre Dalton

Constable Andre Dalton of the Peterborough police department whose wedding to Miss Jean McCauley took place this afternoon was the central figure in an unique "trial" in the police court Tuesday night in which the officer who incidentally was overseas for several years with the Canadian army was charged with abduction.

He was "arrested" at his apartment by a couple of brother officers and brought into court handcuffed.

John A. Bradshaw put up an impassioned defence for the accused but Sergt. Gordon T. Puffer who was on the bench registered a conviction.

Then Mrs. Dorothy Maguire, matron of the department made the presentation of a silver tea service, the gift of the members of the police department, the provincial police and court officials to the young couple.

He is survived by one son, Lieut. John Bell, R.C.E., Toronto, and his wife predeceased him a few months ago.

Twelve Student Nurses Graduate From Nicholls Hospital

With right hands upraised, twelve young, full-fledged nurses, in crisp white uniforms, repeated the solemn, impressive words of the Florence Nightingale Pledge, in a moving ceremony in the Collegiate Auditorium Tuesday evening, at the graduation exercises for the School for Nurses of Nicholls Hospital. Dr. H. M. Yelland, chairman of the Board of Trustees for the hospital, made the presentations of diplomas and medals, assisted by Miss Edith Young, superintendent of nurses.

The twelve graduates who received their diplomas and medals were: Shirley Mary Beer, Port Hope; Lillian Lee Berlanguet, Renfrew; Keith Elizabeth Cronkright, Marmora; Gertrude Lilly Dewell, Bowmanville Marion Louise Gibson, Bowmanville; Marion Beatrice Lowe, Barrie; Margaret Catherine McCulloch, Campbellford; Anna Winnifred McNeely, Norwood; Dorothy Marie Pickering, Picton; Dorothy Margaret Pidgeon, Stirling; Evelyn Maud Reid, Lakefield; Mary Helen Sarah Robson, Peterborough.

"Education, inspiration and application," were the main points to be gained from a training such as nursing, stressed by the guest speaker, Dr. J. H. Couch, F.R.C.S., of Toronto Speaking directly to the nurses, he impressed upon them the marvellous opportunities and privileges which were offered them in their training He said that they would not fully realize the value of the contacts they had made during their three years as under graduates for some time to come.

Illustrating his points with reminiscences about his experiences as a young boy in Peterborough, Dr. Couch spoke simply and sincerely, showing, by his examples, that he himself had not realized the "education, inspiration and application" he learned in Peterborough until later years, but that he could look back now and appreciate their importance in shaping his life.

Day To Remember

Dr. Couch also spoke of the sacrifices made by service men on the fighting front, so that life could continue as usual in peace and security. He said their graduation day would be doubly impressed upon their memories since it was also "D-Day," and brought home more fully yet, the debt owed to brave men who were willing to give their lives that democracy might live.

In conclusion, the speaker talked of the example set before all nurses —Florence Nightingale. He said that she had brought everything to nursing—her personality, her body and mind and heart. "She made her personality felt by all around her" he continued, "and you, as nurses, should also think of what you are bringing to your honorable calling. Let the light of your understanding, training, and experience, be a bright halo around you, so that each one of you will be, literally and figuratively, "the lady with the lamp."

338 Graduates

In her annual report of the School of Nursing, Miss Edith Young said that since 1893, 338 diplomas had been given to graduates from Nicholls Hospital. The average class was 31, with 11 new applicants in the school. She gave statistics of the number of hours spent in formal teaching, lectures, and demonstrations, and a review of the various activities of the school during the year. As she listed the changes in the staff of the hospital during the past year, Miss Young stressed the acute shortage of nurses, and paid tribute to young girls entering the profession, and to graduate nurses, who had born the strain during trying times.

Addressing the graduates, Miss Young congratulated them warmly on their success, and commended them highly for their devotion to the profession they were entering. She said that she hoped the future would be considerably brighter, and that they would enjoy happy and useful lives in their chosen calling.

Scholarship Wnners

Following the presentations of diplomas and medals to the graduates, scholarships and prizes were given to various graduate and under-graduate nurses. Alderman James Dutton presented the Board of Trustees' Scholarship for postgraduate study in nursing, to Miss Evelyn Maud Reid. Miss Mae Renwick won the A. H. Campbell scholarship for postgraduate study in teaching and supervison, which was awarded. This award was given for attention to duty, efficency, and personality, and was presented to her by Charles Lacheur. Mr. Lacheur also presented Miss Renwick with the postgraduate study prize, donated by the Board of Trustees.

Third year prizes for general proficiency, donated by the Board of trustees, were presented by E. B. Fowler. Miss Evelyn Maud Reid was first, and Miss Mary Helen Sarah Robson, second. The winner of the prize for bedside nursing was Miss Gertrude Lilly Dewell, who was chosen by her fellow students, for her excellent bedside care. This prize was donated by friends of the School of Nursing, and was presented by Miss Lottie Ball.

The Medical Staff sponsored the prizes awarded to under-graduates who won the highest marks in second year examinations. Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick made the presentations to Miss Doris Ruth Swain, who was first, and Miss Muriel Kathleen Langmaid, who was second. Miss Mary Eileen Nesbitt was winner of the first prize for the highest marks in theory for first year students, with Miss Ora Jane Wilson reveiving the second prize. These gifts were also sponsored by the Board of Trustees, and were presented by Dr. E. A. Hammond.

Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell, on behalf of the Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary, presented each graduate witth a clinical thermometer, and personally congratulated each one. Several of the scholarships were given for the first time this year, and others are being planned. These scholarahips will mean greater opportunities for young women who are entering nursing, and will be a great incentive to all in the hospital.

Better Hospitals

Mayor James Hamilton brought greetings to the nurses, and the graduates in particular, on behalf of the city. He spoke of the plans already under consideration for better hospitals in Peterborough. In addressing the graduates, he said that they should be proud of their hospital, and that they certainly set wonderful examples for those who would follow them. Dr. H. M. Yelland, chairman for the evening, spoke of the responsiblities the graduates were taking upon themselves. He said that the world of today presented difficult conditions and many obstacles for nurses to overcome, but asked them to find out what part they could play in the general picture of a brighter future.

Rev. E. J. Whan offered the dedicatory prayer. Mrs. H. A. Mitchell was guest soloist, and sang "O Lovely Night" and "My Prayer", accompanied on the piano by Mrs H. V. Dobson. Miss Barbara Nicholls entertained with a musical prelude at the opening of the exercises. Dr. D. V. Dobson, in introducing the speaker, told of his early years in Peterborough, when he attended Central Public School, and the Peterborough Collegiate, and gave an outline of the experience Dr. Couch had gained in Europe.

The stage was decorated with a profusion of flowers, and was in charge of the Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxilary.

No Swimming In Little Lake

Contamination of the water of Little Lake and of the Otonabee River five miles or more below the city makes it unsafe for swimming, Sanitary Inspector MacPherson told the Examiner today.

"Samples were taken and tested from Lakefield all the way to Wallace Point," Mr. MacPherson said. "For the information of the public and their guidance during the bathing season we can tell them that the canal is satisfactory north and south of the Liftlock and down to the lock at the entrance from the lake below Maria street.

The river is all right from the Hunter street bridge up to Lakefield. That condition applies also to the wading pool the Lions Club are making at the park south of Hunter street bridge. From the stretch between the C.P.R. bridge and almost to Hunter street the water is not fit and safe to swim in, and that is especially true of Little Lake and the river south from the sewage disposal plant. And it extends down the river about five miles."

The results of this annual test of the swimming places around the city indicate no improvement over a similar report of a year ago that led to an official warning to the public not to swim in the lake and river below the city.

Cases Laid Over In Police Court

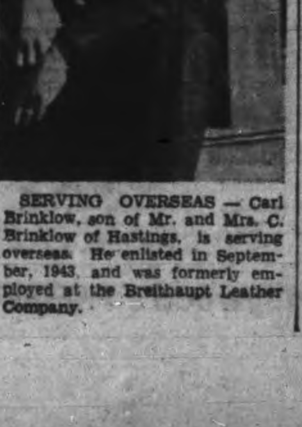
Sentence was to have been imposed in police court this morning on Joseph Robinson who had pleaded guilty last week to stealing $22 in bills and a small amount of silver from the house of Martin McManus, Lot 3, Concession 10, Douro, but owing to the fact that Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., was engaged at the General Sessions of the Peace, a remand until Thursday morning was necessary.

A charge against Pte. Harold Miller of Toronto, accused of having assaulted a beverage room waiter, occasioning actual bodily harm, also went over until tomorrow afternoon.

W. J. Arthur Fair, who defended the accused, pleaded for an early disposition of the case, pointing out that a soldier who was a material witness was due to return to his unit at the conclusion of his leave.



SERVING OVERSEAS — Carl Brinklow, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Brinklow of Hastings, is serving overseas. He enlisted in September, 1943, and was formerly employed at the Breithaupt Leather Company.

Park Site Worth $10,000 To City Council Make Offer To Beaver Lumber Company

The city is offering Beaver Lumber Company $10,000 to pack up and leave their George street property at Rink street, and take the buildings with them.

This is the site of the old McDonald Lumber Company, and fronts the lakeside park the city has been developing:

"Some citizens want us to complete the park, and others feel that we should not spend too much in trying to induce the Beaver Lumber people to vacate and get a new location," Alderman Glover said. "I understand that it is assessed at $7,000."

Alderman Dutton seconded the resolution, and Alderman Bradburn urged that it was time the company received a permit for the building program they have outlined, providing they are not interested in the city's offer and proposal.

"It is time we decided what we are going to let them do," Alderman Bradburn said. "They started about a year ago on planning improvements, and we are keeping them waiting an unreasonable time."

"It is not quite that serious, Alderman Bradburn," Mayor Hamilton said. "We did hear from them about a year ago, but it has not been until recently that the company felt that they were ready to make a start."

Plans for new buildings, including an office, were submitted by the company who wish to proceed with part of their project at once, and defer the rest until after the war.

A motion by Alderman Ovens, seconded by Alderman Bradburn, was to the effect that "if they don't accept the city's offer of $10,000, that City Engineer Parsons give them a permit to build under his supervision."

ITALY CASUALTY — L.-Cpl. Wilbert Hie, age 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hie of Cobourg, was wounded recently in Italy. He enlisted in February of 1940 with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at Picton, and went overseas in July of the same year. Later he transferred to the Canadian Provost Corps in England.

First With Help Bible Class Keeps On Giving

Among the very earliest in this city and district to visualize their potential opportunity for good by giving assistance to the sufferers from air raids over Britain, the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church deserve more than passing mention for the good work they have done in this direction continuously ever since the autumn months of 1940, shortly after the dread effects of enemy air raids over Britain began to be seriously felt.

Before the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund even began to function, this comparatively small group of loyal women had raised and sent $38 over to A. B. C. Kempe, the mayor of Ramsgate for that purpose, and then in spite of the fact that they had established a medium by which they could give this aid in a direct manner, they turned to give every support they could to the local fund for the same purpose, demonstrating also a loyalty to their own community, which also would infer a pride in its achievements in this particular effort, for the fund has had a definite place in the work they have carried on to give assistance to the war effort.

During the period under review, this group had raised and given $157 to this fund, and a further $5 today comes from their Tuesday afternoon South-end group to give them a total credit of $162, which combined with the gift sent over on their own account prior to the opening of this fund, makes the count stand at an even $200, a lot of money for a group of this size to raise, with every promise that they will continue this while the need exists.

Channel Islands' Needs

Tuesday's reports from the theatre of hostilities speak of Allied landings on the islands of Guernsey and Jersey, which fell into the hands of the enemy shortly after the fall of France, and should these happily be released from the German yoke in the very near future, the Empire Air Raid Distress Fund administered by the Lord Mayor of London, will undoubtedly be called upon to supply these citizens of the Empire, who remain to tell the tale there, with much assistance, for every evidence points to their having been denuded of all movable possessions that could be carried away.

Assisting in a personal way to help along the cause is a $5 contribution from Margaret E. Milburn in today's list, while a particular friend of the fund who has done such a lot to help things along, in the person of John E. Parker of Norwood, is also credited with a personal gift of $3, and in so doing he undertook at the same time to arrange to supply and look after the stall at the market next Saturday morning with the assitance of his young daughter, Dorothy.

This one family has raised $1,155.59 to help the victims of air raids in Britain, and but for the untimely passing of Mrs. Parker a few months ago, would have been heard from some weeks ago in regard to the work that has been done on the market in the past six weeks.

Council Delighted With Corvette Plans

Applause is an infrequent expression of approval at meetings of the city council, evidently being reserved for special occasions and merit. For that reason Alderman Sands probably realized that his associates were paying him tribute out of the ordinary Monday night in a resolution of appreciation of his direction of the hurried preparations for the welcoming of the officers and men of the corvette Peterborough, and finally for the dedication ceremony at Cobourg Sunday.

"We are all gratified at the successful issue of the ceremonies in connection with the corvette "Peterborough," Alderman Dutton said. "We received very short notice of the christening and dedication, and for that reason we appreciate all the more the excellent work of organisation done by Alderman Sands and members of assisting committees."

Alderman Dutton's resolution to record appreciation of the reception committee's efforts was seconded "by all the other members" with their burst of hand clapping and desk thumping.

W. CMDR. ARTHUR WADDELL

Peterboro Boys Do Important Invasion Jobs

Two Peterborough fliers, Wing Commander Arthur (Bunt) Waddell, D.F.C., brother of Hugh Waddell, 462 Gilmour street, and Flt. Lieut. Art Collins, of Otonabee, have been active in the invasion work with the R.C.A.F.

Wing Cmdr. Waddell is the commander of the Recce (Reconnaissance) operations. The work the men under him undertake are scientific engineering blueprint jobs, taken at a time of day that will get the light on them and at a height from a few hundred feet on up, depending on what scope of a picture is required.

Beach by beach, field by field, road by road, village, town, farm house, every element of the battlefield has been thus scientifically blueprinted. And the boys who have done it on this army sector are numerous. Many of them have been army reconnaissance fliers for years, others have come from fighters and many others are men specially selected and trained in courses for this highly specialized task.

Flt. Lieut. Art Collins, son of Fred Collins and the late Mrs. Collins of Otonabee, and a brother of Mrs. W. Prest, 135 Morrow street, is reported to have had a narrow escape when on air reconnaissance.

These lads do not photograph towns. They photograph houses in towns. In fact, they have photographed a certain window in a certain house in a certain town. This sounds far-fetched. But in that window the experts saw what they wanted. And that house was attacked by bombers and blown to smithereens.

They have all had miraculous escapes. Naturally a target worth photographing is a target the Germans will defend with flak, sometimes scores of cannon and 100 or more light guns. Flt. Lieut. Collins had one of the weirdest. He was with three other Recce planes on a very special assignment. They drove in and got their pictures. Just as they left the coast a flak shell entered exactly in the big lens of the camera, set immediately behind Art's head. The shell blew the camera to pieces, blew the film holder at the back straight out of the plane. Not only did the shell not hurt Collins, it never even disturbed the delicate radio equipment of the plane. Art thinks that Nazi ought to get the iron cross.

Waddell Couple Observe 50th Anniversary

HASTINGS, June 7—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Waddell observed the 50th anniversary of their marriage this week. They were married in 1894 at the home of the bride's parents, Hastings, by Rev. Mr. McGinnus. They have always resided on their farm, a few miles from the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Beamish of town are the only couple living who attended the wedding 50 years ago, but were unable to be present.

From this union there are three children: Mrs. William Brooks (Mary) Toronto; Mrs. J. Porter (Helen) Walkerville and Mrs. William Fleming (Eva) Hastings. They have fifteen grandchildren. Mrs. Waddell has two brothers, James Williamson, Kinmount and Tom Williamson, Hastings, both present.

Mr. and Mrs. Waddell were "at home" to friends and neighbors and relatives were invited to a wedding dinner. The table was centred with a silver basket of snapdragons and the bride's three-tiered cake. Mrs. Dr. McDonald, Hamilton, proposed the toast to the bride and groom and Archie Williamson, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Waddell, replied.

In the afternoon and evening guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. William Fleming and Howard Porter, and Mr. and Mrs. Waddell rose from their seats of honor in the living-room to greet everyone. The room was well filled with flowers and gifts and the tables were covered with 50th anniversary cards of congratulations. Mrs. Waddell wore a sheer chiffon dress of blue and white, and a corsage of pink roses.

Tea was served from a table set with a white cloth, centred with a huge wedding cake, set in a bed of orange blossoms and white. The centrepiece was flanked with two large silver candelbra, set with tall silver tapers, and two silver tea services were placed at either end. Pouring tea were Miss Violet Tucker, Toronto, and Miss Clara Williamson, Hastings.

After the reception the couple left on a honeymoon to points east, the bride wearing blue silk jersey with white accessories.

Final Meeting Social Evening

There was a large attendance at the closing meeting of the season of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association at the Paragon Hall Monday evening.

The meeting took the form of a social evening to which the husbands and friends of the members were invited. The only business conducted was a brief report from each study group secretary, showing what had been accomplished by each group, meeting in their various wards each month to hear talks and have discussions on current events, in the municipal, provincial and federal field. These groups were suggested by Senator Iva C. Fallis a year ago, and she assisted in organizing them.

Included on the program were two dramatic readings by Mrs. L. Aikenhead, talented elocutionist. Mr. Harvey and his famous dog, "Pat" were also in attendance and entertained with several tricks.

The draw for the quilt made by the south ward group, resulted in Mrs. Cora Reynolds, 585 Aylmer street, being the winner. The proceeds from the quilt, after expenses are met, will be handed to the British War Victims Fund. The door prize, donated by Mrs. J. F. Strickland, past president, was won by Mrs. J. Pickering.

H. R. Scott, M.P.P., was present and spoke briefly. G. K. Fraser, M.P., sent a telegram of congratulation from Ottawa. Senator Iva C. Fallis also sent a message of regret at being unable to be present.

Light refreshments were served, the members being the guests of the local executive.

Andre Dalton Weds Jean McCauley

St. Luke's Anglican Church was the setting for a pretty wedding this afternoon, when Melva Jean McCauley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. McCauley, 220 Rogers street, became the bride of Andre Hope Dalton, son of Mrs. A. J. Dalton, and the late Captain George T. Dalton, of Driffield, East Yorkshire, England. Rev. A. J. Arthur officiated at the ceremony, in a church decorated with a profusion of iris and peonies. Miss Margaret Flowers was at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of white satin, with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves coming to a point over each hand. Her finger-tip veil of white net was caught to her head with a sweetheart halo, and she wore white slippers and carried a bouquet of Pink Delight roses.

Miss Ola McCauley was her sister's bridesmaid, in floor-length white sheer, with a round gathered neckline, and three-quarter sleeves. Her hat of pink mohair was trimmed with a blue veil, and she wore lace gloves, and carried a bouquet of pink Sweetheart rosese and lily of the valley.

Donald Dalton, brother of the groom was best man, and Edward Miller and Roland Krant were ushers.

At the reception held at Hooper's Palm Rooms, the bride's mother received in a gown of green printed silk jersey, with a black straw hat, and a corsage of white roses.

For a motor trip to northern points, the bride donned a two-piece navy blue ensemble, with gold trimming, a navy hat and accessories, and a biege coat. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Dalton will live at 169 Hunter stree,t east.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

MARTYR ROLE GAINS PRAISE

Mothers Tell Children How Hard They Work To Satisfy Longing For Sympathy.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Why do some mothers try to show the bad side of married life to their daughters? My mother is always warning me against marriage, yet my father has been a wonderful husband to her, generous, kind and faithful, but she always seems to want something. She never wants to bother about anything around the house. She is gloomy and complaining and nagging.

In spite of my mother's dismal picture of marriage I am going to try it with a splendid fellow I love, and I expect to be a better wife than she has been because of the fact that I have her example before me, and I intend to avoid the mistakes she has made. What do you think?

C. E. M.

Bid For Sympathy

ANSWER—Sometimes when mothers warn their daughters against marriage it is because they have had such a bitter experience themselves that they are trying to save their little girls from the danger of a similar fate, but generally when a mother speaks in a pessimistic tone of marriage to her daughters and bids them beware of it she is merely making a bid for sympathy and appreciation.

The only way many women know of getting the spotlight turned on them is by posing as martyrs,, and because they want their children to make much of them and regard them as heroines they are forever calling attention to how hard they have to work, and to how many sacrifices they have to make. But they don't really mean it. All they want is just to be flattered and told that they are the greatest ever, and that their families couldn't get along without them.

So don't take your mother's diatribes too seriously. Of course, not all marriages are successes. Some people fail at everything. Others make a success of anything, and matrimony is like that.

It is up to every individual couple to make what they will of their marriage. You will take out of it just what you put into it. And if you put into it love and common sense and patience and forbearance and humor and fair play, you will take out of it happiness.

DEAR MISS DIX—Is there any possible cure for a flirting husband? I have been advised to treat him as he does me. I don't think, after you lose confidence in a man, there is any chance to regain it. Do you?

MRS. R. L.

ANSWER—The only way to deal with a flirtatious husband is to laugh at him for a silly, vain creature who thinks women are falling for him who are probably bored with his attentions. Anyway, maybe he isn't half as bad as he thinks he is.

Probably there is no way you can restore the faith that has once been shattered any more than you can mend a broken vase so it will be perfect again. The crack will always be there, obvious to your eyes, though a stranger may not notice it. But you can still make the vase a household convenience or an ornament, and it is the same way with the husband you have forgiven.

Anyway most wives find out that their husbands aren't the wolves they think they are. They have been domesticated and generally they are glad enough to get back home.

Archbishop Owen Speaks At St. Luke's

The value of the spirit of fellowship was stressed by Archbishop Derwyn Owen, of Toronto, addressing a congregational meeting of St. Luke's Anglican Church, in the Parish Hall Tuesday evening. He said that the Church was the basis of the life of the individual, and through him, the basis of nations, and of the world. He explained that if fellowship was expressed by each person to his neighbour, a world free from strife and war would be the result.

Speaking of St. Luke's, Archbishop Owen said that this friendly get-together was an example of the fellowship he would like to see spread throughout the world. He talked of the history of the Church, and mentioned several prominent men in the early days of St. Luke's whom he had known personally. The late Rev. G. J. Bousfield of St. Luke's was his assistant at one time.

The speaker paid tribute to the women of the Church, and also to the boys from the parish who had joined the armed forces, and were fighting for freedom of all. He asked all present to stand by and co-operate to serve their fellow men, keeping their faith high. Telling of his talks with young pilots during his visit to England, he said that they maintained their faith and courage in the face of every obstacle. Archbishop Owen has two sons fighting for Canada, one in Italy, and another with invasion troops. In conclusion, he told his audience to keep faith and to continue to work for victory, because their loved ones were "safe in God's hands."

The supper for about 150 guests was sponsored by the Women's Guild of St. Luke's, and members of the Guild, assisted by Misses Shirley and Joyce Wyatt, served. Tables were centred with huge bouquest of iris, peonies, spirea, and lemon lilies. Seated at the head table were Archbishop Owen and Mrs. Owen, Rev. A. J. Arthur, and Mrs. Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. D. Walker, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Walker, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Mason. Rev. Arthur presided.

Alex Butcher proposed a tribute to servicemen, and George Maniece spoke in tribute of the early men of St. Luke's. E. A. Peck, who was a young boy when the church was founded in 1876, told of its growth.

Mrs. D. Wyatt, president of the Women's Guild, presented Mrs. Owen with a beautiful bouquet of mixed flowers. S. Mason introduced the speaker.

Guest soloist was Miss Alicia Langley, who sang "Annie Laurie," "American Lullaby," and a Negro spiritual. Miss M. Flowers and Mrs. P. Bousfield were at the piano during supper.

Prayers Held At Canteen For Soldiers

A special service of prayer closed the entertainment at the Uptown Recreation Centre Tuesday evening, with Capt. V. Graham leading in the prayers for the safety and victorious return of loved ones. Capt. Graham also led in the alternate reading of the 46th Psalm, and the large number of soldiers present joined with the hostesses in the singing of "Abide With Me."

The musical program consisted of songs by Mrs. M. Drury and Ted Collis, and several whistling numbers by Miss Mignon Mayneord. Pte. Al Grant, of Toronto, entertained with several snappy dance routines, and a number of contests were enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, with coffee being provided by the canteen.

There were only about 30 hostesses on duty at the canteen on Sunday, but the number of soldiers present was at its usual high level. Fruit, cake and coffee were served during the afternoon at the canteen counter. Pte. Harold Wright led in the sacred sing-song in the evening, with Mrs. E. Norman at the piano, and Capt. V. Graham closed the period with a prayer. Special visitor to the canteen during the week was Major Lucretia Jennings, a Salvation Army officer from Toronto.

Women Golfers Cancel Field Day

In sympathy with many members who have husbands, sons and daughters overseas and who may even now be taking part in the great invasion of Europe, the members of the ladies' section of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club cancelled their plans for the regular Tuesday afternoon field day and bridge.

Arrangements had already been made by about thirty of the ladies to lunch at the club and such plans could not be cancelled on short notice, so lunch was served at 12.30.

Members who can arrange to attend next Tuesday field day should advise Mrs. Devall of their intention as soon as possible.

Britain-Based Canadians Land Fifth Time

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

The long-awaited invasion of Europe from the west—the war's greatest combined operation—is the fifth landing of the war for Canada's Britain-based land forces.

They went to Spitzbergen, Dieppe, Sicily and Italy. They return to European beaches as part of the Army group commanded by Sir Bernard Montgomery.

Western Europe was the operation for which they trained for so long, ever since they came to England, the first of them in 1939.

During the last eight months intensive, combined operation training prepared them for opposed landings on an enemy beach. A dozen practice assaults were made on a stretch of England's shoreline.

These Canadians probably have had more opportunity than any of the Allied invasion formations in training for the assault. They have been at it so long they know the drill backwards. They are well led, and in the last phase of the training were razor-keen for the job ahead.

The day has been long in coming for the Canadians, has meant months and even years of tedious waiting and constant training. But this Western operation is, for the Canadians, the great effort of the war, overshadowing their gallantry at Dieppe, Leonforte, and Ortona.

Remember Training.

As they go into this campaign Canadians remember the years since December, 1939, when the first contingent arrived in Britain. They remember the first training grinds at Aldershot as they prepared to go into the line in France with the British Expeditionary Force.

They never got there. The German panzers smashed through Flanders, and although the Canadians were to go to defend Calais the plan was cancelled. They finally went to Brest and for a few frantic days moved on to Paris and then were ordered out as the B.E.F. straggled back to Dover.

The Canadians were given a defence-of-Britain role and there were days of excitement and weeks of constant moving, but the German invasion did not materialize.

A winter of training followed and in the summer of 1941 a Canadian force successfully raided Spitzbergen and carried out mine property demolitions without opposition. There was nothing more for them operationally until August 19, 1942, when a major part of the 2nd Division went to Dieppe and fought for eight bloody hours on the beaches there, suffering heavy casualties, but providing the combined operations background for the great landings to come.

Action in Tunisia.

Two months later the British and Americans went into North Africa, and during the winter groups of Canadians were attached to the First Army in Tunisia for battle experience. They got plenty of it.

For the rest of the Canadians in England, these were months of frustration, but still they trained. Then in the spring the Sicily landing was planned and the 1st Canadian Division was chosen to sail from England and join the 8th Army in the assault.

In their first campaign they proved the value of their long training, and their record in Sicily was as fine as any division on the island. At the fierce battle for the cliff-top town of Leonforte they showed their real mettle.

Sicily behind them, they went to Italy—the same division—and, with a British division, were the spearhead of the 8th Army attack across the Messina Straits, the first Allied landing in Europe.

In Italy they first pursued the retreating Germans to Potenza in the southern part of the country and then advanced to Foggia and fought their way through Motta and on to Campobasso.

Later they switched to the Moro River on the Adriatic coast and the heaviest fighting which they had seen this war took place there and in the port of Ortona.

FORGOTTEN NAME

Muscovy was a former name for Russia.

ENEMY SHORE IS THEIR OBJECTIVE—Readying for their assault on the enemy's Fortress Europa these Canadian soldiers went through grimly realistic landing exercises to master every detail of taking and holding a beachhead on hostile territory. Leaping from boats under protection of a thin smoke screen the men half-wade, half-scramble ashore through waist deep water, carrying their equipment, while bullets whine overhead and shells toss geysers of water around them. (Canadian Army Photo)

He said he'd lost his brother on the subway. Yesterday the boy was found dead in the train yards—sprawled across the charged third rail of the subway.*

ORDERS MUST GET THROUGH—Co-ordinated action by all units engaged in assault operations is vital to success and contact between commands is often dependent on the motorcycle despatch rider. ## THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

The new summer jerseys, so flattering in their lovely colors and in their perfect fit, washable, luxurious soft, they slip into the vacation bag without bulk or bother, and emerge fresh, crisp and unwrinkled. These dresses are a May day must and a June day joy. If you are going away for your summer vacation to a place where you will have dinner dates, have a smart green jersey skirt, floor length, and with it wear a simple sleeveless black satin waist, just below-the-elbow black gloves. The skirt of this costume may be in any shade that is most becoming to you, but green is very chic this summer. Another smart dinner dress is carried out in white flowered embroidery with which is worn a pale blue grosgrain ribbon sash. If you are wearing a hat with these costumes, be sure it is a large one, well trimmed.

The larger picture hats are shown trimmed with large roses, in the tones of your dress. There are many new lines for the ever-popular cotton frock this summer. One I saw which I thought was very attractive, I will try to describe. The yoke was shoulder high in front, formed sleeves, and dipped to the waistline n the back. The dress was of black cotton, the yoke which I have described to you was of striped cotton with white background and a red strip. Another is a white cotton gabardine tennis dress with raglan armholes so made to give your overhand all the freedom in the world. This dress had a wide girdle of pink linen. For the junior girl there is an oatmeal colored Irish linen suit, with a ledge shouldered jacket and a dotted balloon cloth blouse. Another ensemble is a blazer suit, in pale blue cotton twill, the coat buttoned up front to the small turnover collar. This coat has two large patch pockets one on either side, and the skirt is pleated. One-piece dresses in shantung of the lucious sherbet colors are made for warm evenings. The frock buttons entirely up front from bottom of the skirt to the neckline, and is finished with a narrow frill. The elbow-length sleeves have a narrow frill and the waistline is finished with a narrow belt, tied in front with small bow. With this dress wear a smart pair of sandals in cream beige and gloves of same shade.

Pretty Wedding Solemnized At Farm Home

Cherry Grove Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Armstrong, was the setting for a pretty wedding recently, when their elder daughter, Olive Ferne Armstrong, became the bride of Stewart Gordon Whittington, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Whittington, of Otonabee. Rev. H. H. Mutton of Fairview United Church officiated at the ceremony against a background of ferns and peonies. Miss Helen Glover, of Toronto, played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white taffeta, with sweetheart neckline and long fitted sleeves, coming to a point over each wrist. Her veil of white illusion fell in soft folds from a Queen Anne halo, and she carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Wilma Armstrong was her sister's bridesmaid, in a gown of blue sheer over taffeta, with lace trimmed bodice and a matching halo hat. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Barbara Mann, small cousin of the bride, was a dainty junior bridesmaid, in a frock of primrose yellow sheer over taffeta, trimmed with blue and pink braided ribbon. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of blue sweet peas and pink roses.

Charles Whittington, cousin of the groom, was best man.

After the ceremony, a reception was held for about fifty guests. Receiving with the bridal party were the parents of the bride and groom. Mrs. Armstrong received, wearing a two-piece dress of printed silk, with black accessories, and a corsage of Premier roses. Mrs. R. J. Whittington received in a two-piece frock of blue sheer, with navy accessories and a corsage of Premier roses.

The bride's table, covered with a lace cloth, was centred with her cake, and was set with white tapers in crystal holders. Refreshments were served by friends of the bride.

For travelling, Mrs. Whittington chose a two-piece suit of blue crepe coat. On their return, the young couple will live on the groom's farm, in Otonabee.

CPL. ROBERT CARTWRIGHT

The following details have been released in Italy about the courage with which Cpl. Robert Cartwright, son of Mrs. C. Cartwright Havelock, took on a job for which he received the Military Medal.

On 30 January, a company of The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment launched an attack on strong enemy positions along the River Arielli.

At about 1000 hours Cpl. Cartwright was wounded, but although in great pain from his wound and under heavy mortar and machine-gun fire, he continued to lead his section forward and brought it into position to give such effective covering-fire that his platoon was able to enter the enemy positions.

During the night 30-31 January, his section was isolated by the enemy and during the next day and night exposed to withering fire. Throughout this time, Cpl. Cartwright resolutely maintained his position and by his example kept up the morale of his men.

Finally when his section was reduced by casualties to himself and one other man he made his way with him through ground controlled by the enemy to our own lines, bringing back much valuable information on the enemy strength and dispositios.

Throughout this action Cpl. Cartwright displayed the greatest gallantry, powers of leadership and devotion to duty. In spite of a painful wound and under the most hazardous conditions, he led his men with skill ad resolution and by his keen observation materially assisted the operations of his company.

Likes Scotland

F.O. STEWART E. THOMPSON

A recent visit to Scotland proved to be one of the most interesting things F.O. Stewart E. Thompson R.C.A.F. has experienced since he landed overseas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Thompson 321 Dalhousie street, and formerly came from Bethany.

"Edinburgh was my headquarters again and the Scots were just as grand as ever. This time I spent a day in Aberdeen. It is an attractive city of granite buildings with wide streets. The civic buildings are of interesting design and lend a distinctive appearance to the city.

"On another occasion, I started out for Callender. At Stirling, there is a stiff climb up to the castle, but the view is well worth the effort. The valley stretches out beneath while on a crest opposite, the Wallace monument stands out clearly. At Callender I looked at the Rowan Camp Hotel, a unique tourist spot of quiet luxury in a semi-antique manner. There was still quite a touch of pre-war class and I slept in a satin upholstered bed.

Cycles 55 Miles

"Next day, renting a cycle early, I started out. It was one of those rare days, perfect, and once under way I couldn't stop. Before nightfall, I cycled 55 miles seeing Loch's Earn, Venachar and Katrine (pronounced Katrin). The latter was beautiful beyond description in the early spring sun and half lost in Scotch mist. From there I went to Aberfogle and had tea at Trossachs Hotel."

On another short leave the young airman visited Lincoln, which he describes as a very old town in the shadow of the Cathedral which is the most attractive he has seen to date. Its beauty lay in the stained glass windows which are still intact and which lend real color and charm, F. O. Thompson writes. Across the main street is a high narrow arch which evidently proves to be a major traffic obstacle, the flier says.

Rivalry between the services is not as bitter as some stories would indicate, he continues. Early in May he spent an afternoon on board a destroyer, on an invitation from one of his naval opposite numbers. He found it an interesting experience for it included a short cruise and dinner in the wardroom. F.O. Thompson describes them as a grand bunch of chaps who had seen considerable action.

"Since Christmas we have been busy in the extreme and lately I've been on duty as much as 20 out of the 24 hours. Finally our worthy M.O. stepped in, and naming six or seven of us, ordered us to take it easy. My section has increased considerably of late including two vans, one of which I use. It's not a bad bus and it seems quite normal to drive on the left now and shift gears with the left hand."

Lovely Furnishings

Although from the outside the Corvette Peterborough resembles a squat English bull dog, jutting out in ugly bulges on all sides, which are a menace to enemy attackers. It is a compact little vessel utilizing to the full, the space available. The furnishings are modern and attractive, due to the efforts of the citizens of Peterborough.

Each group of men has their own mess room. The officers eat together, the stokers have a separate dining room, as have the Ordinary Seamen. The tables have gleaming satin finish in a light wood and the benches made of the same material are covered with thick blue leather seat cushions. Each mess room has lockers around the side of the room. The wooden sections are finished in the same light wood and the loose section for shoes and other personal belongings is covered with a blue leather surface.

Special holders are reserved for the dishes in the mess rooms. They are painted white and have white metal guards in different shapes to hold the dishes steady when the going gets rough. A radio and victrola were standing in the Ordinary Seamen's mess and the piano donated by the Collegiate pupils was on display in the Communications mess. Heavy metal, watertight doors, opening about a foot from the floor, are spaced between each room.

Visitors also had the privilege of visiting the bridge and seeing the equipment used in each section of the corvette, although sailors courteously but firmly refused to explain the uses of certain items.

Wren Mechanics

Ship mechanics, one of the newest units in the Women's Royal Naval Reserve, are servicing and repairing invasion craft.

Welding, painting, ship construction and sign writing are some of the jobs handled by Wren ship fitters. At a combined operations depot known as H.M.S. Squid, where the first ship mechanics were sent, Wrens can be seen painting while perched on 30-foot masts, or removing davits from a blazing forge and shaping them on an anvil, or welding blow-torches to repair damaged plates.

Cassino Epitaph

Under the heading of "Obituary," the following item appeared in "The Maple Leaf," paper printed in Italy for Canadian troops. "The Cassino epitaph was written by the Allied Military Government in a statement which said: 'No civil affairs officer will be appointed for Cassino because there is nothing left to administer.'"

The town is just an empty shell and announcement warned former inhabitants that they would not be permitted to return. Sappers are now at work inside the town clearing up mines.

Dick Tracy

Canadian tankmen have a raft of stories to tell about the magnificent mutual co-operation that existed between them and the Indians they supported when the Gustav line was cracked. One of the best is told about the Indian who rushed out from his hiding place, attracted a tank officers attention and pointed to a rise of ground saying: "Me tracey; you boom, boom." The Canadian understood. The Indian went back to his vantage point, fired tracer bullets into the rise of ground and the tank pumped in plenty of High Explosive, blowing up a perfectly camouflaged German pillbox. The Indian rolled over in the grass, doubled up with boyish laughter.

Serving As Cook

SPR. JACK CLARK

With the Canadian Army in Italy: Spr. Jack Clark, formerly a stock-assistant with De Laval Co. in Peterborough enlisted in the Royal Canadian Engineers in July, 1942.

Leaving Canadian shores the same month he landed in England as a reinforcement early in August. On his arrival at the R.C.E. Reinforcement Camp he was sent to a special unit. After a year of travelling around England with his new unit he left for Italy via Sicily in November '43.

Shortly after his arrival he became, in the army sense of the word, a casualty and was sent to a Canadian General Hospital. His stay, however, was not long and he was sent through the normal military channels to a Reinforcement Camp again.

While waiting for his unit to recall him he was sent to Canadian Public Relations Unit, where he is now employed as an assistant cook.

His wife and their small son, Terry, are living at 298½ George street.

Flt. Lieut. T. G. Reid of Deloro, who was awarded the D.F.C along with 37 other airmen received the following citation It reads:

"During the past two years this officer has completed a large number of operational sorties, the majority of which have been on transport operations in support of the Army and Air Forces in North Africa, Sicily and Italy. He took part in both the landing of troops and supplies by air in the operations in Burma where despite adverse weather he showed the utmost determination to reach his objectives.

Engineers Did Job

When the Gustav and Hitler Lines went west and the Germans went north, the combat troops had practical proof of the invaluable aid rendered by highly trained members of the Royal Canadian Engineers. Biggest assignment at the moment is building, maintaining and improvement of roads, but additional responsibilities include construction and improvement of classification of bridges.

A recent achievement of one company is the Bailey which spans the Gari, work on which began the moment the Germans started pulling out.

For two nights before the enemy started their "strategic withdrawal" Lieut. John Pierce, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pierce, 492 Homewood avenue, went on individual recces, one eye on Hun movements and the other looking for trip wires and AP mines.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

15—Choice of Openings

YOUR HAND may contain the requirements for any of several different opening bids, and you must choose between them. Most frequent among these is a two-suiter, one containing two biddable suits. The accepted practice with these, if your hand is fairly strong, is to bid the longer suit first. Your partner will infer later, when he hears the other suit, that the first is at least as long as the other, probably longer. That will guide him in showing his preference for them.

If the suits are of equal length, the natural procedure is to bid the higher ranking one first. That is not so much for the purpose of showing it first, as for enabling you to show the lower one second. Take a hand containing two five-card suits, in spades and hearts. If you bid spades first, then when you bid hearts on your next turn, your partner can show heart preference by passing and spade preference by merely shifting from hearts to spades without raising the contract. If you had bid the hearts first, and then the spades at the level of two, he could favor spades by passing, but would have to lift the bid to three to show heart preference.

If one suit is two cards longer than the other, such as a six-card suit and a four-card suit, it is often well to bid the longer one twice before showing the shorter one.

When a hand contains three biddable suits, if one is of five cards, that usually is the best to show first. If they are three suits of four cards each, then the suit just below the singleton usually is the best to start with, as your partner is more likely to answer with that than any other, since more cards of it are out.

Some hands contain a choice between suit and No Trump. In these cases, if there is any suit which is not stopped, the suit bid is almost always the better selection. But if every suit is stopped, and especially if there are three cards in all side suits, with one of them containing a guarded king or twice-guarded queen, the No Trump will often pan out best.

When your hand justifies an opening bid of two, to proclaim game strength, that is nearly always the best call, especially if your strength is mainly in one or both major suits, Since it requires only ten tricks to make game in them and 11 in a minor suit.

There are times when the "principle of preparedness" makes it advisable to violate these rules. It applies especially when your hand is barely strong enough for an opening bid, and you fear your pair may get too high. Then you wish to find the right declaration at the lowest possible level. In such cases, if you have more than one suit to bid, favor the one which will make your partner's response easiest or your own next bid easiest.

If your suits are adjoining, such as spades and hearts, hearts and diamonds or diamonds and clubs, the higher should generally be bid first in such a hand, even if the lower is longer. If they are not adjoining, the one just below your shortest suit makes it easier usually. Sometimes it will even pay you to bid a three-card minor suit, more often clubs than diamonds. Figuring out your partner's most likely responses and what you will do about them will guide you in this problem.

Pre-Invasion Taxes Halifax

HALIFAX, June 7 — (CP) — Pre-invasion weeks saw the resources of this port strained to the limit to move the men and material overseas for the grand assault on Western Europe.

Censorship to-day allowed the news to be released of how troop and freight trains flowed into the city and freighters, transports and special invasion ships pointed their bows Britain-wards, sailing in large, heavily-protected convoys.

For weeks the whine of winches could be heard at almost every dockside as sweating stevedores worked at top speed to load ships and barges serving vessels in the stream because they could not find docking space. Gangways sagged under the continuous march of men in khaki, blue and grey piling into the great transports in seemingly endless numbers. Freight and passenger trains lined every rail in the ocean terminals, unloading more men and equipment into piers.

It all gave the waterfront workers the idea something special was in the offing.

"It can't be long now," said a boss stevedore. "I've never seen anything like this. It makes a guy wonder where it all comes from."

Men In Forces Require Change On Their Return

CAMPBELLFORD, June 7—(ENS)—War is a straightforward problem; people know the goal and they will reach it; they know the requirements; they know its appeal; but the collosal task that faces them comes after the armistice, according to Dr. Howard, principal of Albert College, Belleville, in his address to the Rotary Club Monday.

He spoke of the men and women returnin, war weary, sick, wounded, crabby broken, emotionally upset, while those here think in terms of themselves. They are stationary settled, he said. Fourteen thousand men can strike in an important industry because a foreman was refused holidays and they are giving their lives. The speaker emphasized the fact that a soldier or sailor or airman could not after four years come back and take the job he vacated when he enlisted years before. He was a junior then; now others have taken the promotions which he would have received had he stayed at home. In facing the problem, he declared, we must not forget that all men have a spiritual urge, that that urge is subject to direction, and the direction which the future world will take depends on whether we accept the Christian urge or the Nazi outlook on life.

"Our leaders endeavored to focus the attention of the world on this urge in the 4 Freedoms of the Atlantic Charter. Freedom of speech, when men can express themselves openly as they do in Hyde Park in the Motherland; Freedom to worship as we have it in our Empire with its 42 different religions, but where our souls are free."

He noted that it was not stomachs but souls that brought the Pilgrim Fathers to the new world. Freedom from want; want is unnecessary; it fathers unhappiness. A starving man is a dangerous man, and the world can supply all human needs. Dr. Howard expressed concern lest people forget about freedom from fear. A child has an instructive fear of the dark. Fear is necessary in order to prevent accident or injury or danger. Then there is the fear of corrupt courts, or fear of the conqueror, fear of the Gestapo or secret police. He said the problem of fear should be met openly by freedom of speech and the press with courage and forbearance so that Canada and the world will be free.

President Dr. Stewart spoke re the Rotary Club supervising the swimming beach at Villa Trent, and arrangements have been made to have a guard on duty there from 4 o'clock until 6 p.m. each day until July 1. After that the hours will be from 2 p.m. until 6 p.m. The parents are asked to co-operate.

Rotarian MacColl moved, seconded by Rotarian Arthur Loucks, and carried unanimously, that the secretary send the newly formed Kinsmen Club the regards of the Rotary Club and extend to them the hight hand of fellowship.

Rotarian Harry Ackerman of Belleville was present and introduced Dr. Howard to the Campbellford club.

Fighting Irishman From Bancroft Fixes Italian Clock In Half-hour

BY DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, June 7 — (CP) — The soldiers said it was too bad Tom O'Brien wasn't around this day. Tom, they said, was a long, droll Irishman of 33 who could tell you stories because he was the sort of fellow who got himself into places and situations that grow into stories.

Back in Bancroft, Ont., before 1939 he had wandered from one job to another, had been a farmer, trapper, hunter, tried his hand as a woodsman, worked as a gunsmith. They used to say the men got tougher the nearer their house got to the town limits and Tom lived in the last house.

With a lot of other Bancroft men he came overseas in 1939 with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and until he developed a new reputation in recent months the unit knew him best as the likeliest man around to fix your broken watch.

The O'Brien reputation reached its height the time the Regiment took a town and Tom took just half an hour to fix the huge town clock, something the Italians had been trying to do for days since the shelling put it out of commission.

A Keen Sniper

The O'Brien job as the Battalion moved along through Italy was that of a truck driver, but he kept going off by himself to do a bit of sniping on the side.

When the regiment formed a scout and snipers' platoon, Tom O'Brien left his truck for good. He brought along his own sniper's sight, one he had made himself in between fixing watches, and two revolvers he had acquired somewhere along the way. He carried them both when he went out on patrol.

His experiences were those of the other scouts and snipers, close brushes, long hours of watching and listening, sitting back at battalion headquarters waiting for new orders, but if anything happened to him it always had a Tom O'Brien touch.

Then in one spell of inactivity, he made a call on the Indians who were fighting in the same sector, went out on one of their patrols that night, carrying both revolvers as usual. They bumped a German position and Tom kept firing until ammunition had run out. Then, as a parting shot, he heaved one of his revolvers at the enemy and left for home.

There are a lot of Bancroft men with the M.P.E.'s to tell you about Tom O'Brien. Many of them have been overseas since 1939 and they include Capt. Stanley Walker; Sgt. W. E. Morris, already twice wounded; Pte. J. C. Neil, Sgt. N. C. Mooney, Cpl. E. Smith, Ptes. William and Gerald Fuller, brothers, Cpl. B. Crawford, Pte. J. B. Kelly, L.-Cpl. J. M. Milne and his brother, Sgt. J. G. Milne, Ptes. Dick and Fred Hennessey, cousins, Pte. Percy Palmateer, and Sgt. Ross Bullied, another scout, who comes from nearby Coe Hil, Pte. Gordon Crosby was killed by a mine.

MARMORA, June 7—(ENS)—The monthly meeting of the Deloro Safety Committee was held in the electric shop Monday afternoon.

Four suggestions were received during the past month and two of these were allotted an award. The Star went to the Stellite division. William Regan brought in the report of the inspection committee. F. Gray was appointed floating member for June and July. A Rice reported for the health and investigation committee.

The monthly statement of the benevolent relief funds was given by C. H. Buskard and J. H. Hemphill reported for the publicity. The drawing for the $50 Victory Bond was carried out during the session with Jack Aitchison's name being drawn.

DON'T TRAVEL UNLESS YOU HAVE TO!

You and your baggage clutter up a lot of space that our troops should have. They may be on their last leave. They may not have been home for a year and want to get there fast. If you take up the room they should have they either have to stand or, perhaps, not go at all.

So, give the Armed Forces a break. They're doing everything for us—let's do something for them and don't travel unless we have to.

PINCER DRIVE OF ALLIES CLOSING ON CHERBOURG

Italy Drive Gains Speed Beyond Rome

5th Army Advances 20 Miles Takes Bracciano

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, June 8—(AP)—The Allied 5th Army has captured Civitavecchia, Rome's principal port, 38 miles northwest of the capital, and today was thrusting swiftly up the west coast to maintain contact with the retreating enemy.

Other 5th Army units, speeding in a more northerly direction, captured the town of Bracciano, 20 miles north of Rome, on the west shore of the large lake of the same name. Still another column was last reported passing the lake on the east side, 15 miles north of Rome.

The Germans still appeared to be withdrawing in a bad state of demoralization, without any indication yet available as to when they might turn and attempt a determined stand.

An official spokesman declared "the battered remnants of the German 14th army are in a considerable state of disorganization. Upwards of 40 Wehrmacht formations are represented in the collection of prisoners taken in the exodus from Rome and beyond. Apparently even battalions are attaching themselves to whatever higher echelon is available."

Allied forces driving due north of Rome captured Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's former headquarters, about three miles southeast of Civita Castellana.

The headquarters, described as an "elaborate, tunnelled underground stronghold," was put under a strong guard.

The drive on Civita Castellana, about 25 miles northeast of Rome, made rapid progress along Highway 3 and an offical report that reconnaissance elements encountered some opposition west of the town indicated it might be by-passed first.

The British 8th Army, meanwhile, punched into the Tiber valley north of Rome and forged northward along the east banks of the river.

Reds Launch New Offensive

LONDON, June 8—(CP)—DNB in a Berlin broadcast today asserted that the Russians had launched an offensive on a broad front in the sector north of Iasi, Romania.

A broadcast Romanian communique said "heavy fighting is in progress.

There was no confirmation immediately from Moscow, but a new offensive on the Russian front has been expected to put new pressure on Germany's east while British and American forces are attacking in France and Italy.

Last night's Moscow communique said German attacks north of Iasi have "diminished considerably," indicating the Germans may have been stopped in a push which they announced earlier.

Gliders Unload Jeeps and Guns

By LEONARD MOSELY—Distributed by The Canadian Press

BEHIND THE ATLANTIC WALL, June 6—(Delayed).—I parachuted into Europe at 1 a.m. today, a half-hour after the first paratroopers had landed and 6½ hours before our sea-borne forces had stormed the beaches. The group which went in ahead of the unit with which I jumped was under orders to capture vital bridges before they could be blown up by the Nazis. It was our job to bring them aid and invest the whole area for 100 square miles around to prevent the Nazis from counter-attacking.

I knew the men in my plane well enough to know they realized how grim and tense their task was going to be, but except for a pulsing nerve in a face you got little indication of it as our plane, third in the formation, pointed for France.

Flak Was Heavy.

"Hook up your 'chutes," was the signal from the pilot. It was five minutes to one when the light snapped off and a hole in the plane was opened. Under it we could see the coast of France below—and a garish sight it was. For flak from the coast defences was spouting flame everywhere.

In great globes of red and purple it burst all around our plane as we coasted in and down to the dropping zone. Then we are all madly shuffling down the hole and jumping into space.

As I twisted down I looked for a church I had been told to spy for a landmark. But I came down in an orchard outside a farmhouse and I knew I was hopelessly lost.

I crawled forward through trees. Suddenly there was a rip and tear in my jumping frock and I flung myself to the groundd. Machine guns rattled and there were the smashing explosions of hand grenades. I decided to try and get away. I began to run at a crouch. Suddenly there were two more figures coming for me, carrying guns. There was a crash of Sten-gunfire and both were crumpled up not 15 yards from me

Regained Unit.

Into the farm field stealthily came five men to challenge me. And I was with our own paratroopers again.

We made our rendezvous at 3 a.m. after two long weary hours of wandering about the Nazi-infested country. I made my way to the bridges. Here the battle had ceased

Canadian Tanks In Action With Huns Beyond Bayeux

By ROSS MUNRO—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 8 — (CP Cable).—Canadian forces have made new advances and have cleaned up several more small country villages. Now they have pushed inland over the rich farmland and along the narrow macadam roads to points some miles from the coast.

From one area German infantry and guns are reported to be withdrawing in the face of persistent Canadian attacks.

Several hundred prisoners have been taken in this sector since the landing Tuesday, as well as batches of German vehicles.

And Canadian infantry and tanks are moving forward now.

Some squadrons have infantrymen riding on the hulls and turrets of their tanks while other infantry are rushing forward on bicycles.

The headquarters has jumped forward to keep up with the advance since original capture of the beaches.

Strength is building up rapidly in the Allied bridgeheads for the big battles which are expected to come any day now or even any hour.

Canadian infantry and armour have been in contact with elements of the German armored force, the 21st Panzer Division, but have not joined in any major action.

This slightly rolling country provides a perfect setting for tank fighting.

(Munro's reference to tanks was the first disclosure that Canadian armor was participating in the invasion.)

Key Cherbourg-Paris Railway Severed After Bayeux Town Captured; Drive To Isolate Cherbourg Peninsula

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8—(AP).—Supreme Headquarters announced today that the first phase of the invasion has been accomplished as Allied liberating troops struck out from captured Bayeux in fierce fighting and began the second step of defeating German tactical reserves thrown into battle.

A steady stream of reinforcements by sea and air strengthened the massive spearhead, and Berlin reported a pincers threat to seize the tip of the jutting Cherbourg peninsula and its great port of Cherbourg.

The first phase of invasion, "which might be said to be securing a foothold and defeating local German reserves, has been accomplished," Supreme Headquarters announced.

Third Task Still Ahead.

The Allies now are beginning the second stage of defeating Nazi "tactical reserves," and still ahead is the third task of crusing "strategic reserves" perhaps massing already for a strong counterblow.

Specific directions and progress in today's fighting were not disclosed, but headquarters announced that medium bombers had struck heavily at the town of Caen, 16 miles southeast of Bayeux, starting fires. The Allies have plunged near Caen, nine miles inland on the peninsula's base.

American heavy bombers in daylight blasted railway installations at Rennes, Laval, Tours, Le Mans, Nantes and Angers, in support of the beachhead forces, flying out 750 to 1,000 strong.

Claim Gliders Captured

A German broadcast, totally without confirmation, said 1,300 gliders used to rush in a huge air-borne army, had been destroyed or captured.

Capture of Bayeux cut the railway between Paris and Cherbourg, 45 miles to the northwest, and opened the way for a thrust deeper inland.

But farther west the Germans asserted Allied forces already were within 20 milts of a junction that would chok e off Cherbourg itself. Berlin declared house - to - house fighting raged in St. Mere-Eglise, 20 miles southeast of the port, and said parachutists had landed on the west coast only a score of miles southwest of Ste. Mere-Eglise.

There was no Allied confirmation of west coast landings or fighting at Ste. Mere-Eglise, one of the two main roads to Cherbourg.

Heavy battles, with tanks and reserves sped up by both sides, flared over the peninsula. Allied beachhead troops are linking up with air-borne forces dropped deeper inland, headquarters said, and improvement in adverse weather aided reinforcements from glider sky trains.

Towns Captured

Field reports said British and Canadian troops had captured a number of towns and villages, advancing on open roads to points some miles from the coast. Infantrymen rode up to battle on bicycles and tanks to speed the advance. The Canadians were reported to have moved inland and taken several hundred prisoners.

Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, in a dispatch dated with Canadian forces in France, said Canadain infantry and armor was pushing inland. He added the terrain was suitable for tank fighting. This was the first disclosure from an Allied source that Canadian tanks were in the Allied invasion area.

Tanks Widening Huge Bulge Beyond Coast

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN
Distributed by The Canadian Press

WITH THE ALLIED INVASION FORCES IN FRANCE, Jnue 8. — The so-called Atlantic wall along this coast constitutes the biggest bluff of the whole war, for it simply does not exist. Some prisoners said the Germans had been frantically tiying to complete defences, but the task had been too vast for them.

Although we have pushed far inland without encountering serious opposition, it must not be imagined that the Germans will not react as soon as they have grouped their panzer forces.

They tried to hold us in the region of Caen and Bayeux, but our tanks were in greater force. We have thrown into battle British and American tanks and self-propelled guns.

Some of these actions have been responsible for demoralizing the enemy. All the French people with whom I have talked spoke of the Nazi loss of courage. They may not be beaten, but they are near to it.

Expect Defeat.

Prisoners also said the defeats in Russia and Italy are known to the rank and file and they realize it is all up with their cause.

Our tanks are rapidly widening a great bulge.

I have just completed a tour of the front line covering nearly 30 miles. We have captured towns and villages and the whole countryside is beflagged with Union Jacks, Stars and Stripes, and the French Tricolor.

Crowds are cheering the British and other troops shouting, "Bravo, Tommies, we knew you would come. We have been aiting for you. Now we will kill those hated Germans."

Bayeux inhabitants were crazy with joy. A squadron of our medium bombers flew over Crowds

Powerful Air Fleet Roars Out To Support Invaders

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8—(AP)—A powerful force of 750 to 1,000 American heavy bombers swept a wide arc of south Normandy early today, smashing bridges, airdromes and railroad yards and junctions in a vigourous effort to clamp an air seal on the beachhead battlefield.

R.A.F. and Canadian heavy bombers had pounded targets in the invasion area and also struck Cologne during the night.

Some 750 A.A.F. and Canadian bombers during the night pounded tactical targets in the invasion theatre and R.A.F. night raiders also struck at Cologne and mined enemy waters.

While the daylight heavies hit hard at installations from 100 to 150 miles behind the front, medium bombers carried out a dawn attack on Caen, which left the city on the main railway between Cherbourg to Paris with at least 20 fires burning.

In the night strikes a series of rail targets near Paris and German transport 12 miles behind the invasion coast, were riddled with bombs. The transport target was a concentration in the forest of Cerisy where the road runs from Bayeux to St. Lo. The air ministry said the Cerisy wood target was of great tactical importance.

The latest compilation showed a total of 174 German planes had been destroyed since the invasion began. The last tabulation showed the Allies had lost 177 aircraft during the same period but Supreme Headquarters was not attempting to keep an up-to-the-minute tabulation and was leaving the announcement of losses to the individual commands.

Nazi night fighters shot down 29 of the R.A.F. night bombers, four of them Canadian.

Bangkok City Badly Damaged

KANDY, Ceylon, June 8.—(AP).—Strong forces of heavy bombers dealt Bangkok, Thailand capital, "its heaviest blow of the war" three days ago, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

The bombers despite bad weather pressed home widespread attacks on railway shops and marshalling yards, the communique said.

"The city's defences apparently were caught by surprise as the formations converging on the target at a great height from all angles dropped a record tonnage of demolition and incendiary bombs on this important Japanese port."

In the ground fighting reports indicated the Japanese 31st Division in the Kohima sector was running short of ammunition, food and medical supplies as a result of poor communications Japanese tank and sniper attacks were reported in the sector southwest of the Imphal Plain, however.

WAR BULLETINS

750 Bombers Lash Invasion Area

LONDON: Approximately 750 R.A.F. heavy bombers hammered military targets in France last night, mostly in and around the Normandy battle area, it was announced today. The Canadian bomber group formed part of the force.

Bayeux Captured, Troops Drive Inland

LONDON: The Allied communique said today that Bayeux has fallen to troops which also have crossed the Bayeux-Caen road at several points. "Progress continues despite determined enemy resistance. Fierce armored and infantry fighting has taken place. Contact has been established between our sea-borne and air-borne troops."

• • • •

Allies Hope To Isolate Peninsula

LONDON: The German High Command asserted today that the Allies had launched an attack to the southwest—in a direction that would cut off Cherbourg—from their bridgehead between Bayeux and Caen and that heavy fighting was in progress with the Germans throwing reserves into counter-attacks.

• • • •

Canadians Breach Hun Defences

LONDON: Canadian forces taking part in the Allied invasion of France have breached the enemy's outer defences, taken several hundred prisoners, and are moving inland, it was learned in reports to Supreme Headquarters today.

Churchill May Go To France

LONDON, June 8—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill warned the House of Commons today to guard against "over optimism" in the Battle of Europe and against "the idea that these things are going to be settled in a rush."

"Although great dangers lie behind," he declared, "enormous exertions lie before us."

The stream of news from invasion reporters temporarily deprived Mr. Churchill, once a journalist himself, of one of the roles he likes best—that of being able to give a first hand account of major developments — and he said he did not plan to make any statement on the invasion battles during the day "unless something exceptional turns up."

The Prime Minister said that all points which occurred to him had been fully met "in the excellent reports furnished by our able and upright press."

"If this is the last time I speak to the House before the week-end," he added, "I earnestly hope that when the members go to their constituencies they will not only maintain morale so far as that is necessary but will also give strong warnings against over-optimism."

Mr. Churchill was asked by Sir Joseph Lamb, Conservative, for an assurance "that the reason he is not going to make a statement in the immediate future is not that he is going to make a visit to the coast of France."

There was no reply.

Eisenhower Very Confident

Lauds Navy For Magnificent Job

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8—(AP). — Gen. Eisenhower declared to-day his "complete confidence in the ability of the Allied Armies, Navies, and Air Forces to do all they are asked to do has been completely justified."

"In the early landing operations which are always naval, the two Allied Navies— together with elements of Navy units of the United Nations — under Admiral Ramsay have excelled in the high standard of their planning and their execution, any prior venture in which I have seen them engaged,' Gen. Eisenhower said.

"The long and brilliant campaign conducted in the past month by the combined Air Forces, including the commands of Air Chief Marshal Harris, Gen. Spaatz and Air Chief Marshal Leigh Mallory, was an essential preliminary to the undertaking of the operation and has proved its effectiveness by the fact that the landing was made as planned. Their good work is continuing.

"Gen. Montgomery is in immediate and direct charge of all the assault ground forces. Nnder him all the troops are performing magnificently."

Hamilton Fire Deliberately Set

HAMILTON, June 8—(CP)—Police officials said today their investigation showed that the Moose Hall fire May 24 in which 10 persons died started when the burlap covering an old chair in the cloakroom of the main hall was deliberately set afire. The flames spread so rapidly up the stairway in the building that dancers on the second floor were trapped.

The disclosure came shortly before the opening of a coroner's inquest into the tragedy and a day after the arrest of Douglas Alfred Dunsmoog, 24-year-old dairy employee, on a charge of murder in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Martin, 35, one of the victims of the fire.

Invasion Copy Being Pooled For Canadian Newspapers

Headquarters of The Canadian Press announced today that all invasion stories written by Canadian war correspondents was being pooled. This copy includes that written by those of the independent newspapers. The stories are transmitted direct from London to Washington for distribution and from Toronto The Canadian Press is sending to the Examiner over its direct wires all the copy from the independent correspondents. The correspondents whose copy is being pooled are Munro and Stewart of Canadian Press; Ralph Allen, Globe and Mail; Sharpist of MacLeans; Halton and Ouimet of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and Jerry Clark of United Press. All these men are now in France.

Greater Battle Looming

Huns Moving Mobile Reserves To Front

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP).—The full weight of German counter-attack in Normandy is still to come, War Secretary Henry Stimson said to-day, but invading troops have established beachheads at various points between the mouth of the Seine and the Contentin Peninsula, and some of these beachheads have been united.

Local counter-attacks have developed, particularly in the vicinity of Caen, the secretary old a news conference, but the Nazi High Command undoubtedly is just beginning to move its mobile reserves, and "we must look for the full fury of savage counter-attacks in force at an early moment."

"It would be folly," he said, "to believe that the period of counter-attack will be short.

"Conditions will be changing from day to day, and it will be to our own good to avoid excesses of optimism or pessimism."

Stimson, said that apparently a tactical surprise had been achieved by the landings, despite the obvious preparations being made by the Allies and the continuing speculation on the date and place of the invasion.

Nazis Beat Up Women During Retreat

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A BRITISH PORT, June 8—(CP Cable)—Men who saw the show—Tommies brought down by German mortars, American soldiers whose ships dodged shells offshore—said today what the communiques are saying: "Everything went according to plan."

Here in this port early today, where ships loaded with reinforcements pass empty vessels coming back, we got the story from haggard, unshaven men of the great work of the Allied navies. Soldiers in bloodstained battle dress were loud in their praise of the Navy.

It was a general buck-passing. An American petty officer said: "The British did a wonderful job of minesweeping. It was nothing after that."

A British army sergeant said: "The navy silenced shore guns—it was easy after that. Our platoon was making good progress but we heard Canadians up the beach were making out even better."

A British naval officer said: "The Johnnies on shore put the shore batteries out of action."

"I hated to leave my company," said a bearded, begrimed Lancashire sergeant. "Our C.O. and four company commanders were killed. I was in charge. Then I got it.

"I had to leave a corporal with my men but we got in two miles in the first rush. A French woman rushed down to talk to the troops and one old woman came crying that the Jerries had beaten her up before they left. She had two black eyes."

Another Tommy said sand dunes were obstacles. The Nazis hid behind them and sniped at the men. They also threw mortar shells from the basements of houses wrecked by bombs.

All the wounded cheerfully said they'd go back if and when they got the chance.

So far no Canadian wounded have been brought back to this port.

Weather Improving

The weather is definitely improving, it was announced here, but unloading on the beaches had to be halted at times yesterday because of rough waters. The lost time was almost made up by "superhuman efforts on the part of the landing craft crews," a spokesman said.

It was said the capture of Bayeux, a key road and rail junction between Caen and Cherbourg, was particularly important because troops advancing inland there "have no rivers to cross as the rivers run north and south."

The Drome River near the town provides a route that would help sever the peninsula and isolate the great port of Cherbourg—needed by the Allies to bring in heavy guns and equipment.

The French in Bayeux hysterically greeted the Allied soldiers with shouts of "on to Paris."

The Germans, declaring the Allies were making a supreme effort to capture all of Normandy in order to control the port of Cherbourg, said airborne landings were made yesterday at Falaise and Argetan, some 40 miles inland, with troops landing from 300 planes and gliders.

Supreme Headquarters made no mention of any landings this deep inside the Continent, but returning fliers this morning said there appeared to be street fighting in Falaise— William the Conqueror's birthplace and the capital of his Normandy.

For the third straight night airborne troops dropped in great clouds. Jeeps, motorcycles, and anti-tank guns were flown in to support the airborne attack—which means that the Allies either had captured an airfield in France or built one.

German Field-Marshal Erwin Rommel, once aagin contending with his old and victorious foe, General Montgomery, threw an increasing number of tanks into his checking battles, but the Allies also were rolling lines of armor ashore and into the raging fighting back from the coast.

Both French natives and German prisoners revealed Hitler and Rommel recently toured Atlantic wall in the very area where the Allies attacked.

Rocket-firing Ships.

The Allied Command permitted announcement that rockett-firing ships were used to pound the landing beaches ahead of troops.

"This was the first secret development learned from the Dieppe raid to be announced," a Headquarters officer said. "There will be others later."

A continuing stream of German broadcasts included reports of the house-to-house fighting in the village of Ste. Mere-Eglise, near the eastern shore of the Cherbourg Peninsula; that the Germans had driven British parachute troops from the village of Varville, east of the Orne River, and that British tank forces last night were driving south along both banks of the Seulles River, which strikes between Caen and Bayeux.

Aside from Bayeux and Caen, Supreme Headquarters gave no place names to locate the invasion battles, but a constant stream of Berlin broadcasts, none of them confirmed, reported Allied attacks all the way from the Calais area directly across the Dover Strait from England to the lower western coast of the Brittany Peninsula far to the south-west.

It was announced officially here that airborne operations "on a very large scale" throughout Wednesday ferried new contingents of troops, supplies, and equipment to invadmiles northeast of Rome, and the same distance northwest of Tivoli, and the nearby towns of Sant' Angelo, Romano, Guidonia and Mentana. Guidonia is valuable because it has an airfield.

Farther to the east the 8th Army captured Subiaco, about eight miles south of the main highway running across the Italian peninsula from Rome to the Adriatic, and stabbed up on a lateral road which had been one of the main German lines of retreat.

Around Subiaco enemy tanks and infantry put up a stiff scrap and the line of advance for armored units was held to the road, which was cratered by demolitions. The villages of Venne and Vallepietra were occupied in this area.

Enemy transport withdrawing toward Avezanno in the Apennines from Balsorano was shelled heavily, and 11 German Mark V Panther tanks were found. Some of these had broken down and they were set afire by the Germans.

Near the Adriatic flank, 8th Army troops followed the withdrawing Germans, gaining two or three miles to reach the outskirts of the towns of Barrea, Pescocostanzo and Rivisondoli in the direction of Sulmona, birthplace of the Roman poet Ovid.

Valuable Port.

Capture of Civitavecchia, population of which is approximately 36,000, gives the Allies a valuable port, which has been enlarged greatly in recent years.

Between 250 and 500 heavy bombers yesterday pounded rail lines on the French Riviera, the port of Livorno, the Voltri shipyards west of Genoa, and the Savona rail yards.

Fighter-bombers continued to hammer the retreating enemy columns, destroying or damaging at least 384 vehicles. The advance to Civitavecchia brought the advance guard of the 5th Army to within 115 miles of Florence and 120 miles of Livorno.

The Mediterranean air force flew more than 1,800 sorties yesterday, during the course of which medium bombers hit rail and road bridges in the west coastal areas north of Rome. Three aircraft were listed as missing.

Itching, Burning, Stinging Eczema or Salt Rheum

Eczema, or salt rheum as it is commonly called, is one of the most painful of all skin troubles.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to heat, or the hands placed in hot water are most unbearable, and relief is gladly welcomed.

The relief offered by Burdock Blood Bitters is based on the knowledge that such ailments as eczema, and other skin troubles, are caused by an impure blood condition.

Bring about inner cleanliness by using B. B. B. to help cleanse the blood of its impurities.

Wandering Cat Causes 3 Deaths

KAPUSKASING, Ont., June 8—(CP).— Three men were killed yesterday and five others injured because a cat walked on the rails on the Smoky Line of the Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company north of here.

They were among 10 railway employees hurled into a heap of rocks and debris when the cat on the tracks caused a railway motor speeder pulling a lorry to jump the rails. Two men were killed instantly and a third died before reaching here.

The dead are George Nattress, married, and a railway foreman, Alphonse Lavigne, who was to have been married next Monday, and a married man named Gilbert.

and both the river and canal spans were in our hands and firmly held by paratroop machine gunners.

We had taken the Nazis by surprise, but they knew what was happening now and we could expect their tanks at any moment.

Then at 3.20 a.m. every Allied paratrooper behind the Atlantic wall breathed a sigh of relief as he heard the roar of bombers. Bombers coming in slow. Bombers towing gliders toward the dropping ground. We watched them in the pale moonlight and glare of flack, unhooking and then diving steeply for the earth.

We saw one hit by ack-ack catch fire and fly around for three or four minutes, a great ball of flame. We heard the crunch of breaking wood as gliders bounced on rocks. But it was hard to restrain the impulse to cheer, for out of every glider men were pouring, with jeeps and anti-tank guns and field guns, and we knew that even if Nazi tanks did come we could hold them now.

409 Awarded Honors In Latest List

LONDON, June 8 — (CP) — Distinction gained in various fields of endeavour by men and women in all parts of the Empire was recognized yesterday by their inclusion in the King's birthday honors list. For his service as British Ambassador to Washington Viscount Halifax was created to Earl.

Members of the Canadian Armed Forces received 409 honors, 79 of which went to the Royal Canadian Navy, 178 to the Army and auxiliaries and 152 to the R.C.A.F.

The distinctions were awarded not only for individual acts of courage, such as that displayed by Cmdr. Owen Connor Robertson of Halifax—but also for the faithful performance of duty by airmen flying from east coast bases to protect Atlantic convoys.

A Companionship in the Order of the Bath was awarded Maj.-Gen. R. O. Alexander, Inspector-General for western Canada for the Canadian Army.

A dozen members of the R.C.A.F. were awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses for anti-submarine work on the north Atlantic, and citations covering their awards gave a vivid picture of their important task.

Senior officers whose work had aided in the development of the R.C.A.F. and the British Commonwealth Air Training plan also received recognition in the list. Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop, Director of Recruiting, was made a Companion of the Order of the Bath, as was Air Vice-Marshal E. W. Steadman of Ottawa, Director-General of Research.

(The Canadian list, for the first time, included no civilian awards as such. The government had decided to refrain from recommending further awards of orders ofchivalry for civilians for the duration of the war, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said last December in commenting on the last New Year's Honors List.

(Since the, the Canada Medal has been created as a Distinctive Canadian Order, but it is not considered likely this distinction will be awarded during wartime.)

behind the German lines have made contact with the forces which went ashore from the naval invasion armada, the communique said.

Canadian paratroopers—trained at Fort Benning, Ga., and Shilo, Man.—were among the Allied forces dropped by the thousand behind the formidable coastal defences. The Germans have claimed many British and American paratroopers and airborne troops have been captured but 9,000 sorties yesterday, bombing and have not mentioned Canadians.

Allied air forces flew more than strafing the enemy from the Normandy beachheads to 100 miles inside France. German reserves moving toward the battle scene were particular targets.

The enemy-controlled Vichy radio declared Marshal Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt had told his German troops to defend the Atlantic wall "to the last man," but nevertheless Berlin broadcasts conceded that in three days the Allies had steadily expanded the invasion bridgeheads—which Axis sources said stretched from Valognes, near the tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, to a point north of Caen.

A communique last night indicated a battle was in progress for Caen, 18 miles southeast of Bayeux and nine miles from the sea, but this morning's announcement made no further reference to the town.

Returning Allied fliers said Caen was burning. A German tank column counter-attacked in that area late Tuesday, but headquarters said the thrust was repulsed.

Supreme headquarters announced today Allied troops had crossed the miles from the French invasion coast also was attacked.

Many of the big night sky raiders bombed their targets from the almost unprecedently low level of 1,000 feet. One heavy piloted by PO. E. W. Andrew of Collingwood, Ont., made an attack from 900 feet and was bounced about by the force of its exploding bombs.

"There was a good deal of flak and my reargunner, FO. T. Bridgman of Toronto, managed to get in some burst at a gun battery after the bombing run," said Andrew.

One of the targets of the heavy night bombers was a German troop concentration in the area of a northern France beachhead. It was not known if the Canadian group worked this particular target but it was out in strength in the general assault on the invasion coast.

No details were available on the Germans' air activity over the invasion beaches, although Supreme Headquarters described the enemy formations as small.

The Allied communique did not furnish a figure on the total Allied losses in the air, but an unofficial recapitulation indicated the Germans had lost 122 planes in the last two days while the Allies had lost 119, including 12 troop carriers and 12 gliders.

The heavy-bomber attack on the German troop concentration in the beachhead area was made in response to an urgent appeal from the ground forces.

Tank Refuelling Base.

Reconnaissance planes had spotted the target carefully during the daylight and the big night bombers were able to saturate it with explosives The place was believed to have been a key refuelling point for German tank units opposing extension of the Allied beachheads.

Naval aircraft both British and American, flew 870 sorties yesterday mostly spotting for naval gunfire.

Allied heavy bombers with powerful fighter escorts soared out twice yesterday, and in the second attack late in the afternoon blistered an enemy airfield northwest of Lorient as well as railway bridges and strong points in the area extending from the Bay of Biscay to the Seine.

The escorting fighters shot down 64 enemy aircraft in combat and not a single Nazi pilot managed to get at the bomber formations.

As the Germans tentatively began to attack the beaches, a formation of R.A.F. Spitfires sailed into a bunch of Junkers 88's and knocked down eight. American fighters bagged 10 Messerschmitt 109's.

This pattern of the Allied air attack as the weather began improving over France followed that which had been built up during the last eight weeks, with the planes having the additional task of providing close support for the advancing ground troops.

Allied planes of every type have harried the Nazi lines of communications into the Cherbourg Peninsula and blasted out the Germans' secret stores in missions designed to slow down defensive operations as much as possible.

Canadian Navy Aids Invasion

OTTAWA, June 8—(CP). — Four destroyers, two auxiliary cruisers, some 20 corvettes, at least two flotillas of minesweepers, at least two flotillas of motor torpedo boats and landing craft represented the Royal Canadian Navy in the invasion of Western Europe, Cmdr. Peter MacRitchie said yesterday in a broadcast from the United Kingdom.

He named specifically the destroyers Haida, Huron, Sioux and Algonquin and the auxiliary cruisers Prince David and Prince Henry. The corvettes, he said, carried "such well-known names as Alberni, Calgary, Prescott and Mimico."

(In addition to the two cruisers MacRitchie mentioned in the broadcast, carried by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, another correspondent with the naval invasion forces said he saw the Prince Robert, an anti-aircraft cruiser of the R.C.N.)

Algonquin, Cmdr. MacRitchie said, was assigned to convoying and protecting the headquarters ship which carried the commanding officers and staff officer of the central force.

There can be little doubt, he said, that the Canadian ships "acquitted themselves nobly." The minesweepers, he added, along with their fellows of the Royal Navy, probably played the greatest—if most unostentatious part in the Allied assault.

Women To Face Compulsory Job Transfers

OTTAWA, June 8—(CP)—Extension of compulsory job transfer orders to women is expected to be the major point in a three point manpower plan to be announced by Labor Minister Mitchell in a nation-wide radio address tonight.

Last night the 15-minute address, reviewing the country's manpower needs, which now are at their peak, and outlining the approach planned to meet them, was undergoing final revision, it was learned.

Senior Labor department and National Selective Service officials declined to comment on the announcement the Minister would make, but from Vancouver came a statement from Maj. J. B. Cowell, Regional Selective Service Director, who said women would be included in transfer orders and a new "loan" system introduced to meet some labor shortages.

Arthur MacNamara, Director of National Selective Service, said in an interview with The Canadian Press May 25 that a three-way attack was being planned to meet manpower needs. He said the program would include personal interviews with men who have been rejected as physically unfit for military service; and on-the-spot survey of plants to combat labor hoarding, and an extension of compulsory transfer orders.

It is estimated there now are more than 200,000 women in war industries and about 695,000 in civilian industry.

Canadian Tank

If the Canadian tanks fight these Panzers they will meet first-class German soldiers and troops more skilled than those they met manning the defences through which the Canadians broke on the coast.

The Canadians in this sector are using hundreds of amphibious ducks—trucks which can operate in the water or on land—to take stores and ammunition from big ships offshore right up the line. Jeeps also are being used more extensively than ever.

The Canadian sector is heavily mined and many big 10-acre fields with lush green crops are death traps for unwary soldiers. You have to watch carefully for booby traps and trip wires wherever you go.

A Few Snipers

In some inland towns, the Germans, before withdrawing, did thorough jobs of booby-trapping houses and buildings and it is taking sappers hours of work to clear them up.

A few German snipers still held out in coast towns in this region after the assault had swept through the coast defences and passed on inland. They were a worry for a while but now the situation is under control and you don't have to keep your eyes peeled when you go through these towns.

Canadian casualties from the first day's fighting have all been evacuated by ship to Canadian General Hospitals in England. The total of these first day casualties was about one-third of that anticipated in planning for the operation.

Twenty-five more German prisoners are going through this town in which we are located at the time of writing this. They were soldiers in charge of an ammunition dump and gave themselves up to a Canadian patrol. Their truck, loaded with ammunition, was with them as they went to the beach.

He has two other brothers on active service in Italy, Cecil and Francis Woodcock. He leaves to mourn, his parents in Bancroft and his wife and three children, who reside in Trenton

Rodney's Guns Dislodge Nazis

By EVERETT GILANDER
Distributed By The Canadian Press

ABOARD H.M.S. SCORPION, June 8.—Strongly reinforced German detachments pinned down advanced Allied units in this area last evening and threw them out of two localities by determined counter-attacks

From the bridge of this destroyer I watched the great British battlewagon H.M.S. Rodney move majestically to a point directly opposite the threatened area. Her big 16-inch guns began to belch smoke and fire. The force of the concussions pressed against our faces and shook this ship like a terrier as scores of 2,000-pound shells hurtled into the German strong points.

The British cruiser H.M.S. Mauritious and the Norwegian destroyer Stord joined the attack at the request of the armed forces. They bombarded the houses on the coast. I watched the shell bursts creep up the beach. When the ships found the range, they poured hundreds of shells into the houses until they were enveloped in smoke and dust.

Then British troops advanced through the shell holes and recaptured the localities they had lost.

"That is what frightened the German most," the French folk said. "They scurried underground like rabbits whenever your fliers came over. During the last few days before the invasion, your air attacks were terrific. We could read fear on the faces of the Germans."

Driving into Bayeux, the first French town of consequence to be liberated, I passed long lines of German prisoners. On the roadside the bodies of German and Allied dead lay unburied. For the moment, every man was needed for fighting.

Sullen German Prisoners Reach England

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A BRITISH PORT, June 8. — (CP Cable.)—Hitler's blitz boys who dreamed of invading Britain came to England to-day—not under the swastika but in an Allied landing craft returning from the French coast.

As prisoners the Wehrmacht warriors were a sorry, sullen, shabby crew, more pathetic than ferocious.

While we watched from the dock three ships in less than an hour brought in their prisoners—soldiers in grey-green, mostly wearing tank corps insignia, merchant marine men in worn civvies and E-boat crews in navy blue.

None of them showed much fight here on the other side. When someone shouted to a ship, "Where did you pick them up?" a Scottish petty officer called back: "We got them on the beaches. They rounded themselves up and begged us to take them."

A wounded British Tommy we talked to later said just about the same thing

"The Jerries were hiding in houses on the beach—but after our bombers went over and gave them such a pounding they came out and surrendered in droves," he said. "They didn't seem interested in fighting once we got well into the beaches."

Many Very Young

They either were too young or too old—lads on the verge of teens, silver-haired German daddies seemingly tired of it all.

A handful of officers looked like the Hollywood conception of the same. They were arrogant, firm-jawed Prussians and stood out among their comrades.

"They came to stay," said a British soldier, and most of them looked it. They were carrying full kit—water bottles, mess kits, tin helmets, rations. Some of them had blankets. Many wore iron crosses.

When they came on the dock they looked well ed enough but their uniforms looked threadbare. They did not talk to each other as they stood at ease.

"They either are well-trained, scared stiff or completely exhausted," said a British officer. "I interviewed one of them Tuesday night, the first to come through this port. He was damn glad to get out of it and I dare say these aren't too unhappy."

It sounds strange to hear that from December to March is the very hot season of the year. In that desert country with the mountains in the background, sand storms are prevalent and rain falls about once in seven years. They never need a fire, never wear a coat, and the conditions of life are just the opposite to those Canadians know.

Mr. and Mrs. Balderson and Donald speak Spanish. There are about one hundred families of Anglo-Saxon race and the company hire a teacher from the United States to teach the children. There is only the Roman Catholic church there and the services are in English as well as Spanish. Mrs. Balderson and Donald left today for Toronto to visit her sister there.

Addresses were given by Miss M. Clarke of Toronto, Mrs. Holmes of Belleville and Mrs. H. Wicks of Cobourg. Contributions to the lighter side of the programme were made by Miss Etheland Skill of Cobourg, vocalist; a skit by the Wicklow and Vernonville Girls' Club; piano solo by Shirley Ralls of Cobourg and a chorus by Grade 9 girls of Cobourg Collegiate Institute, conducted by Mrs. Littice Bingham. The report of Mrs. N. Carruthers, chairman of the Courtesy Committee, concluded the meeting.

SEASON SEQUENCE

A Polish proverb describes the seasons as: spring is a virgin summer is a mother, autumn a widow and winter a step-mother.

VITAL CONSIDERATION

Diet was linked to malaria by the discovery that chickens and ducks deficient in the vitamin biotin develop a more serious type of malaria than do fowl on a normal diet.

ALL THE Extra VITAMINS AND MINERALS ... SHE NEEDS

Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight, and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins and minerals.

But don't worry about vitamins and minerals! Children who eat 3 average-good meals including fruit juice, and drink 2 glasses of Ovaltine each day, are getting all the extra vitamins and minerals they need.

In addition to its well-balanced food values, Ovaltine adds significant amounts of Vitamins A, $B_1$, and D and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron. So, if your child is not developing normally, remember this rule:

3 good meals plus 2 glasses of Ovaltine every day.

Breaching The Atlantic Wall

The Allied invasion forces have breached Hitler's Atlantic Wall at one point so thoroughly that even conservative military men describe the operation as a complete success. It will not be surprising if our forces seek to breach the wall at one or more other points. Allied ships have been sailing up and down the Channel in a meaningful manner for the past forty-eight hours, just to keep the Nazis guessing. Perhaps when the Germans have concentrated heavy forces in the Cherbourg-Le Havre area, landings will be made somewhere else.

It is possible, of course, that the Normandy invasion is the main thrust, but it is by no means certain. If the Germans bring great numbers of their thinly scattered troops to that point, and then find that the Allies are invading in even greater force somewhere else, they will be in an unenviable state of confusion. The Allies might well make landings in two or three other places, developing each breach to the full, and concentrating on whichever one seemed most promising.

The Norman peninsula is a splendid point of attack, for it has one of the finest harbours in the world at Cherbourg, it commands a railway line to Paris, and it has an excellent terrain for airfields and troop movements.

It has been estimated that the Germans have three-quarters of a million men in France, and in one body that would make up a formidable force. But if it has to be split up to fight on two or more points on the Channel, and on the Mediterranean coast also, it will not be adequate for the job. An attack in the Rhone Valley section, from the Mediterranean, would embarrass the Germans acutely, and we must remember that there is a large French army nearby, which would like nothing better than to fight on the soil of its homeland.

The next three months will be full of surprises. Four years ago we waited every day for bad news from Europe, telling us of new German blows and advances. Now our forces are making a return journey, and their start has been most auspicious. But it is only a start. The big surprises are yet to come.

Has Premier Drew Done Foolishly?

On Sunday morning last the Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart of this city attacked Premier Drew's policy of religious education in the schools, in a forceful sermon. Dr. Smart is well-known to be one of the most brilliant younger men in the Presbyterian Church on this continent and it is unfortunate that his acceptance of a very important post in the service of his Church in the United States will shortly rob Peterborough of his presence. But we think that he has become unduly alarmed about the Premier's decision; he has quoted the words which the prophet Samuel used against Saul, "Thou hast done foolishly". Has Premier Drew done foolishly? We are not convinced that he has done as foolishly as Dr. Smart thinks.

The Premier's policy has been condemned by those who see danger to freedom of thought in schools which lose their secular character. It has been condemned by those who insist that the place for religious training is in the home. Dr. Smart condemns it because he says that the Government of Ontario is attempting to usurp the place of the Church as the expounder of Christianity, and as the arbiter of what is necessary to Christian belief. Frankly, we do not think that the Government has any such intention. We think that it presents its religious teaching in school as an auxiliary to church instruction, and as a means of reaching a great many children who do not get any religious or ethical instruction at all. No Church can compel a child to learn; a school can do so with very little trouble.

Dr. Smart has said that the instruction to be offered in the schools will be ethical in character and not specifically Christian. Is this not wise? Christianity is both ethical and mystical in its character, and about its ethical tenets there is little disagreement. But that is not true of the mystical and doctrinal side of the Christian faith. Premier Drew can satisfy the Protestant churches on matters of ethics, but no man living could reconcile the doctrinal beliefs of the fifteen odd Protestant sects which have adherents in this Province, and the Premier is wise not to try. Let the children learn Christian ethics in school, he says, and let them learn the particularities of their parents' faith in their parents' church. Dr. Smart has said that he has heard responsible people who are to have a part in the new program of religious teaching scoffing at the teaching of Christian doctrine, declaring such teaching to be unnecessary; if that is so we are sure that Premier Drew would be very interested to learn the names of the scoffers, and we do not think they would scoff again. But how many of them is Dr. Smart prepared to name?

We have said before in these columns that the Department of Education was ill-advised to hurry its scheme of religious education into the schools by next September. It is out of the question that a program so hastily clapped together should be satisfactory; it would be far better, as Dr. Smart suggests, to prepare the official course and then submit it to a representative group of churchmen for criticism. Religion is the most controversial of all subjects and there is nothing to be gained, and much to be lost, by alienating the churches, or sections of the churches, from the Government plan. In his haste it may be that Premier Drew has done foolishly. But in suggesting that the Premier seeks to provide a Government religion divorced from the churches we are sure that Dr. Smart does him a serious injustice. The strength of the Philistines in our midst grows apace, and if Samuel tarries, Saul must make what shifts he can.

The Montreal Riots

Reports come from Montreal of serious riots in which members of the armed forces and a group described as "zoot-suiters and drugstore cowboys" have staged pitched battles in the streets. One account tells of 400 sailors invading restaurants and clubs, beating up civilians whom they thought undesirable. Until more evidence is available, it is impossible to say which side in the quarrel gave first provocation, but a fight which needs 100 policemen to quell it is of unusual interest and significance.

It is not unlikely that zoot-suiters and drugstore cowboys are irritating to members of the forces. But it would be fatal to encourage the idea that members of the forces may beat up people whom they do not happen to like. In wartime the fighting man is always admired and respected, as is his due; but there is also a tendency among weak-minded members of the populace to imagine that soldiers and sailors are enfranchised ruffians, and that they have an authority above that of the law of the land. This idea must be put down with the utmost ruthlessness, or the forces will get a name for disorderly conduct, and that could be harmful in many ways.

The whole world has been in a state of acute nervous irritation for five years, and it is one of the symptoms of that irritation that rioting, race prejudice, sex-crimes and other evidences of a disordered society appear to be on the increase. Race-riots in Detroit, and later in Boston; anti-Semitic fights in Boston and the burning of a synagogue in Quebec; furious riots in Montreal between service men and civilians—these are all part of a pattern of lawless and undemocratic conduct which could be expanded by any newspaper reader.

Whatever may be wrong with a section of the youth of Montreal it is not the job of sailors and soldiers to set it right. The occasional fight between fighting men and civilians is understandable and unavoidable. But an organized search for people to beat up by 400 sailors is a very different matter. If the situation is not cleared quickly we must expect to see a very ugly situation in Montreal.

"Every stout boy born in 1943 can become a brave soldier in 1963", says a passage in a manual issued by the German High Command. This is a pretty prospect, indeed, and should strongly influence the plans of parents of stout boys here in Canada.

Invasion Through The Soldier's Eyes

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE soldier had waited for long months for the hour of invasion of Western Europe to strike. When the time came, what did he experience as he went from training to concentration area, thence to the marshalling camp, and thence to the embarkation point itself?

It took him perhaps two days and nights to reach the concentration area from the training area. He travelled either by M.T. or special train. If he went by road, he probably spent one or two nights at camps en route. As soon as he arrived in the concentration area he settled down to new conditions in which he was to live for several weeks. After the rigours of final training and rehearsal exercises, it was not a very exacting life for him, unless he had many "waterproofing" fatigues on vehicles, though he probably realised that for battalion headquarters staffs it was a period of particularly hard work. They were busy seeing that all the unit's bills were paid, the imprest account closed, and all deficiencies in equipment or stores made good. Every soldier got a free issue of two sets of underclothes and a new shirt as well as a replacement of any articles in which he was deficient.

During his time in the concentration area, the soldier lived either in a requisitioned house or in a tented camp. Time passed slowly for impatient men. There was not much chance of football or cricket, because one of the things that infallibly reveal the whereabouts of large bodies of troops is air photography showing fields which have been much played over. Letters were a great comfort in this idle period, and through the Army Post Office he wrote and received his mail.

AFTER perhaps three weeks of waiting, the time came for him to move again. The next stage was the move to the marshalling area in which the soldier knew he would say goodbye momentarily to many of his friends, for there his unit was to be split up into parties which would embark as craft loads arranged tactically for speedy deployment in the assault phase.

He found that the marhalling area was a great space in a seaside county, perhaps some 300 sq. miles in extent, with many camps within its bounds. His own camp, which contained 2,500 men, had 500 tents and 24 huts. It was run by a static staff of over 400 who looked after his comfort and did everything they could to make him as happy and carefree as possible. Each member of this static staff had his own role. There was no confusion or overlapping. Among the staff the soldier found guides whose full-time job it was to explain to him where he ate, how he could post a letter, what arrangements had been made for his entertainment; in a word, everything he needed to know about this camp, shut off from the outer world behind a wire fence and patrolled by 12 regimental police. He also identified among the staff a large body of pioneers who did all the necessary maintenance in the place, 5 lamp men whose full-time job it was to attend to the oil pressure and hurrican lamps, more than 20 sanitary experts, postmen and drivers. In one tent there was a fire engine with a crew of N.F.S. men, while the static staff contained also an N.C.O. who was camp fireman.

As soon as he came into camp, enquiries were made as to when his unit last ate, and (if necessary) arrangements were made to feed them within an hour. The camp had its own butcher's shop in which a pit dug 6 ft. deep in the earth acted as a perfect refrigerator for freshly killed meat covered with straw. Among the avenues of tents were found stores of all kinds—vegetables, fruit, tinned foods—and a bakery. There were tents containing stocks to replace mislaid articles of clothing or equipment, as well as sports equipment—anything that could be needed for the men's welfare.

THE soldier was well cared for by N.A.A.F.I. in marshalling camp. There was an excellent canteen which was also used as a theatre and contained all the club comforts that could be obtained under war conditions. There were 3 cinema shows a day and twice a week ENSA gave a concert or play.

And now, after perhaps as little as 12 hours or perhaps as much as three days, the time came for the soldier to leave the marshalling camp for the embarkation point. He had been given his Banding Ration and a "Bag" ration of chocolate, biscuits and cigarettes for consumption while waiting to embark. Indeed, the last thought of the static staff of the marshalling camp was to send him away well fed. He had a substantial repast known as a "hot dinner meal" one hour before leaving. This custom led occasionally to curious situations—for example, when craft loads were due to leave shortly after having consumed a breakfast of bacon and eggs. In such cases the soldier was asked whether he would prefer an especially substantial breakfast, or whether he would like a "hot dinner meal" an hour later. If he and his mates chose the latter—as usually they did!—they were sitting down to pork chops and plum duff 60 minutes after finishing their bacon and eggs.

Leaving the camp the soldier passed from marshalling area authority to Embarkation Area Control. His party's first lorry (bearing its serial number) passed the starting point on its final move in England at the precise time chosen, and each craft serial—a convoy of tanks, guns and lorries—rolled slowly down to the sea. There was no waiting or loitering. The pace was regular, if slow, and at the exact second at which embarkation was time to begin, the first 3-ton lorry thundered down the "hard" into the jaws of the landing craft. At regular intervals of a few minutes other vehicles followed, tanks, lorries, tractors, and guns of all descriptions.

THE soldier saw the landing craft and landing ships waiting in rows. The latter were double deckers with huge lifts spanning their ground floors to raise the great cargo of vehicles to the deck space. The smaller landing craft were of several types—one of them, he was told, carried 300 tons of vehicles and an even greater tonnage of homogeneous cargo; that is, such things as boxed and crated stores, petrol, water and ammunition.

The soldier noticed that all vehicles carried windscreen labels with special colours for ammunition, petrol, oil and lubricants. Those that could not be water-proofed bore special signs. In some ports he might have noted cargoes of stores destined to follow the assault, all packages carrying systematized marks of identification.

It was good news that, all being well, arrangements had been made for the discharge on the beachhead of special packs devised by NAAFI to cater for his welfare until Expeditionary Force Institutes could be established overseas. Each pack was to cater for the needs of 30 men for 21 days, and included cigarettes, tobacco, matches, letter cards, bootlaces, tooth paste, soap and razor blades.

And now the moment for his own embarkation was at hand. Into a Landing Craft Infantry the soldier stepped, having reached at last the moment long chosen for a climax for which he had endured years of training, and for which immense material preparations had had to be made.

Will Americans Trade ?

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

IT is an axiom of international politics, well proved by the events of the last 20 years, that the peace of the world cannot be maintained without the active co-operation of the United States. It is equally axiomatic that the prosperity of the world requires the prosperity of the United States and its full participation in international trade. Economicaly then, apart from political decisions, the great question before the world boils down into something very simple: Will the United States reduce its tariffs and trade?

That question will not be answered by the speeches of statesmen or the resolutions of chambers of commerce. It will be answered only by the final action of the U.S. Congress on the details of the tariff laws. The answer cannot be foreseen fully yet and meanwhile it is possible only to examine the facts of the United States' former position in the world trade in the hope of judging its future positon.

In 1937 the United States did a total foreign business of $10 billions, including all international payments of every sort moving in and out of the country. This was a small trade for such a nation, about twice Canada's present trade. In goods the United States imported only $3 billions and it exported $3.3 billions. Canada is exporting and importing about half these amounts now. Last year the United States continued to import at its pre-war level, about $3 billions, but it exported $12.5 billions, all but $2.5 billons by lend-lease. With such gigantic exports, the United States' present boom obviously has a heavy stake in world trade.

How big will its trade be after the war? The editors of "Fortune," basing their calculations on official government figures, estimate that if the United States can maintain internal prosperity and raise its national income somewhat above its present total, it could easily have a total trade of $14 billions, about twice the pre-war total. Of this, merchandise imports would be $4.3 billions as against the pre-war figure of $3 billions. These are high conservative figures based on the assumption that the United States will make many things, including rubber, which it imported entirely before the war. With Russia and China being rebuilt, total U.S. trade could be much larger than these figures suggest.

These are the basic facts against which Congress must decide the nation's future tariff policy. It must also consider another fact when it is asked to protect the nation's high standard of livng by raising high tariffs—namely, as "Fortune" points out, that the manufacturing industries of the United States before the war had an output per man nearly twice as large as that of the other two industrial giants, Britain and Germany. High American wages and living are not the result of tariffs but of efficiency. The high-wage industries like automobile manufacturing have never had trouble holding their own in the open world market.

As "Fortune" says:

"It is perfectly true, of course, that a sudden reduction of tariffs causes unemployment and the need for readjustment. But it is also true that with every tariff reduction consumers have that much more to spend on other products. If these products come from abroad, and imports increase, then there will be a rise of employment in the export industries (since foreign nations, able to get United States dollars, will buy United States goods). If the consumer uses his additional money on home-produced goods, there will be a comparable increase in employment in these industries."

The question is whether Congress understands these facts and is willing to apply them against the great high-tariff pressure groups, not only manufacturers but the farm bloc, which at present is enjoying a prosperity vrtually guaranteed by the public treasury. In that question the world has a vital interest and no part of it more than Canada. The economic world waits on the answer and cannot shape its future until the answer is given. For should the United States attempt economic isolationism, should it revert to the era of Fordney-McCumber and Smoot-Hawley, the bottom would be torn out of international trade as it was in the twenties and thirties.

AN UNSUITABLE REWARD

Sir,—While the editor of the Examiner is administering, and rightly so, a reproach to the children who were untidy in their handling of paper collecting in the recent drive, the children might also, and justly so, voice a reproach to he or she who rewarded them for their labours by giving them tickets to a show, which in one theatre in the city, at least, was a totally unsuitable one.

Two murders took place in the course of events and some of the children whose parents are careful under ordinary circumstances that their minds are not grieved by such dreadful grown-up happenings, suffered severe nervous reaction.

Whether the responsibility for such a questionable reward lies with the theatre manager or whether it was the result of bargaining by those in authority for a cheap picture the writer has been unable to determine, but in the face of the publicity given to the recent efforts on the part of the Home and School Council of Peterborough to have children supplied with suitable moving picture entertainment, it would seem an extremely thoughtless and ill-planned action, or a complete disregard for the voiced wishes of a great number of parents.

No question can enter into the matter as heretofore of having to cater to the tastes of a mixed audience. This was a morning performance, planned as a reward to children and for children only, and many of those attending were of kindergarten and lower grades age.

To the teachers who had urged the children on to "make" the required 10 lbs. by holding the theatre ticket award before them and then handled the work of weighing each lot separately, it must also have been a keen disappointment, accompanied by a feeling of indirect responsibility for having been a party to what proved to be, in the vernacular, of one eight-year-old boy who had anticipated at least something funny, "a dirty gyp".

It would surely have been much better to offer no reward than that of a doing a good job for a good cause. The memories of children are long and the next time they are offered a gift horse they may be impolite enough to ask to see his teeth.

A PARENT.

A Bible Message

And Jacob was left alone; and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day. ......And he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh. And he said, I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob. And he said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed. And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name. And he said, Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name? And he blessed him there.

And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. (Gen. 32: 24, 26-30.)

The Lord sent a word into Jacob, and it hath lighted upon Israel. (Isa. 9: 8.)

And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord. As for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the Lord; My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of th yseed's seed, saith the Lord, from henceforth and for ever. ### BARN TEST

A friend points out that the buildings on a farm tell pretty much what's what. He says where there is a large barn and a small house, the man is the head of affairs, but if the house is large and the barn is small, the woman rules the roost. In town "the boss" goes in and out of his own front door. If he is not the boss of that place, he slips in the back way with his hat in his hand.—Trenton Courier-Advocate.

ROBBER BIRDS

In the battle for the extermination of starlings in Ontario, Professor Buchanan, in charge of the campaign, is urging the organization of groups for the purpose of destroying the eggs of the black marauders. He also recommends traps rather than shooting in eradicating the pests. The professor evidently recognizes he has a big fight on his hands. Yet we have Renfrew folk encouraging these robber birds.—Renfrew Mercury.

AN OLD STORY

This story is told of D. L. Moody, one of the great preachers and evangelists of another day: One day a young man came in great perplexity to the clergyman, Dwight L. Moody, and said: "Mr. Moody, I want to reform and lead a better life. But I don't know how I can give up my undesirable companions." "That's not difficult, young man," replied the revivalist, smiling sympathetically upon his visitor. "Just live a good life and your undesirable companions will give you up." It's as simple as that.—Huron Expositor.

LEAST HE COULD DO

In Cleveland, a guest conductor was driven crazy at rehearsals because at least one member of the orchestra was always missing. After the last rehearsal, he tapped for attention and said, "I want to thank the first violinist publicly for being the only man in the entire orchestra who had the decency to attend every rehearsal." The first violinist hung his head. "It seemed the least I could do," he said in a deprecating tone. "You see, I'm not going to be at the concert tonight!"—Minneapolis Star-Journal.

GUARANTEED HOUSES

House builders are banding themselves together to end jerry-building after the war.

Already 50 per cent of the private builders who will put up 85 per cent of Britain's brick houses have agreed to accept certain standards and to permit inspectors to examine their work. If their buildings are sound they will receive a certificate which will carry with it a guarantee to the purchaser of the house that if anything goes wrong within two years the builder will put it right.—London Daily Mail.

ONCE AN M.P.

The death in Toronto the other day of A. E. Dyment, prominent in business circles there for many years, recalls that he belonged to a group of young and able Liberals elected to Parliament when Wilfrid Laurier first assumed the reins of office. While the Dyment name is associated mostly with Barrie and horses good enough to win the King's Plate, Albert in his M.P. days was in the lumber business at Thessalon in Algoma and he held the Algoma seat several terms. Then he dropped completely out of politics and devoted the balance of his life to business and horse racing.—Lethbridge Herald.

WATER PROBLEM

On the eve of the threatened drought which may be as serious as that of 1933-44 it is piquant to learn from a Government White Paper on a national water policy that the nation's water resources are "far more than adequate for any demands that are within reasonable contemplation."

The problem is not one of total resources, but of organization and distribution. It is an extremely difficult problem, and its complexity is not often appreciated.

Plymouth secured its first Water Act in 1585 and gave the contract for the works to Sir Francis Drake, yet a Royal Commission in 1844 could find only six towns with a really good supply of water. In England and Wales there are still over 1,000 water undertakings, municipal and private, operating under widely varying powers, and ranging in size from the Metropolitan Water Board, which supplies nearly one-fifth of the population, to the 900 small undertakings which between them serve no more than one-quarter of the population.—London Times.

Churches Plan Advances In World Service

That the time has come when all religious bodies are looking forward to a considerable advance in their world service programs was the message of Rev. George A. Williams of Toronto, field secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund Committee of the United Church of Canada, addressing delegates to the 20th session, Bay of Quinte Conference, at Trinity Church this morning.

"All denominations have been forced during the past few years," Mr. Williams said, "to mark time. This has been necessitated, first through the results of the depression period which reduced revenue by over 50 per cent, and secondly through the war which made it necessary to evacuate most of the missionaries from the Japanese-occupied areas.

"But now the Methodists in the United States are planning to commence this autumn on a campaign to raise 25 million dollars for post-war reconstruction of their missionary work, and in the United Church we too are looking forward to post-war advance. The way for this is being prepared by the underwriting of our debt of $1,700,000 and by raising the standard of giving and enlisting more contributors. We were gratified that in 1943 we not only completed underwriting our debt, but also made an increase in revenue for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of $105,000. In addition, we added nearly 6,000 new contributors to our list of the users of the Missionary end of the duplex envelope."

The objective set before the Church as a whole, Rev. Williams stated, was $1,650,000 for 1944; and the Bay of Quinte Conference was asked for $132,000 of that sum. The minister added: "Hundreds of thousands of dollars of debts on local churches have been removed in the past two or three years, and this, coupled with the phenomenal rise in the national income, should make possible greatly increased revenue for the work of the church."

Three Ways Suggested.

Rev. Mr. Williams said he would suggest three specific lines along which the task of "undergirding the Church for post-war advance" should be approached. "The first of these, and the basically important one, is by a spiritual renewal of the life of the Church," he said. "The Church is threatened to-day with what one writer calls 'that most dangerous of modern diseases—public approval without private faiths.' The pendulum has swung too far away from the emotional approach of which the Church has been too fearful in the past 25 years. It is through the creation of a deep devotional love for Christ that a new dynamic is created which provides the 'will to give.'"

The second way, the minister declared, was by the development of greater world vision. "Judging from the fact that not more than 30 per cent of our church families make any contribution of record to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the Church, it would seem that there is still in the Church considerable spiritual isolationism," Rev. Mr. Williams remarked. "Within the Church there is need for a strong, well-organized Missionary and Maintenance Committee to supplement and assist the efforts of the minister in the work of missionary education. Where such a committee, meeting monthly for prayer, study and planning, exists, great benefits are seen in the increased interest of the congregation; and through development of a broad world vision people are presented with a challenge to give."

The third line of approach, the speaker said, was through development of a Stewardship attitude to life and possessions, which would result in financial undergirding. "It is interesting to note that the only religious bodies that did not require to curtail their work through the depression period were those that stressed Christian tithing as their financial method," Rev. Mr. Williams asserted. "God claims a priority right in the matter of our possessions as well as of our time and talents, and we shall never be able to finance the great program of God for the building of His Kingdom until a much larger proportion of God's people are willing to accept his method of church finance."

Social Purity Problem.

In the afternoon convocation the Rev. John Coburn of Toronto discussed "The Family and the Social Purity Problem." He emphasized the responsibility of the Church in dealing with the problems of juvenile delinquency, illegitimacy, divorces and venereal disease; and urged the counselling by ministers, with young people seeking marriage; the provision of facilities for instructing people, old and young, in the great fundamental principles of life from the Christian standpoint; and the fearless proclamation of the principles of Christian morality. In addition to the emotional strains and abnormal social conditions due to the war, the chief causes of social vice were said to be the following:

"The sin of the human heart. The real problem is not divorce, illegitimacy or venereal disease, but adultery and fornication. These are ugly words, but they are New Testament words. Jesus and Paul did not hesitate to use them. It is time for us to call sin by its right name and to cease pouring rose water on a cesspool.

"A second cause of this situation is a lowering of moral standards.

"Ignorance of the truth, especially on the part of the young, of the sacredness of human sex relations and of the real meaning and responsibilities of marriage.

"Drink. Medical authorities and social workers in this field are agreed that liquor drinking is a major factor in this evil. Some beer rooms, too many we fear, have become favorite recruiting grounds for the prostitute. Examination of the records of a hospital in Toronto showed that out of 19 cases suffering from venereal disease recently admitt[illegible] 14 were connected in one [illegible] another with the beverage [illegible] a conference on the vene[illegible] problem, an army medic[illegible] stated that in seeking to discover the circumstances under which men had become infected, he found that in nearly every case they were under the influence of liquor at the time. This situation is weakening our war effort. When the Dominion Government imposed their moderate restrictions upon the manufacture of liquor, the complaints were loud and long. From whom? From three classes only: Those who make money by the manufacture of liquor, those who make money by the sale of liquor, and those who demand unlimited facilities for the gratification of personal appetite. Under tremendous pressure the beer question has been made a football between the Governments at Ottawa and at Toronto. That is no credit to either of them."

Housing Situation Said To Be Worse

"The housing situation seems to me to be getting worse instead of better from the number of enquiries I am getting. Lately there have been two or three a day."

That was Mayor Hamilton's observation to the council Monday night. And he added: "Mr. Sloan of the assessment department told me that he must have come across forty people who are going around trying to engage builders. They would like to build right now, but they can't get men to do the work."

Alderman Bradburn said there was a shortage of tradesmen, especially competent carpenters.

"No one is out on the street," Mayor Hamilton added, "but I feel that the situation is bad."

Hon. L. M. Frost stated that the occasion would be a memorable event in the history of the two counties and that the children would remember that on the day after "D-Day" they had marched with, not only the veterans of the Great War, but with the heroes of the present conflict.

Queen Alexandra Boys Capture School Title

Large contingents of fans from both schools rooted vigorously for their favorites as the Queen Alexandra team won the championship of the Public School Softball League by defeating Prince of Wales 6 to 4 in the final game, played at the Ashburnham Bowl Wednesday afternoon.

The two teams went through the regular schedule in great style, each losing but one game. When they met in the first game of the finals the rivals played a 2-2 tie, leaving it all up to the second game of the series.

Richardson's effective pitching for Queen Alexandra was the deciding factor. He got good support from his teammates and especially from his catcher. Prince of Wales also played nice ball and it was a good exhibition all the way.

Queen Alexandra — Richardson, Welsh, Simmons, Carper, Dracup, Morgan, Nicholls, Jary, Nolan.

Prince of Wales—Ashbym, Archimald, Kimberley, McMullen, Bowes, Kidd, Miller, Moore, A. Miller, Dugan.

Messrs. Crawford and Olmstead umpired the final battle.

By The Canadian Press

After he broke his right arm throwing a fast pitch in 1941, Jimmy Wadlow, 22, of Kansas City, turned to southpaw twirling but was back to right-hand hurling this season with York, Pa., in the Inter-State League. He defeated Wilmington 4-2 but hurt his arm. Due for a trial with Sacramento in the Pacific Coast League, Wadlow is debating whether he will switch one more to southpawing.

Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday traded Pitcher Bob Chipman to Chicago Cubs for Infielder Eddie Stanky who had previously led the American Association in batting in 1942 at .342 while with the Milwaukee Brewers. Last year with Montreal Royals, Chipman won 15 and lost seven and, this season, had a record of three wins and one loss with Brooklyn.

Charles Dennis and Jack Pollard of the London Elmwoods captured the Dave Smith trophy last night at Woodstock in the annual June Bug lawn bowling tournament.

Soldiers, with a much-improved lineup and a couple of new pitchers, including Don Procyk, a Winnipeg heaver, will hook up with Plazas at Riverside Park tonight in a City League game that should be replete with excitement. The Military Training Centre team won its first win of the season Tuesday night and the victory has put a lot of fight into the khaki club. They would dearly love to take a fall out of Plazas in tonight's battle and they will be fighting all the way to pull off the feat. Procyk will be sent in against the champs with Tony McIlveen likely to be lined up behind the bat. Plazas, of course, need a win themselves to keep up in the running and they will probably call upon Dave Wilson who has been effective against the Soldiers for several seasons to keep the Training Centre team under control. The game will be staged at 7 o'clock sharp. Tomorrow night the attraction in the City League will be the postponed fixture between the league-leading Switchgear and the battling St. Peter's club. Ronnie Akers will probably pitch for the unbeaten Switchgear while the Saints will send in Gene Reynolds who has been carrying the pitching burden for the team all season.

Although the Oshawa Colts who won the provincial intermediate championship last season are graduating to the Senior B ranks there is still an Oshawa menace for the winners of the Peterborough City League when the O.A.S.A. playdowns arrive. The setup in Oshawa is that the Colts who will enter the senior B competition this season are grouped in a league with three other teams, all of which are intermediate entries. The loop is composed of the Colts, the GM Main Office, Robson Leather and O.K. Billiards and the poker is that the last-named outfit is made up of players from last year's Oshawa Laundry and Oshawa Merchants' teams and they will be plenty tough. .The Colts had a hard time knocking off the league title in 1943 and with a team made up of the stars of the other two teams which opposed the ultimate winners it can be realized that the intermediate entry from the Motor City this summer will be about as hot opposition as if the Colts were still in there. Perhaps not quite so well-balanced in every department as were the provincial champions but still strong enough to give the Peterborough winners plenty over which to worry. The Oshawa league gets under way Friday night and as the O.K. team meets the Colts the game should give a line on the ability of the intermediate representatives. The loop will have a new diamond that is being built at the southeast corner of the track oval at Alexandra Park.

The Younger Set

Two of the baby teams in this year's Girls' Softball League will battle at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight and one of them should have the satisfaction of scoring its first win in organized ball. The contestants are the Lock Works girls and the Quakers, both of whom were beaten in their first start. However they showed some promising material and they look evenly matched enough to indicate a close game when they meet tonight. Friday night the champion Westclox team will make their third appearance of the season when they clash with the much-improved Johnson Motors girls in what should be a nice battle. The Outboard Marines have won two out of their three starts this season, have been playing good ball in the field and Helen Mark has been pitching effectively and fielding her position like a veteran. The defensive work of Vera Mitchell at first base has also caught the eyes of the fans. The Johnson entry would be tickled to death to be the first team to beat the Big Bens this season. It should be Isobel Bullock's turn to toss them in for Westclox but Manager Ab Delahaye may use his young pitcher Joyce Withers against the Marines. Helen Mark is the logical starter for the Johnson Motors club. This looks like a good tussle.

There may not be nearly as much baseball being played in Ontario right now as in the good old days but at that there are some classy performers performing on provincial diamonds. Bill Gaynon of the Niagara Falls Review describes one in the following paragraph: "There have been some mighty fine baseball players in O.B.A. ranks over a stretch of years, but not since Ray Broadbent stepped out of the lineup of Akron of the International League to do his chores with Hamilton Oskies in the years following the last great war, has such an established performer hit the provincial lots as Huck Geary, new Hamilton shortstop, who will appear with Hamilton at Oakes Stadium against Cataracts next Monday night. At the beginning of the 1943 playing year, Huck was the regular Pittsburg shortstop, but he had some difference and left the club in midseason. He was going great guns and the Pirate management tried to entice him back, but their failure caused his shift to the Phillies of the same league, who were figuring to give him the permanent shortstop spot on their 1944 club. He is presently engaged in war work in Buffalo and has decided to finish the year with Matt Krusto's nine. Geary is a consistent hitter and smart fielder and Falls fans will be watching a finished worker in the coming tussle."

Hughson Again

Tex Hughson, ace of the Boston Red Sox who for a number of seasons has had an uncanny knack of knocking off the New York Yanks about every time he faced them has obviously recovered that faculty after apparently losing it momentarily early in the season. As soon as the sterling right-hander's name is announced the New Yorkers have been in the habit of folding up and they did it again yesterday when Hughson faced them once again and the Red Sox knocked off the McCarthyites 8 to 1. Hughson should easily be a 20-game winner again this season, especially if he is given all the assignments possible againt the Yanks. Incidentally it is worthy of note that so far this season it has remained for the two New York club to give the east representation in the upper brackets of the two leagues. As a matter of fact if it were not for the Yanks and the Giants, the top half of both the American and National loops would be strictly a western affair. Up to yesterday the Yanks were second in the junior loop and the Giants fourth in the National. All other six first division positions in the two loops were held by western clubs, although in the American League especially the race is so close that a winning streak on the part of a couple of the eastern clubs would soon have them up in the upper bracket.

In the National League last night New York Giants said it with home runs to beat Al Javery and the Boston Braves 6 to 2 with Feldman pitching a four-hitter for the winners. Mel Ott went further out in front of the home-run parade by hitting his 13th and 14th of the season, Phil Weintraub got his sixth and Nappy Reyes his fifth. Pittsburg Pirates won a neat victory over the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 2 when Vince DiMaggio singled with the bases full to beat Tom de la Cruz who had been going along in great style until he weakened in that inning. Rip Sewell who relieved Rescigno on the mound for the Corsairs was given credit for the win, his seventh straight victory. Philadelphia Bluejays scored two runs in the ninth after two were out to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers 6 to 5. Until that last-minute surge the Bums looked to have the game in the bag. In a night American League game the wildness of Hal Newhouser, Detroit's left-handed star, robbed him of a chance to win his ninth triumph of the season. Newhouser walked nine men in six innings and two of the passes came with the bases loaded and Chicago White Sox with Grove pitching eventually won the argument by 3 to 1.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

When the games committee was meeting, early in the season, for the purpose of drawing up the season's schedule, they were informed that so far as the City of Peterborough was concerned, Dominion Day would be held on Saturday, July 1st; and accordingly they went ahead with their schedule on that understanding.

Now it seems that this has all been changed. Peterborough is holding Dominion Day on Monday, July 3rd.

This being the case it means that our big open tournament for men's rinks will be held on Monday, July 3rd, and not on Saturday, July 1st, as was first intended. It also means that the ladies' open tournament will be scheduled for Wednesday, June 28. Notices for both these tournaments will be sent out shortly.

Speaking about tournaments, have you made your entry to B. Chesler for the men's doubles next Wednesday afternoon and evening? Thirty-six pairs is the limit, so govern yourself accordingly.

It will be men's rinks on Friday night. Draw from the board at 7.30 p.m. Be on time.

What causes NEURITIS?
Like many other complaints, the cause may be simply lack of vitamins in the daily diet.
Many ailments, according to modern science, are not due to organic trouble, but to shortage of vitamins. At first, it was thought that lack of vitamin B1 was the cause of neuritis suffering. Now we know that all 5 vitamins are necessary, because each aids the other to function. You can now get them combined in "ALL-in-ONE" Vitamin Tablets (with valuable minerals and yeast added). Take daily for a month. See how much better you feel. Only $2.15 for a month's supply. At most drug stores.

Ott Clouts Two More Homers Giants Win 6-2

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Mel Ott continued to lift the Giants by their bootstraps, and the Chicago White Sox began to cast their shadow across the American League standings today as baseball swung back into normal stride.

Ott clouted two more home runs, lifting his season production to 14, as the Giants pummeled Al Javery and Boston Braves last night, 6-2, behind the four-hit chucking of Harry Feldman.

Jimmy Dykes' White Sox stretched their win streak to seven by downing Detroit, 3-1, in another night game.

Orval Grove captured his fifth victory at the expense of Hal Newhouser, whose bid for No. 9 resulted in loss No. 4, when he walked Grove with the bases loaded to force in the tie-breaking run.

Boston sent New York Yankees rolling back under another setback, 8-1, as Tex Hughson grabbed his seventh decision and Boss Joe Cronin led the attack with a double and a homer.

Rip Sewell ran his victory string to seven by stopping Cincinnati, 4-2, on Vince DiMaggio's single in the eighth, which drove home Johnny Barrett and Jim Russell.

The Phillies came from behind twice to top Brooklyn in the ninth, 6-5, when Jimmy Wasdell, an ex-Dodger, singled home Tony Lupien after Ray Hamrick had scored the tying run on Rube Melton's wild pitch.

Extras who have to work in snow or fog scenes hate them. Cornflakes, chemically treated to be dead white, are hoisted far up and dropped like snow. Airplane propellors whirl them about and the effect on eyes, nose and throat is terrible. For fogs petroleum oil is shot through spray guns, almost suffocating the players and making everything greasy. No wonder they think acting in a rainstorm is nothing at all!

Buffalo Loses To Lowly Chiefs

By The Associated Press

To veteran Outfielder Walter Cazen and Pitcher Jim Konstanty goes the credit of halting the Syracuse Chiefs' 13-game losing streak, the record for the season. Cazen and Konstanty teamed up to give the Chief a 6-3 victory over the Buffalo Bisons in the first game of a twin-bill last night.

Cazen had two hits, a homer and a single, his round-tripper coming in the first inning with two mates aboard to feature a five-run outburst. Konstantly held the Bisons to seven hits.

The Chiefs went back to their losing ways in the second game, when Hank Oana blanked them with five hits for a 3-0 Buffalo victory.

The Baltimore club continued to receive good pitching and defeated Rochester Red Wings in both ends of a double-header, 6-2 an 10-3. Sam Lowry hung up his fifth victory in the nightcap against one defeat and Rolland Van Slate won his fourth in the opener.

The league leading Jersey City Giants defeated Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-3, behind the pinch hitting of 19-year-old Andy Hansen, who notched his sixth victory.

The last-place Newark Bears clubbed three Montreal hurlers for 14 hits to defeat the Royals 13-3. Arky Biggs was the batting star for the Bears with a three-run homer plus a trio of singles in five times at bat.

Doyle To Curb Book Makers

TORONTO, June 8—(CP)—Attorney-General L. E. Blackwell announced today that Inspector E. T. Doyle, head of the provincial police anti-gambling squad, will attend all subsequent race track meetings in search of bookmakers.

"In order to enforce the law and protect revenue of the province, Inspector Doyle will attend subsequent race meetings with a view to apprehension and prosecution of those engaged in illegal bookmaking at the tracks," Mr. Blackwell said.

Unlawful gambling at racetracks through unlicensed bookmakers has been very substantially increased, Mr. Blackwell said. Betting through the pari-mutuel system is subject to a revenue to the racing association and taxes to both the province and Dominion. Operation of unlicensed bookmakers represents a direct loss in revenue to the associations, the province and Dominion, he said.

"Under these circumstances in addition to the desirability of enforcing the criminal law of Canada against unlicensed bookmaking the province has a very direct interest in the loss of revenue entailed," Mr. Blackwell said.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 8 — (CP). — Hold your hat, it looks as though we are going for a ride again. Any fans who remember the hullabaloo over hockey Hall of Fame before Kingston, Ont., neatly stepped in and grabbed the plum in caveman style will shudder when they hear a lacrosse Fame Hall has been proposed now.

The idea was broached some time ago by Dick Brayley, secretary and later vice-president of the Quebec Lacrosse Association. But nothing was done about it, possibly because Dick went into the R.C.A.F. Now Major Sid McLennan, Vancouver exhibition manager, has taken the idea up in earnest. The Major says he took a concensus among boxla officials in the West Coast city and they were highly enthusiastic about the idea Of course, they backed Vancouver's claim as the site of any shrine established.

There is just one mistake the lacrosse men on the coast made. They shouldn't have said a word about the whole thing to anyone. But just established their Hall of Fame and then announced it. As it is, we probably are in for another series of lengthy, and fruitless, arguments like those that surrounded the hockey shenanigans.

Here and there:

The don't go for running horses in the Maritimes, but harness racing is big-time for them, and the trotters and pacers get keen attention. In New Brunswick now there is a move afoot to form a strong, centralized racing association to give the sport a boost..... The suggestion that racing silks be discarded and replaced by solid colors allotted to each position did not meet with too much favor. Monte Monaco, writing for the race sheet Caliente in Tijuana, Mexico, says that to do so would "drop racing to the status of greyhound clashes."....Dick Speer, now umpiring baseball games in Edmonton, was a teammate of legendary Ty Cobb on the 1908 world champion Detroit Tigers. He was a southpaw pitcher....Now its rumored Jimmy McLarnin will take up Navy league promotion work in Ontario, and may join the R.C.N.V.R.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, June 8—(AP)—It's a long way from the football season but apparently it's the open season on football teams and players on the Pacific coasts. . . . Reports trickling east so far indicate that Bill Freelove, who broke into pro football as water boy for the Washington Redskins when they first went west, has distributed at least six franchises in his newly-formed American League and three of the cities already were occupied by the Pacific Coast Pro League. . . . The Airborne "Mystery" League, figuring on no fewer than four west coast clubs, will be ready to go after the war Bill (ex-Phillie) Cox reported on a recent visit to Seattle. The National League hasn't quit on the west coast even though actor Don Ameche has decided he likes horses better than footballers (hay, even at $55 a ton, is cheaper than steaks) . . . Well, it ought to be a merry little scrap.

Today's Guest Star

Joe Gootter, Paterson, N.J., Evening News: "Roy Vangraflan, veteran International League umpire who has been a holdout since the beginning of the baseball season, finally came to terms with Frank Shaughnessy, league president. . . . Who ever hears of an umpire expecting more money for calling a strike?"

Jackie Hayes, former White Sox second baseman who was forced to retire from baseball in 1940 because of an eye ailment, has become totally blind. He recently obtained a seeing eye dog. . . . The Iowa State high school baseball tournament, shifted from Manson (pop. 1,382) to Fort Dodge (pop. 21,895) this year because of flood conditions, failed to meet expenses for the first time.

41,172 Families Are Connected With The United Church In Bay Of Quinte Conference

The second day of the Quinte Conference opened Wednesday with an address by Rev. Dr. James Gordon Gilkey of Springfield, Mass., noted minister, professor and author of religious books on the problems of living. One of a family that has been in the ministry for five generations, he discussed the type of sermon which would be fitted to the situations which will arise out of the present war.

Dr. Gilkey analysed the technique of the sermon that will give courage, the need of which, he said, was a spiritual phenomenon in the United States today. He inveighed against sermons that were "long on diagnosis and short on cure."

The president of the conference, Rev. B. W. Thompson, delivered his inaugural address. He said that there never was a time when he had a greater desire to live than today; and that he wanted to live long enough to see the new day that must come after the darkness sacrifice and death of these days. That day wouldn't come without all being better ministers and men. "If we had better Christians we'd have more Christians," he said.

Rev. Dr. James Semple of Belleville reported on the successful conclusion of the campaign to wipe out the debt of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of $1,700,000. Congratulations were extended to Rev. D. Ridout, national director and author of the plan, who is receiving a D. D. degree at Montreal this week for his outstanding work, and whose life is saddened by the loss of his son on the Valleyfield.

Statistical Report

Presenting the statistical report, Rev. Andrew McLauchlin revealed the following figures: pastoral charges, 226; preaching places, 586; ministers, 282; officials, 7,882; families, 41,172; persons under pastoral care, 140,559. Membership of 69,288 showed an increase over 1942 of 801; 2,019 were received on profession of faith, an increase of 276; and the increase in the number of non-resident members was 826.

The value of all church property was placed at $8,213,119; $1,073,423 was raised for all purposes, increase of $45,634; $128,921 was raised for the Maintenance and Missionary Fund, increase of $10,000; and $72,349, an increase of $3,545, was raised for the Women's Missionary Society.

"In general" Rev. McLauchlin reported, "membership, professions of faith and finances are increased, and liabilities of congregations are decreased. There are fewer Sunday Schools and there is a trend towards non-resident membership."

3,390 Ministers

The report for the whole church in Canada and Newfoundland revealed the United Church has 3,390 ministers, 2,753 pastoral charges; 728,831 members and 1,636,511 persons under pastoral care. Last year the sum of $13,151,877 was raised for all puroses; and 23,910 entered the United Church, representing an increase of 2,026.

Rev. C. W. DeMille of Toronto addressed the conference on the work of the Ontario Temperance Federation, which conducted 2,000 services in churches last year. Rev. Principal H. A. Kent, D.D., spoke for Queen's Theological College, Kingston and told of the work of training ministerial candidates being done again this year in summer sessions at Halifax, Toronto, Saskatoon and Kingston.

He was not in favor of the plan of expediting the ordination of ministers which involved year-round study and shorter training. He announced that Rev. H. L. Stewart of Halifax, well-known radio commentator, would be the lecturer to Queen's Theological Alumni this fall, speaking on international problems facing the Christian Church. The major problem, Rev. Kent indicated, was the shortage of ministers; and at the speaker's request a special committee to explore the matter and promote practical steps was appointed.

Affectionate interest was paid to Rev. J. M. Whyte of Verona, who, now 75, is retiring after 49 years in the ministry. He spoke briefly on account of poor health; and was answered that he had made a lasting and creative contribution to the life of the Church and that the love and prayers of the brethren would always be his. "Thank you for your ministry," the president concluded.

Ugly Spikes Dot French Shore Fail To Stop Advancing Troops

By TOM YARBROUGH
Associated Press War Correspondent

ABOARD THE BRITISH DESTROYER COTTESMORE OFF NORTH COAST OF FRANCE, June 8—(AP)—This little ship with four hot guns is going back to England now after spending 12 incredible hours in the front rank phase of the Allied invasion of France.

From where we sat—about a mile and a half off shore—it seemed too easy and too smooth to be true. The men of this ship, thank God—several of them told me so—that it went as well as it did this first day, though they know full well the hardest part is yet to come. It's still almost incredible, though, that this force of men and ships spent 12 hours within easy shooting distance of German-occupied Europe and did not encounter a single German plane or ship.

With strong binoculars I saw thousands of men and machines tumble safely across beaches bristling with ugly spikes driven into the sand at crazy angles and topped with mines.

Here are the salient highlights of what occurred around us:

At 7.29 this morning 27-year-old Lieut. William D. O'Brien, R.N., his eyes fixed on the beach, said, "The first vehicles are touching down. This is H-hour now."

Opposition Weak.

Opposition was so weak generally—thanks to the seemingly complete tactical surprise—that this ship and others were still asking for targets when no more targets were available. One enemy shell exploded within about 50 feet of us, but caused no damage.

Landing troops moved across the beaches and advanced about 300 yards inland before noon, pushing ahead with tanks over fields sloping up from the shore. Our sector included Little Normandy towns with Caen farther back from the coast area immediately east of the Cherbourg peninsula.

At the height of the assault a pall of black and grey smoke hung over the beaches in an area of five or six miles and at times whole towns appeared to be burning. We could see our own men moving along, but couldn't make out figures of Germans or Frenchmen anywhere. looked as if civilians had been moved out long before. Windows of many buildings were bricked-up as if to fortify them.

Says Prisoner Beaten To Death

MONTREAL, June 8 — (CP) — Rene Desrosiers, a prisoner at the Montreal Jail, testified at a coroner's inquest to-day that 29-year-old Gerard Lauzon had been beaten repeatedly by fellow-prisoners while guards looked on. Lauzon died in the jail infirmary.

Desrosiers said he was a patient in the infirmary when Lauzon was brought in, and that Marcel Bonneau, a prisoner with the status of "room captain" had beaten the newcomer following an argument over a shower. He said Lauzon had objected to undressing for the shower in front of other men in the infirmary, but had been forcibly disrobed and placed under the shower.

Desrosiers said that later Lauzon had been placed in a strait-jacket. and beaten again, sometimes by Bonneau, and sometimes by other prisoners.

Report On Shooting To Be Presented

OTTAWA, June 8 (CP)—The external affairs department said today that the Swiss Government has advised that a statement will be available probaly within a week on the shooting of British and Canadian prisoners of war in a German prison camp.

The department said that Germany replied in response to Swiss queries that a statement was being prepared but was delayed by the interviewing of a "great" number of witnesses.

Big Hay Crop Is Expected In The County

Farmers are busy planting corn and mangels throughout the district. Most of the potato seeding is complete, and recent rains have invigorated the young crops.

"Help is extremely scarce and the appearance of a good crop makes the situation more serious," is the report from Victoria to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Excellent growing conditions continue in Peterborough, and "there is promise of a big hay crop in the western part of the county. It is true there was some winter-killing in the eastern part. Fall wheat is looking remarkably good; spring grain is growing rapidly, and corn is being planted in good conditions."

Most of the counties are ringing the changes of satisfaction with the prospects, except in the Muskoka district where rains have been elusive.

Northumberland: Spring conditions continue very promising with all crops covering the ground.

Prince Edward: All crops are looking promising; present indications are for a heavy set of apples. Most of the tomatoes have been transplanted, and milk flow is still on the increase.

Hastings farmers are increasing their acreage of corn.

A few glimpse at western Ontario reflect similarly favorable outlook. For instance, Welland: "Hay, pasture and grain crops have made exceptionally good growth during the week; milk production is on the increase and eggs plentiful."

Here's Wentworth: "Hay is extremely heavy; wheat has a heavy top and is likely to lodge." Oxford: "Hay and wheat and spring grain are showing excellent progress and pastures are at their best."

"Pastures and hay crops look exceedingly well in Essex. Hog population is inceasing on many Lincoln county farms. Many yearling hens are being sold at market for 38c a pound. Eggs average 35 to 37 cents for grade "A" large. "Excellent growth has been made during the week, with hot moist weather. Spring grains are looking good, except the late sown fields. Fruit growers are estimating the peach crop at 50 to 60 per cent. of 1942 "which would be a great deal better than 1943. The cherry crop will range from 25 to 40 per cent. for sours and 50 per cent. sweet. Plums are a washout, and the pear bloom has set poorly."

William Tinker Purchases Huycke Home

Two building permits of interest beyond the ordinary applications have been issued this week from the office of City Engineer Parsons.

One is for a storage shed at Beaver Lumber Company, and the other for conversion of the Huycke residence in Engleburn into a duplex.

The city council Monday night offered Beaver Lumber Company $10,000 for their property on George street at Rink street, hoping but hardly expecting that the company would accept and locate their industry elsewhere. In the event of the offer being declined the council formally directed issue of a permit to the company for new buildings, one of which is to be erected immediately, and any others probably to be left as postwar projects.

The present permit is for a lumber storage shed, 160 feet by 24 feet, with exterior walls of wood and roof of asphalt shingles, at an estimated cost of $4,500.

The other permit indicates the purchase by William Tinker of the residence of City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., and the home of his late parents, County Judge E. C. S. Huycke. It is understood that possession does not pass to Mr. Tinker until the end of this month, and that the work of transforming the house into a duplex will not begin until July.

The Huycke residence was for years occupied by the late C. B. McAllister who owned the large flour mill which was situated on the north side of Hunter street on the east slope to the river beside the present bridge. Hardly a vestige of that mill remains. It was operated by water power from the old raceway which flowed across Hunter street for years when an iron street-level bridge spanned the river.

The Engleburn house is believed to have been built in 1851 by the Rev. Mark Burnham, rector of St. John's Church. In response to the Examiner enquiry for information as to the development of that part of Ashburnham years ago, E. A. Peck, K.C., recalled today that Burnham street was then called Lake street.

The present Dale avenue, leading from Burnham street into the Engleburn area, was a private driveway into the home property of the Rev. Mark Burnham. There were only two other houses south of that driveway. One was the home of John Burnham, now owned by Gordon R. Langley, and the other the home of Henry T. Strickland, one of the seven sons of Colonel Strickland of Lakefield, and now the residence of Howard T. Fallis and his wife Senator Iva C. Fallis.

The old J. J. Lundy estate was another fine residence of that period. It is now an apartment on the east side of Burnham street, and down at the lake, on the west side of the street, was the house built by Mr. Peck's father, a stone building still in use.

Mr. E. A. Peck's wife was a granddaughter of the Rev. Mark Burnham.

King's Birthday Slows Court Cases

As today was a legal holiday Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., declined to proceed with any of the cases listed for this morning and the whole docket had to be postponed.

Jack Ward, charged with failing to report a change in address to the divisional registrar, while being a person liable to military call, was remanded until Tuesday.

Corporal Karl Lockwood of the R.C.M.P. said that he was opposed to bail being granted in that case.

A charge against Louis Yeotes of allowing a minor to frequent his billiard room was adjourned until June 15.

Joseph Robinson who was to have been sentenced today on a theft charge to which he had pleaded guilty was remanded again for sentence.

$200 Fine Set By Judge In Hughes' Case

Judge Coleman imposed on Thomas Hughes Wednesday a penalty of $200 fine and $100 costs on conviction by a jury of having assaulted and caused actual bodily harm to Wheeler Windsor, last Christmas.

His Honor, said he noted the clemency recommendation by the jury, and also the statement that the accused had no criminal record. For those reasons, Judge Coleman said, he was dealing lightly with Hughes in the serious matter of an unjustified attack, warned him to keep control of his temper, and also to keep out of the courts. His present conviction left him vulnerable for more severe penalty on any repetition of breaking the law.

A trial jury acquitted Wheeler Windsor of theft of $26 from Hughes. Four witnesses swore that he was elsewhere at the time. It was alleged by the prosecution that he was at the Hughes home.

William Scrace, a teenage boy, said that he and George Hughes, son of Thomas Hughes, had seen Windsor stoop over Hughes as he was lying asleep on the floor in the living room at his home, take out a roll of money, help himself to some of it, and put the rest back in his trouser pocket.

Scrace said he had seen the incident through the front door and also through a side window. The jury manifestly accepted the defense evidence. T. J. Carley, K. C., was solicitor for Windsor.

Police Officer And Bride Taken For Ride

Officer Andre Dalton of the Peterborough police department will have special reason for remembering his wedding to Miss Jean McCauley Wednesday because of the unexpected ride he was given by some of his fellow-officers after the ceremony.

An old-fashioned open carriage of the vintage of thirty-five years ago and pulled by a tractor instead of the customary team of horses was awaiting the wedding couple as they came out of St. Luke's church. The traditional taxi had disappeared during the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton were hurried to the combination of modern and ancient vehicles and with two policemen Officers C. J. McGillen and John Morrow riding on the driver's seat of the carriage and Officer W. A. Clarke supplying a motor cycle escort the newly-married couple were taken for a tour of the city.

Fire sirens greeted them, as they passed the fire hall and in general it was a memorable journey for the police constable and his bride.

3 Chinese Waiters Held For Vagrancy

A police cruiser carrying Sgt. Gordon T. Puffer and Officers Leo Murphy and W. A. Clarke arrived at the Peterborough lock shortly before 3 o'clock this morning in time to arrest three Chinese waiters and three local women.

In police court today, Arthur Mah, 32, and Frank Lee, 29, both of 328 George street faced vagrancy charges before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. and as this was the King's birthday were remanded until tomorrow, without plea, on bail of $100 each.

Yee Jung Mon, 36, of the same address, was charged with illegal possession of liquor and he too was remanded until Friday with bail fixed at $200 in his case.

The three women, Barbara Young, 18 and Reta Charron, 19, both of the Queen's Hotel and Mrs. Rosie Hills, Bolivar street, were charged with being prostitutes and were remanded until tomorrow without bail.

Safe Crackers Frightened Away

PORT HOPE, June 8—(CP)—Frightened by the noise they made when they dropped a safe on the sidewalk which they had taken from Port Hope Creamery during the night, thieves early today fled without it. Entrance was affected by forcing open the front door of the creamery. The till was emptied of $9 in War Savings stamps and $10 in cash.

Prayer Service Draws Big Crowd

A large crowd attended the prayer service held at the Riverside Bowl on Wednesday night, when earnest citizens, many of them with relatives in the invasion forces, gathered to ask for strength and guidance in the coming hours of uncertainty.

Rev. W. A. Filer was chairman and gave a group of Anglican prayers for the success of the invasion, and for the sailors, soldiers, and airmen in the battle. He asked that strength and faith be given to the people at home, and that Canadians be made worthy of the victory.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church gave the invocation prayer, asking for the spirit of God to descend on those present, and led in the singing.

Rev. H. J. Mahoney of Knox United Church read the Scripture, Psalm 46, and Major John Wood of the Salvation Army pronounced the benediction.

The Salvation Army Band gave a brief concert before and after the service, and played for the hymns, "Unto the Hills," "Eternal Father," and "O God Our Help in Ages Past.

Mayor James Hamilton brought a message of welcome to those assembled. He said that they did not have to attend that service, and those who attended had really come to offer prayers for the success of the big push and for their loved ones at the Front.

There were many young people and children 10 and under present. All were solemn and conscious of the importance of the task before them. There was a pronounced spirit of reverence over the entire gathering, and those sitting in the cars above the Bowl, climbed out on the grass during the prayers.

A-MAJOR BERT BRINDLE

Albert Brindle Decorated In King's List

For a second time since the war since the war broke out in 1939, a Peterborough man has been made an officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. He is Acting Major Albert Brindle, serving overseas with the Royal Canadian Artillery. His wife, Mrs. Roma Mary Brindle, has been living at 579 Aylmer street.

No citation accompanied the announcement of the decoration in the King's Birthday Honor list. Fifty-seven other officers and 23 other ranks also received the same award. Two officers were appointed Companions of the Order of the Bath and 12 officers appointed Commanders of the Order of the British Empire.

Acting Major Brindle, who in civilian life was a tool designer at the C.G.E., came to Peterborough in June, 1937. "Bert" to all his friends at the C.G.E., the young man worked in the Mechanical Drafting department, and was well liked.

Popular Employee

His supervisor, G. A. Spicer, said this morning that he was an aggressive individual with a sparkling personality and that there wasn't anyone at the factory who didn't like him. He worked with plastics and did a good job and was completing his engineering course at the time he joined the Army.

"We didn't want him to go in the Army, but he did anyway," Mr. Spicer declared. "He was always popular everywhere he went because of his loveable personality. He could sing, dance and play, and was much in demand as an entertainer by his friends. He was a grand person," he concluded.

Before coming to Peterborough, the young soldier, 29, worked for two years at the Canadian Westinghouse in Hamilton. From 1927 to 1935, he was employed by Beatty Brothers in Fergus. He received his education in Guelph and Fergus.

Acting Major Brindle enlisted in July, 1940, with the 4th Anti-Tank unit, and finally went overseas in October, 1941 with an artillery unit. He attained his captaincy in January 1943, and in January, 1944, he became acting major. The young soldier was born in England in November, 1914.

The only other Peterborough man to receive this decoration is Major Herbert Moran, now of Toronto, who was given this award in the King's New Year's list in 1943.

Victory Workers Renew Aid For War Victims

Four years ago at this time, the word "Victory" as far as it concerned the cause of the Allied Nations might have been considered a misnomer, and the very fact that today it shows every prospect of becoming a realization in the not too distant future, is in itself an object lesson of just what the will and determination to come out on top may lead to, providing one works and strives onwards towards that end, and the cause is really one of true value.

One of the most vivid recollections of the present conflict that the writer will ever recall, is a visit to the Officers' Mess of the Prince of Wales Rangers at or near the time of the fall of Dunkerque when reports from the theatre of operations on the Continent were such as to cause the most ardent and optimistic to sink into the depths of gloom, the results of which acted like a tonic, for there was no such thing as defeatism prevalent here, and the spirit of these men who now are scattered to all parts of the globe, were such as pointed in no other way than that of sure victory when the final tale is told.

Choose Good Name

It is some two years or so since the Peterborough Victory Workers were organized, and while their efforts are not confined to any one particular object, everything they do as a group has the one objective of helping towards the final day of victory in view, so the name they choose is quite appropos, and as such should commend itself generally to everyone in the matter of public support.

On a number of occasions they have given support to the local and district fund to assist the suffers from enemy air raids over Britain, and it might perhaps be considered quite significant that their latest of $10 listed today should be given at the time when what is hoped will be the last great push towards complete victory has just got under way. This group of loyal workers is headed by Mrs. Bruce L. Fowler as president, and Mrs. K. Simpson as treasurer.

Recently a new glass container was left at the In and Out Shop, and the box located there collected at the same time. This contained a little better than the average at $3.60, and this is included in today's list.

Party at Fairview

Of particular interest to people in the Fairview and Nassau districts will be a social evening to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fowler to give the fund a helping hand this Friday evening. Mrs. Fowler is the energetic secretary of the Fairview War Workers who have assisted the fund on many occasions previously, to the splendid tune of a total of $365.40.

Factory Stack Becomes Red Hot

A flash fire with unusual consequences but involving little damage occurred in the early hours of this morning at the Canadian Raybestos Company, when flashes from a bake oven went up a 105-foot steel stack and made it red-hot from ground to top. The heat of the fire also took off several sprinkler heads in the building. Firemen received the alarm at 2.25 a.m and spent some time cooling off the huge stack with hoses.

Wednesday at 2.50 p.m. an alarm was received from Box 61 for a fire on the roof of the Nicholls Hospital laundry, the third time this year that sparks from the chimney have set it ablaze. Damage, however, was limited to not more than $10. Less than an hour later, firemen were called to 170 Aylmer Street, residence of G. Johnson, to put out a chimney fire. This was at 3.29 p.m.

At noon today there was another chimney fire, this time at 111 Gladstone Avenue, home of C. Lawrence.

Big Hay Crop Is Expected In The County

Farmers are busy planting corn and mangels throughout the district. Most of the potato seeding is complete, and recent rains have invigorated the young crops.

"Help is extremely scarce and the appearance of a good crop makes the situation more serious," is the report from Victoria to the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Excellent growing conditions continue in Peterborough, and "there is promise of a big hay crop in the western part of the county. It is true there was some winter-killing in the eastern part. Fall wheat is looking remarkably good; spring grain is growing rapidly, and corn is being planted in good conditions."

Most of the counties are ringing the changes of satisfaction with the prospects, except in the Muskoka district where rains have been elusive.

Northumberland: Spring conditions continue very promising with all crops covering the ground.

Prince Edward: All crops are looking promising; present indications are for a heavy set of apples. Most of the tomatoes have been transplanted, and milk flow is still on the increase.

Hastings farmers are increasing their acreage of corn.

A few glimpse at western Ontario reflect similarly favorable outlook. For instance, Welland: "Hay, pasture and grain crops have made exceptionally good growth during the week; milk production is on the increase and eggs plentiful."

Here's Wentworth: "Hay is extremely heavy; wheat has a heavy top and is likely to lodge." Oxford: "Hay and wheat and spring grain are showing excellent progress and pastures are at their best."

"Pastures and hay crops look exceedingly well in Essex. Hog population is inceasing on many Lincoln county farms. Many yearling hens are being sold at market for 38c a pound. Eggs average 35 to 37 cents for grade "A" large. "Excellent growth has been made during the week, with hot moist weather. Spring grains are looking good, except the late sown fields. Fruit growers are estimating the peach crop at 50 to 60 per cent. of 1942 "which would be a great deal better than 1943. The cherry crop will range from 25 to 40 per cent. for sours and 50 per cent. sweet. Plums are a washout, and the pear bloom has set poorly."

William Tinker Purchases Huycke Home

Two building permits of interest beyond the ordinary applications have been issued this week from the office of City Engineer Parsons.

One is for a storage shed at Beaver Lumber Company, and the other for conversion of the Huycke residence in Engleburn into a duplex.

The city council Monday night offered Beaver Lumber Company $10,000 for their property on George street at Rink street, hoping but hardly expecting that the company would accept and locate their industry elsewhere. In the event of the offer being declined the council formally directed issue of a permit to the company for new buildings, one of which is to be erected immediately, and any others probably to be left as postwar projects.

The present permit is for a lumber storage shed, 160 feet by 24 feet, with exterior walls of wood and roof of asphalt shingles, at an estimated cost of $4,500.

The other permit indicates the purchase by William Tinker of the residence of City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., and the home of his late parents, County Judge E. C. S. Huycke. It is understood that possession does not pass to Mr. Tinker until the end of this month, and that the work of transforming the house into a duplex will not begin until July.

The Huycke residence was for years occupied by the late C. B. McAllister who owned the large flour mill which was situated on the north side of Hunter street on the east slope to the river beside the present bridge. Hardly a vestige of that mill remains. It was operated by water power from the old raceway which flowed across Hunter street for years when an iron street-level bridge spanned the river.

The Engleburn house is believed to have been built in 1851 by the Rev. Mark Burnham, rector of St. John's Church. In response to the Examiner enquiry for information as to the development of that part of Ashburnham years ago, E. A. Peck, K.C., recalled today that Burnham street was then called Lake street.

The present Dale avenue, leading from Burnham street into the Engleburn area, was a private driveway into the home property of the Rev. Mark Burnham. There were only two other houses south of that driveway. One was the home of John Burnham, now owned by Gordon R. Langley, and the other the home of Henry T. Strickland, one of the seven sons of Colonel Strickland of Lakefield, and now the residence of Howard T. Fallis and his wife Senator Iva C. Fallis.

The old J. J. Lundy estate was another fine residence of that period. It is now an apartment on the east side of Burnham street, and down at the lake, on the west side of the street, was the house built by Mr. Peck's father, a stone building still in use.

Mr. E. A. Peck's wife was a granddaughter of the Rev. Mark Burnham.

King's Birthday Slows Court Cases

As today was a legal holiday Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., declined to proceed with any of the cases listed for this morning and the whole docket had to be postponed.

Jack Ward, charged with failing to report a change in address to the divisional registrar, while being a person liable to military call, was remanded until Tuesday.

Corporal Karl Lockwood of the R.C.M.P. said that he was opposed to bail being granted in that case.

A charge against Louis Yeotes of allowing a minor to frequent his billiard room was adjourned until June 15.

Joseph Robinson who was to have been sentenced today on a theft charge to which he had pleaded guilty was remanded again for sentence.

$200 Fine Set By Judge In Hughes' Case

Judge Coleman imposed on Thomas Hughes Wednesday a penalty of $200 fine and $100 costs on conviction by a jury of having assaulted and caused actual bodily harm to Wheeler Windsor, last Christmas.

His Honor, said he noted the clemency recommendation by the jury, and also the statement that the accused had no criminal record. For those reasons, Judge Coleman said, he was dealing lightly with Hughes in the serious matter of an unjustified attack, warned him to keep control of his temper, and also to keep out of the courts. His present conviction left him vulnerable for more severe penalty on any repetition of breaking the law.

A trial jury acquitted Wheeler Windsor of theft of $26 from Hughes. Four witnesses swore that he was elsewhere at the time, it was alleged by the prosecution that he was at the Hughes home.

William Scrace, a teenage boy, said that he and George Hughes, son of Thomas Hughes, had seen Windsor stoop over Hughes as he was lying asleep on the floor in the living room at his home, take out a roll of money, help himself to some of it, and put the rest back in his trouser pocket.

Scrace said he had seen the incident through the front door and also through a side window. The jury manifestly accepted the defense evidence. T. J. Carley, K. C., was solicitor for Windsor.

Police Officer And Bride Taken For Ride

Officer Andre Dalton of the Peterborough police department will have special reason for remembering his wedding to Miss Jean McCauley Wednesday because of the unexpected ride he was given by some of his fellow-officers after the ceremony.

An old-fashioned open carriage of the vintage of thirty-five years ago and pulled by a tractor instead of the customary team of horses was awaiting the wedding couple as they came out of St. Luke's church. The traditional taxi had disappeared during the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton were hurried to the combination of modern and ancient vehicles and with two policemen Officers C. J. McGillen and John Morrow riding on the driver's seat of the carriage and Officer W. A. Clarke supplying a motor cycle escort the newly-married couple were taken for a tour of the city.

Fire sirens greeted them as they passed the fire hall and in general it was a memorable journey for the police constable and his bride.

3 Chinese Waiters Held For Vagrancy

A police cruiser carrying Sgt. Gordon T. Puffer and Officers Leo Murphy and W. A. Clarke arrived at the Peterborough lock shortly before 3 o'clock this morning in time to arrest three Chinese waiters and three local women.

In police court today, Arthur Mah, 32, and Frank Lee, 29, both of 328 George street faced vagrancy charges before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. and as this was the King's birthday were remanded until tomorrow, without plea, on bail of $100 each.

Yee Jung Mon, 36, of the same address, was charged with illegal possession of liquor and he too was remanded until Friday with bail fixed at $200 in his case.

The three women, Barbara Young, 18 and Reta Charron, 19, both of the Queen's Hotel and Mrs. Rosie Hills, Bolivar street, were charged with being prostitutes and were remanded until tomorrow without bail.

Safe Crackers Frightened Away

PORT HOPE, June 8—(CP)—Frightened by the noise they made when they dropped a safe on the sidewalk which they had taken from Port Hope Creamery during the night, thieves early today fled without it. Entrance was affected by forcing open the front door of the creamery. The till was emptied of $9 in War Savings stamps and $10 in cash.

Prayer Service Draws Big Crowd

A large crowd attended the prayer service held at the Riverside Bowl on Wednesday night, when earnest citizens, many of them with relatives in the invasion forces, gathered to ask for strength and guidance in the coming hours of uncertainty.

Rev. W. A. Filer was chairman and gave a group of Anglican prayers for the success of the invasion, and for the sailors, soldiers, and airmen in the battle. He asked that strength and faith be given to the people at home, and that Canadians be made worthy of the victory.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church gave the invocation prayer, asking for the spirit of God to descend on those present, and led in the singing.

Rev. H. J. Mahoney of Knox United Church read the Scripture, Psalm 46, and Major John Wood of the Salvation Army pronounced the benediction.

The Salvation Army Band gave a brief concert before and after the service, and played for the hymns, "Unto the Hills," "Eternal Father," and "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

Mayor James Hamilton brought a message of welcome to those assembled. He said that they did not have to attend that service, and those who attended had really come to offer prayers for the success of the big push and for their loved ones at the Front.

There were many young people and children 10 and under present. All were solemn and conscious of the importance of the task before them. There was a pronounced spirit of reverence over the entire gathering, and those sitting in the cars above the Bowl, climbed out on the grass during the prayers.

A-MAJOR BERT BRINDLE

Albert Brindle Decorated In King's List

For a second time since the war since the war broke out in 1939, a Peterborough man has been made an officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. He is Acting Major Albert Brindle, serving overseas with the Royal Canadian Artillery. His wife, Mrs. Roma Mary Brindle, has been living at 579 Aylmer street.

No citation accompanied the announcement of the decoration in the King's Birthday Honor list. Fifty-seven other officers and 23 other ranks also received the same award. Two officers were appointed Companions of the Order of the Bath and 12 officers appointed Commanders of the Order of the British Empire.

Acting Major Brindle, who in civilian life was a tool designer at the C.G.E., came to Peterborough in June, 1937. "Bert" to all his friends at the C.G.E., the young man worked in the Mechanical Drafting department, and was well liked.

Popular Employee

His supervisor, G. A. Spicer, said this morning that he was an aggressive individual with a sparkling personality and that there wasn't anyone at the factory who didn't like him. He worked with plastics and did a good job and was completing his engineering course at the time he joined the Army.

"We didn't want him to go in the Army, but he did anyway," Mr. Spicer declared. "He was always popular everywhere he went because of his loveable personality. He could sing, dance and play, and was much in demand as an entertainer by his friends. He was a grand person," he concluded.

Before coming to Peterborough, the young soldier, 29, worked for two years at the Canadian Westinghouse in Hamilton. From 1927 to 1935, he was employed by Beatty Brothers in Fergus. He received his education in Guelph and Fergus.

Acting Major Brindle enlisted in July, 1940, with the 4th Anti-Tank unit, and finally went overseas in October, 1941 with an artillery unit. He attained his captaincy in January 1943, and in January, 1944, he became acting major. The young soldier was born in England in November, 1914.

The only other Peterborough man to receive this decoration is Major Herbert Moran, now of Toronto, who was given this award in the King's New Year's list in 1943.

Victory Workers Renew Aid For War Victims

Four years ago at this time, the word "Victory" as far as it concerned the cause of the Allied Nations might have been considered a misnomer, and the very fact that today it shows every prospect of becoming a realization in the not too distant future, is in itself an object lesson of just what the will and determination to come out on top may lead to, providing one works and strives onwards towards that end, and the cause is really one of true value.

One of the most vivid recollections of the present conflict that the writer will ever recall, is a visit to the Officers' Mess of the Prince of Wales Rangers at or near the time of the fall of Dunkerque when reports from the theatre of operations on the Continent were such as to cause the most ardent and optimistic to sink into the depths of gloom, the results of which acted like a tonic, for there was no such thing as defeatism prevalent here, and the spirit of these men who now are scattered to all parts of the globe, were such as pointed in no other way than that of sure victory when the final tale is told.

Choose Good Name

It is some two years or so since the Peterborough Victory Workers were organized, and while their efforts are not confined to any one particular object, everything they do as a group has the one objective of helping towards the final day of victory in view, so the name they choose is quite appropos, and as such should commend itself generally to everyone in the matter of public support.

On a number of occasions they have given support to the local and district fund to assist the suffers from enemy air raids over Britain, and it might perhaps be considered quite significant that their latest of $10 listed today should be given at the time when what is hoped will be the last great push towards complete victory has just got under way. This group of loyal workers is headed by Mrs. Bruce L. Fowler as president, and Mrs. K. Simpson as treasurer.

Recently a new glass container was left at the In and Out Shop, and the box located there collected at the same time. This contained a little better than the average at $3.60, and this is included in today's list.

Party at Fairview

Of particular interest to people in the Fairview and Nassau districts will be a social evening to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fowler to give the fund a helping hand this Friday evening. Mrs. Fowler is the energetic secretary of the Fairview War Workers who have assisted the fund on many occasions previously, to the splendid tune of a total of $365.40.

He is survived by his father who is employed at Genelco. Mr. Shears is a veteran of the last war and an active member of the Canadian Legion. In addition Tpr. Shears leaves a sister, Florence of Vancouver, and a brother, Flt. Sgt. Arthur Shears with the R.C.A.F. at Edmonton.

Factory Stack Becomes Red Hot

A flash fire with unusual consequences but involving little damage occurred in the early hours of this morning at the Canadian Raybestos Company, when flashes from a bake oven went up a 105-foot steel stack and made it red-hot from ground to top. The heat of the fire also took off several sprinkler heads in the building. Firemen received the alarm at 2.25 a.m and spent some time cooling off the huge stack with hoses.

Wednesday at 2.50 p.m. an alarm was received from Box 61 for a fire on the roof of the Nicholls Hospital laundry, the third time this year that sparks from the chimney have set it ablaze. Damage, however, was limited to not more than $10. Less than an hour later, firemen were called to 170 Aylmer Street, residence of G. Johnson, to put out a chimney fire. This was at 3.29 p.m.

At noon today there was another chimney fire, this time at 111 Gladstone Avenue, home of C. Lawrence.

Miracle Of Dunkerque Reviewed For Cheese Producers At Warsaw

"Tuesday, June 6, 1944, will likely prove to be the most momentous day in the history of mankind," said Dr. J. B. Reynolds of Port Hope, former president of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, as guest speaker at the dinner arranged by the Cheese Producers' Association of Peterborough county at Warsaw Wednesday evening in the role of hosts to a representative company of members of service clubs of the city and other invited friends and their wives.

The Cheese Producers have wished to reciprocate the hospitality which they have received from various city organizations from time to time, and deciding upon a rural venue they chose the friendly accommodation of Warsaw, and only a cool lapse in the weather affected their plans. Supper was served by members of Warsaw Women's Institute on the lawn of the United church, with cafeteria service from the basement. Then hosts and guests walked down the village street to the community hall for the second part of the program, Dr. Reynolds' address and musical entertainment by Claire Rouse of Toronto.

Dr. Reynolds said he wondered whether the people of today fully realize the tremendous importance and significance of the events of the five years of the war in which Germany embroiled the world, and especially of the climax in these present days so sharply cast by contrast against the darkness of four years ago when the British Empire was standing alone against the might of the Axis arms.

Four Years Ago

"Almost exactly four years ago General Alexander managed to rescue 300,000 British soldiers from Dunkerque, leaving behind all their implements of war. Were you impressed with the tragedy of the situation? Across the English Channel millions of Germans were waiting for the move to conquer Britain. The people of the United States were friendly to us, but I do not think they expected any power on earth could prevent Germany from crossing the Channel. Why the enemy did not do it I don't know. Some people are inclined to say that it was a miracle of intervention that saved us from Hitler when he turned south to complete the subjection of France.

One reason, I think, was that the Germans are not a maritime people, and had failed to provide themselves with the boats they needed for the transport of large forces. Later, they turned towards Russia, and incited Japan to attack Pearl Harbor. And that brought the United States into the war.

Four years ago we stood alone, practically defenceless. Today, we are fully armed and with the aid of the United States and other Allies. And Russia stands poised on the east. When you look at that change in our position and fortunes, if you cannot consider it a miracle, as I have mentioned, at least you can say that it has been a marvellous example of fortitude and resistance on the part of the British people."

Dr. Reynolds said that days and weeks of uncertainty undoubtedly lie ahead. For the people of this country who do not feel the weight and terror of bombs, and far removed from the Motherland and the continent of Europe, this new crisis in history imposes a heavy responsibility to understand the full seriousness of the situation and to provide support in every possible way to ensure the success of our new campaign against Germany.

No Time For Frivolity

"This is not a time for frivolity and revelling, and I hope that when the day of victory comes we will be in a serious mind of gratefulness for our escape from a great tyranny, and that our people will be in their churches and not in beer parlors."

Preceding his reference to the current phase of the war, Dr. Reynolds spoke briefly on two agricultural topics. One of them was the effect of mechanization of labor within the last century, changing "our way of living more than in all the other centuries."

One hundred years ago 16 of every 20 persons in the United States owned the means by which they earned their living, and it seemed safe to say that the same ratio was true of Canada. Today only 3 persons in every 20 own their means of livelihood. The seventeen others are employees.

In 1871 the number of people living on farms in Canada was 355 for every 100 living in towns; but in 1931 there were 64 people on farms to every 100 in towns. The ratio had changed from six to one.

Value Shrinks

Turning to another topic of the shrinkage in agricultural capitalization, Dr. Reynolds said that in 1928 farm lands and building in Canada represented capital value of roughly five billion dollars as compared with three and one-third billions in 1940. There was just as much land and probably more buildings, but their value had diminished.

Farm implements and machines had shrunk from $665,000,000 in 1928 to $462,000,000 in 1940.

Livestock, of which there had been an increase in number, followed the same downward trend in capital value, from $861,00,000 in 1928 to $696,000,000 in 1940. An American economist had estimated that in recent years agricultural capital had diminished 30 per cent.

Dr. Reynolds continued his statistics:—horses in the war year of 1917 averaged $126; in 1928, $76; and in 1939, $67.

Milk cows: 1917, $86; 1928 $72; 1939 $46.

Other cattle: 1917, $57; 1928, $46 1939, $39.

Swine: 1917, $26; 1928, $15; 1939, $12.

"In spite of the fact that since this war began 400,000 able bodied men have left the farms of Canada, the quantity of bacon we exported to Britain in 1943 was 675,000,000 pounds; in 1942, 600,000,000 pounds; in 1940, 350,000,000 pounds; in 1938, 170,000,000 pounds.

"We exported in cheese to Britain 81,000,000 pounds in 1938, 106,000,000; in 1942, 150,000,000 pounds, and the same quantity in 1943."

Lauds Job Done

Dr. Reynolds also quoted the comparative figures for eggs, and summarized these statistics as an evidence of the huge job the farmers of Canada had done during the war years by their own additional efforts and with the help of members of their families including women, but in the face of a heavy shrinkage in available farm labor.

As for Claire Rouse, who was competently assisted at the piano by Stanley Northrop, his solo entertainment delighted the capacity audience in the community hall. In two appearances and in sharply contrasting raiment, Mr. Rouse surprised and delighted the crowd with a program of stunt music that was all the more acceptable in its cleverness and genuine quality on standard instruments ranging from bassoon and oboe through saxaphones and trumpets, ocarina and tiny accordion. Sandwiched with his fine performance on violin and wind instruments was his making of music from a saw, a cane, a bottle partly filled with water, steel tubes which he played with gloved hands, and so on, a variety show in himself.

George Elliott, president of the Cheese Producers' Association, was chairman, and Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, introduced Dr. Reynolds and Mr. Rouse. At the conclusion appreciation on behalf of the guests was expressed by Reeve M. H. Johnston of North Monaghan and G. A. Gillespie. Reeve Gilbert McIlmoyle of Smith, vice-president of the Association, moved a vote of thanks to the members of the Women's Institute for their splendid supper, and Stewart Clysdale announced a social for Thursday evening.

Rev. Ellis D. Snelgrove, minister of Warsaw United church, in a neat little speech of welcome to the visitors said that Warsaw was glad to assist in promoting the spirit of hospitality to the friends from the city.

Buying Trousseau Big Event In Life of Bride-elect

Every bride-to-be looks forward to buying her trousseau. This is one place where she can let loose and buy just as many pretty things as the purse strings will allow. It should be remembered though, that quality counts again and the better the quality the longer the wear. It is a thought, too, that the more the bride can buy for herself before she is married, the less the groom will have to buy for her the first year. During the first year there are generally incidental and unexpected expenses and if the bride can help by not buying too much for herself, it will most likely be very much appreciated by the groom.

Select a beautiful bridal set of pantie, bra-slip, nightgown and bed jacket. Try and have a glamorous negligee and a pretty house coat and a comfortable dressing gown or lounging robe. For the June bride, it is wise to purchase two or three washable cotton dresses which will be attractive for the Honeymoon trip and will also come in handy for the hot summer evenings at home.

Then the bride will require neat looking house dresses, because a groom going to work in the mornings will like to look back on his neat and tidy looking young bride as he left her after breakfast. Because a girl is married is no reason to let herself "go." There are still just as many attractive women around and the chanting of a few marriage vows will not always hold one's husband to the home. The bride should try and be more attractive than ever after marriage.

Of course the bride will require a light top-coat for the cool evenings as well as other pantie sets, slips, nightgowns, girdles, blouses, sweaters, scarfs, hosiery, gloves, hankies, purses, hats, shoes and above all a good supply of cosmetics.

When choosing the going-away outfit, it is better to have contrast in shades rather than try to match colours. Also, it is best to try and have all dresses to match or contrast with one or two pair of shoes, hats and purses. In that way extra luggage is avoided and not so many articles will have to be packed. Simplicity in the basic costume and allowance for more elaborate accessories will go a long way in proving good taste and portraying that picture of the bride that he will long remember.

Much Thought Required In Purchasing Furniture

Before investing a large portion of the capital on hand in home furnishings, it is advisable to know something about general rules for selecting pieces suitable in appearance, utility and comfort; to understand what wood is desirable for different articles, what construction is durable, and how good upholstered furniture is made; and to have some information about the period styles which are commonly used. Then costly mistakes may be avoided and the furniture chosen become the permanent nucleus around which later purchases may be made.

It is wasteful to buy unsuitable furniture which will have to be discarded in a few years. Sometimes old pieces of furniture found in family attics can be varnished or painted and made worthy of a place in the new home. A man who is clever with hammer and saw and a woman who wields scissors, needles and paint brush effectively may be able to make dressing tables, and bookcases, thus adding greatly to the convenience and attractiveness of the rooms while at the same time reducing the outlay of money.

At the present time there is not such a wide selection of fabrics and colors for the draperies, but it is important that they should withstand laundering, as dry cleaning makes the upkeep more expensive, and have fast colors if this is possible. Economize if necessary by eliminating linings and trimmings rather than by getting cheaper materials.

Buy The Best

In selecting rugs it is wisest to buy the best quality the budget allows. About the same amount of labor goes into the manufacture of similar types of rugs, but tests indicate that those costing two or three dollars more a square yard often give many times the wear of cheaper grades because better materials are used.

Since small rugs may be adjusted to any sized room, many people find them more convenient than larger ones for rented houses or apartments. Particularly is this true when young couples are being transferred to different localities from time to time. Sometimes it is better to start with fewer rugs and better ones, adding others as they can be afforded. Padding prolongs the life of rugs and prevents small ones from slipping.

It is just recently that spring mattresses have come back in stock and they are the most desirable from the standpoint of comfort. Here again it pays to buy good quality. The frequency and cost of necessary renovation should be considered in connection with the original price.

Those who embark upon the new adventure of establishing a home may not have the power to shape its destiny, but they can steer its course. If they drift, they are at the mercy of ever emergency that arises. With thoughful, long range planning their chances for daily comfort and future satisfaction are immeasurably increased.

Did You Know ?

THAT:

In France a young Frenchman cannot legally marry until twenty-five without the consent of his parents or other heads of the family; for these practical people lay greater stress on the making of proper financial arrangements than on romance. The national birthrate is low, for the French believe in making provision for their children's future. But when a child is born, he is visited by a government physician, and a great deal is done by way of conservation of babies. For years aid of various kinds has been proffered those who will present the nation with new citizens. Some industrial corporations pay higher wages to workmen with young children, and matrimonial advertisements are looked upon with respect. It is even on record that one Parisian landlord will receive as tenants no family that has not children.

THAT:

In the sunny country of Spain, the better classes live in handsome residences built, in Moorish fashion, round a central court, or patio, which is gay with flowers and fountains. Few of the windows look out on the street, and these are usually protected by an iron grille called the "reja." When windows are on the ground floor, much courtship is carried on through the reja; when they are on a higher story the lover has to be content with sign-language and with serenading his lady to the accompaniment of his guitar, for Spanish women still live in a certain amount of seclusion —a legacy from the Moors. But "playing the bear," as window-courtship is called, is nowadays often superseded by dances and "dates" not so very different from those in the most modern lands of Europe and America.

THAT:

In the olden days the color "yellow" in connection with the Wedding day was the emblem of jealousy; true-blue, which signifies constancy, and green, which denotes youth was used. Combining the two you have youthful constancy.

THAT:

Referring again to olden times, it was among the offices of the bridesmaids to lead the bridegroom to the church, as it was the duty of the bridegroom's men to conduct the bride thither. The latter anciently had the title of bride-knights. Those who led the bride to church were always bachelors; but she was to be conducted home by two married persons.

THAT:

In Portugal the women have the habit of carrying on their heads everything, including the baby, which gives them an excellent carriage and fine figures.

Wedding Ring for Centuries Held Mystical Signification

The book "Finger-Ring Lore" written by William Jones, F.S.A. and published in 1877, was dedicated to his wife in the symbol of a wedding ring with the inscription "A Pledge of Happy Wedded Life."

A paragraph of interest to June brides, in fact all brides, is that under "Betrothal and Wedding Rings." Mr. Jones writes as follows:—"It would be difficult to find a subject more interesting in all its associations than a wedding-ring. From the most remote time it has had a mystical signification, appealing to our most cherished feelings, hopes and wishes. The circular form of the ring was accepted in days by-gone, as a symbol of eternity, thus indicative of the stability of affection. We find some of our noted divines echoing the sentiments of old enthusiasts on the figurative virtues of a ring. Thus Dean Comber and Wheatley express themselves: The matter of which this ring is made is gold, signifying how noble and durable our affection is; the form is round, to imply our respect (or regards) shall never have an end; the place of it is on the fourth finger of the left hand, where the ancients thought that was a vein that came directly from the heart, and where it may always be in view; and, being a finger least used, where it may be least subject to be worn out; but the main end is to be a visible and lasting token of the covenant which must never be forgotten."

In the "British Apollo" a question is asked: "Why is it that the person to be married is enjoined to put a ring upon the fourth finger of his spouse's left hand". The answer is: "There is nothing more in this than that the custom was handed down to the present age, from the practice of our ancestors, who found the left hand more convenient for such ornaments than the right, in that 'tis ever less employed; for the same reason they chose the fourth finger, which is not only less used than either of the rest, but it is more capable of preserving a ring from bruises, having this one quality peculiar to itself, that it cannot be extended but in company with some other finger, whereas the rest my be singly stretched to their full length and straightened. Some of the ancients' opinions in the matter viz. that the ring was so worn because to that finger, and to that only comes an artery from the heart; but, the politer knowledge of our modern anatomists having clearly demonstrated the absurdity of that notion, we are rather inclined the continuance of the custom owing to the reason above mentioned."

The tender and affectionate faith derived from the wedding-ring is illustrated in the legend of Guy, Earl of Warwick. The doughty knight, when in a moment of temptation he is about to marry the beautiful Loret, daughter of the Emperor Ernis, is recalled to his duty at the sight of the wedding-ring, and remembers his fair Felice, who is far distant, pining at his absence.

Also, the tenderness that a wedding-ring can inspire is shown in the instance of Louis IX of France, who is his youth was married to Marguerite of Provence, the victim of a cruel jealousy on the part of Blanche of Castile, the King's mother. The young Prince, who loved his wife, constantly wore a ring ornamented with a garland of lilies and daisies, in allusion to his spouse and himself.

However, like everything, humanly speaking, the wedding-ring has had its vicissitudes, and, from being the emblem of all that is pure and holy in life, has been desecrated to the vilest and most impious of usages. Nothing can be more humiliating to good faith and rectitude than to read the acounts of what took place not many years ago concerning the "Fleet Marriages."

In Burns' "Registers" of these mock celebrations, sad cases are read of this abominable system, which prevailed in the last century, of clandestine marriages.

On the suppression of the Fleet marriages in the middle of the last century commenced the scandalous Gretna Green marriages—the name derived from that of a farmstead in the vicinity of the village of Springfield, in the parish of Graitney, Dumfriesshire. The official who performed these irregular marriages was of different vocations—sometimes a blacksmith. In the report of a late Court of Probate case at Westminster, an agriculturist, Thomas Blythe, admitted that he did a small stroke of business in the "joining" line as well and in reply to counsel's question "how the marriage ceremony was performed" he replied: "I first asked them if they were single persons. They said they were. I then asked the man, "Do you take this woman for your wife?" He said "Yes". I then asked the woman, "Do you take this man for your lawful husband?" She said, "Yes". I then said "Put on the ring," and added, "the thing is done, the marriage is complete."

It was the custom to betroth before marriage in olden days as it is at this day. The ring was used in marriage among Christians as early as 860. Pledge rings passed between the contracting parties among the Romans. When the marriage settlement had been properly sealed, rings, bearing the names of the newly-married couple, were handed round to the guests.

In thus contributing to the extension of knowledge, the subject of ring-lore has a close affinity to that of numismatics, but it possesses the supreme advantage of appealing to our sympathies and affections. So Herrick sings of the wedding-ring:

And as this round
Is nowhere found
To flaw, or else to sever,
So let our love
As endless prove,
And pure as gold for ever!

May Use Future Initials On Flatware and Linens

The question has been asked — should flatware and linens be marked with the initials of the bride's maiden name or with those of her name to be? The answer—until recently using the initials of the maiden name was invariable. Nowadays it is permissible to use the bride's future initials if she so desires.

A suggested bridal dress for the informal wedding would be pale blue street length lace dress, and a headdress of very pale pink natural carnations, fitted like a tiny hat, arranged with a pale pink or blue shoulder-length veil. A nosegay corsage to match may be pinned to the shoulder, or if it is very small, to the back of long pale blue gloves. For the attendant, pale violet lace or a pale champagne lace would be pretty.

Advice has been requested as to who calls on whom after an engagement is announced, that is, where the bride is not known to her fiancee's family. Rigid social form requires the fiancee's family to call on the bride-to-be, however, if he has sister she will surely call, that is if his mother goes out little or is not well.

When two sisters are to have a double wedding, should their wedding dresses be alike? It is suggested that the sisters do not turn themselves out like twins at wedding, but the gowns should harmonize in length, material and in general style. The bridesmaids, too, should choose costumes that do not clash. Harmony is the keynote for a double wedding.

Varied Duties for Best Man And Attendants at Wedding

By ALENE HOLT

The duties of the best man and the attendants to the bride are varied. The best man is not there for moral support for the groom, but he has to be quite a helper. First of all, he has to assist the groom in any way possible, therefore, it is his duty to ascertain the plans of the groom and see that they are carried out properly. For example, he will have to see that there are plenty of cars provided for taking guests to and from the church; also, that flowers are delivered to the proper place on time.

A wedding rehearsal will be necessary if the wedding is a large one, and, of course, the best man will have to be present for this. A rehearsal is especially good if it can be at the church, as it gives the attendants a chance to become acquainted with the surroundings in which the wedding will take place as well as with their positions.

The best man arrives five minutes or so before the ceremony with the groom. He then receives the ring, license and clergyman's fee from the groom if he has not aleady done so.

Many Jobs

After the ceremony he will be present to sign as witness, and later to help entertain the guests at the reception. He should be prepared to respond to the toast to the bridesmaids; or in some cases to toast the bridesmaids. He should see that the bride and groom depart on time and help them with luggage.

The ushers are to be at the church one hour before the ceremony. They leave their hats in the vestry or coat room where boutonniere sent by the groom should be waiting. They have a printed list of those occupying reserved pews.

They stand at the door and as each woman guest arrives offer their right arm, giving preference to eldest if many arrive at same time, the others following or waiting, if they wish. They see that the friends of the bride are seated on the left, the groom's on the right.

The head usher escorts the mother of the groom to the front right hand pew when she arrives, the father of the groom following.

The head usher also escorts the mother of the bride to the front left hand pew. After her entry, no other guests should be escorted to their seats, but should be allowed to take places on the back side aisles.

Bridesmaids Help

The maid or matron of honor takes the bride's bouquet to hold during the ring service and she assists the bride in changing to going away costume. The bridesmaids should be ready for rehearsal at time and place appointed by the bride. Their duties also include being at the bride's home at appointed time for wedding, and dressing there or at home and being ready for photographs one hour before service. Bridesmaids should also arrange their own transportation to bride's home, if possible.

See about accommodation for out-of-town guests; if not at home, then at a hotel or club.

Shop for gifts for the maid or matron of honor, and bridesmaids.

Arrange a luncheon or tea at which to present gifts to your bridal party.

"One Week before the Wedding Day."

Check the trousseau so there will be no omissions.

Have some beauty treatments.

Acknowledge each gift as received with a small note or "thank you" card.

Have a trousseau tea so friends may see all the lively gifts.

Pack things that will not crease two or three days before the Wedding day.

If possible, have a rehearsal the day before so all small details may be settled.

Long Afternoon Gown Right For 'Informal Day Wedding'

Many weddings of the present day will come under the heading of an "Informal Day Wedding" and the correct dress for the bride would be a long afternoon gown in any becoming color (except black) with hat, gloves and shoes to harmonize. She may wear a corsage or carry a bouquet.

The attendants should wear an afternoon costume (either long or street-length) but in a color of definite contrast to the bridal gown. Hat, gloves and shoes and a corsage or bouquet. The groom, best man, ushers, fathers of bride and groom —oxford grey or black single or double breasted jacket; black, grey, buff or white waistcoat; white shirt with turn-down collar with four-in-hand tie; striped trousers, grey gloves, Homburg or derby hat; or dark sack suit with above accessories, The above is for men not in uniform.

The mothers of the bride and groom should wear afternoon clothes slightly more formal than those of the guests and corsages sent by the groom. The women guests should wear smart afternoon costumes and it is well to remember that it is better to be too restrained than overdressed. The men guests should be attired the same as the groom and best man.

For the formal day wedding, the bride would wear a traditional wedding gown with full length train, sleeves and veil in white or pastel shades. Gloves are not necessary with long sleeves. She may carry a white prayer book or a bridal bouquet.

The groom, best man, ushers, fathers of bride and groom— black or oxford-grey morning coat; black, grey, buff, or white vest; pleated or plain bosom, white shirt, bold wing collar with ascot, or turn down starched collar with four-in-hand; grey and black striped trousers; black calf shoes, black silk socks, silk hat, grey gloves, boutonnieres.

The attendants should wear long formal dresses, if possible, or the new formal street-length dresses. They should wear short gloves with long sleeves and long gloves with short sleeves and should carry bouquets of harmonizing flowers.

The mothers of the bride and groom would look becoming in dinner dresses in not too dark or light a shade, with hats, gloves and shoes, according to the season and fashion. They will wear corsages sent by the groom. Again the women guests would wear smart afternoon costumes and the men guests would be dressed similar to the other men-folks.

Careful Budgeting Needed Saves Many Arguments

Many young couples are afraid of a budget; many think the effort involved in balancing one too much trouble, however, more arguments can be founded on the subject of money than on any other subject. Nowadays, unless the bridal couple have been blessed with the "goose that laid the golden egg," they have to watch their pennies. Money should not be spent unwisely and every extra cent should be placed in War Savings Stamps and Victory Bonds to help bring about a successful conclusion to the war.

When a man and woman venture into matrimony, they are faced with practical considerations differing from any encountered before. Though they may have been skilful in living within their individual incomes, the business of financing, equiping and managing a home presents a new series of problems.

Couples contemplating marriage should ask: First, how much money is it necessary to have? Secondly, how can this money be spent to best advantage? and thirdly, how shall the finance of the new household be organized?

Few couples today have ideal financial conditions for establishing the new home. Whether it is safe to marry on very little money depends greatly upon the temperaments of the two people undertaking it. If the wages are very small, a man and wife should put themselves through careful questioning before they set the date. When they face squarely the conditions imposed by this limited income, if they know in their hearts that they cannot make the necessary sacrifices with a smile, then the sensible decision will be to wait until conditions are less exacting.

Definite Saving

It is essential to happiness that ample thought be given to financial matters. A good budget should be tailor-made, because situations and objectives are seldom the same in any two cases. The important thing is to plan for all expenses and to provide for a definite amount to be put aside from each pay cheque. Too, besides listing all the absolutely necessary items, it is wise to allow the husband a small amount for cigarettes or incidental personal expenses, and the woman as well should be allowed an amount out of every pay to cover cosmetics, and beauty treatments. It is embarrassing for the woman who has been working herself and has been independent over a number of years to have to ask for money to have her hair done, or some other such thing. Each being allowed a certain amount for their individual needs avoids a lot of bickering. They should be allowed to spend their allowances as they see fit.

Amounts should be set aside out of each pay to cover the food, rent, clothing, operating expenses, advancement and recreation, savings which most likely would include life insurance premiums, War Savings Stamps and Victory Bonds. Also, if possible, it is wise to belong to a medical or hospitalization service of some kind, because an accident, sickness or even death can financially ruin any young people and create inconveniences which may retard the most promising career.

Someone has said: "Managing money can be an exciting game played by every member of a family. Friendliness and co-operation and love and laughter go hand in hand with those who join the game."

Traditional Photo Always Necessary

No wedding is complete without the traditional photograph. When one's memory grows dim in later years it is so nice to look back on a photograph and live again those happy hours.

Make an appointment well ahead of time and it is preferable to have the bride's and bridesmaids' photographs taken an hour before the ceremony. Group pictures may be taken after the ceremony, before the guests are received.

Use only about half as much make-up as ordinarily used for a photograph. Have the hair "coiffed" a day or so before the wedding and then it will look natural and lovely. Always let the photographer look after the pose—he will know what best suits everyone concerned.

I.O.D.E. Appeals For Card Packs

An appeal for playing cards for the Uptown Recreation Centre was again made by Mrs. S. Braund, hospitality convener, during her report to the regular meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E. Reviewing the work done during the month, Mrs. Braund said that the chapter had been in charge of the entertainment one night a week for the past month at the Centre, and that treats for soldiers in hospital at the local Training Centre had also been arranged.

Sales of over $50 were reported by Mrs. W. L. Hardwicke, in charge of the Opportunity Shop, and work is continuing on this project. A number of children's dresses, for shipment overseas, were reported made by the sewing convener.

Mrs. J. K. Hughes was appointed to represent the chapter in the Women's Auxiliary of Nicholls Hospital. It was decided to donate two cases of honey to the Red Cross for shipment overseas, and plans for the picnic for the Blind, usually held during the summer months, were discussed, and members pledged their help. Mention was also made of the Active Army Auxiliary tag day, for funds for soldiers boxes, and Mrs. K. J. Currie and Mrs. L. Ingram were named as co-conveners in charge of members who volunteered to tag. Mrs. P. Sanders read a paper on the life of Mrs. Mary Poulson Clark Murray, founder of the I.O.D.E.

Knox Auxiliary Arranges Fall Meetings

Plans for the fall meetings of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United church were discussed at the June meeting of the Auxiliary, at the home of Mrs. W. Dale, High street. Members decided to continue the plan now in operation, and have members divided into groups, with each group in charge of the program for one meeting.

The Christian Stewardship secretary read an article entitled, "Letting Things Go," which stressed the necessity of letting go unnecessary or harmful things, and retaining the really important things in life. Mrs. E. Mesley, president, read an article on "Canada and the Refugees Problem." Mrs. Mesley presided, and opened the meeting with prayer.

Following the custom of the last four years, the offering to be given to the Red Cross group of the church, instead of being used for the annual pic%nic, was received. Mrs. G. W. Denike, secretary of the Auxiliary, who will be leaving Peterborough in a short time to join her husband, in Windsor, was presented with a framed picture of Knox church by Mrs. H. Clegg, on behalf of all members. Nominations for the position of secretary were received.

Mrs. H. Clegg presented the last chapter of the study book, "All the World and All of Life for Christ," followed by a quiz, reviewing the year's study. Mrs. I. Couch conducted the worship service. At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss E. Dale, Mrs. Oesch and Mrs. J. T. Donaldson.

Winners were: Shirley Patterson, 50 yard dash; Anna Brown first, Jeanne McCulloch second, shoe race; Norma Graham and Anna Brown, wheelbarrow.

A dinner and dance were supplied by the hotel in the evening. Spot dance winners were Jeanne McCulloch and Marion Batterson and Mary Mitchell won a specialty dance.

Smith, N. Graham, M. Mitchell, M. Manning, H. Moncrief, A. Brown, Z. Kennedy, M. Vosburg, J. Marleau, R. Young, L. Kearney, R. Patterson, P. Long, J. McCulloch, M. Bateson, N. Collins; Messrs. R. Wilson, E. Manning, D. Harper, B. Robson, J. O'Heron, J. Armitage, Jr.

Attractive Dress Styles Modelled at I.O.D.E. Tea

An interesting, smart, review of sports, morning, afternoon and evening styles was given in the Recreation Room of the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday afternoon, in connection with the annual afternoon tea and fashion show of the Jeanette Scott Chapter, I. O. D. E. Seven members of the Chapter. Mesdames Wilfred Preston, K. M. Robertson, Clifford Cadd, Max Comstock, and J. Archibald, were models.

Sports clothes shown featured trim clacks, in serviceable corduroy or alpine cloth, in darker, subdued tones. The prints and stripes, on the other hand, were in bright reds, greens and blues. These styles, however, showed that strict adherance to the cloth rationing had been observed, since few pleats were shown. Little ruffles were used to "dress up" several of the styles.

Silk jerseys and silk crepes were shown for afternoon wear. Here again, few pleats were in evidence, but artistic draping of materials made the dresses just as smart and appealing. Exciting black and navy blue sheer were modeled for late afternoon and evening wear. Since short evening gowns are still popular, these smart serviceable sheers should certainly top the list.

Big Hats Popular.

Accessories were also modeled with a great many of the styles. Noticeable in the millinery section, was the predominance of large, cool, hats, in shades to match the ensemble, Half-hats, and perky little sailors were also in the limelight and all were dainty and feminine with a swoosh of veiling, some tied under the chain. Purses were large, and in bright shades. Brown and white seemed popular. Gloves were generally white, in washable materials.

Because of the large number of guests, the Green Room of the Y. W. C. A. was also utilized, and the dresses displayed there also. For the two fashion parades presented during the afternoon, both rooms were filled. Receiving the guests were Miss Isabel Weddell, regent, and Mrs. Fred Hooper. Treasurer for the afternoon was Miss Aileen Morgan.

General convener of the tea was Mrs. R. McWilliams, assisted by Mrs. James Turner, Mrs. E. Spurway and Mrs. W. B. Gordon were in charge of the tea table, and members of the Chapter, and several other friends, served. Guests were seated at small tables, set throughout the room. Each was centred with a small bouquet. The tea table was dainty with a large green cloth, and centred with a huge bouquet of red, yellow and pink roses, interspersed with springs of orange blossonms. Large silver services were set at either end. Mrs. Noel Rishor was supervisor of refreshments.

As the guests entered, they immediately saw a home cooking table, laden with delicious sweets. This table, in charge of Mrs. Jack Richardson, assisted by Mrs. R. Allin, was soon emptied of its goodies. Mrs. Wilfred Preston and Mrs. W. A. Breyfogle were in charge of the fashion show. Pianists for the afternoon were Mrs. W. J. Gordon and Mrs. D. McDermott.

Dresses for the display were lent by Barrie's; hats by Olga Haskill; and accessories by Fair's and Schneiders.

Mrs. N. D. Seaton Re-elected Chairman of Peterboro WVS

Mrs. N. D. Seaton was re-elected chairman of the Women's Voluntary Services of Canada, Peterborough section, at the annual meeting of the W.V.S., Wednesday evening. Other members of the executive are as follows: Honorary chairman, Senator Iva C. Fallis; past chairman, Mrs. J. G. Wharry; vice-chairman, Mrs. W. E. Fanning; secretarial and office manager, Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy; treasurer, Mrs. J. G. Lewis.

Conveners of various committees are: Hospitality, Miss Gertrude Cox; training, Mrs. J. Hornal; canteen, Miss F. Bonneycastle; Red Cross canvassing and driving, Mrs. E. J. Johnston; War Savings Stamps, Mrs. J. H. Matthews; clerical, telephone chain, and switchboard, Mrs. J. A. Macdonald; rationing, Mrs. W. E. Fanning; enrolling, factory rooms, and agriculture, Mrs. J. G. Lewis; emergency, Mrs. C. H. Crowe; library, Miss G. Fowler; nursing, first aid, public health, social services, and hospital aid, Mrs. F. Pope; publicity and public speaking, Miss Ferne Rahmel.

Annual reports showed that a vast amount of work had been accomplished during the season. The library report, given by Miss G. Fowler, stated that 763 books were on hand in the camp library, and that nine bundles of magazines and books had been sent to boys in Italy. In the spring, a popular music hour was begun, and each Sunday afternoon, a group of interested soldiers gathered to hear records, with Miss Isabel Weddell present to fully explain them.

A total of $2,259.50 in War Savings Stamps, sold during the year by Miss Canada girls, girl guides and boy scouts, was reported by Mrs. J. H. Matthews. Mrs. E. J. Johnson said that 42 pairs of seaman's sox had been knit. Thirty-four thousand, five hundred and eighteen ration books were distributed by 306 women, who put in 2,804 hours of work were totals given by Mrs. W. E. Fanning.

Opens Homes

An excellent report of the work of the hospitality, committee, praise of and the efforts of Peterborough people to make them feel at home, was given by Miss Gertrude Cox. In private homes during the season, 2,410 boys welcomed, and entertained. The W.V.S. arranged for dances, skating parties, and other entertainments for the boys, and supplied 2,345 hostesses for parties. Mention was also made of the hostess course, sponsored by the W.V.S., when 600 girls took advantage of this training offered them. Arrangements were also made for soldiers who were interested, to attend community concerts, and a schedule of visiting to the Training Centre hospital was also drawn up.

Mrs. F. Pope, in her nursing and first aid report, told of the beginning of the hospital aid system, and said that the W.V.S. had been a clearing house, to send volunteers to help at the hospital. Since May of this year, she said, an average of nine people a day, seven days a week, had been maintained. Twenty-two volunteers have already put in 297 hours of this helpful work.

442 Members

Mrs. J. A. Macdonald, for the clerical committee, said that 219 hours of work had been put in at the Armouries, and a total of 93 hours of work had also been done for the citizens' committee. The total enrolment of the W.V.S. stands at 442, as reported by Mrs. J. Hornal. The active membership is listed at 342.

Present Service Pins

During the evening service pins were given to members who had completed 60 hours of work. The first group was awarded pins because of their time and effort given to the selling of War Savings Stamps. Mrs. J. H. Matthews presented the pins to Misses Amy Curtis, Mary Curtis, Mary Fair, Marleigh Jobbitt, Mary Jane Wharry.

Miss F. Bonneycastle presented the service badges to the following girls for their work in the canteen: Misses Norma Elcombe, Jean Elcombe, Dorothy Franks, Jean Hamley, Doris Hutchinson, Lillian Neiman, Joan Rahmel, Muriel Stenson, Phyllis Turkington, Phyllis Wilson, and Betty Young.

Mrs. W. E. Fanning made the presentations to the third group of workers for their efforts in other activities connected with the W. V. S. Winners of these pins were: Mrs. W. B. Brown, Mrs. M. Carr, Mrs. A. Farthing, Mrs. J. C. Harkness, Mrs. W. P. Hoplins, Mrs. W. C. Pinn, Mrs. H. Beatty, Mrs. R. E. Clark, Mrs. G. Maniece and Mrs. A. W. Clysdale; Misses K. Elliott, E. Ferguson, Phyllis Heath, Linden Hall and Mary Curry.

Perth Man Weds Hall's Glen Girl

A pretty June wedding took place recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Parsons, Hall's Glen, when their youngest daughter, Barbara Agnes Parsons, became the bride of Hilton Clifton Rhodes, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Rhodes, of Perth. Rev. W. A. Piler of All Saints' Anglican Church officiated. The marriage was solemnized on the spacious lawn, under a pink and white arch, decorated with small pink roses and English ivy, and centred with a large white bell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white triple sheer, with long full sleeves, high round neckline, tight-fitting bodice, and buttoned at the back from neck to waistline with a row of tiny self-covered buttons. Her finger-tip veil of white tulle was caught to her head with a heart-shaped halo, and with a wreath of orange blossoms worn by her mother at her wedding. She carried a bouquet of red roses, and wore as her only ornament a gold pendant gift of the groom.

Miss Emily Parsons was her sister's bridesmaid, in pink triple sheer, made on lines similar to the bride's gown. She wore a shoulder-length veil of pink net, caught with a wreath of tiny blue flowers, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Lindsay Ferguson, of Perth, was best man. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Alex. Darling, and during the signing of the register she played "I Love You Truly."

At the buffet luncheon served to the guests following the ceremony, the decorations were carried out in pink and white. The bride's three-tiered wedding cake centred the lace-covered luncheon table, which was set with white tapers in crystal holders. Mrs. Ernest Butler, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the luncheon, which was served by Misses Lois and Leah Little, Violet Darling, and Margot Clysdale.

The bride's mother received in a navy triple sheer ensemble, with white hat and accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in a gown of green crepe, white accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold pendant; to the bridesmaid, a tiny gold-filled cross and chain; to the groomsman, a gold tie set; to the pianist, a cup and saucer.

J. H. Sutcliffe Addresses W.A.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe was guest speaker and soloists at June meeting of the Women's Association of George Street United Church, this week. He chose as his subject "What Is God's Will?", and although this topic had been discussed before, it was fitting for the day of invasion. Mrs. C. Renaud accompanied Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, as he sang "Somebody Knows."

Mrs. W. G. McLaren presided, and opened with a talk on "Prayer," and repeated the poem "Someone Had Prayed." Mrs. M. Kernaghan's group took charge of the devotional period, with Mrs. J. Parker reading the Scripture, and Mrs. H. L. Roberts leading in prayer. A donation of $25 was voted to the Victor Home in Toronto. Miss Mary Elliott read letters of thanks for cards and message of sympathy, and committee reports were read.

Certain Customs Followed At Every Large Wedding

Many letters have been received asking for advice on the correct customs on the "big" day. The following will assist those who are planning to take the step; it is written with a church wedding in mind.

The bridegroom and the best man arrive together about twenty minutes before the service. The latter has ring, minister's fee and license and they wait in the vestry. The bridesmaids arrive together. The parents of the groom arrive 5 minutes before the wedding. Ushers arrive at the church an hour before the service, all with full instructions concerning friends and relatives who are to sit in family pews. Bride's mother arrives with the maid of honor and is escorted by the nearest of kin to place at the left centre aisle just before the procession, being the first to step upon the white matting pulled down especially for the bride. Father joins her after giving the bride away.

Positions In Retinue

Processional — First the ushers, bridesmaids, maid of honor, then the bride's father with the bride. If the bride prefers, the bridesmaids may enter in a single file. Ribbon tied to posts indicate the end of family pews in respective order.

Recessional—The bridesmaids are escorted down the aisle by the ushers, the maid of honor with the best man. The bride and bridegroom of course, lead the way. After the wedding party come the parents of the bride and groom, then the relatives.

The bride's father before taking his place in the first pew, stands just back of his daughter, the maid of honor just to the left of the bride, the best man, to the right of the groom. The bridesmaids all stand at the left side, the ushers at the right side.

SUGARED PHRASES SPUR WIVES

Husband Must Show Appreciation of Housekeeping or Gay Bride Will Become Sour.

WHY do husbands so seldom make any effort to keep up their wives' morale? Apparently the average husband thinks his wife is some sort of an automatic domestic machine that functions without any human aid and that doesn't even require to be lubricated by a little soft soap now and then. And maybe that is the reason that so many perfectly good marriages that should have lasted for years and years break down so soon and are thrown on the scrap pile.

Of course, no man admits that he regards his wife as a household gadget, but that is the way innumerable husbands treat the women they marry. They think they have done their full duty when they married their wives and assumed their board and shopping tickets, and that nothing more can reasonably be expected of them. On the drum and cymbals and chant-Marias to go about beating upon the drum and cymbals annd chanting hymns of thanksgiving to the men who took them away from mahogany desks and pay envelopes and dumped them down in kitchens, with cooking stoves and washing machines to perform upon without remuneration.

Man Cannot Understand Change In Girl

And when the wife instead of lifting her voice in a merry roundelay only uses it to nag and whine and complain, her husband is honestly bewildered. He can't understand why the gay, entertaining girl he married, who was always on her tiptoes, has turned into this sour, complaining frump who hasn't even enough spunk to dress herself up and keep the house clean. Still less does he realize that his attitude towards her is at the bottom of the whole trouble.

Her morale has broken down under lack of appreciation. Her husband never makes a lover-like speech to her, or gives her a kiss that isn't a peck of duty on the cheek, so her own love withers because it has nothing to feed on. She slumps in her housekeeping because she feels that there is no sense in her making a burnt offering of herself over a kitchen stove for a man who never mentions the food unless it is to find fault with it. And, she asks herself, what's the use in trying to be entertaining and amusing for a man who only grunts when she speaks to him?

Insomuch as all men know that women are almost pathologically susceptible to flattery and that they value the spoken word more than any deed, it is strange that husbands do not realize that if they want good wives and happy and contented ones that they must make the wife job attractive. They must make it seem worthwhile. They must make their wives feel that they see, and appreciate, and are grateful for all the work they do and the sacrifices they make for them.

There would be very few unhappy marriages and very few makeshift wives if men would take as much trouble to build up the morale of their wives as they do their employees.

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Could you tell me how to clean chickens so they have that real clean look like the ones in the butcher shop? I have trouble with those black spots in the Spring time.—Mrs. Julia E.

Answer: I have been talking to the "chicken man" in a large packing house explaining your trouble; his answer was that no amount of washing or steaming will remove spots. They may be bruises or they may be from some infection that is all through the flock you are using from. Sometime a chicken with a lung infection has dark spots on its skin.

A nice way to get the skin looking very clean is to scrub it lightly with a small brush and sprinkling with baking soda—scrubbing this into the skin to remove all dust and dirt. Rinse it off and dry chicken well, as it does not improve flavor of chicken for it to be wet or soaked.

Hopings some of these suggestions helps you out and that we may help again.

QUESTION: I enjoy your cookery page very much.

Would you please tell me what is wrong when an angel food cake is porous?

My cake is light moist and fine grained as I use pastry flour but has holes in it although I put the spatula through it just before putting the cake in the oven. Is it in the baking?

Question 2: What makes a pie shell shrink while baking?

It is just my pie shells that shrink. Sometimes so much there is no room for the filling. I never used to have any trouble in that way.

My thermometer on my oven is marked: 1, 2, 3—low heat; 4, 5, 6—baking heat; 7, 8, 9—very hot.

I will be very pleased if you will help me on those two points.—(Mrs.) D.L.T.

ANSWER: It may be possible that you are using too coarse sugar. Sift your sugar 3 times before sifting it into the beaten whites. Or the fact that you run the spatula through the finished batter may be introducing air into the mix; or your oven may be a little too hot.

Let me run through my method for making an angel food cake.

Angel Food Cake.

Eight egg whites at least 5 days old and cold, ¾ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup sifted sugar, ¾ cup cake flour (sifted before measuring), ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon flavoring. Beat egg whites stiff but not dry on large platter with whisk type of beater, then add the cream of tartar and beat 2 minutes. Sift in sugar gradually, beating continually. Sugar must be fine grained. Sift the measured flour 4 times more, with the salt, then sift into the eggs slowly, folding and cutting it with a spatula. Add flavoring, turn into an ungreased tube pan kept for the purpose and not used for anything else and bake at 320 deg. Fahr. one hour.

I should imagine you should bake your angel food when the pointer on your thermometer is at "4"—but you will know that temperature better than I. Maybe you should plan to buy an oven thermometer that you can hang over the rack in the oven, when the war is over.

There is a good way to avoid trouble from this shrinkage of pie shells that you mention: Make your crust too big for your pie plate, then bake it by spreading it over the bottom of the plate and baking it with the pie plate turned upside down in the oven. It must be well pricked with a fork before baking and when done should be cooled on the inverted pie plate, and then placed on large dinner plate. It will not fit into the pie plate it was baked over.

Hoping these suggestions help remove your difficulties and that we will hear from you again.

Flowers Are Important

Flowers play such a large part in a wedding. In view of that it is very wise to give the florist advance notice of what is required, and accept his suggestions, as they will most likely add much to the beauty of the ceremony and reception.

It is up to the groom to provide the bride's bouquet. Flowers for the bride's family and maid of honor are supplied by her family. These flowers are all sent to the home of the bride.

Boutonnieres for the groom, the best man and ushers are sent to the vestibule of the church. Boutonnieres are not permissible at a military wedding.

After the wedding, the bride throws her bouquet to her attendants as she leaves to change to her traveling clothes—the lucky girl who catches it being the next to wed, according to the legend.

I.O.D.E. Chapter Holds Picnic

The regular meeting of the Major Bennett Chapter, I.O.D.E., took the form of a picnic, Tuesday afternoon, in Jackson Park.

Mrs. A. S. MacRae presided for a sort business period, when proceeds of $69.63 from the Chapter's recent tea, were announced, and members were asked to help in the Active Army Auxiliary tag day, June 17, by tagging from 3.30 to 5 p.m. Mrs. W. Ackhurst was named as superviser of the taggers.

Members are in attendance at the Blood Donors' Clinic this week, and, since meetings will be discontinued until September, the war convener, Miss Frances Wand, asked members to continue their knitting during the summer months. Yearly subscriptions to two daily newspapers, to be sent to the Training Centre Hospital, are being sponsored by the Chapter.

Mrs. J. King is in charge of the rummage sale, being planned for the first week in September, and the Chapter is preparing to send comforts to its adopted ship, H.M.C.S. "Ambler." Miss Margaret Preston was named assistant Chapter representative. Members of the Chapter are also assisting in selling tickets on the Rotary car, and Miss Lorraine McCarroll is in charge of this project.

In accordance with the King's request made in his speech, the meeting was opened with a short period of silent prayer, and Mrs. MacRae announced the city-wide prayer service to be held in the East City Bowl tonight. The September meeting will be held at the home of Miss Betty Lytle.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Below you will find some unusual recipes which we hope you will try, like as well as others who have made them, and found they were all we said they were.

Fricadelles

Mix one cup cooked meat chopped fine, one cup stale bread crumbs, one beaten egg, one-quarter cup gravy, or milk, to moisten. Season with salt and pepper. Form into small cakes and fry in hot butter. These are delicious served with tomato sauce poured around them.

Stuffed Tomatoes

Cut the top off tomatoes, take out part of the centre and mix with a few bread crumbs, taste of onion, salt, pepper, butter. Refill. Put in a baking dish with bits of butter. Bake 20 minutes. You can also use minced steak if you so desire.

Ditty Dum Bing

One-half pound cheese, melted in one-quarter cup of hot water, one can of tomato soup and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Serve piping hot on squares of toast, garnish with chopped parsley.

Green Peppers Stuffed

Cut the tops off sweet green peppers and remove seeds. Fill with a dressing made of bread crumbs, minced bacon, salt, pepper and butter. Put in a baking pan with a little water and butter and bake until tender. These are also very nice filled with cold macaroni or rice, seasoned to taste.

Tasty Supper Dish

Make Yorkshire pudding. Put sausages in a greased pan, spacing them, then pour over the Yorkshire pudding and bake about one-half hour. Cut in squares and serve.

Cauliflower au Gartin

Parboil cauliflower in salted water until tender. Make a sauce of one tablespoon butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup milk, season with salt and pepper, cover cauliflower with sauce and dot with bits of butter, and one-half cup grated cheese. Bake in oven half an hour, or until brown.

Rice Casserole

One and one-half cups plain boiled rice, salt, line a bowl one-half inch thick at bottom and sides, one cup chopped meat, one small onion, one beaten egg, salt and pepper. Put in the bowl and cover the top with rice. Steam one-half hour. If you wish, butter the mould and you can then turn it out on a platter and garnish. Hot tomato sauce must be served with this.

Open Stock Is Advised

From the time the bride-to-be receives her engagement ring, her mind is in a constant turmoil with regards to what she will need in her new home. Maybe she is one of the fortunate girls who has had a good start on filling the hope chest, in any case it should be checked to see what is lacking in the way of a complete stock of household linens, and blankets.

On the other hand, maybe the young lady has been too busy to accumulate anything, and in that case fine things in sufficient quantities should be purchased so they may give good service.

The bride-to-be generally is expected to have her silverware, chinaware, glassware, linens and bedding for the bedroom, bathroom, dining-room and kitchen. However, if she hasn't been able to get these things, the budget should be planned for the sensible purchase of the necessary articles. When buying silverware, buy flatware in a complete service and from an open stock; when buying chinaware, the amount and type of china selected will depend largely on the size of the new home and the amount of entertaining to be done. Again it is wise to buy from an open stock.

The hope chest should be checked at least two months before the wedding date. This avoids that last minute rush and allows the bride-to-be more time to study her wedding plans.

Things Groom Should Do

Not only has the bride many things to think about for the wedding day, but the groom as well has certain obligations to look after. Here is a list for the groom. It might be well to check them off as they are attended to:

Get the marriage license and make arrangements with the clergyman.

Plan honeymoon.

Make list of guests and check for duplication and omissions.

Choose the wedding ring.

Make arrangements for future home and begin shopping for furniture with the bride.

Choose the best man and ushers and make sure they are willing to comply, also choose substitutes in case one of these cannot come that day. Discuss wedding plans with best man and ushers.

Give ring, license and clergyman's fee to the best man.

Shop for gifts for the bride, best man and ushers.

Plan bachelor dinner.

Order flowers.

Check wardrobe and secure what is needed.

Pack leisurely beforehand.

Wedding Cake Centres Table

According to the old story, a sheaf of wheat was carried by na ancient Roman maiden. The Romans attendants carefully kept kernels of wheat as they dropped from the sheaf to dream of future husbands.

Nowadays a beautiful wedding cake generally centres the table and the modern maidens prize crumbs from the wedding cake passed through the wedding ring, on which to dream.

In fairness to the baker and also to improve the quality of the cake, it should be ordered four weeks previous to the wedding. Tradition demands that at the wedding reception it is the bride who cuts the first piece of cake and shares it with her groom. She may then have the rest of it served to her guests, or she may prefer to have it cut in pieces to be put in wedding-cake boxes and given to them.

NORTON—In loving memory of Mrs. Robert Norton who passed away three years ago, June 8, 1944.

God took her Home, it was His will,
But in my heart she liveth still.
—Ever remembered by her husband.

LANGTON—In loving memory of "Mother" Mrs. Gordon Langton who passed away eight years ago, June 8th, 1936.

We do not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name;
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in death just the same.
—Ever remembered by her sons Gordon, Norman and Donald—all overseas.

India Raises Huge Army To Combat Axis

The largest army in its history and the largest volunteer force of any country in the world has been raised by India in the common fight for freedom, it was said by Dr. L. Winnifred Bryce, missionary who has spent 30 years in the Orient, speaking before the Quinte Conference Wednesday night.

"I want you to get the feeling of a great throbbing heart in the midst of world affairs," Dr. Bryce said. "I want you to try to think of those boys as you would of your own. Never forget the part of brothers that India plays in the fight of the Allied nations. Canadians and Indians fighting side by side in Italy is a picture of the closer relations that have developed from the war, and a happy augury and symbol of a spiritual get together in the future."

Dr. Bryce said that India also was making its postwar plans and that contrary to popular opinion a considerable amount of self-government existed in the province which were as autonomous as Ontario where purely provincial matters were concerned. She emphasized the importance of economic tension in the life of the nation and stressed that this was a comparatively recent growth. "Thirty years ago the poor believed that they belonged where they were; but now they are very conscious of poverty and young India is ashamed of it."

8 Million Christians.

She indicated that of the 400,000,000 population 8,000,000 had become Christians and that the majority of these were peasants and untouchables. One of the foremost concerns of Christian groups within India was the forwarding of literacy a problem Dr. Bryce characterized as beyond the capactiy of the Government to solve by itself. This and the promotion of the Christian family life were the two important elements in advancing the growth of the Christian religion and promoting brotherhood in India, the missionary said.

Rev. Dr. R B. Cochrane, D.D., also spoke at the evening session and devoted his address to a discussion of the place of the United church in the postwar period, particularly in regard to the servicemen returning to civilian life. He wanted a merciless self-examination by its ministers of the position of the United church and professed to see several dangers inherent in the present-day organization, if that organization were not flexible and ready to adapt itself to the new generation rising out of the war.

"This is one of the great watersheds of history." he said, "a titanic struggles of opposed ideologies. If we don't see things differently now after five years of war, then we haven't learned anything."

Two positive dangers he believed facing the church were those of becoming too respectable and becoming a church ministering to one class only, the middle class in the city and the country. He felt that the United church must take adequate measures to prepare itself to be in tune with the spirit of the young men returning from war and that it had a great part to play in making rehabilitation plans truly effective.

Jersey Breeders Urged To Produce More

In spite of the rush of spring work, shortage of help and a none-too pleasant day, between 70 and 80 local Jersey Breeders gathered at the farm of R. S. Staples & Sons, Cavan, on Tuesday to learn the finer points of wartime production and jersey endeavors.

Mr. Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, thought the city boys and girls drink more milk than their country cousins because dairy farmers were robbing themselves to supply the urban demand. He also stated that it was a known fact that if Canadians consumed their quotas of milk no cheese would be shipped to England because of our increased consumption.

Mr. Summers, agricultural representative for Durham county, congratulated the Jersey Breeders on maintaining their gatherings in spite of trying war conditions. He felt that such get-togethers were conducive to better morale and finer co-operation.

Alderman William Ovens, Campbell's Dairy, Peterborough, informed his audience that demand for Jersey products was increasing daily—a very prominent future was in store if Jersey breeders kept up their present high standard of production.

J. C. Weir of Silverwood's, Peterborough, stated that there was always a good market for fine dairy products such as those produced by the Jersey producers supplying the Peterborough market providing they maintained their high standard.

The prizes, being donations from the many local institutions, namely, Quaker Oats Co., Peterborough Farmers Co-Op, Dominion Stores, Universal Milker, and many others, were won as follows:

In the judging competition:

Boys—1, Frank Stenner of Enniskillen; 2, William Patterson, Peterborough; 3, Cameron Clark.

Girls—1, Evelyn Gainor, Bailieboro; 2, Doris Sayer.

Men—1, S. S. Staples, Ida; 2, W. Hannah, Cavan; 3, Perry Neals, Peterborough.

Ladies—1, Mrs. Neals, Peterborough; 2, Mrs. Stenger, Enniskillen; 3, Miss Galbraith, Peterborough.

Showmanship:

Girls—1, Laura Neals; 2, Evelyn Gainor.

Boys — 1, Frank Stenger, Roger Hanbidge.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

LEARN BRIDGE FAST
16—Response to Partner

IN ALMOST any situation during the bidding, it pays to tell your partner when you know the side has enough strength to justify its bidding a game. That is exemplified when you make a bid of two originally, meaning "here's a game." You do that then by bidding "one more than necessary" to open the bidding.

You also convey the message of "here's a game" when you bid "one more than necessary" in response to your partner's bid. If he bids 1-Heart and you bid 3-Hearts, you tell him you are able to bid 4-Hearts, but that your hand is strong generally and you do not fear the opponents' bidding. An answer to him of 4-Hearts does not show a hand nearly as strong in high cards, but does indicate your expectation of a good play for the contract.

A bid of 2-Spades over his 1-Heart would also be a bid of "one more than necessary" and guarantee the strength justifying the pair reaching game, though it would not necessarily say in what declaration, as the best fit has not been stated by either partner. The same would be true of 3-Diamonds over 1-Heart, as it is one more than necessary. And most players treat 2-No Trumps over a suit bid of one as also being a declaration that the side can make a game.

Many players call these "one more than necessary" bids "game forcing" bids, because after one of them neither partner should drop the side at less than a game contract. After such a bid, it is up to you to find something to say any time a less-than-game bid reaches you. To pass then would amount to saying you do not like games, and would rather lose than win. Such a bid not only guarantees the strength to justify a game bid, but also betokens the possibility of slam if either partner has a bit more than he had shown.

The strength for such a bid is either enough supporting tricks to be sure of game in your partner's declaration or enough strength to feel sure of it in something else, either No Trumps or suit. When the strength is about equal between partners, and each has enough for an opening bid, there will nearly always be a play for game in something.

So much for the maximum. Now for the minimum, which occurs much oftener. To raise your partner's suit bid requires strength outlined in a previous lesson. Bidding another suit after your partner's opener in a suit requires a biddable suit and about 1½ high card tricks in your hand, or else a hand which contains about four playing tricks of any kind, with a suit which can be rebid later if necessary to indicate that the hand may be lacking in high strength.

A suit which can be rebid soundly is of at least five cards, and sometimes it is well to rebid twice on a suit of six cards or more.

The exact amount for a suit bid, however, cannot be fixed too definitely, depending on various factors. If it has to be at the two level, such as 2-Diamonds over 1-Heart, it requires more strength than would 1-Diamond over 1-Club.

After you respond with a different suit, your partner, if sound, may be counted on almost always to bid again at least once.

If you lack a suit which can be bid at the range of one over your partner's suit bid, and are not quite strong enough to bid two, a 1-No Trump bid is sometimes the only recourse. To make that, you should have at least a bit better than 1 high card trick in your hand, or a No Trump count of 6, rating ace at 4, king 3, queen 2 and jack or a couple of tens at 1. That bid can always be dropped by the first bidder, since it denies ability to bid 2-No Trumps, unless the first bidder has some extra strength to show.

Responses of "more than one higher than necessary," such as 3-Hearts over 1-Diamond, are usually used to indicate a splendid suit, but a hand containing little else.

Canadian Troops Pinned On Beach

By LEE HAWKINS
Distributed by The Canadian Press.

ABOARD A FLAGSHIP OFF FRANCE, June 8 — A Canadian unit was pinned for some time to a beach on France's Normandy coast between Cherbourg and Le Havre by machine-gun fire before it could advance.

Fierce machine-gun fire poured on the Canadians after they landed yesterday, directed from behind a ridge some 800 yards beyond the high-water mark.

For several hours the men were forced to hold on in foxholes but finally they fought their way out and moved several hundred yards inland.

The unit suffered from mines which knocked out several waterproofed tanks which managed to get on or close to shore. Artillery fire also was a problem although this seemed largely neutralized by prolonged bombardment before the landings.

The U.S. battleship Arkansas and the French cruisers Montcalm and George Leygues moved in to short range to help bold little destroyers give all possible help to the temporarily stranded force.

FIRST ESSENTIAL OF INVASION—Air supremacy is the first essential of amphibious invasion—unless the invader dominates the skies above and beyond landing beaches, his ground forces face the danger of being stopped by bombs and strafing. Here a squadron of peerless Spitfires from a Canadian fighter squadron takes off to cover the fast medium bombers whose "pattern bombing" is intended to pulverize defences on the beachhead and behind it. # Home Suggestions Given At Havelock Women's Institute Meeting

HAVELOCK, June 8 — (ENS) — There was a good attendance of members and visitors at the June meeting of the Women's Institute this week. The vice-president, Mrs. Charles Taylor, presided. The work of the cemetery committee is progressing. The relief committee were authorized to prepare a box of fruits and treats for a sick woman at the west-end of the village. Four new tea towels are to be purchased to replace the ones worn out. A report of the 19th District Annual held recently in Peterborough was given by the delegate, Miss E. E. Wright.

Mrs. H. W. Roche was the convener of the Home Economics program, which opened with a solo by Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft, "The Sunshine of Your Smile," accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson at the piano. A paper on "What Home Means," was given by Mrs. C. Price, and was followed by a "Quizz For Cooks." A duet by Misses Jean and Joan Quinn in costume was "When You Wore a Tulip," accompanied by Mrs. T. W. Quinn at the piano. Mrs. Roche read a poem "Just For Today." Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. C. Taylor.

Back Hurt; Limbs Ached, Felt Tired Out; Rundown

Rheumatic Condition Followed Years of Suffering. Stomach Disorders; Nerves on Edge, Couldn't Sleep. Says Syntona Brought First Relief.

MR. MIKE MICHALEWIT

"For many years I suffered from stomach disorders and this seemed to make everything else go wrong," said Mr. Mike Michalewit, 406 Bay Street North, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"Many days my stomach felt so sick and nauseated I didn't care whether I ate anything or not. I knew from long experience that food only gave me more gas and sour acid risings. I was always suffering with heartburn and a full, bloated sensation with shortness of breath. I was subject to dizzy spells and throbbing headaches. My back hurt all the time and finally rheumatic pains set in my limbs and joints. They would ache and felt stiff and sore. This condition made me very nervous. Many nights I couldn't get my proper sleep, so I felt tired and fatigued all the time.

"I read about Syntona many times, but I though it was like everything else I had tried, so I didn't pay much attention to it. However, a few weeks ago I decided to try it. Now, I'm certainly glad I did.

"Even after a few days my stomach felt better. I found I was looking forward to my meals. I could eat without having all that gas, sour risings, and heartburn. As I continued taking it, the sick, nauseated feeling left me. Now I enjoy every meal, I am free from dizziness and headaches. My nerves have calmed down, so I am getting sound sleep. Best of all, the aches and pains do not trouble me. It is certainly great to be rid of this trouble after all these years, and I just cannot say too much in praise of this grand medicine."

Why not let this pure Herbal medicine help you as it has so many other local men and women? It is pleasant to take and many people say that even after the first few days the entire system seems to take on a new feeling of strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.

Russia Ready To Start Push

MOSCOW, June 8—(AP)—Russia is prepared to throw the great weight of the Red Army into the growing offensive against Germany, Red Star, the Soviet army newspeper, said today.

"A strong, mounting attack of all armies of the United Nations will be fully developed," Red Star said.

The great armies which at Teheran gave solemn promises not to make a separate peace are beginning to move forward for a meeting in Berlin, the newspaper added.

Muscovites got up early this morning to read the freshest invasion bulletins, despite one of the wildest nights of celebration during the war. The Soviet press, in an unprecedented display, turned over whole pages to the momentous military operations Russia had long awaited.

Keene Briefs

KEENE, June 7 — (ENS).—The Willing Workers group of the W. M.S. met at the home of Mrs. James McFarlane, with Mrs. Roy Kempt in charge and giving a reading. The scripture lesson was read by Miss Bryce, an interesting reading was given by Mrs. H. Wright and prayer offered by Mrs. G. Murray. The explanation and discussion of the Scripture was in charge of Miss A. McIntyre, with several taking part. Lunch was served by the hostess.

All arrangements are made for the 111th anniversary services to be held at the United Church on June 18, when the guest preacher will be the Rev. J. A. Cranston, M. A., D.D., of Toronto. The choir will sing special music. This is the event when many former members and adherents return to worship and to meet with friends.

The topic of the Sunday sermon was based on the text "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear God and He will show them His covenant." Someone has called the Christian faith a secret religion, said the Rev. G. Murray. This is in a sense very true. It is something each has to obtain for himself. Christ is the door by which we enter into it, which begets in our hearts reverence and Godly fear.

The choir sang "O for a Closer Walk with God."

Face Contempt Charge For News Article

TORONTO, June 8—(CP)—The Ontario Attorney-General's Department yesterday filed a writ in Ontario Supreme Court citing Harry Bochner and Louis Ruby on a charge of contempt to court. This action followed publication in the Toronto weekly, Flash, of an article under the heading: "Mickey McDonald named in divorce suit."

The article was mentioned in court last week during the trial of Donald (Mickey) McDonald and four other men on charges of kidnapping a truck driver and stealing a $35,000 load of liquor. Their trial was traversed until the September sessions when Judge James Parker ruled that the article would probably be detrimental to a fair trial. The others charged are William Baskett, Edwin McDonald, Sam Mancuso and Benedetto Zanelli.

The writ asks that Bochner and Ruby pay the costs of the delay in the trial.

Canadian Navy on the Job

MONTREAL, June 9—(CP).—Ships and men of the Canadian Navy have had the privilege of escorting Canadian troops on the first "difficult and dangerous step" on the road to Berlin, Navy Minister Macdonald said today in an address at the opening ceremonies at H.M.C.S. Donnacona, new Royal Canadian naval training establishment in Montreal. He added that he hoped this would not only be the road to Berlin "but the road to a peace in which these things for which our enemies have stood will no longer have any place."

Mr. Macdonald said he believed the worst of the Atlantic battle is over.

"We hope that, with good fortune attending our arms upon the Continent of Europe, the Atlantic war may soon come to an end. But the inflexible pattern of geography demands that our ships, and those of our allies, continue to pass over the great waters until the Axis powers—and this includes the Japanese—have taken their medicine to the last drop.

"For, so long as the supply ships, the troop ships, the landing barges and all those vessels of the great maritime host are on the move, the ships of the Royal Canadian Navy must continue to ply the seas in that state of vigilance and preparedness for which they have already won so excellent a name."

Much of Canada's national security and well-being is dependent, "at all times," upon the men of the navy, he added. Canada's Navy has grown to manhood in the "fires of war, and in so doing has proven, beyond dispute, its value to the country."

Great Stream Of Supplies Flowing Into Bridge Head

By WILLIAM STEWART—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 8 (Delayed)—(CP Cable).—All through the bridgehead in the British and Canadian-held sector of Normandy there is evidence of growing strength of the second front coastal strip.

Weapons, ammunition and supplies are pouring inland and dumps are being established. Fields, where only a few hours ago sappers worked to clear mines, now are being opened to traffic—trucks and ducks laden with supplies.

No Air Attacks.

The work has proceeded unhampered by enemy air activity in the long hours of daylight because of constant patrolling by Allied fighter aircraft. Troops throughout the area are thoroughly dug in and the bridgehead has been scarred by thousands of slit trenches.

The carefully-planned water and food supply organization has functioned perfectly. Trucks have been making regular deliveries of water and rations, which are almost as important to the soldier as his ammunition.

French peasant folk in Normandy said they expected the invasion but did not imagine it would develop right on their coast which in many respects resembled the country

Snipers Lurk In Cellars
French Beaches Are Decidedly Unhealthy

BY DOON CAMPBELL
Reuters War Correspondent

ADVANCED QUARTERS, ALLIED ASSAULT FORCE, June 8—(CP Reuters) — Snipers' bullets whining, shells overhead, diving planes and the thunder of a great naval bombardment which jars the typewriter off my knee every few seconds make conditions under which I write this dispatch rather disturbing.

I am several miles inland and a mile behind the front-line trenches.

A British General told me this morning "I am satisfied with the progress we have made. From air, sea and land we have already punctured the outer fabric of the Atlantic wall."

Last night hundreds of Allied planes flew over as our men on the ground cheered. "C'est Tres Joli," commented French civilians, who say of the Allied invasion "C'es Tres Chic."

It is a miracle I am alive after 24 hours on this bridgehead—a bag of wicked tricks. Most of the time has been spent lying on my face burrowing into sand or earth. The beach is decidedly unhealthy.

The dead lie around, bloody and ugly, covered by a piece of tarpaulin or half-buried in the sand.

The front is so fluid in this sector that for two hours I crouched in a sewer—at least it smelled like one—before realizing I was 200 yards ahead of the front Allied trench.

Snipers still lurk in the cellars and attics of the pretty little French houses in the seaside villages, and British soldiers are going in after them armed with tommy-guns.

Chinese Told To Hold Lines

CHUNGKING, June 9.—(AP). — Japanese columns driving from the north are within 7½ miles of Changsha, defenders of which have been instructed by President Chiang Kai-Shek to remain at their posts, do their utmost to achieve victory, a Chinese army spokesman announced to-day.

Strength of the various columns advancing toward the Hunan province capital, astride the Hankow-Canton railway, was estimated at between 70,000 and 80,000.

The Japanese are reported to have poured reinforcements, including many divisions from Manchuria, into southwestern Shansi for a potential invasion of Shensi province.

Allied Units 34 Miles Beyond Rome
Hun Adriatic Forces Withdraw To Avoid Entrapment

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, June 9.—(AP).— German forces guarding the Adriatic sector have started to retreat to avoid encirclement, and for the first time since launching their offensive nearly a month ago Allied troops rolled forward to-day along the entire Italian front.

Striving to maintain close contact with the fleeing enemy, who has shown no disposition as yet to make a determined stand, the Allied 5th Army raced steadily north and northwest from Rome.

They occupied the entire Lake Bracciano area and moved on to capture Caprarola, 34 miles north of Rome on the east side of Lake Di Vico, and about 10 miles southeast of the highway junction town of Viterbo.

To the northwest Allied units racing on from Civitavecchia were reported to be shelling Tarquinia, 55 airline miles from Rome and about three miles inland from the Tyrrhenian coast.

An Allied spokesman said among prisoners taken in the Lake Bracciano area were Nazis from the 20th German Luftwaffe field division.

"This division came to Italy from Denmark, which according to the prisoners, it left only a week ago," said the spokesman. "The 20th Luftwaffe field division differs from the normal infantry division only in the fact that its personnel is drawn from the Luftwaffe ground staff, as in the case of the Hermann Goering panzer division."

Static 5 Months

The five-month standstill on the lines between the Adriatic sector ended with the Germans starting a withdrawal between the coast and Crecchia, five miles inland. Eighth Army forces moved up two miles and occupied Tollo, 7½ miles from the provincial capital of Chieti. The Nazis promptly began shelling the advance.

This Adriatic sector was held by Canadian troops during the static warfare last winter, following the fall of Ortona Dec. 27. In the re-

Third Division Reported In Thick Of Battle

OTTAWA, June 9 — (CP) — Defence headquarters announced today the Canadian 3rd Division is taking part in the invasion of France.

A headquarters spokesman said that a cable from Supreme headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force authorized announcement of the bare fact that the 3rd Division was in action.

German sources had already reported the presence of this Division, which is participating in its first operation of the war.

First word of the 3rd's activities was reported last night by the German-controlled Calais radio which said it was among the Infantry engaged in the Normandy fighting. The report said the Division was fighting along with units of the British 3rd Division at Arromanches on the coast northeast of fallen Bayeau.

Defence headquarters have not confirmed or even commented on another German report that the Canadian 2nd Division is also in the action. When the German reports were put up to a Shaef spokesman last night he said no units of the Canadian force could be identified at that time.

In this first action of the 3rd Division—one of the best-trained Canadian formations—the Canadians may be led by Maj.-Gen. R. F. O. Keller, 42, Kelowna, B. C. speculation several months ago named him as head of the scrappy 3rd.

The 3rd Division was originally commanded by Lt.-Gen. E. W. Sansom of Montreal and Stanley, N.B. who later became a Corps Commander and now is on leave pending retirement. The next Commander of this Division was Maj.-Gen. Basil Price, also of Montreal. He now is Overseas Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross with headquarters in London.

Strong Hun Counter-attacks In Caen Area Repulsed Allied Forces Gain Ground

American Troops Are Within 18 Miles Of Port Of Cherbourg

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 9.—(CP).—Armored combat between Allied and German forces in the rolling Normandy hill country is rising in intensity Supreme Headquarters reported today, as field dispatches reported British and Canadian units had joined forces for a co-ordinated attack on Caen, pivot city at the eastern end of the combat zone.

An enemy counter-attack in the Caen area was held and ground was gained, Headquarters reported. Increasing armor was being thrown into the fighting on both sides.

Headquarters officially announced that air-borne troops sent into the mighty assault in northern France included Canadian officers and men.

A field dispatch by Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, dated Thursday, told of Canadian tanks exchanging fire at 200-yard range with enemy armor.

French paratroops also have been dropped to aid in the Allied assault on France, under German occupation since 1940.

Unsubstantiated German reports said hand-to-hand fighting was raging in Caen.

British and Canadian forces in the bridgehead area made contact yesterday, field dispatches said.

Brig.-Gen. Paul L. Williams of Detroit was disclosed as the commander of the 9th Air Force Troop Carrier Command who helped plan and direct D-Day air-borne operations to the beachhead, which German reports pictured as more than 10 miles deep at places.

While guns roared along the front, Allied warships roamed up and down the coast as roving artillery spotting German pockets and strongpoints.

Deteriorating weather again fell upon the Channel, but headquarters said the wind was in a more favorable direction for unloading streams of supplies and reinforcements.

Berlin broadcasts asserted American troops in the Cherbourg peninsula area were within 18 miles of the port of Cherbourg.

American troops are under personal command of Lt.-Gen. Omar Bradley, it was disclosed. Field dispatches said the Americans have occupied Formigny, 20 miles southeast of Ste. Mere Eglise on the Caen-Carentan road.

At least 1,600 Nazi prisoners have been taken since the invasion was launched, reports to headquarters said.

Confused fighting continued over the green wheat fields and orchards of Normandy.

Humbert Seeks United Front

ROME, June 9 — (AP) — Crown Prince Humbert today called upon all Italian soldiers, sailors and airmen to redouble their efforts at prosecuting the war at the side of Allied troops.

Only through Allied victory will the Italian people have opportunity to justify themselves and resume their rightful position among the peoples of the world, he said.

"Our people have already given the highest example of oral force, the strength of renewal after a war that was not desired but nevertheless always heroically borne," the Prince declared.

It was Humbert's first public statement since returning to Rome as Lieutenant-General of the realm.

Meanwhile, Ivanoe Bonomi assumed the task of forming a new Italian cabinet which, it was said, will be wholly anti-Fascist in character and exclude any who ever collaborated with Mussolini's Fascist Regime.

Marshal Badoglio, who stepped down as Premier Tuesday, will not be included in the new government.

Bonomi, 71, was Premier for a short period in 1922 before the Fascist era.

Aerial Pincers Hits Munich; Southern France

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 9—(AP). — American heavy bombers striking from the south 500 to 750 strong, battered prime targets in the Munich area of Southern Germany to-day, in a new pincers attack on the Nazi war machine co-ordinated with disruptive blows on German positions in France from the west.

The bombers, flying into the Munich area for the first time from Italy, and their escorting fighters, fought through clouds of German fighters to reach their targets.

Swiss dispatches reported explosions in the Munich and Augsburg areas.

Ruin All Bridges.

(A BBC broadcast said the Allied attack from Britain had destroyed all railway bridges on the Seine River between Paris and the sea.)

Other American heavy bombers attacked Porto Marghera near Venice, and fighter-bombers harried the German retreat above Rome.

Allied planes of all types struck from Britain against Nazi positions in France.

For the first time since D-Day, official reports, however, made no mention of Allied airborne operations last night.

During operations of the past 24 hours 52 German planes were destroyed in the air and 20 others were accounted for on the ground, as against an Allied loss of 35 fighters and five bombers.

Weather cut down the scope of the aerial operations supporting the invasion troops. But during the night heavy aircraft of the Canadian bomber group smashed without loss at the railway centre of Mayenne.

Germans made four fighter-bomber attacks against the invasion beaches between early yesterday morning and late last night, employing some 60 planes, but were driven off each time.

Canadians Block Fierce Nazi Tank Push At Caen

LONDON, June 9 (CP)—The battle for German-held Caen, officially described as a "tough nut" in the Nazi defensive system, raged unchecked today with British and Canadian troops fighting fiercely to take that key communications centre nine miles inland on the Orne River.

The Canadians, along with their British and American comrades on other sectors of the northern France invasion front, last were reported by Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force to be making steady progress against an enemy whose reserves, a communique said, "have now been in action along the whole front."

But in at least one sector front dispatches indicated the Canadians had received some check. A dispatch from Ross Munro, chief Canadian Press war correspondent, dated June 8 and received in London early today, told of a three-hour tank battle Wednesday in which Canadian tanks and infantry "prevented the German battle group from seriously penetrating the perimeter."

Munro told of the Canadians "bracing themselves for a German counter-attack" and said that in the previous 24 hours they had met several German armored and infantry thrusts with the Nazis sending in 35 tanks at a time. The engagement possibly was near fallen Bayeux where front dispatches had reported fierce tank battles with desperate hand-to-hand fighting.

British Troops Gain 14 Miles

KANDY, Ceylon, June 9 —(CP)— Allied troops have captured the northern end of the north Myitkyina airfield in Burma, and British troops, trying to chase the Japanese out of India, have driven 14 miles southward down the Kohima road toward Imphal, Allied headquarters announced today.

Air-borne Chindits also captured the village of Hola two miles northeast of Myitkyina, while Chinese troops captured new positions inside the town itself and drove off a Japanese night attack.

To the west in the Mogaung valley, Chinese closed a gap between a roadblock they had established west of Lachi Ga, six miles northwest of Kamaing, and Sakan.

In the Kohima fighting, the communique said, the British captured positions five and seven miles southeast of Kohima, as well as 14 miles south of the Allied communications hub.

British units also were moving northward from Imphal toward a junction with the Kohima force, repulsing counter-attacks and consolidating positions en route.

Minesweepers Clear Lanes
Canadian Navy Is Busy In Channel

Written For The Canadian Press
By Sub.-Lt. Wesseley Hicks, RCNVR

A UNITED KINGDOM PORT, June 9 — (CP Cable)— "The birds must be walking today," said a yeoman of signals as H.M.C.S. Prescott stood off the coast of France today shepherding ships of the Allied invasion fleet to the beaches.

The words were apt for hundreds of ships, from great battleships to landing barges, filled the area and it seemed that the birds literally could have walked across the English Channel.

We spent six hours off the coast today as the Prescott, one of the Royal Canadian Navy's Corvettes, commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. W. J. McIsaac of Charlottetown, fulfilled her job. We are going back now for another convoy.

As we moved into the coast at 2 p.m. the hills of northern France appeared grim and hazy, like a picture out of focus. Out from the shore came a flotilla of Canadian minesweepers—H.M.C.S. Mina, Malpeque, Wasaga, Blairmore, Milltown helping to keep the sea lanes clear of mines.

Looking for a place to dump her convoy, the Prescott then signalled an American cruiser: "Do you know where the port authorities are?"

The answer came back to us: "No, I'm a stranger here myself."

Shortly after 8 p.m. our immediate job completed, we put our nose into the Channel and headed back for England. Ahead of us, like good housewives, the sweepers could be seen still at their work of tidying up the shipping lanes.

Paratroop Unit Wipes Out Nazi Battery

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 9 —(CP Cable)— The story of how British air-borne troops silenced a powerful and important enemy battery in an operation which had been practiced for weeks was disclosed last night along with the name of the pilot who led the group.

Flt. Lt. Bob Thomson of Berwick, Scotland, was in charge of the R.A.F. crews who took in British pilots and paratroops who knocked out the battery. It commanded an entire required the same courage, skill and strip of coastline.

The operation was said to have training as the famous air assaults which breached the Mohne and Eder dams in Germany.

For weeks R.A.F. fliers and glider pilots trained on a life-size model of the battery constructed on a lonely stretch of hillside from photographs taken by R.A.F. reconnaissance units.

The plan was to drop the main body of paratroops outside the battery area and while these forces were attacking the outer defences, glider-borne troops were to land on a small triangular clearing in the centre.

Weather Bad

The weather almost upset everything, for when Thompson got the leading glider into the area there were thick clouds all round.

"I couldn't take them up and leave them to find their way down alone," Thomson said, "and yet the time schedule had to be kept. The only thing to do was to stooge down and around with the glider under the clouds to fill part of the time. We did that.

"There was lots of flak all the way down but none of it hit us or the glider. At the exact time the glider cast off and went in.

"We got signals from ground all right, so far as we were concerned the plan was carried out and the boys got down slap in the middle of the battery with their fellows outside starting to force their way in."

There has been no news of how the paratroops fared but when the first beach parties went in the enemy battery was silent.

In the 5th Army surge north of Rome, the troops moved seven miles north to win the Bracciano area. Another element seized the town of Sutri, six miles north of Lake Bracciano.

Demolitions Slow Troops

The 6th Army conformed with this drive by a continued thrust northward along the east side of the Tiber, but progress there was slower because of demolitions and mines.

Just east of the Tiber 20 enemy anti-tank and self-propelled guns were knocked out in the vicinity of Monterotondo, capture of which was announced yesterday. Lieut.-Gen. Leese's forces have gone several miles beyond Monteorotondo.

The towns of Agosta and Palombara-Sabina were occupied during a 10-mile thrust north of Tivoli. Farther east, 8th Army units approached the village of Civitella Roveto, only 7½ miles south of Avezanno on Highway 82.

Civitavecchia, Italy's seventh port in tonnage handled, was found to have escaped serious damage.

Destruction of 195 vehicles and 28 rail cars, and damage to at least 170 more vehicles, as credited to Allied fighters and bombers in the steady bombing and strafing of enemy communications yesterday.

American heavy bombers attacked submarine dry docks at Pola, 85 miles south of Trieste, R.A.F. heavies and mediums early today blasted big rail pards and repair shops at Nis in Yugoslavia.

The Mediterranean Allied air force flew 1,500 sorties and destroyed four enemy aircraft at a cost of six Allied planes missing.

Guest At Fire Convicted On 3 Charges

HAMILTON, June 9 (CP)—Douglas Alfred Dunsmoor, 25, today pleaded guilty to three charges of arson and was remanded one week for sentence at the request of Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch. Dunsmoor, who was listed among the injured in the May 24 Moose Temple fire in which 10 persons lost their lives, was charged in connection with fires at the Trinity United Church, the Wentworth Riding School and the Canadian Canners warehouse.

Police Detective McGee told Magistrate H. A. Burbidge that Dunsmoor, formerly an organist in the church, started a fire there March 22 and then came back later to assist firemen in fighting the blaze.

In the riding stable fire Dec. 20, eight horses were burned to death after Dunsmoor tossed a match in the haymow, the detective said. He also returned to help fight this fire.

Dunsmoor was employed by the Canadian Canning Co. when he allegedly set a fire there last April 27 which resulted in damage of $90,000, the detective testified. He said that accused had been drinking before he set the stable and warehouse fires.

Germans Can't Match Armor

By CHRISTOPHER BUCKLEY
Distributed by The Canadian Press

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN NORMANDY, June 6 (Delayed)—Standing this afternoon beside a group of citizens of Bayeux as tanks, guns, "tank busters," armored cars, Bren carriers and other Allied equipment rolled through the town I found the general comment gratifying. It can be expressed in the single sentence:—

"The Germans have nothing like this."

They were quit clear that the Germans had never mustered and never could muster the strength of the armed vehicles which they saw before them. I think they were staggered by the evidences of the sheer quantitive strength which they saw passing before them.

The Germans, they told us, seemed desperate for vehicles of one sort or another.

City Of Caen Tourist Spot

Caen, in peacetime one of the main tourist attractions in Normandy, is a city of commerce and industry supporting 61,000 persons, and lies on the Cherbourg-Paris railway, 150 miles west of Paris.

Graced by numerous churches, it has a university and other schools.

William the Conqueror founded the castle—later completed by Henry I and recently used by the French as a barracks.

In 1346 Caen was besieged and won by Edward III of England.

Nine miles from the coast, Caen has a floating basin lined with quays and connected with the Orne River. A regular line of steamships carried on trade with Le Havre and Newhaven, which is on the English south coast, and the city has a considerable fishing population.

Its diversified industries include lace-making, metal-founding, machine-construction, cloth-weaving, and chemical products. Caen stone has been used extensively for buildings in both France and England.

had reported a rapid advance by the Canadian invasion forces in which a dozen Normandy towns fell and 600 prisoners were taken. Reports from other correspondents with the Canadians said it was indicated that the Canadian schedule was working out "satisfactorily."

At sea, it was permitted to be disclosed that many units of the Royal Canadian Navy participated in the great invasion that got under way last Tuesday morning. The destroyers Sioux and Algonquin previously had been identified as taking part in the coastal bombardment and naval dispatches today named these vessels:—

Corvettes Prescott and Drumheller, engaged in shepherding invasion convoys into the beaches; Minesweepers Mina, Malpeque, Wasaga, Blairmore, Millton, engaged in sweeping mines from the invasion pathways.

In the air, Canada's bomber and fighter airmen wrote glorious pages in the Dominion's military history. One of their latest feats was an attack yesterday on German destroyers in the Bay of Biscay in which fighter planes left one enemy vessel in flames and damaged two others.

A sober review of the part Canada's ground forces are taking in the invasion was given in the House of Commons at Ottawa yesterday by Defence Minister Ralston. Reporting that "our forces have gained solid ground," he said that Canadian troops "are as far forward as any other land troops" at the present stage of the invasion.

The defence minister added that Canada must be prepared for some bad news, some of which may be "shocking."

Worker Lost Finger In Malt Machine

LINDSAY, June 10 (ENS)—An accident occurred at Allan and Hanburys Limited, when George Jacket lost his right index finger in the gears of the malt machine and had the back of his hand badly lacerated.

Jackett, severely shaken up, was rushed to the Ross Memorial Hospital where he was attended by Dr. W. C. Blackwell.

It is understood that he was cleaning the machine when the gears caught his hand and removed his finger. It is stated that Jackett will be out of work for at least another four or five weeks.

Rye futures were erratic with indifferent action at Chicago influencing the market. Final prices ranged ⅞-1 cent lower.

Russians Arm Polish American Says

CHICAGO, June 8—(AP)—Prof. Oscar Lange, University of Chicago economists who recently interviewed Premier Stalin, declared today the Soviet marshal "made it very clear that the independence and sovereignty of Poland will be fully recognized" by Russia after the war.

"There will be no interference in internal affairs" of Poland, Lange quoted Stalin as saying.

Lange, Polish-born, arrived yesterday in Chicago from Moscow where he conferred as a private citizen with Stalin on May 21. He made his first statement on his trip at a press conference today.

Lange offered as support of what he said Stalin told him these two observations:

1. The Soviet government is arming the Polish army which one Polish general said was expected to grow to 1,000,000 men before the end of the war.

2. Russians are permitting in schools for Polish refugee children new textbooks written by the Union of Polish Patriots, a Polish organization in Russia, and the Committee for Polish Children. These are replacing old textbooks because they contained Communist teachings.

"If Stalin wanted Poland to be part of the Soviet it would be most foolish to arm the Poles," Lange said.

Lange declared "the statement of Mr. Stalin was that Poland is to be a strong and large state. He looks upon it as a future ally of the Soviet Union, just like Czechoslovakia."

"She is young," said His Worship in imposing sentence, "so I have decided to give her the minimum fine."

The girl had previously pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, and on that count was sentenced to two days in jail, which means that she will be discharged tomorrow afternoon, if the fine in the other case is paid.

Landings Continue

The thrust within 18 miles of Cherbourg was reported by the German Trans-Ocean Agency. It said the Americans advanced more than a mile from Ste. Mere Eglise towards Valogne in the direction of Cherbourg.

A German military spokesman asserted American air-borne troops landed between Valognes and Ste. Mere Eglise had linked up with the Allied bridgehead on the east coast of the peninsula.

Progress In All Sectors.

Today's Allied communique said the Allied invasion forces have made progress "in all sectors" despite continued reinforcements of German armor and "our build-up continues."

Front dispatches said the battle was developing into a race for supplies, and "it looks as if the Allies are winning." There was a freshening breeze today over the misty Channel after a hampering overnight rain.

The Germans rolled up more tanks, dropped parachute troops and sent some supplies charging to the front behind horses.

"Landings have continued on all beaches and by-passed strong points of enemy resistance are being steadily reduced," said invasion communique No 7.

It was announced that 10 German divisions now are in action in Normandy. Axis broadcasts have asserted between 15 and 20 British, American and Canadian divisions have been landed.

Deepest Penetration

Transocean said in a Berlin broadcast that Allied liberating forces had made their deepest penetration in the area of captured Bayeux, inland from the centre of the Normandy invasion coast. It declared "grim" fighting between German and British tanks was in progress four or five miles southwest of Bayeux.

Canadian formations are also believed operating in this sector.

Reports from the Canadian sector to headquarters said German paratroopers were being dropped on a small scale behind the Allied lines.

The Germans conceded they had been hurled back on the defensive in the Carentian fighting, a third of the way across the Cherbourg peninsula, as the Allies brought in reinforcements.

It was apparent that vital roads in this area, leading to the prize port of Cherbourg, had been denied the Germans. Half of the main highway arteries of the entire peninsula run through this town.

Definite reports of progress were meagre at Supreme Headquarters. It appeared the Allies had reached an interim stage where tired troops were pushing forward more slowly to get their second wind and let supplies catch up with them. The weather was described as "only fair," and unloading conditions were none too good.

The over-all battle now has become a race between the Allies and the Germans in building up their forces. The Germans have the advantage of internal communications, close supply depots all over France, and land mobility.

Germans Get Some Protection

The Allies hold sea control and air superiority — but low hanging clouds today were giving the Germans some protection from the far-ranging Allied airmen.

Allied air forces continued dropping supplies by air yesterday—including ether parachuted to advance hospitals.

To bring up reinforcements, the Germans are using any vehicles they can lay their hands on. Allied pilots said they observed armored equipment, supply trucks and even horse-drawn vehicles moving toward the front.

A German broadcast declared "it seems that a bitter tank battle" north of Caen "has not yet reached its peak."

Rocket-firing Allied planes went into the fray yesterday to attack Nazi armor between Caen and Bayeux, a region described in front line dispatches as excellent for armored warfare.

A communique last night said British and Canadian troops were making continued progress and that American bridgeheads on the west were "being gradually enlarged." The bulletin added: "The enemy is fighting fiercely."

The tank battles, in progress since late Wednesday, apparently flared over most of the stretch between Caen and Bayeux—a flat region described as excellent for armored warfare. Rocket-firing Allied aircraft dipped low east of Caen yesterday to hit the German armor.

German Tiger tanks were reported moving up from the Falaise sector — the inland area some 30 miles from the sea where the Germans have been reporting Allied airborne units. Axis broadcasts said "super-heavy" British tanks had landed.

Axis reports said Allied forces were as much as five miles beyond Bayeux, captured two days ago by the British forces in a drive to sever the Cehrbourg peninsual to the west and gain possession of Cherbourg's dock facilities—described by the Paris radio as the first Allied offensive.

The Germans apparently had built up some of their strongest resistance at Caen. A field dispatch dated Wednesday noon declared "we are within hours, perhaps minutes of taking our first main objective the town of Caen." The picture obviously changed as German reserves moved in, although Berlin acknowleged Allied troops had penetrated the burning, shell-wrecked city.

Weather Remains Poor.

The weather, which threatened to throw the invasion plans awry in the critical period, remained poor to-day. All-night rain continued well into daylight and clouds hung low over Dover straits. There was only a light breeze, however, and the sea was smooth.

Favored yesterday by clear skies, the powerful Allied air arm gave the enemy a smashing blow. Heavy bombers ranged deep into France, hitting railway focal points and airfields. Fighter-bombers swept a deep belt south and southeast of the battle area, attacking German reinforcements. The Allied comment said that during he invasion period up to noon yesterday Allied planes flew 27,000 individual missions.

A front-line dispatch last night said "much depends on the speed of the build-up of the bridgehead" in supplies and troops because substantial enemy forces apparently are probing for a spot to launch a major counter-attack.

The Nazi-controlled Paris radio said 20 Allied Divisions had landed in Normandy. A Berlin broadcast said two Allied airborne divisions "in many hundreds" of gliders landed yesterday in the liberated area north of Bayeaux.

A Vichy radio said Allied troops who occupied Bayeaux were advancing against strong German resistance toward Carentak, some 24 miles westward and 30 miles southeast of Cherbourg.

Supreme Headquarters disclosed that American troops, possibly those in the western area of the bridgehead, were fighting for a lateral road, but its location was not given

Allied forces have engaged so far at least two German motorized divisions—one of them Field Marshal Rommel's 21st Division, beaten by Gen. Montgomery in North Africa and later reformed. Ten German divisions have been identified thus far.

Two noted Allied divisions made the first landings, it was disclosed yesterday. The British 50th Northumbrian Division and the United States 1st Infantry Division, it was announced, have made excellent progress on the fields of France after smashing German counter-attacks.

Three times the two divisions have fought side by side. They did it before in the deserts of North Africa and then in the mountains of Sicily.

ALLIED FORCES LANDING ON FRENCH COAST—Allied assault troops are shown landing on a beachhead in the invasion area of the French coast. Half-tracks and other vehicles on the shore indicate successful landings of preceding waves of Allied invading forces.

WILLIAM D. MORRIS

A resident of Peterborough sixty-eight years, William Dobbin Morris died this morning at his home, 43 Lansdowne street, in his eighty-sixth year.

Mr. Morris was born at Whitby and came to Peterborough as a boy of eighteen. For many years he engaged in the retail meat trade in a shop which only older residents can remember as part of the arcade which once led from George street through to the market. It accommodated a group of retail stores most of them in the meat business, and conducted by men who have preceded Mr. Morris in death. The stairs leading to the market hall were situated at the east end of the arcade which discontinued years ago, the space being converted into stores now incorporated in that part of the block on the east side of George street north of Charlotte street.

In later years Mr. Morris was associated with his brother-in-law, Thomas Brown, in business as drovers, raising and buying cattle for export and city supply, especially to the markets in Montreal and Toronto. Mr. Morris used to make frequent trips to Montreal in the course of his business, and was well known in market circles.

Many friends of the late Mr. Morris, those who remain of his own generation, will regret to learn of his death, and will remember him in the enviable reputation he established during his years of business.

Mr. Morris is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Robert Dutton, Mrs. E. Melville Turner and Miss Mabel A. Morris and one son, J. Howden Morris, all of this city; and by his sister, Mrs. Thomas Brown, and two brothers, Rev. John Cosby Morris of Peterborough, and Charles Wesley Morris of St. Louis; and by his grandchildren, John Turner and Robert Dutton with the R.C.A.F. overseas, Jane Dutton Dorothy Turner and Arthur Turner.

The funeral will take place Monday, June 12, from the family residence, 43 Lansdowne street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. Mr. Morris had lived on Lansdowne street since he first came to Peterborough as a boy.

IVAN BRUCE KEATING

HAVELOCK, June 9 (ENS) — The passing of Ivan Bruce Keating, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keating, saddened the community of Rush Point this week. He was suffering from tonsilitis and had been sick only a few days and his condition had not been considered serious when he took a turn for the worse.

The boy was a bright and good working student in Grade 3 and in his short life had made many friends among his school mates and also in the people of the community. Besides his sorrowing parents, he leaves to mourn his loss two brothers, Burrel and Garnet and one sister, Iva, at home.

The funeral was held from the family residence, Belmont, on Friday afternoon with services conducted at the house at 2 p.m. by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson of the Havelock United Church. Interment was in Maple Grove Cemetery.

along the south shore of the lower St. Lawrence and the rolling farmlands of western Ontario. Many of the peasants' grey homes were smashed by the invasion bombardment.

People Friendly

The French people, mainly farm folk, take it philosophically, however. They admit distress at the destruction but so far it does not affect their attitude toward the troops, which is friendly and co-operative.

Until recent weeks there was not even a blackout in this village but when the prospect of invasion became greater the Germans made a nightly check-up of what they called the "camouflage" and insisted that curtains be drawn across the windows of lighted rooms.

In a little cafe, which seemed fairly well stocked with mild drinks, including beer, the troops were greeted by a pleasant French woman behind the bar. She explained that when the Germans were in the village she kept her stock under the counter and the presence of bottles now was by way of celebration.

Beer was scarce, she added, but she was on friendly terms with a brewers' representative in the nearest town and he made deliveries to her shop as substantial as possible.

Now troops are combing the thick brush around the Chateau and bullets are cracking all around.

Last evening after undergoing 12 hours of aerial bombardment on the beach where we landed I crouched on a road between a brick wall and a jeep for nearly two hours while German snipers sent tracer bullets crackling around us. I got out in an armored car parking myself on the steel top plates as we ran the gauntlet through the shell-spattered village.

I slept in a slit trench in the garden of this Chateau.

Except for a deep-burning hatred among the French in this village, the Germans have left little else.

War Equipment To Be Sold With Due Care

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 9 (CP)—Between $3,000,000,000 and $4,000,000,000 worth of war equipment and supplies may come up for sale when the war is over, Munitions Minister Howe told the Commons last night.

With many of their constituents interested in buying jeeps and other items from government war stores members perked up their ears when Mr. Howe introduced a bill to give statutory incorporation to the War Assets Corporation already in existence by order-in-council.

The corporation will have the job of getting rid of the things the government does not want when the war is over, but Mr. Howe gave definite indication he does not plan a rummage sale. The articles and materials will be sold in an orderly way and at prices in line with their value and with business practice.

"The practice is to price the material reasonably having in mind the value of similar material newly manufactured," said the minister.

Repaired or Scrapped

He also told the House the material would be sold either as scrap or as reconditioned machinery. It would not be put on the market in a conditions of disrepair.

John R. MacNicol (P.C.-Toronto Davenport) said he was concerned about the danger of surplus war materials coming into competition with new goods and so injuring employment in manufacturing industries, but Mr. Howe gave him only a partial reassurance.

"I would not like members to believe that the sole duty of this disposal corporation will be to prevent surplus material interfering with the manufacturers of this country," he said.

"That will be one duty, but it must be remembered that the surplus material from this war is the property of the people of Canada and must be disposed of in the interests of the people of Canada having due regard to the situation of the manufacturer and the effect on employment."

After starting the day with a motion of birthday greetings to the King and a decision to sit Wednesdays for the balance of the session to speed up business, the Commons made rapid progress with items on the order paper.

Mr. Howe's bill advanced through first reading. The annual bill authorizing the Canadian National Railways to borrow money went through second reading and bills providing for farm credits and service voting in Canada and overseas went through the resolution and first reading stages.

On the Farm Credits Bill, which authorizes a partial guarantee to banks on loans made to farmers for development and improvement of their farms and stock, Finance Minister Ilsley said the government hopes it would have the effect of lowering the price of farm machinery.

Several members referred to evidence before a pre-war farm implements inquiry to the effect that the price of machinery was influenced by the costs of implement companies in financing credit to farmers and in collections. They suggested the implement companies would be relieved of these costs if farmers financed their purchases through the banks on the five per cent loans contemplated in the bill.

The first three attacks were handled by R.A.F. Spitfires, which shot down three German planes and damaged more without loss. The last attack cost the Germans seven planes, again with no loss to the Allies.

Several hundred R.A.F. heavy bombers, flying through rain and thick clouds, hit the switching yards and rail junctions at Rennes, Fougeres, Alencon, Mayenne, and Pontabault last night. These lie south and west of the Normandy fighting front. Two of the heavy bombers are missing from these operations.

Air Ministry announcement said poor flying weather appeared also to be hampering the Germans, since the big British ships met fewer Nazi fighters than during the previous night.

British airmen had glimpses of the ground fighting and saw bright flashes from the sea west of the Cherbourg Peninsula, where the Allied warships appeared to be bombarding the coast. They said the attack on the Fougeres yards left a column of smoke towering 2,000 feet.

Transfer Order To Affect Many Workers

OTTAWA, June 9 — (CP). — Faced with a need of 196,000 workers in industry and other civilian occupations, Labor Minister Mitchell last night announced a broadening of the Selective Service program to fill manpower needs.

Mr. Mitchel dealt with Canada's acute manpower problem in an address broadcast on the CBC Dominion network. A short time earlier he had outlined to the Commons the highlights of the program, which has three main features.

Scope of Plan.

The plan includes:

1. Interviewing individually of some 500,000 men rejected from service in the armed forces with a view to moving them, where necessary, to more essential employment.

2. Extension of compulsory transfer regulations to cover a greater number of occupations and more vigorous application.

3. Extension of the industrial mobilization survey to all industries making the employment of all men from 16 to 40 years in all industrial and commercial establishments subject to survey.

Careful Examination.

"I would stress the point that in regard to men in the age groups mentioned, whether callable for military training or not, or whether married or single, all cases will be examined most carefully," said Mr. Mitchell.

"Every effort will be made to treat fairly the employers and employees involved — but the paramount importance of war production will be the deciding factor."

To speed up the interviewing of men rejected for service with the forces, Selective Service offices will when necessary, stay open evenings, the minister said.

Three Purposes.

The industrial surveys would be made as rapidly as possible and would have three primary purposes:

1. To determine cases where men on postponement can be called for military service without interference with essential production.

2. To arrange transfer to more essential jobs of men who are medically unfit or not callable for military service for any reason.

3. To discover cases where an employer in any priority, has a temporary or permanent surplus of men in the age groups 16 to 40 who may be moved to essential work.

Agriculture will not be included in the survey.

Officers of the Industrial Mobilization Survey Division will investigate plants and report to one of the 12 mobilization survey committee across Canada.

Workers transferred have the right to reinstatement in former jobs after the emergency passes and under certain conditions special allowances will be paid those moved to other jobs where hardship would be involved.

Either employers or employees may appeal decisions of a committee to courts of referees which include representatives of both employers and employees.

In his radio address Mr. Mitchell said that toward the end of May Employment and Selective Service Offices had vacancies for 100,000 men and 41,000 women required by high priority industries and 55,000 persons sought by industries in lower priorities, including some essential services.

Cupboard Love In Italy

On Monday last King Victor Emmanuel relinquished his place as King of Italy, and his son, Prince Humbert, became Regent. Some newspapers which are very bold in expressing opinions on matters which they cannot possibly influence have taken the opportunity to express their scorn for Victor Emmanuel, and to utter dark predictions that the House of Savoy will not survive the peace. Apparently these journals would gladly sacrifice the monarchy, which has a certain stability, in favour of an Italian democratic republic, which in our opinion would have no stability at all. If Italy wants a republic, she would do well to approach the matter gradually; a sudden leap from fascism to republicanism would be typically Italian and ill-omened.

We have expressed the opinion before in these columns that when King Victor Emmanuel asked Benito Mussolini to form a government he took the only course which lay open to him. And why? Because a majority of the Italian people wanted Mussolini and would have dethroned the King if he had demurred. We do not set up Victor Emmanuel as a particularly far-sighted or enlightened ruler; we do assert, however, that it was the Italian people, and not the King, who put Mussolini in the seat of power. Nowadays, in democracies as well as in totalitarian countries, there is a tendency to exalt the mob at the expense of the individual; it is unjust to pretend that the Italian mob was guiltless, and Victor Emmanuel guilty, for the rise of Fascism in Italy.

Every day we read accounts of the enthusiasm with which the Allied forces are being received in Italy; the delighted Italians cheer and sing, toss bouquets of flowers, and occasionally throw themselves upon our soldiers and kiss them. Very pretty; very Italian. These are the same people who threw flowers and sang when Mussolini passed through their land; they kissed the soldiers who went to accomplish the brutal rape of Ethiopia; they showed the same childlike delight over the invasion of Albania. These are the relatives of the Italian soldiers who did whatever they could to kill our troops in Africa; these are the people who were delighted when Mussolini stabbed France in the back. They are, in fact, the same old Italian mob, with untold stores of facile emotion, and a dwarfed and starved moral and political sense.

The Italians have many good qualities. Political consistency is not one of them. At present they are delighted to see the Allies because they expect food and order to follow the flag. They would have been just as glad to see the Germans win if they could have wrung a decent share of the plunder from the Germans.

The fact of the matter is that the Italians are still our enemies, and when the war is over they will learn that they fought on the wrong side, and must pay the price of defeat. Let us not mistake their blubberings and their cupboard-love for democratic fervour, and let us not deceive ourselves with any cant about the wickedness of King Victor Emmanuel; though a King in name he is, like every modern king, the tool of his people. And his people are the same old shouting, weeping, flower-throwing, back-stabbing Italian mob that they have been since the March on Rome when they put Mussolini in the driver's seat and allowed him to take them for a ride.

Calling Things By Their Right Names

The Government Minor and Manipulative Trades Association of Great Britain includes about two thousand women who clean out Government offices. Normally these workers are called 'charwomen', but now they want to be called something else. The word 'charwoman' has connotations which they do not like.

Commenting on this matter, the Brantford Expositor says: "For generations, led by somewhat snobbish Punch cartoonists, humourists of a certain stripe have delighted to make fun of people they call 'charwomen'", and our contemporary thinks that "it should be possible to coin a word free of snobbish implications and more in keeping with the dignity of honest and indispensable toil".

Having known a good many charwomen in our time, this makes us laugh a lot. Charwomen are usually blessed with a hearty sense of humour, and they like to laugh with their employers and also at them. Why shouldn't the employer have the right to laugh back again? It is quite true that Punch cartoonists make a lot of fun of charwomen, and by doing so they recognize the peculiar wit and charm of charwomen. Punch cartoonists also make a lot of fun of Dukes and clergymen, but the House of Lords and the Church of England are not working themselves into a sweat about it. Punch makes fun of everything, and among other odd types it makes fun of people whose souls yearn after a foolish and meaningless type of 'refinement'.

It is this sort of 'refinement' which wants to find a new word for 'charwoman'. The old name has done well for at least 800 years, and it means literally 'one who does a turn of work'. To change it to something 'refined' would be like changing that good old word 'farrier' to 'equine pedicure'.

Let us avoid foolish 'refinement' for it is one of the most ludicrous of all forms of snobbery. If a job has a good old name let us stick to it, for the job will be unchanged, whatever happens to the name. After all, many a Lord Mayor of London has rejoiced in the name of 'ironmonger' or 'fishmonger'.

Henry VIII And Toothpicks

It was inevitable that King Henry VIII's name should become mixed up in the present toothpick controversy. A great metropolitan daily paper has insinuated that Henry probably used his toothpick freely at the table. A female toothpick-hater has written to the press to say that she does not want her husband to have manners like Henry, and so on. Whenever there is a public squabble about manners, Henry's name crops up in it sooner or later.

This is a result of the popular confusion between Henry VIII and Charles Laughton, the movie-actor, which began about twelve years ago with the production of a picture called The Private Life of Henry VIII. It was a poor movie, stupid and vulgar in its conception, and it gave an entirely false impression of one of the most intelligent kings who ever sat on the throne of England. Contemporary accounts do not tell us that Henry was gross or unmannerly; they tell us that he was a notable scholar, linguist, musician and athlete, a man of great strength of will and subtlety of mind. He was unfortunate in his relations with women, and he dealt harshly with those who deceived him. In the movie referred to Mr. Laughton gave us an amusing but crude portrait of a glutton and a lecher.

But such is the power of the movies and the weakness of history-teaching in our schools that Henry is now taken as a type of all that was disgusting. A dental association has but to discuss toothpicks at a meeting, and the press is filled with suggestions that a long-dead king picked his teeth with his dagger.

Britain Underwrites Prosperity

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

THE new British Government White Paper involves a great political and social decision. In a word, the government has undertaken the responsibility of maintaining full employment among the British people henceforward. Similar commitments, in vague and general terms, have been made by other democratic governments, but the British Government is the first to outline its program in more concrete form. It can be divided into 12 convenient compartments.

The government, (1), will broaden out existing measures of social insurance, particularly insurance against unemployment, being doubtless influenced in the details of this program by the Beveridge Plan. A new departure in this policy will provide that the contributions of employers and workers to insurance funds will be relatively high in good times and relatively low in bad times. Thus surplus purchasing power will be sponged up in times of high production, and in times of reduced production the public will be left with more money to spend and thus to encourage greater production.

The government, (2), assumes the responsibility of halting a slump before it gets well under way—a very great undertaking, since Britain's economy is peculiarly sensitive to conditions in the world at large. To this end large public investments to create employment will be planned years ahead by a committee representing national and local authorities. Public works, of course, have proved insufficient in any country to create prosperity and they are regarded as only one part of the general British plan.

CONCERTED action, (3), between the British treasury and the banks is planned to influence the volume of capital expenditure and to assure the investment of the nation's savings. How this will be achieved is not clear from cabled summaries of the White Paper and probably the details have not been worked out even in the government's mind. But control of interest rates is counted upon as one method of inducing active investment in place of idle saving.

Taxation, (4), will be varied according to changes in economic conditions. In prosperous times taxes will be relatively high because the people can better afford to pay them without seriously reducing their purchase of goods. In less prosperous times taxes will be reduced to help the people to maintain their purchase of goods. On the same principle, the government will not attempt to balance its budget every year, but over a period of years, running deficits in slack times and surpluses in good times.

The government, (5), will encourage private enterprise to expand or contract its own spending and investment in accordance with the government's policy of expansion and contraction. How far "encouragement" will go is not clear but London observers say that the government plans to enforce its general program vigorously, through the various mechanisms of the new plan.

IT is proposed, (6), that prices and wages must be kept reasonably stable. How this is to be done is not yet explained except that, where necessary, the government is prepared to use the weapon of subsidies, perfected during the present war.

General wage increases, (7), will grow only out of increased production per head. As the efficiency of labour increases, as the worker turns out more goods, wages will advance, but not otherwise. Employers will not be permitted to earn increased rewards by large increases in prices but only through increased production and improved efficiency.

While there is no hint, (8), that Britain will make all combines and cartels illegal, it promises to act against agreements which conflict with the full employment policy. Presumably Britain will continue to regard some combines as "good" and some as "bad."

Labour, (9), must be kept mobile. Workers must be moved from one industry to another as industrial changes occur and to this end the government proposes extensive schemes of re-training to fit workers for new jobs. It also plans large-scale housing schemes to assure workers who change from one industry to another of adequate homes.

The government, (10), promises to help certain key industries like coal, steel, heavy engineering and shipbuilding to increase efficiency and to secure foreign markets. How this is to be done has not been stated, but government has made one move in this connection by relieving certain industries from a part of their taxes if they conduct research and improve machinery.

The government, (11), will supervise the location of new industries and the transfer of workers between industries. It will take power to prevent industrial development where it is considered undesirable.

A government general staff, (12), will watch economic trends, warn in advance of depressions and keep the government constantly informed of basic economic conditions. In the same way another expert staff will maintain a parallel study of the existing manpower situation.

THE White Paper appears to be not a plan in itself, but a plan for a plan which will be shaped after the war. It describes in general the machinery the government proposes to use to maintain employment but does not say how it will be used. However, one basic fact is clear—Britain does not propose to embark on socialization of industry. It must be remembered that the White Paper represents the views not only of the Conservative majority in the government, but of its Labour Party members as well, and these labour men have recently indicated clearly, in a series of statements, that they desire to encourage the fullest possible development of private industry after the war.

The White Paper is thus widely interpreted as a typically British attempt to synthesize the opposing views of unrestricted capitalism and over-all socialism. In a word, it proposes to leave business in private hands with a general state control over the national economy.

But to achieve such a compromise and with it high prosperity is more easily said than done, and it is clearly recognized in Britain that it cannot be done there or anywhere else unless there is a high level of world prosperity. No plan undertaken by the British Government could insulate Britain from a world slump, and it is for this reason that Britain seeks a maximum expansion of world trade and the rehabilitation of its ruined customers in Europe and elsewhere.

The Place Of Small Nations

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

MR. CORDELL HULL'S assurance to the small nations that their position and rights will be safeguarded in the proposed world security organization is at once a recognition of the fears that they have not been slow to express and an attempt to allay them insofar as the United States is concerned. The American Secretary of State's reference to the all-inclusive nature of the peace plan is an obvious rejoinder to the warning by the Foreign Minister of the Netherlands that the lesser allies cannot be expected to support any peace organization based on the idea of exclusive control by the great powers.

It is obvious that the small nations are deeply concerned that they will not be properly represented in the council and assembly which the United States, Britain, Russia and China propose to establish. Yet it is difficult to outline the precise role they can play at this juncture. The inescapable fact is that they have lost what power they had. The only nations capable of establishing the peace are those that are now hammering out the victory, in full possession of their power. It is essential that they reach the primary agreement. If they cannot agree, the small nations will not have much to look forward to.

But in the process of ending the war successfully the great powers are making decisions every day affecting the lives of citizens and the future of countries now overrun and under the heel of the occupant. It is hardly to be expected that the exile governments will stand aside without protest when they find they are not to be consulted on the dispositions to be made in their own lands until peace and order can be restored. This period may be a long one, and the nations who now hold the power and are determined to wield it in the preservation of peace may find the small countries increasingly restive under their rule unless they enjoy full consultation on their own affairs.

It is equally evident that the Big Four, who are not European nations themselves, will need all the active aid and support of the countries of Europe if they are to organize peace. The great powers are about to launch the invasion of Germany. How many European lands are to be involved in the penetration of the Nazi fortress no man can yet say, but it is undeniable that an immediate concern of these countries is participation in the decisions being made now that involve their future existence.

The disposition and purpose of the United States to see that the small nations are kept on a position of equality with all others, as Mr. Hull puts it, would seem to be best implemented by the creation of, if not a United Nations council, at least an international body on a broader basis of representation to extend to the small nations practical cooperation in the current decisions. The forthcoming meeting of the great powers may evolve, before too much harm has been done to the democratic cause, a closer bond between the proposed council and assembly to satisfy their aspirations.

A Fighting Man's Tribute

By CHESTER A. BLOOM

WASHINGTON: The writer has had the privilege of reading a letter from an American airman in the Southwest Pacific area to his family in Washington, which is a magnificent example of the fine spirit prevailing among the fighting men. For this U.S. warrior goes out of his way to lavish praise on the great fighting spirit of the Australian ground forces to whom little recognition has been given by the American press.

Omitting personal references in the letter, this fighting American writes:

"The ground gains aren't anything compared to the show in Europe (we still think of the European show as sponsored by the United States and England, whereas we are working more or less on our own)—but when you think of the heart-breaking job of pushing back these little animals—smoking them out of their holes one by one—you can see why we feel proud of dogfaces. (Dogfaces is a U.S. airforce affectionate nickname for the infantry.)

"Our U.S. soldiers have learned fast and fought well, but I don't think you people appreciate the Aussies. We speak of them as the Varsity Team (another Americanism of the universities meaning the first, top or picked team sent against other university teams.)

"It's pretty trite," continues this American airman's letter, "to call them 'magnificent.' They consistently advance through impossible country as if under the momentum of their terrific 'fighting spirit.' They're blood-thirsty and ruthless and deadly thorough. I've seen their patrols appear out of the jungles as silent as cats—grimy, rugged, huge men, the most profane I've ever heard and the most cheerful. Of course, these are the A.I.F., the old Tobruk Rats.

"Remember the A.I.F. when you read about your ground gains. They've taught us all we know. In this year our squadron has moved up in three great leaps. We are situated now in a place we never would have dared fly over last year. The sky was lousy with Japs last year, but it's black with ours now."

Isle of Dogs

Strangest of all the islands in the Indian Ocean is the one marked on sea charts as Juan de Nova, but known to all mariners of the Far East as the Island of Dogs. A more appropriate name could not possible be given it, for literally it is an island completely ruled by dogs.

This bit of land, flat and sandy and resembling a horseshoe in shape, lies not far to the north of Madagascar. During bygone centuries many East Indian boats, Portuguese galleons and pirate ships of many lands used to replenish their water supply at this island and fill half-empty larders with its cocoanuts and turtles. As might be supposed, some of these ships carried dogs of various breeds, many of which escaped at Juan de Nova and were left behind. In a few years, abandoned and driven to provide for themselves, they reverted to the wild type from which they originally sprang.

At the present day their descendants, a savage mongrel band, are in complete possession of the island. They dominate every rock and sandy hollow and attack with the utmost ferocity any ship's crew that chances to set foot on the island.

A curious thing happened when these dogs returned to a state of savagery. They lost their dog-like bark; now they call to each other in a weird wolfish howl. In fact, too, they droop their tails as do all wolves. They hunt their food in packs, each band possessing its own section of the land and one pack never dares venture into territory controlled by another pack.

Their food consists of turtle eggs and sea birds of all kinds. They dig up the turtle eggs from the beaches with their claws and stalk the unwary sea gulls with all the cunning and stealth of lions or tigers. No one has ever tried to reclaim these renegade animals and they have held the island unmolested up to the present day.—From "Our Dumb Animals."

Wild Rumours and False Alarms

The false report of an Allied invasion of France, which was unintentionally spread by a girl teletype operator in London, recalls a false report that was circulated in England back in the days of the Napoleonic War, when England was under the invasion-threat.

According to this report, Napoleon had landed on the east coast of Scotland, near Dalkeith. Beacon fires rallied the defence forces from miles around. Troops marched from Edinburgh. The volunteers of Ettrick Forest, led by their laird, poured down through the glens. Sir Walter Scott, the poet and novelist, who happened to be travelling in England, rode one hundred miles in twenty-four hours in order to join the volunteer cavalry detachment of which he was commander.

But when Napoleon and his invaders failed to materialize, it became apparent that someone had blundered. The assembled forces, though feeling somewhat let down, tried to make the best of it. They camped for a few days in the fields, engaged in sham battles, and, after a good deal of jollity, returned to their homes.

This "invasion of Dalkeith" was only one of many wild rumours and false alarms that were spread in that long period of suspense.—Montreal Gazette.

BASEBALL IN BRITAIN

It may be that in a few years we shall have absorbed all the traditions of baseball (now being played by British troops), will rise in a body to stretch ourselves at the "sleepy seventh," and write of the game in language as palpably spirited as it is incomprehensible.—London Times.

BRITISH CHARTS

So precise are they that charts of the British Admiralty are used more extensively than those of any other country. Before the war Japan used British charts and so did Germany except for her own coastal waters. Russia, Italy and Scandinavian countries used them and the United States finds about 800 Admiralty charts decidedly useful. It may surprise many people to learn that, on the average, a British warship is supplied with as many as 2,000 charts, which explains why a whole factory is required to produce them in time of war.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

TAXING ANNUITIES

One of the meanest defects in Canada's taxation law is the taxation of annuities. It is utterly inexcusable and against the public as against the private interest.

A man, let us say, has an income of $4,000 a year. He pays income tax on that sum and out of what he can save makes payments on an annuity which begins when the annuitant is 65. When the annuity payments come in, the annuitant is taxed on them as though they were new income. If the annuity stands alone, it is hardly likely that the tax will be high. But if the person concerned continues at his job, the annuity will be taxed at the top of the graduated scale applying to this particular individual and half of the annuity may disappear in taxes.

As the money which produces the annuity has already paid a tax, this procedure is iniquitous. —Brockville Recorder.

A Bible Message

And Moses called all Israel, and said unto them, Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and keep, and do them. ...

Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.

And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. ...

And when thy son asketh thee in time to come, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord our God hath commanded you? Then thou shalt say unto thy son, We were Pharaoh's bondmen in Egypt: and the Lord brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand: and the Lord showed signs and wonders, great and sore, upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his household, before our eyes: and he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which he sware unto our fathers.

And the Lord commanded us to do all these statutes, to fear the Lord our God, for our good always, that he might preserve us alive, as is at this day. And it shall be our righteousness, if we observe to do all these commandments before the Lord our God, as he hath commanded us. (Deut. 5: 1; 6: 4-7, 20-25.)

A. Slaght Wants Data On Banks

OTTAWA, June 9—(CP)—A renewed demand for disclosure of the inner reserves of chartered banks was made today by Arthur Slaght (L-Parry Sound) in the Commons banking committee.

He said he agreed it was desirable the banks should have reserves but they should be all in the open and subject to tax in the year in which they were created. The law should be changed so that the amounts now placed in inner reserves should be added to the disclosed reserves which total $136,000,000 for all banks.

"I believe the banks must have inner reserves in order to carry on business satisfactorily," said Finance Minister Ilsley under questioning from Mr. Slaght.

Earlier, Mr. Ilsley indicated he wanted the issue settled in the committee through a prompt vote on a motion proposed by Mr. Slaght to require disclosure.

The minister said his statement of yesterday giving reasons for the existence of inner reserves was a government statement and the government wanted to know very soon whether it had the confidence of the committee.

W. A. Fraser (L-Northumberland) said he thought it would be in the interest of the banks themselves and of the stability of the banking system if all reserves were put in the open.

Alex Walker Wants Stiff Penalties

VANCOUVER, June 9 — (CP) — No punishment was severe enough to make Germany pay for her millions of war crimes, said Alex Walker, Dominion President of the Canadian Legion, at the biennial convention here last night.

Germany for the first 25 years of the post-war era should turn over all products of her labor, except those needed for plain living, to countries occupied by the Nazis during the war, he said.

Germany also should be completely subjugated until the people are reformed, her territory reduced and be occupied by representatives of the United Nations until such time as the country can become an acceptable member of the community of nations, he said in a 15-point plan for post-war Germany.

"The whole German people, and not only the Nazis, have demonstrated clearly they are incapable of governing themselves peacefully."

Oshawa Jeweller Slugged By Deserter

TORONTO, June 9—(CP)—Ambrose McConnery, 19, of Ottawa, who police said was a deserter from the United States air forces, was arrested last night for Oshawa police on charges of robbery with violence.

The charge was laid in connection with an attack on 62-year-old Fred von Gunsten in his jewelry store at Oshawa Monday. Gunsten is in hospital recovering from wounds suffered when struck with a soft-drink bottle by a man who looted the showcases of a number of rings and other jewelry.

Police said McConnery had several rings in his possession when arrested. Officers said he deserted the U.S.A.F. in Utah last April.

Gen. Mark Clark Meets Pope Pius

ROME, June 9 — (CP)) — Pope Pius XII and Lt.-Gen. Clark, Commander of the 5th Army, talked for 10 minutes today in the Pope's private office in the Vatican library.

The Pope yesterday urged war correspondents to let the ultimate general purpose of their writing be for peace.

In his first press conference since becoming Pope, held in the throne room of the Vatican, the Pontiff said:—

"This war should be only a means to a peace. Write for a peace that can meet the approval of all well meaning peoples—that can assure one and all those conditions necessary so that they may live in a manner befitting the dignity of a human being."

The Pope, thin and pale but appearing strong, told the correspondents "you are most welcome. You have a mission of tremendous importance."

"If it would be well to have a message for you, it would be those words spoken back in 1940 on the eve of Christmas:

"If a man is sincerely interested in securing spiritual and moral conditions for future collaboration between nations, he will direct his force toward duty, truth, justice and goodwill, and even more, toward the supernatural idea of brotherly love that Christ gave to the world."

He ended the conference with a "goodbye and bless you all."

Tearful French Greet Canadians

TORONTO, June 9 — (CP) — Matthew Halton, CBC war correspondent, told to-day in an eye-witness account of the invasion of France how the Canadians who stormed up the beaches were welcomed by the French "with tears and roses, with bottles of good wine, with eggs and strawberries, but especially with tears."

"Their homes were being torn up by the fierce battle and some of them were dying, but it was the beginning of the end of their nightmare," said Halton, who spoke from England where he had returned after accompanying the invasion forces. "I saw them crown our dead Canadians with roses."

Huns Unafraid Of Soviet Threat

By LARRY ALLEN
Associated Press War Correspondent
(Just returned from a German Prison Camp)

NEW YORK, June 9—(AP)—Germany is withdrawing her armies along the eastern front and concentrating them behind powerful defence networks for an eventual "knock-down-and-drag-out" struggle with the Russians.

No one in Germany appears to be alarmed over the westward progress of the Red Army. In fact, Germans believe they can meet the threats from both east and west.

From personal observations, from German officers and soldiers, from Russian prisoners of war and the German press and radio, I am convinced that the Russians haven't skimmed the surface of the Reich's military power.

The German armies on the eastern front are fighting a delaying action at a minimum cost. In the meantime, as the Germans continue to "disengage" and make "ordered and strategic" withdrawals, the Russians are steadily lengthening their lines of supply and communications.

The German High Command has ordered stiff resistance on the Romanian battlefields, but how long that policy will be pursued is problematical.

The command presently, however, intends to protect the great Ploesti been getting about 30 per cent. of oilfields. From them, Germany has her oil.

But from them, too, Germany has amassed tremendous reserves, so that if the fields are finally lost it still is going to be a long time before the war machine really suffers.

OTTAWA, June 9—(CP)—Copies of a resolution adopted by a group of some 200 Indians calling for the transfer of Dr. W. H. McGill, director of the Indian Affairs branch, to some other government post are expected to be delivered to government representatives today.

The resolution referring to Dr. McGill said progress of the Indians was hindered by his administration.

20-Game Winners Put Tigers Near World Series

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian

Pitching wins pennants and 20-game winners are more or less prerequisites.

The Detroit Tigers, now edging toward the top of the American league standings, appear to have pitching and — two 20-game winners in Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout.

Between them, Lefty Hal and Righthander Dizzy won 14 games by June 1. Newhouser's contribution to that total was eight victories, which is all he could win last season in 38 games.

Trout, a 20-game winner last year, appears to be on his way to another banner season and if Newhouser continues his present pace you'll be seeing the Tigers back in the world series picture they last appeared in after the 1940 season.

From Beaumont

Both Newhouser and Trout are products of the Tigers' farm at Beaumont in the Texas league. Trout, who was something of a colorful character when he burst into the majors, came up first, having pitched his last minor league ball in the 1938 season.

Newhouser, bothered with wildness earlier in his career, has settled down and become one of the Tiger aces. He has a remarkably fast ball and struck out 144 batters last season. At the same time, he walked more batters, 111, than any other flinger in the league.

Trout began his career as an 16-year-old youth. He hit the minors with Terre Haute and then moved up to AA ball with Indianapolis. Toledo was his next stop and then he was sent to the Tigers' Beaumont farm.

Trout Star in '38

At Beaumont Trout was the pitching star of the league, winning 22 as against only six losses in 1938. That brought him to the Motor City and he has stayed on ever since. At first he was used sparingly, pitching only in relief roles. His record was poor until last season when he won his 20 games.

Newhouser, a native of Detroit, began his career with Alexandria in the Evangeline league in 1939. His fire ball was noticeable even at the start and he fanned 107 batters in 96 innings pitched.

One season at Beaumont and he was brought up by the Tigers although he had no minor league record to marvel at.

For the past three seasons he has struck out at least 100 or more batters. His best season with the Tigers was in 1940 when he won nine and lost nine.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Judging by the scores that were handed in last night it would appear as if the few games the boys have had are slowly but surely getting them into shape.

There was not a one-sided score, and several of the games seem to have been close all the way.

Over at Campbellford the other day our boys did well. They captured first and second places and incidentally they were the only two rinks that won all three games. It was their first outside tournament of the season and if they keep that pace going, why the board of directors will have to build an extension to the club house to hold all the cups and trophies.. The winning rinks were:

First, Canada Packers Cup and each a 10 lb. turkey—J. Fitzpatrick, B. Chesler, H. Freeman, skip.

Second, side of bacon each — R. Gamble, H. Coleman, W. Jeffries, skip.

We are now ready to receive entries for our club's provincial playoffs. The entries must be in writing and sent to the secretary of the games committee on or before Saturday, June 17th.

There are three competitions: singles, doubles and rinks.

Don't forget the men's rink tournament this evening and 7.30 is the hour.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

One of the best games of the season in the City Softball League should develop tonight when the unbeaten Switchgear team, seeking their sixth straight victory will clash with St. Peter's who need a win to keep them in the running for a playoff berth. The Saints game Manager Murph Chambers' team the closest run they have had all season when the two clubs met some weeks ago and at that time the St. Peter's team had had no practice. In spite of that fact they were just nosed out by a solitary run and a hit in the final frame might have reversed the decision. It was that close. Switchgear will probably nominate Ron Akers to do the flinging for them tonight with Holly Mowry behind the bat while the Saints will depend as usual upon the hard-working Gene Reynolds who has pitched every innings the St. Peter's team has played this season. Bob Carlson will handle his delivery. The game will be called at 7 o'clock sharp and should rate a real crowd. Both clubs are playing fine ball and the fans should be assured of a snappy contest with plenty of smart fielding dished up by both clubs.

The game between Trenton R.C.A.F. Fliers and the Plazas at Riverside Park tomorrow, Saturday evening, with the entire proceeds being turned over to the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy should attract about the biggest crowd of the year. Peterborough fans like to look at some outside competition once in a while and the reputation of the R.C.A.F. team as a fast-fielding, hard-hitting aggregation with plenty of pitching strength should make them a real drawing card for this Saturday evening fixture. Plazas will likely start Frank Stokoe, their new pitcher, against the fast-travelling Fliers and the local champs will have their strongest lineup in action, realising that in meeting the Trenton club they are stacking up against an outfit that was regarded last season as a real championship threat in the Eastern Ontario area and that it is reported to be even stronger now than they were a year ago. The Plazas are capable of colorful ball when they get around to it and the calibre of the visiting team tomorrow night should bring out the best that is in the local squad. The game is called for 6.30 o'clock sharp and the biggest turnout of the year should be on hand. Remember the entire proceeds go to help the Navy.

All This and Whipper, Too

Postponement of the team tag wrestling match Tuesday night has given Peterborough fans a real break for it will give them an opportunity of seeing the British Empire champion, Whipper Billy Watson, in action in this newest and most exciting form of wrestling. It had been the intention to stage the postponed card at the Brock Street Arena next Tuesday night, with Sexton and Morgan teaming up against the bad man pair of John Katan and Al Bunny Dunlop. Then it was discovered that Sexton was booked for a bout elsewhere next Tuesday and while Promoter Frank Tunney was casting about for another grappler capable of stepping into the breach Whipper Watson came to the rescue and offered to take on the job himself. So the team that Katan and Dunlop will have to meet here will be Billy Watson, British Empire champion and No. 1 claimant for the world title and Wilbur Toar Morgan, the Battling Marine. And if that is not a team to set a bewildering pace and interject about everything in the way of wrestling lore then this column would not know where to find one. Watson and Morgan, fast, clever, and with a varied attack, and youth and courage on their side, should make things decidedly miserable for the rough-house partnership.

* * * * * *

Strangely enough the Palermo Panther, John Katan, declares that he is happy about the whole thing. "I have been begging for a crack at Watson for months," Katan said when he heard about the switch in the card, but he and his coach Phil Lawson have been giving me the run around. I claim that I and not Watson should be the British Empire champion but they have been fighting shy of me. I don't know why they slipped up now and shoved the Whipper into his team tag battle but I do know that this is my chance and I am going to make the most of it. The Whipper, with his fancy avalanche holds and unconscious commando stuff, sounds good in the writeups but it's different on the mat." As for Bunny Dunlop, he says the change is all right with him. "Sexton or Watson, what does it matter so long as you stay healthy," grinned the Toronto strong man, "and I intend to stay that way. I would just as soon belt Watson as Sexton." So there it is, a team of two of the most popular wrestlers in the game against a pair of mat rowdies who can draw Bronx cheers in any wrestling centre on the continent, without half trying.

Marines vs. Big Bens

Interest in the Girls' Softball League for the moment centres in the battle tonight at the Bowl between the Johnson Motors girls and the champion Westclox. The Outboard Marines who gallantly battled all through last season without winning a game but improved all the time, have added a number of players this year and have won two out of their three starts. They did not meet the Westclox at all in 1943 so that tonight's clash will be the first the Johnson girls have had with the Big Bens and the fans are looking forward to the argument with a lot of interest. Helen Mark will do the tossing for the Outboards and if the team show the steadiness in the field that has marked several of their games this season should make a good job of pitching against the Westclox. The champs have not announced their twirling selection for tonight. It may be Isobel Bullock or Joyce Withers. On Monday night, usually an open night in the girls' loop, the Quakers and Lock Works teams who met last night will tie into each other again as they play off the game scheduled for last Friday night which was washed out.

Bucky Walters of the Cincinnati Reds seems to have the number of the St. Louis Cards. Twice this season he has shut out the champs and he came near to doing it again last night when the Reds nosed out the Cardinals 2 to 1. It was not until the ninth inning after Walters had blanked them for 30 straight frames that St. Louis finally broke through his delivery for a run. At that it was a tough loss for Max Lanier for the Reds only made four hits and both their runs were gifts. The New York Yanks took another on the chin, too, dropping a wild game to the Boston Red Sox 8 to 7. The McCarthyites came from far behind to take the lead but old Mike Ryba stopped them cold when he went in and finally Catcher Roy Partee crashed his first homer of the season in the ninth to give the Red Sox their win. Brooklyn had a good day, beating the Phillies in both ends of a double-header 6 to 3 and 8 to 1 and climbed from seventh to fifth, close behind their neighbors the New York Giants who are holding the fourth slot.

Soldiers Lose To Plazas; Lewis Pitches

Military Training Centre had naval support when they clashed with Plazas at Riverside Park in a City League game Thursday night, drafting Bill Lewis, home on leave from the Navy to pitch against the champs and the sailor heaver gave the second-placers quite a battle before being finally beaten 4 to 2 in a neat argument.

Lewis was wild at the go-in, walking five men in the first two innings but he was effective in the pinches and Plazas found runs hard to get. They left 12 men stranded for lack of a hit at the right moment, and several times Lewis came through with a strikeout to retire the side when the winners were threatening.

Dave Wilson, meanwhile, had the Soldier batters under control and he would have had a shut out if he had not pitched a home run ball to Jenner with two out and a man on the runways in the sixth. The big Plaza pitcher allowed only six hits and the Soldiers managed to get two of them together only once and did not score on that occasion.

Both teams missed good scoring chances in the first. Plazas had the bases full when Lewis issued three passes but the sailor pitcher struck out Pryde to retire the side.

In their half the Soldiers left two on the runways when Junkin rolled weakly to Wilson for the third out.

Plazas had another chance in the second when Burton walked and Wilson was safe on an error with one out, but the next two, Jones and Hawks, could not produce a hit.

However the champs finally scored a run in the third. Tucker opened by doubling past third and went to third on Starr's single to right, the batter advancing on the throw to the difficult corner. Blewett walked to load the bases. Pryde's fly to short centre was taken on the run by Mortimer and Tucker scored after the catch. Ellis fouled to McIlveen and Burton fanned.

Soldiers threw away a chance. Anderson opened with a triple to right but tried to score when Herrick rolled to Wilson and was doubled at the plate when Ellis made a quick throw to Starr. Mortimer singled to right immediately afterward but McIlveen rolled to Jones.

The winners made it 2 to 0 with a run in the fifth. Tucker reached second when Anderson dropped his high fly and he scored on Starr's single past first. The hitter was cut down at second when he tried to stretch it into a double. Blewett struck out, Pryde singled solidly to left and then Ellis grounded to Morgan to retire the side.

Soldiers got their only runs in the sixth to tie it up. Wilson started that frame by fanning Herrick and Mortimer but McIlveen drew a pass and ran home ahead of Jenner when the Soldier shortstop homered past Pryde in right field. Hawks then tossed out Nicholls to retire the side.

Two doubles in succession enabled the Plazas to go out in front again in the seventh. With two away, Blewett's short fly into centre went for a double and then Pryde doubled down the left field foul line to score Blewett. Ellis grounded out.

The final run of the ball game came with one out in the ninth when Tucker's long drive to left which Nicholls went back for but couldn't hold, went for a circuit clout. Starr rolled to Lewis but Blewett got a triple on another short fly to centre, catching the outfielders playing deep. Pryde rolled to Junkin and there was no more scoring.

Longson Wins

TORONTO— (CP)— Bill Longson was declared winner over Bill (Whipper) Watson in a wrestling match here last night billed as a world championship match, after Referee Ernie Powers reversed his decision. Watson had been credited with a fall after 31 minutes but as he arose the referee discovered Longson's foot tangled between the ropes and immediately reversed his decision.

Watson said he would complain to the National Wrestling Association regarding the verdict.

Without practive, Sam Byrd of Redford, Mich., former outfielder of the New York Yankees, yesterday blazed around the course of the Torresdale-Frankford Country Club at Philadelphia for a five-under-par 66 to assume the lead in the initial round of the $17,500 War Bond golf tournament. In second place at this stage of the 72-hole invitation contest was Bob Hamilton, Evansville, Ind., with 68; Bud Lewis, Oreland, Pa., carded 69 for third, while Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia and Craig Wood, duration national champion, Mamaroneck, N.Y., were tied with 70's. Byron Nelson of Toledo was close behind with a par 71.

When the stewards at Suffolk Downs yesterday moved back Oak Tree Stable's Bayport from first to third place for cutting in on Seven Hills, later placed first, 150 track patrons stormed into the track and bodily removed the starting gate. The race was the last event on the card.

The six-mile cross-country race yesterday for the Army Corps at Aldershot and Windsor, N.S., resulted in a win for L.-Cpl. J. W. Bates of North Bay, Ont., who led 100 competitors to the tape in 42 minutes and 6 seconds to capture the hill-and-dale championship of Military District No. 6.

Odds ranging from 6-1 to 100-1 were quoted yesterday on 16 entries for the English Derby scheduled to be run at Newmarket on June 17. Growing Confidence ruled the early favorite at the lowest odds. Teheran was second choice at 18-2, and Garden Path figured at 7-1.

Confederation a Reality

...and Penmans Limited founded the following year!

At Confederation, the Dominion of Canada contained only four Provinces. Transportation was slow and rather difficult, especially inland. And postal service left much to be desired.

Yet in 1868 Penmans began to produce knitted products by power machinery in Canada, with the accent definitely on quality. Materials were chosen with great care for value and health protection. Every garment was expertly tailored and correctly styled for perfect fit. Fine workmanship ensured long wear and ease of laundering.

That was 76 years ago. Today Penmans still hold to their original ideal.

Bucky Walters Puts Jinx On St. Louis

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Leave it to Bucky Walters and the Cincinnati Reds will ruin the St. Louis Cardinals' dreams of a third straight National League pennant. Leave it to the home run and New York Yankees will wind up in the American League also rans.

Up to 1944 Walters had beaten St. Louis only 18 times in 42 starts but now he has handed them three straight sebacks by scores of 1-0, 2-0 and 2-1. Not until the ninth frame of last night 2-1 tilt in Cincinnati were the Cards able to break a string of 30 scoreless innings against Bucky's effective tossing. Walters thus became the first big league hurler to notch a ninth victory.

Since 1935 the Yankees have been home run kings of the Harridge loop but their weapon has been backfiring against the world champs. In 42 games only 20 Yanks have homered as to 27 by the opposition, the lates being Roy Partee's first round tripper of the season the last of the ninth yesterday to give Boston an 8-7 twilight edge.

Move Out of Cellar.

Washington pulled out of the cellar on George Myatt's triple scoring Johnny Sullivan and Milo Candini in the 11th for a 7-5 margin over Philadelphia after the A's had tied with three in the ninth.

Connie Mack's men tumbled all the way into the basement when Cleveland bunched three hits in the fifth to down the St Louis Browns 4-3 in a night game.

Shortstop Eddie Stanky, recently acquired from the Cubs, bowed in as Brooklyn shortstop to steady the Dodgers' infield in a double triumph over the Phils, 6-3 and 8-1. Les Webber. who relieved Hal Gregg in the opener and Eddie Head who went all the way in the nightcap were the winners.

Bill Voiselle grabbed his sixth victory in 13 starts as the New York Giants shaded Boston, 6-4, and Chicago rioted with eight runs in the second but had to keep pressing to trim Pittsburg 10-6.

JOE UNVEILED FOR BRITONS—Civilian Britons had their first opportunity of seeing the world's heavyweight ring champion in action when Joe Louis staged an exhibition bout for the public at Teddington, Eng. Joe, looking fighting fit, is pictured at ringside—where he was "unveiled" to the English. Prior to this, his bouts in England had been strictly for the benefit of American fighting men.

Buffalo Moves Into Top Spot

By the Associated Press.

For the sixth time in two weeks a new tenant occupies first place in the tightest International League race in years, with Buffalo having a half-game lead over Jersey City. The latter vacated when defeated twice by Montreal, last night, 8-2 and 5-2.

Outfielders Walter Chipple and Elmer (Red) Durrett were the Royal heroes, Chipple hitting a home run and driving in three runs in the opener, and Durrett getting three for three, scoring twice, batting in a run and stealing a base in the nightcap.

Newark and Toronto divided their double-header, Alex Mustaikis blanking the Bears in the opener for the Leafs, 6-0, and Floyd Bevens winning the aftermath for Newark in 13 innings, 5-4. Bevens hurled scoreless ball for eight innings, but Toronto tied the score in the ninth with a four-run rally. Joe Dwyer's single in the extra frame scored the winning run.

Buffalo won a slugfest from the Baltimore Orioles, 12-8, though outhit 16-12. Otto Denning hit his seventh homer for the Bisons and Blas Monaco hit one for the Orioles. Monaco also hit three singles. Rochester Red Wings, behind air-tight pitching by veteran Kemp Wicker, defeated Syracuse Chiefs, 5-2.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 9 — (CP). — With the big slice that Federal and Provincial taxes are taking out of the betting pool at the race tracks these days, more and more loose money is being turned in the way of the bookmakers. That is the general opinion around the ovals, and it is a logical one.

When nearly a quarter of all the money bet has to come out in taxes the bookies, who blithely operate without benefit of taxation, there's a chance to get a little more of your money back.

All of which has stirred up no end of discussion about the problem, with the suggestion that the entire book system should be "legalized" and placed on a firm foundation with licences and taxes and all the other impediments of an established business.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara suggests there is little hope of any action being taken along those lines for years to come, adding that he thinks the responsible bookies would welcome such a change, since it would allow them to come out in the open instead of continuing their present furtive methods.

Strictly ersatz:

Baseballs aren't any too easy to get these days, which makes a recent incident in the Vancouver Senior League a minor tragedy. During a game between Arrows and St. Regis, the batter sent a high infield pop fly that the shortstop camped under. But when still four or five feet above the fielder's head, the ball disintegrated, shedding its cover like a snake its skin, and the batter was safe.

Incidentally:

The R.C.M.P. have taken over saliva testing of race horses at the Vancouver tracks this summer as a result of representations by the S.P.C.A. There had been no complaint by anyone else under the old system, but with it in the hands of the Mounties, the fans probably will feel more at ease....Shepperton, Frank Schelke's husky big racer, will carry '42 pounds in his next start in the Little Saratoga at Dufferin on Saturday. And everyone is waiting to see how he will make out with the added impost. P. Fitzgerald in the Toronto Telegram predicts the weight won't stop the big fellow, but that when he finally is beaten it will be the accidents or mishaps of the racing game that do the trick.

Public Health Nurse Not Available

The scarcity of nurses shows no sign of improving, the Board of Education learned Thursday night, as the members were faced with the announcement that not a public health nurse in the graduating class of the University of Toronto School of Nursing, would be available as a school nurse here.

T. J. Carley and D. V. Canning moved that the report of the Health committee be adopted. This recommended that permission be requested from the Department to retain the services of Miss E. Morrison for the next school year.

The Property committee report, presented by the chairman, Alex Sollitt, was accepted on a motion by Mr. Canning and Mr. Carley, and placed the coal orders as follows:

Peterborough Fuel & Transfer—370 tons of screenings to fill the Collegiate and South Central school bins.

J. E. A. Fitzgerald Co. Ltd.—125 tons of screenings to fill the Prince of Wales bins; 135 tons of Red Jacket lump coal to fill Central school bin; and 15 tons of coke to fill the Park Hill school bin.

H. B. Taylor & Sons—375 tons of Red Jacket lump coal to fill the King Edward, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, King George, May's and Confederation school bins. The prices are the same as last year.

It was moved by A. Sollitt and Fred Reed that an extra class room be fitted up at Prince of Wales school at an estimated cost of $300. This was a recommendation of the Property committee.

Dr. Olive M. Rea, medical officer, reported 247 complete physical examinations for the month, with 61 parents present. Dr. S. J. Graham, dental officer, made 606 examinations, with 84 pupils treated at the school clinic and 336 fillings handled. Miss M. Jory, school nurse, made 389 class room inspections, and made 260 simple vision tests. Miss E. Morrison, school nurse, made 82 home visits and 898 classroom inspections for the month of May.

Park Hill Road school, where there are 67 pupils on the roll, headed the average attendance list for the month with 95.93 per cent. Queen Alexandra with 356 on the roll, had 95.76 per cent. attendance; King George with 448 pupils, had 93.81 per cent.; Prince of Wales with 629 pupils, 93.69 per cent.; Queen Mary with 469 pupils, 93.05 per cent.; Central with 517 pupils, 92.34 per cent and King Edward with 418 pupils, 90.80 per cent. In the seven public schools there are 2,904 on the roll and the average attendance was 2,701 or 93.26 per cent.

The Collegiate with an enrolment of 571 in the academic department reported an average attendance of 94.19 per cent. and 265 in the vocational department with an average of 93.71 per cent.

Surfeit Of Chicken

NEW YORK, June 9—(AP)—Joseph Asaro, charged with keeping chickens on the roof of his home in violation of the sanitary code, told the judge: "I had 18 chickens at first, but the neighbors began to complain. Now I've eaten six of them and I'm awfully tired of chicken. If I've got to eat the other 12 for heaven's sake give me enough time." The judge gave him 13 days to eat—or otherwise dispose of—the remaining dozen fowl.

Freedom Held Spiritual Gift

BOSTON, June 9—While holding military might essential to the victory of allied nations over the anti-Christ claims of injustice and intolerance, The Christian Science board of directors told the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, that freedom is essentially a spiritual gift "to be realized only through spiritual understanding and attainment."

Before an audience of several thousand Christian Scientists essentially local in character due to wartime restrictions upon transportation, the directors cited the universal determination to win the peace as advance evidence of a world-wide realization that "righteous victory under arms will not suffice to guarantee freedom to mankind."

Freedom from want and fear, freedom in worship and speech, the directors stated, constitute much more than a political slogan or governmental ideology, "for our great Way-shower, Christ Jesus, proclaimed centuries ago that freedom accords with God's will and law; furthermore he gave simple, clear direction for the attainment of full freedom for the individual, and through the individual for all humanity.

In other words, although it is desirable, yes, it is necessary, that the allied nations win the war against the anti-Christ claims of human will and personal domination, of greed, cruelty, injustice and intolerance, yet that righteous victory under arms will not suffice to guarantee freedom to mankind." That the world is coming to realize this fact was seen by the directors in the careful consideration being given throughout the world to winning the peace, "that is, making world peace so secure that other wars will be precluded. Let our prayers for our dear ones who are in service, our prayers for our church, our nation, and for all mankind, find consistent expression in our everyday lives. Let us see that the triumph of Truth over error with us is a sure sign that the victory of good over all evil is assured, and that 'the kingdom of God is at hand'."

Larger Parishes Experimented With

Reference to the larger parish experiment just inaugurated in the area north, west and east of Bancroft, which will be under the direct supervision of Rev. R. W. McLauchlin of Bancroft, was made by Rev. J. I. MacKay, B.A., B.D., Toronto, speaking at the Quinte Conference Thursday night. He said that Boyd Beckel, lay minister at Boulter, and Miss Coultes, missionary nurse at Maynooth, would cooperate in the Bancroft experiment.

Speaking in connection with the report of the Conference Home Mission Committee, Mr. MacKay made special mention of the school for lay minister held in Belleville in Easter Week, which he termed "very successful." Another successful experiment had been a series of "rural life conferences" held at Renfrew, Delta, Belleville and Orono, with Dr. Thomas Tripp of New York as special leader.

Mr. MacKay paid tribute to the fine body of ministers, missionaries and lay workers who are manning Home Mission charges in very difficult areas.

Armored Battle Rages In France

By COLLIN WILLS
Distributed By The Canadian Press

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN FRANCE, June 7.—(Delayed).—Up at the front while the infantry engages the enemy on a half-dozen sectors in a confused but purposeful patterns a great armored battle goes on for the last ridge before this target town and for the town itself.

"I was up there late yesterday. Our tanks were clearly visible along the near side of the ridge. Our guns were hidden in copses. Our infantry, in little sections in Indian file, was moving up in support.

On the other side of the ridge were Panzers and somewhere out of sight anti-tank guns. Six British tanks that had been put out of action were strewn about on the nearer slopes. A tank battle was in full fury then.

On the way back here I passed a steady stream of British armor, rolling up so rapidly that roads and villages were wrapped in a dust storm.

Villagers lined the roadside to watch and cheer.

These hungry French folk had nothing to give the passing tankmen except gratitude. Grinning tankmen flung out chocolate, cigarettes and sweets. And somehow within a few hours of the landing every French boy had a British badge on his beret and every girl one on her blouse.

62,000 Persons Naturalized Since War Began

VANCOUVER, June 9 —(CP) — More than 62,000 persons, including almost 11,000 former residents of the United States, have become naturalized Canadians since the outbreak of war, War Services Minister LaFleche said today.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Dominion convention of the Canadian Legion here, Maj.-Gen. LaFleche said many of the descendents of people who came to Canada from European countries were already proving their love for the Dominion in the ranks of the Armed Forces.

"I wonder would it surprise you to know that we could assemble perhaps more than a division of our Armed Forces who speak a Slav language fluently, and about 12,000 of them speak Ukrainian," Gen. LaFleche said. "We have over 9,000 speaking German, and nearly 2,800 speaking Italian.

"It is but natural that we should find their names in our lists of gallantry awards and in our lists of casualties. Ten per cent. of those killed in action are non-Anglo-Saxon and non-French."

FO. Roy Tranter Is Killed Invasion Day

Word was received Thursday that Flying Officer Roy Hudson Tranter, 206 McGill Street, was killed in action June 6, "D" Day. The brief official announcement was received by the members of his family and later by many of the Peterborough friends of his youth in the midst of the anxieties and hopes of the Allied invasion of the Norman coast of France.

FO. Tranter joined the R. C. A. F. in July 1942, graduating as a navigator on July 6th last year, and was immediately commissioned as a pilot officer. He arrived overseas in August and in March this year was promoted to the rank of Flying Officer.

Roy Tranter was born here in 1913 and was graduated from the Collegiate Institute, Normal School and Business College. Prior to his enlisting he was employed in the cost department of the Canadian General Electric Company. He was a member of Park Street Baptist Church, and was keenly interested in various sports, having played rugby with the Collegiate teams and later in the Intermediate O. R. F. U. He excelled in tennis, was champion of the Kawartha Club for several years and had other victories to his credit.

In all these well rounded interests of his work and athletics, his church and social activities Roy Tranter was widely known and esteemed as an outstanding young man and promising citizen of his native Peterborough. His final action was typical of his character, his enlistment in the Royal Canadian Air Force. His many friends in this community were saddened yesterday by the news of his death presumably in the air over the successful landing on the coast of France.

FO. Tranter is survived by his wife, formerly Ann Wicher, Campbellford, and two sons, David, three and Bryan, thirteen months; also by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tranter, 607 Chamberlain Street; two sisters, Mrs. Vivian S. Milburn, Toronto and Mrs. R. N. Hamilton, Peterborough; and by three brothers, Wilton B. Tranter and Rev. George H. Tranter, both of Toronto and Herbert W. Tranter of Peterborough.

Garden Supplies Total $50 For War Victims

All fruits of the earth in due season, whether they are edible or not, speak of the goodness of an Almighty Creator for the benefit of all humanity, this being recognized from the earliest of times in the history of mankind, and symbolized by the offering of the first-fruits in acknowledgement of this potent fact, without which the world would be most poor indeed.

To utilize them as a means of rendering assistance to that portion of the human family who suffer through no fault of their own would thus seem a most appropriate thing, and during the past few weeks such has been the case by the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, for the stall made available at the Saturday morning's markets has again been in operation, the entire offerings for sale being of this nature, and from which it is now able to report a worth-while net return which now is getting very close to the $50.00 mark.

Last Saturday, two senior girls, Doreen Ferguson and JoyceMein from Confederation School gave their services as sales clerks, the bulk of the offerings being from the secretary of the fund's own garden, and this with some assistance from Mrs. J. A. Bertram whose husbanr is serving overseas, who supplied some bunches of rhubarb, netted a total of $5.41, giving the whole of the operations so far this season a return of $49.81 to the fund.

This week-end will see the stall operated by John E. Parker of Norwood and his daughter Dorothy, and will have a varied list of garden products for sale, among which will be some Peter Pan Pea seed, a variety very much favoured in western Ontario, and hard to procure hereabouts. These have been donated by Canon W. P. Robertson, and should find a ready sale since they grow but 12 inches in height, and the pods are much larger than any other dwarf variety, and the flavor of their product is amongst the finest for this type of vegetable.

To-day's receipts are also marked by gifts from two groups who really come into the class of regular contributors, donations having appeared at regular intervals from them both.

The St. David's Welsh Society have done much good work on behalf of the sufferers from enemy air raids over Britain, they having given on quite a number of occasions through the local and district fund, in addition to which they have also sent money and goods direct to help the people in their native Wales. Today's gift of $5.00 was received through Mrs. M. Pakenham, their treasurer.

Then the young ladies in the ready-to-wear dept. at the C. D. S. Store, who long ago initiated some sort of a penalty box by which to help the fund along, summoned the secretary of the fund to another collection from it, and the sum of $5.50 represents its largest gift at any one time, but no information was obtainable as to whether they had been over indulgent in the particular infraction which caused the penalty to be inflicted.

Two other women were appointed to the staff with jobs designated. Miss Mary Faulkner, at present teaching in a Hamilton kindergarten, is assigned to the Prince of Wales kindergarten at a salary of $1,150, plus cost of living bonus.

The second appointment was Miss Constance McKelvie of Campbellford. Although she has only been teaching for two years, she was well recommended. In addition to her other training she spent one year at MacDonald Institute, Guelph, and has been doing some home economics teaching. She was taken on at a salary of $1,050, and will act as supply teacher and possibly home economics assistant.

The list was accepted as recommended on a motion by T. J. Carley and D. V. Canning.

On a motion of Alex Sollitt and Mr. Carley, the resignation of Miss Robena J. Semple, office assistant at the Board of Education, was accepted. Her service terminates September 1 and it was decided to give her three weeks pay at that time in lieu of a vacation. The secretary, J. Huggins, was also authorized to advertise for an assistant, duties to commence immediately.

Four resignations were accepted by the Board during the evening. They were Miss Marion Wray, Miss Beryl Franks, Arnold Noftall and Miss Eileen Sellon. This was on motions by D. V. Canning and T. J. Carley.

Reward Pupils

A motion by Mr. Carley and Fred Reed carried that $10 be assigned to each of the nine entrance pupils in the public schools being chosen as the best all round student of the year in their class. The money will be used for high school books. The selection will be made on the average of the term record and the teacher's final examinations.

It was also decided on a motion by Mr. Sollitt and Mrs. F. Harris, that two Collegiate students, Ronald Watson and Gerald Davis, who have been doing some of the instruction in the defense classes be paid $25 each for their work. A letter will also be sent to Major Vincent Eastwood of the Armouries, thanking him for loaning two of his staff to instruct in signals.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the secretary, J. Huggins, presented a report of the Urban School Trustees Convention held in the middle of May. He reviewed delegates' activities and touched briefly on speeches dealing with vocational guidance, soldier rehabilitation, and the importance of proper painting and lighting in the schools. He explained that there were 48 resolutions and members are to receive copies of these.

Labor Shortage Critical On Farms

TORONTO, June 9—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy said today Ontario farmers are confronted with the most critical situation of the war and appealed to secondary school students to volunteer for farm duty.

"With the possible exception of wheat, the so-called surpluses of food products have all disappeared and difficulty is being experienced in maintaining even moderate stockpiles of commodities essential to our wartime acquirements," he said.

Students are enrolled in about 50 Ontario farm service force camps in the province, he said, but more are needed to plant, cultivate and harvest the crops.

A. Maclaren, director of the force, said 2,000 boys and 500 girls are needed.

Restored Altar Is Dedicated

St. Mark's (Anglican) Church, Otonabee, was the setting on Wednesday afternoon of a joint Dedication and Confirmation service, conducted by His Grace the Rt. Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto. The Choir of St. George's Anglican Church supplied the music for the service, with Edgar Moore at the organ. Before the service commenced, Rev. E. C. Moore, rector, welcomed the Archbishop and Mrs. Owen to St. Mark's. The dedication service, taken by the Archbishop, was short, but very impressive service, after which the Confirmation took place.

In speaking to the congregation the Archbishop commented on "Old St. Mark's, the little church set in the midst of a beautiful countryside." "I am a great believer of the country church, and I want to say to you who live in this neighborhood we value your service. Only last week at the Synod gathering in Toronto, our country churches were brought very much into the limelight, so much can be said about them. This restored altar, is a visible sign of your love for Christ and His church.

Elimination Of Private Control And Profit From Liquor Traffic Is Being Suggested

"Perhaps the time has come to consider the elimination of private control and private profit from the liquor traffic." said Rev. John Coburn, D.D., Toronto, assistant secretary of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada, in his address to the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Church Thursday afternoon.

Nationalization of the liquor traffic, Dr. Coburn said, obviously involved dangers, but one of the greatest tolls upon the church and "our citizenship" was the huge business with its tentacles spread in every direction, and determined to lay hold of the youth of Canada.

"This is probably the last time I shall address this Conference in my official capacity," Dr. Coburn said, referring to his approaching superannuation. "I leave a challenge to prayer and courage on the part of every man and woman that the forces of evil may be overthrown."

Suggest Closing Pool Rooms For Duration

The closing of pool rooms throughout Canada for the duration of the war was proposed by federal authorities at a recent meeting of the local Employment Advisory Committee as a means of utilizing man-time and man-power that appear to be going to waste in such resorts instead of being applied to the alarming needs of industry.

Discussion of the proposal elicited the comment that "pool rooms and the like" cannot be regarded as necessary in an extremely serious wartime economy of the nation, with a national scarcity of labor. It was also said that these places contribute toward absenteeism from work and harbor men who refuse to be steadily employed at this time when their help is so greatly required.

The members of the local Employment Advisory Committee are: D. G. H. Melton, chairman; William S. Johnson, representing employees; Frank C. Paterson, representing agriculture; George Gimblett, representing War Veterans; Ian F. McRae, representing employers; Dr. Lorna C. Thomas, representing the women of the community; Fred E. Johnston, representing education; and Lou A. Grant, secretary.

The pool room recommendation to the federal authorities was unanimously passed.

The committee also affirmed that it viewed with alarm the growing scarcity of men for essenital industry and felt that a drastic "weeding out" among men who have been retained in military training establishments throughout Canada, and who are not likely to be used in the active army overseas.

"We urge that such men be released and returned to civilian life for the reason that they will assist in relieving the acute labor shortage," was the substance of a resolution directing attention to such sources of man-pawer.

Another proposal suggested that arrangements be made to present direct appeals for help for the local canning industry, approaching a season of accelerated production, especially to students of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, St. Peter's High School, and other high schools in the district, and also to students of the Normal School.

Another resolution urged that as an aid to essential industry across the country the authorities at Ottawa implement arrangements to speed up the release of men awaiting discharge from the army; and also for the release of certain men from the Home Defense Army either permanently or for extended periods.

At the peak of the canning season, the local industry will require up to ninety men or youths and women. It was said that part time workers would be welcomed for the packing of peas and tomatoes, and that men and women who might have some other work could be used on evening shifts from 6 p.m. to 10 or 11 p.m.

Cut Off Liquor For 3 Days

Closing of beverage rooms and liquor dispensaries for three days in the expected celebration of the victory for which the Canadian people are now asking the favor of God was recommended to the Prime Minister of Canada and the Premier of Ontario in the adopted report of the committee on Social Service and Evangelism which was presented to the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church by Rev. W. A. Whattam, Toronto, Thursday afternoon.

The hope was expressed that the people of this country should maintain in the time of victory the attitude of prayer and invocation which has been so general during the recent weeks of the approach of the invasion and its climax a few days ago.

The report warmly commended the spirit of trust in God during these weeks and in the progress of the war, and recommended that wherever possible "our people should be gathered together in prayer" in asking divine help for our cause and our men in battle.

Need 80 Millions

SYDNEY, N.S., June 9—(CP). —Post-war plans for Nova Scotia involve an expenditure of $80,000,000, for which the Nova Scotia Government is counting on the Federal Government for at least 50 per cent., Premier A. S. MacMillan declared here last night.

The Premier said the Dominion Government should take care of returned men. His government was willing to provide for those at present in war industries.

Beverage Room Battle Aired In Court

As the result of a recent episode in the beverage room of the Grand Hotel, Pte. Harold Miller of Toronto was tried before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court this morning on a charge of having assaulted Gordon Post, a beverage room waiter, occasioning actual bodily harm.

Miller was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair, while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

Post, his right arm in a sling, testified that there had been some trouble in the beverage room on the night in question because beer had been cut off from one table because the occupants were noisy. Later he and another waiter had to push a number of men outside the side door of the room at closing time and witness declared that Miller, who was just outside the door, had grabbed him by the arm and pulled him outside.

"I fell down and he fell on me and twisted my arm around his body. I still haven't any use of it," said the witness.

Dr. Robert J. Young, who had been called to the hotel after the fracas, said that he found Post suffering from shock and an injured arm. The chief injury, he said, was a badly sprained right elbow. Post would be incapacitated for at least a month, Dr. Young said.

Frank O'Connor, who said he was in the beverage room of the Grand earlier in the evening at a table with Miller, said that the latter said to his companions: "It is pretty quiet here. What do you say if we start something?"

John Cartwright, another beverage room waiter, told the court that Miller had grabbed Post by the arm, pulled him outside, threw him down and fell on top of him.

Pte. Lorne McCartney, first defence witness, said there had been a brawl at the door and that he himself had been kicked by Cartwright. Pte. Harold Miller, he said, had been in the ladies' beverage room, but had come to the door of the men's room when the argument started. Witness said that he did not see Miller touch Post nor did he see the waiter on the ground.

Pte. William Miller, brother of the accused, also testified that McCartney had been kicked by Cartwright. Miller swore that he did not see his brother touch Post in any way.

Miller himself in the witness box said that word had come to him that his brother and another soldier were in a fight with two big waiters and he had rushed from the ladies' beverage room into the men's room.

"I started to push through the door to where the fight was, and I ran into Post and knocked him down," said Miller. "I hurt my own arm when we fell."

Miller said that he had been drinking quite a lot that night.

At this stage the case was enlarged until Saturday morning.

RED CROSS BLOOD DONOR CLINC

WILL BE CLOSED ALL THE MONTH OF JULY

The Blood Donor work was started approximately 3½ years ago, with a quota of 2,000 donors per week for Canada, of which our share in Ontario was 1,200. Commencing April 1, 1944, the quota per week for Canada was 20,000, with 12,000 per week for Ontario.

With this tremendous increase in the quantity of blood, the Connaught Laboratories' facilities have been worked to over-capacity, and the result is that they cannot carry on without reorganization of both staff and equipment. They have undertaken to do this work during the month of July.

It is possible that we may, later on, again have to accept increased quotas. This can only be managed by the change in the laboratory set-up to provide accommodation for an increase.

Board Lauds War Work Of PCVS Students

The splendid war effort of the students of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational Training School in raising $10,929 during the school year, was praised by the principal, C. S. Browne, to members of the Board of Education at their meeting Thursday night.

The largest amount was raised in War Savings stamps and certificates. The total from the beginning of the school year until June 1, was $8,929. This includes $6,856 since January 1. The additional $2,000 was collected for general war work and the funds were divided approximately as follows: $800 for the Navy; $100 each for the Red Cross; Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund; Chinese and Greek War Relief Funds; $300 for British War Victims; $260 for Christmas boxes and $200 for a piano for the corvette Peterborough.

There are only 950 pupils. On a recent tour of inspection of Ottawa Schools, Mr. Browne found that one Collegiate with 1,310 students had difficulty in meeting the previous year's objective with $6,700. Since the beginning of the year, the students have been raising their quota of the Hurricane Bomber Fund in War Savings stamps. Their allotment was $5,000 and they have subscribed to date $6,856.

After hearing this report, it was moved by T. J. Carley and Fred Reed that a letter of appreciation and commendation at the splendid support of the war effort, be forwarded to the Students Council.

Special Locker Locks

In discussing his Ottawa visit, Mr. Browne told the Board that in many ways he found the system in use at this school the equal of those there. But one improvement impressed him greatly and he recommended that the Board consider it. The locker system has not been satisfactory at the Collegiate, because many of the lockers, in spite of being locked, can be opened by a strong hand. A special combination padlock is issued to students when they enter the Ottawa schools at a cost of 75 cents and does away with the difficulty. The matter was referred to the Property Committee.

At the present time, according to Collegiate records, 44 ex-students have been killed on active service. The principal, when boys are reported missing or killed writes a letter of sympathy on behalf of the school and the students to the bereaved family. Mr. Browne suggested that the Board of Education might like to keep a record of the names and to send a similar letter on their own behalf. A motion to this effect by Mrs. F. Harris and Mrs. R. Parnall had unanimous support.

The school library which has been overhauled in the past year has made important progress, the principal declared. From October 4 to June 1, 4,650 books were circulated, of which 1,373 were fiction and 3,277 non fiction. This averaged about 5 books read by every student. All the books had been catalogued and some of those in the class rooms. There are 582 pictures for reference and 677 clippings which have been collected since August 1943. It was announced that 274 books have been purchased with many others still on order.

The Board was reminded that if no action was taken, the schools would reopen on September 5. After some consideration it was decided to let the matter stand and schools will begin again on that date.

Ban On Travel

LONDON, June 9 (CP) — The German-controlled Vichy radio announced a ban on motor traffic beginning at 3 p.m. today in the departments of Haute-Loire, Cantal, Allier and Puy-de-Dome and said anyone caught in a motor vehicle in that area of Southern France would be shot on sight.

These departments, all west of the Rhone river, stretch generally northwestward from Marseille toward the Normandy battle area.

Bay Of Quinte Conference Adopts Resolution Of Loyalty To Crown

A resolution of loyalty and duty to His Majesty King George VI. was adopted by the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church at the opening of its afternoon session on Thursday at Trinity United Church. It was read by Rev. A. D. Cornett, M.A., B.D., O.B.E., of Oshawa, and was passed by a standing vote, and the clerk was instructed to forward it to the Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada, for transmission to the King.

The Notional Anthem was sung and a special prayer offered by the Rev. Dr. George A. Brown, M.A., Kingston.

The test of the resolution follows:

"May it please Your Majesty:

"We, the ministers and lay representatives of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada, assembled in annual session, desire to place on record and to present to Your Majesty, our loyal homage and humble duty.

"On this date that is usually observed in celebration of Your Majesty's birthday we desire to express to Almighty God our gratitude that in His gracious providence you have been sustained in health and strength, and have been enabled to exercise your sovereignty of the British Empire during these strenuous days of world conflict. Your noble example of courage and self-sacrificing devotion to duty has been a source of inspiration to all your subjects.

"We have been greatly encouraged by Your Majesty's message, broadcast on June 6, to which our Conference listened with deep emotion at its opening session.

"We are profoundly conscious of the debt we owe to the men of the armed forces of the Allied Nations who are at this very moment risking and sacrificing their lives in the long awaited effort to liberate Europe from Nazi tyranny. Our earnest hope is that we may cherish more sincerely the freedom which we enjoy in the British Empire as we realize what it is costing in human life to maintain.

"We urge our people to continue their fidelity to the British Throne and their devotion to our righteous cause, looking forward in confident faith to victory and to peace.

"We hereby affirm our humble loyalty to our gracious Sovereign, and pray for God's blessing to rest upon him in all his service to the Empire."

Missionary and Maintenance.

Rev. A. D. Cornett presented the report of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee on Thursday afternoon. All seven Presbyteries showed increases for 1943, totalling $9,463. A plan for holding Presbytery field days at which laymen would occupy the pulpits and speak on missionary support was adopted.

R. F. Downey, Peterborough, told of successful methods of missionary promotion at Trinity Church, especially during the last five years and Elvin H. Brown of Port Hope gave a similar review of effectual efforts.

Rev. Dr. Charles Endicott, secretary of Missionary and Maintenance, Toronto, who is retiring by superannuation from office next fall and will go to Saskatoon to live, spoke briefly in probably a valedictory to the Conference.

"There is one note which we must get into the United Church, and that is a note of confidence and victory," Dr. Endicott said. "The day has arrived when we should believe more deeply in the power of God and go out determined by His grace to do greater things. I wish to express appreciation of the leadership of Dr. George Easton for the splendid work accomplished in his department. I thank this Conference for all the support I have received, and I suggest that you can do a great deal better."

Rev. A. D. Cornett was appointed to assume the duties of acting convener of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee, but as a token of appreciation and affection and in the hope of his recovery, Rev. Dr. Easton was retained in the position of convener in which he has been so active and successful.

Report from W.M.S.

Mrs. F. W. K. Harris of Peterbodough addressed the Conference on the work of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church, which has missionaries in every part of Canada and Newfoundland, and 61 in overseas fields. The latter number represents only half strength because of war conditions.

The Bay of Quinte Conference has two women workers doing notable work. One is in north Frontenac and the other in north Hastings where they do social service work and preach regularly.

Pension Fund Report

The session Thursday morning closed with the report of the Pension Fund Committee. Interest was keen because the forthcoming General Council will enact new legislation changing the method of raising its funds to one of assessment of pastoral charges and ministers.

Elmer Davis of Kingston took an active part in a general discussion and appealed for the strengthening of the fund by laymen. "I believe our pension fund is one of the grandest evidences of brotherhood we have in the Church," Mr. Davis said.

Approval was given to a method known as the Middlesex plan by which $230,000 is included in the Church budget and $175,000 is assessed on charges, in addition to the amount paid by ministers. Among the recommendations to the General Council was one making the pensions of ministers deductible at the source, that is by church treasurers.

Lay Banquet

The dinner under the auspices of the Lay Association of the Conference was held at George Street United Church Thursday evening, and was so largely attended that it overflowed to Sunday School room. The dinner was served by the ladies of the church. J. W. Kitchen, Smiths Falls, president of the Lay Association, was chairman of the dinner. He pointed out that the Association provided each year for the devotional speaker of the Conference and also the speaker of the annual dinner, on this occasion, respectively, Dr. J. W. Gildey of Springfield, Mass., and Wilson McDonald, Canadian poet.

Ralston Warns Bad News Likely To Come

OTTAWA, June 9 — (CP). — The Commons yesterday received with noisy desk-thumping a report that Canadian invasion forces were as far forward as any other Allied land troops and then sat in sober silence to hear of heavy fighting in one identified sector in which casualties might be considerable.

Defence Minister Ralston, outlining the general situation, said reports showed that good progress was being made with casualties "moderate."

He added that the most precarious phase of the operation was passed and "the outstanding fact is that they (the Canadians) have gained solid ground and are pushing forward."

Then he warned against "being lulled into a sense of false security because this first vital phase has succeeded more quickly and with less cost than we dared expect."

He added: "We must always be prepared for bad news and perhaps shocking news."

Lauds News Services.

Col. Ralston paid tribute to the work of the news agencies, including the Canadian Press and the Associated Press, and the war correspondents. He said Canada was "extremely well served" by war dispatches.

He continued:

"The press and radio provide such speedy facilities that very seldom do we at Headquarters have news by way of situational reports or reports from commanders which are earlier in point of time than what is gained from the press or radio."

He said that for this reason he wanted to tell the House there was "very little point" in his making invasion reports to the House "unless there was some detail affecting particularly Canadian interests which are not carried by the press or radio and which we felt might be anonuced without prejudice to security."

He urged that encouragement be given the men with letters and messages, "unfailing interest" and "our fervent prayers."

ASSIGNED TO INVASION...

STEWART — MUNRO — HUNTER

D-Day : : : the greatest armada of all time slips through the night : : : ships, men, guns, tanks.

Zero-hour : : : air-cover screams down : : : naval guns roar : : : assault craft grind on shale : : : the attack : : : the landing : : : INVASION!

The vital flash hits the desk of the Canadian Press London Bureau, is instantly on its way to the people of Canada. The story of the invasion is under way.

DESJARDINS

Through almost five years of war, Canada's newspapers have built up the overseas staff of The Canadian Press, their news-handling co-operative. Their duty to the waiting folks at home grew with Canada's armed might. The London staff of five became 14.

Through CP, which covers the world for Canada, come the invasion reports of Reuters, the Empire agency, and The Associated Press, world-wide American news agency. Because even these were not enough, CP trained Canadians to cover Canada at war.

For D-Day, the invasion team grew to five men, each battle-tested in his job. Heading them is Ross Munro, the only Canadian who went to Spitsbergen, Dieppe, North Africa, Sicily, Italy. With him for the drive into Europe is Bill Stewart, veteran of the 1st Division's fight through Sicily and Italy to Ortona.

NICKLESON

Covering Canada's share in the air assault is Louis Hunter, ace air correspondent and Mediterranean veteran. With the Royal Canadian Navy, on its greatest of all convoy jobs, is Allan Nickleson, for two years war correspondent from Belfast to the Med.

Assigned to the French-Canadian troops he has covered through Sicily and Italy is Maurice Desjardins, who represents CP's French-language newspapers.

These five war correspondents for years have written for the home folks the stories of fighting Canadians in five campaigns. They have trained with the troops, lived with them and have gone into battle with them. They know their business, they know the dangers. They're proud of their job—Assigned to Invasion.

Wedding Day Is End of Long Dream

Since the beginning of time, every girl has dreamed of her wedding day, pictured herself in a flowing gown, floating down the aisle, surrounded by admiring friends, the pomp and beauty of an elaborate ceremony. Lucky is the girl if all these dreams can be fulfilled. But even when circumstances do not permit of everything wished for, the wedding can still be beautiful—a memory to cherish through the years.

Nowadays when so many weddings are taking place when the young man in service has a leave, the simple, less elaborate, but well-appointed style of wedding is in order. If a "home" wedding is planned, the number of guests will be smaller than for a church wedding and it is wise to choose the living room with a group of windows or a fireplace in front of which the ceremony will take place. A really lovely effect can be created with palms and flowers, artistically arranged to form an improvised altar. It is necessary to provide chairs for the older guests, but the others are expected to stand.

The groom and best man come into the room shortly before the wedding march is started, while the bride, her father and attendants start down the stairs from the second floor when the music starts. When the wedding is over, the bride and groom simply turn to face their guests. A wedding thus planned and carried out will very nicely replace a church wedding.

Should the family want a more formal church wedding, there are naturally more details to be cared for. Plan them well in advance, so there is no confusion. Matters left to the last minute tend to worry girls and they do want to look their best of thier wedding day.

Bale Contents For Mission Shown At Tea

Contents of a bale, to be sent to Labrador, were displayed at the Grenfell Mission Tea, Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. G. R. Langley, Burnham street. Miss Helen Bell, Anson street, donated two scrapbooks, filled with brightly colored pictures, which will delight children in far-off Labrador. Several skeins of wool were donated by Miss Margaret Harrison, Miss Sarkah Miller and Mrs. Lora Taylor, Anson street. Members are planning to pack the bale on June 13 at Grafton's store, and donations may be left there, and donations may be with the packing will be most welcome.

Mrs. S. D. Carver, president, and Mrs. G. R. Langley, received the guests.

Premier S. Garson Warns Finances Need Stabilizing

TORONTO, June 9—(CP)—Each Canadian province must have a strong and sound credit in order to discharge provincial post-war responsibility, Premier Stuart S. Garson of Manitoba said here today in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association.

In a speech calling for reorganization of Dominion-Provincial financial powers, the Premier declared post-war plans "are useless unless they can be put into effect and . . . responsibility for carrying into effect a substantial share of any post-war program rests upon the provinces."

"Each province will have a strong and sound credit . . .. and revenue resources much larger than they have had in the past," he said.

He estimated cost of the Marsh Social Security scheme, implementation of the Canadian-Newfoundland Association educational report and of the first Health Insurance proposals would increase Manitoba's budget more than $15,000,000 annually.

"It is clear that in some of the most vital parts of our post-war activity some of the provinces—probably a majority of them—will have the right to do things but not the ability to pay for them. while the Dominion will be able to pay but will not have the right to do them."

For at least a quarter of a century, he said, the Federal Minister of Finance has had a choice between two bad alternatives.

If he got his revenues from progressive direct taxation, he had to invade the provinces only field and run the risk of seriously impairing the finances of the provinces. If he adopted the alternative course he had to rely on regressive indirect taxes which were economically harmful to business and employment.

"We should not indirectly force socialism upon the provinces by leaving them with heavy responsibilities and revenues inadequate to support such responsibilities," he said.

Labor Board Opposes Railway Proposal

Sudden and unpredictable matters may develop, from the blue, bringing much innovation into static affairs. It is a time to push for novelty and originality, although with proper restraints of the impulses and emotions. Make friends and seek favors.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of novelty, innovation, the strange, unique and probably glamorous, with change, travel, new and surprising denouements. Strange and dramatic experiences are probable, with new friends and interests, of magnitude and importance on the future career.

DOROTHY DIX . . .

MOTHERS' WORK NEVER ENDS

Bachelors Critical of Wives Should Substitute in Home To Learn About Effort Expended.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I work only five days a week so I am at home two full days, and this gives me the opportunity to observe not only my sister, with whom I room, but the women of the neighborhood doing their daily duties. I see little signs of the hardships of which they complain. They have washing machines, sweepers and other labor-saving devices and their lives are far easier than they were in my mother's time. Girls do not marry with the intention of staying at home any more than they can help. They always want to go somewhere.

I am 29 years old and have learned the lessons of life by observing others, and I believe that I will cultivate my "sorrow" before I marry instead of afterwards. There is little that is enticing in the present-day marriage for a man who will study it at first hand.

'NUF SAID

Man Should Not Marry

ANSWER—Well, if you are going to make the kind of a husband that your letter indicates, I hope you will refrain from matrimony for the girl's sake as well as your own. Evidently you still belong to the old school of thought on the subject that pictures a wife as a household drudge and nothing else. You seem to begrudge women even the tools of their trade that make their work easier, yet I wonder if you would like to do without all of the labor-saving devices that you use in your work? How would you like to pound things laboriously with a hammer instead of touching a button and having an electrical hammer do it for you? How would you like to sweat and groan under heavy loads instead of pulling a lever and have a crane save your back?

You say you have two days off a week in which you have nothing to do but observe how trifling women are. When you were making these observations, did you notice any mothers with children and houses to take care of who knocked off work two days every week and did nothing but loaf? No wife and mother who has to do her own housework and her own baby-tending has any free time for herself.

The old proverb says that one half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives. It is a pity that all the bachelors and the men who are so critical of wives and mothers can't substitute for them now and then and find out how much work and thought it takes to keep a family comfortable.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a senior in high school and have gone with a boy, who is now in the service, for almost four years. When he came home on leave we were secretly married. My mother has always been opposed to my even thinking of marriage because of her failure in marriage, and she thinks mine will not be a success, either.

I love my mother very much and do not want to hurt her, but now my husband is coming back to this country and he wants me to come and live with him while he is taking some more training. What shall I do about it?

IRMA.

Mother's Experiences May Help Daughter

ANSWER — Tell your mother about your husband and your marriage, as you should have done in the first place. The longer you keep your secret from her, the more she will resent it.

She is altogether in the wrong in trying to keep you from marrying. Because she made a failure of her marriage is no reason you should do the same thing. On the contrary, her experience may teach you how to get along with a husband.

LOS ANGELES, June 9 — (CP) — Col. Robert L. (Scotty) Scott, veteran of the China Air War, yesterday told of Flying Tiger subterfuges used to fool the Japs.

Gen. Claire Channault's 23rd fighter group, he told a civic luncheon gathering, used to "paint the noses of our ships orange in the morning, white just before noon, red in the afternoon, and yellow just before dusk. We got the great satisfaction out of hearing Tokyo said we had been exaggerating—that we had only 300 airplanes in that theatre. The total American Air Force on that field was 16 fighters.

For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

Those who loved her in life sincerely,
Still love her in death just the same.

the program including George Coleman who sang the aria, "Arm, Arm Ye Brave" from Judas Maccabeus, and a hymnal encore, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Renaud.

E. L. Fraser of Trenton, a past president of the Lay Association, introduced Mr. MacDonald as well known in literary circles in both Canada and the United States, and responsible for the founding of the Poetry Society of Canada of which he was president for some years. Mr. Fraser also congratulated Mr. MacDonald on his recent metrical setting of many passages from the Bible.

"If you do not love poetry," said Mr. MacDonald, "there is something wrong in your life—you are not in tune with the Infinite Rhythm. The fault may be in yourself or in the wrong poetry you are reading." Present day taste seemed a decadent lapse from finer standards as indicated by the change in public appreciation from Elgar to "swing" in music, from Rodin to Epstein in sculputre, from Browning to the esoteric vagaries of Gertrude Stein.

Mr. MacDonald said he had found less appreciation of poetry in the large centres of population than in the open spaces of the west where large audiences, including cowboys, attended his readings. The only group he had failed to reach were bridge-playing women, not women who played bridge, but women who could live so much with the game that even the beauties of Muskoka went unobserved.

After referring to the ten years of work required for his Bible metrical works, Mr. MacDonald declared that many stories in the Bible were misunderstood because they were poems like the Song of Creation and the Fall of Man.

In the second part of his address, the poet read from his Biblical works: "The Song of Nehmiah," "Jacob Was The Apple of His Eye," a favorite with high school students; "The Mountain Skipped Like Lambs." Reading from Job which he said still stood after all the ages as the supreme human drama, full of glory and passion. Jesus was the Supreme Poet, Mr. MacDonald said, as instanced by "Consider the Lillies." This part of his readings concluded with his metrical version of The Lord's Prayer. His lecture concluded with a poem embodying his religion including the lines:

"When at the end of the day I look at His face
The whole wide-world is a God-filled place."

In a vote of appreciation to the lecturer, Elmer Davis of Kingston said he had never felt so inadequate of reply. "Mr. MacDonald has opened to us tonight new things we can appreciate and widen our concepts, particularly in his poetical versions of Holy Writ."

Quaker Lassies Bow To Lock Works

Lock Works girls won their first victory in organized ball last night when the triumphed over the Quaker lassies 15 to 12 in a high-scoring game at the Bowl.

The winners had to come from a long way behind to turn the trick. The Quakers staged an assault in the early innings that made it look as if the Lock Works were in for a neat shellacking. As a matter of fact at the end of the fourth inning the Porridge team was in front 11 to 1 and sitting comfortably in the driver's seat.

Then the Lock Works began to roll. They chased in five runs in the fifth and from then on made every post a winning one. At the end of the seventh they had the score tied at 11-11.

The winners opened the eighth by sending a run across but Quakers scored one themselves to tie up the game again.

Then Lock Works came through in the ninth and that was the ball game for Quakers went out in order in their half.

Ruth Undergoes Knee Operation

NEW YORK, June 9—(AP)—Babe Ruth, 50, may be back in baseball as a pinch-hitter before the season is over. The Bambino is entering a hospital today for a knee operation.

Jack Schaefer, a New York hotel man acting in an advisory capacity to Ruth, said: "The Babe was telling me he could sure hit the pitching being served this year. If this operation fixed up his legs he'll want to get into the game, not as a regular player, but as a pinch-hitter."

"And don't think," Schaefer said, "the managers aren't interested in him. I'll name four who are interested right now. There's Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics; Steve O'Neil, of the Detroit Tigers; Jimmy Dykes, of the Chicago White Sox; and Clark Griffith, of the Washington Senators."

The Sultan of Swat said for publication, however, "I haven't given a thought to playing again."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

LEARN BRIDGE FAST

17—Overcalling Opponents

AFTER AN opponent has opened the bidding, you may put your side in it by any one of the following moves:

1. A minimum bid of a new suit.
2. A double (called "informatory" or "takeout" double if you have not heard from your partner.)
3. A bid of "one more than necessary" in a new suit.
4. A bid of No Trumps.
5. A higher bid than "one more than necessary" in a new suit.
6. A bid of the opponent's suit.

To be in line with advanced players, No. 1, an overcall in a new suit, requires playing tricks within about two of the number bid for if you are vulnerable, within three if not vulnerable, the high card strength being of no fixed amount.

No. 2, a double, requires enough strength and such distribution as to be prepared for any response from your partner with a trickless hand. This means you should have enough for some kind of fit with any suit he bids, or else a declaration you can name yourself if he bids a non-fitting one. Usually this requires about 3½ tricks in high cards.

No. 3, among the best players, usually indicates a two-suiter and is practically a one-time force to give you a chance to show your other suit and offer your partner a chance to choose. It indicates pretty close to as much in high cards as a double. On some occasions, it can safely be done with a great one-suiter, which you rebid.

No. 4 is usually used on a hand with the amount of No Trump strength indicated if it had been an opening bid, but including a double stopper in the opponent's suit.

No. 5 is on the kind of hand which would be shown by an opening suit bid of three or more, with playing tricks within two of the number bid for if vulnerable, three if not vulnerable, not much high card strength and a desire to shut out the opponents' further bidding because your hand is weak defensively.

No. 6 is the strongest action you can take. It is like a gigantic double, showing about the same amount of total strength you would need for an original suit bid of two to say "here's a game," but giving no indication of what may be your preferred declaration or declarations. After this, your partner must not let the bidding die except in a game declaration or a double of the opponents promising at least as many points as a game would be worth.

Following No. 1, a partner adds his strength to that indicated if he is considering a raise. If he bids something else in response, he must realize that the high card strength shown may be less than in an original bid.

After No. 2, you must not pass except with such strength right in the opponent's declaration that you think he can be defeated severely. Otherwise, you must bid, and the weaker you are the more important is your responding. Any four-card major is preferred to a longer minor, as a rule, in response. If your only four-carder is the opponent's suit, you generally should answer with your lowest three-card minor as a choice among evils. And, with a hand anywhere near to opening bid strength, give a jump. To bid No Trumps in response requires safe stoppers in the hostile suit and about a couple of tricks in the entire hand.

In late bidding which develops after any of these calls, or after your own side opened the bidding, you will sometimes prefer doubling an opponent to going on with your own side's bidding, and at other times will purposely overbid for a sacrifice, if you think the points lost from a moderate defeat will be less than the opponents can get from making their contract.

Tories Rap C.C.F. Invasion Of Saskatchewan

REGINA, June 9—(CP)—Charges the C.C.F. were invading Saskatchewan with the hope of establishing the first Socialistic government in the Dominion and that they discussed Federal issues beyond Provincial authority were made in election speeches last night.

Rupert D. Ramsay, Progressive Conservative Provincial leader, told a Regina audience that C.C.F. policies for the Province were advocated by persons with their heads in the clouds who would "stumble." It was "an affront to our intelligence" that other parties should import election speakers "to tell us how to run our business," he said. These speakers did not discuss provincial isues bue the Bank Act, immigration and other questions.

Mr. Ramsay said that the minds of the people were on the invasion of Europe instead of the election "and probably should be."

He spoke after the meeting stood in silent prayer for success of the invasion.

Mr. Ramsay said, however, that responsibility in the election on June 15 could not be shirked and thought must be given it.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner told an audience at Birch Hills that Saskatchewan had had three election invasions—the visitation of various speakers in 1929, the Social Creditors in 1938 and the C. C. F. now.

Mr. Gardiner claimed that M. J. Coldwell, national C.C.F. Leader was "responsible" for the co-operative government of Premier J. T. M. Anderson from 1929 until 1934. "The result was a spending spree beyond the capacity of the province."

IN WESTERN CANADA—Pte. Arthur Brown, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, Hastings, is stationed in Western Canada. He reported for duty in May, 1943, and trained at Newmarket and Camp Borden. Before eulisting he worked on his father's farm near Hastings.

Casualties High In Chinese War

CHUNGKING, June 9 — (AP) — Chinese troops have occupied part of the Burma Road town of Lungling, second most important Japanese base in the south-western province of Yunnan west of the Salween river, the Chinese High Command announced to-night.

Chinese northeast of Tengchung, north of the Burma Road and the main Japanese base in Yunnan, also took the offensive and made limited advances against that communications hub, the communique said.

Heavy fighting for Changsha with both sides suffering considerable casualties was reported by the High Command, indicating the Japanese were driving a spearhead still closer to that Hunan province city.

Police Arrest 13 In Riots At Montreal

MONTREAL, June 9 (CP)—Dozens of police officers were rushed to an east-end cabaret last night after a battle broke out between members of the armed forces and cabaret employees. Two constables were slightly injured and three servicemen and a juvenile were sent to hospital with minor injuries suffered in the fray.

At least three shots were fired during the melee, two when Constable Roger Picard was attacked in a side street by two men whom police said were soldiers. One of the soldiers was arrested. The third shot was said to have been fired by a police sergeant caught in the mist of a hand-to-hand battle.

Police officers used night sticks freely and many spectators left the scene with bruised shins when they refused to move on under police order.

One sailor came out the better in the battle when he was attacked by five civilians. When the men closed in on him, he resorted to commando tactics and dispersed his attackers who fled when the wail of a police siren was heard. The sailor was arrested.

Trams on St. Catherine street were delayed for more than a half-hour as missiles sailed across the main thoroughfare.

When the disturbance was settled, police booked 13 men at headquarters on charges of disturbing the peace, including three airmen, a soldier, a sailor, six adult civilians and two juveniles.

Most Farmers Lack Scientific Knowledge

TORONTO, June 9—(CP)—Halof of Canada's farms with 25 per cent less farm population could probably maintain present food production levels if all the accumulated knowledge on agriculture were used, R. B. Walker of Buckingham, Que., said last night at the closing of the Canadian Chemical conference.

Taking part in a discussion of post-war economics, Mr. Walker said the percentage of Canadians who will require assistance through various types of subsidies "will depend upon the ability of that small group of employers able to find new jobs by selling new products."

400,000 MEN ARE MASSED ON NORMANDY FRONT

British and Canadian Armored Units Engaged In Heavy Tank Battle

Canadian Ships Help Bag Two Destroyers

LONDON, June 10 — (CP) — The exploits of two Canadian destroyers that participated in a sharp, successful naval action off the tip of Brittany highlighted today the part Canada's forces are playing in the western invasion as her ground troops slugged doggedly ahead in Normandy against bitter German resistance.

The destroyers were the Tribal class Haida and Huron. With six British and Polish destroyers, the Canadian vessels intercepted four German destroyers apparently bent on a sneak smash at the Allied invasion line before dawn Thursday, blowing up one of them, chasing another aground in flames and scoring hits on the other two which escaped. Today's Allied communique said the grounded enemy craft later was "attacked and left a smouldering wreck."

Few Casualties

This point-blank engagement — which cost the Allies damage and a few casualties on one ship, the British destroyer Tartar—was fought off the tip of Brittany near Ushant Island. The Haida, which last month participated in a Channel action that cost the Canadian destroyer Athabaska, and the Huron ran down the enemy vessel that was forced ashore. It was beached in flames on the Isle de Bas.

On land, it was disclosed yesterday that Canadian ground forces had effected a junction with British infantry near Caen and were attacking that vital communications hub nine miles inland on the Orne river. It also was announced that the Canadian 3rd Division is engaged in the beachhead fighting, action for which men of the division had trained for three years. The Germans previously mentioned the Canadian 2nd Division as in action but this remained unconfirmed.

Fighting Heavy

It was clear in dispatches from the front that the Canadians, along with the British and American allies, were engaged in heavy fighting and that casualties would not be light. Particularly bitter was the fighting at Caen. The Germans were battling fiercely for this vital link on the Cherbourg-Paris railway. Great

German Police Dog Deserts Der Feuhrer Canine Traitor Adopted By Newspapermen

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 10 — (CP Reuter) —The Germans have abandoned Pfoomph.

Pfoomph is one of those big dogs the Germans had trained to warn of the enemy approach. But apparently Pfoomph was not happy in the service or else he was not a rabid Nazi.

For when the Germans abandoned a headquarters in this secto Pfoomph was left behind in a paddock, deserted and forlorn—; forlorn until the arrival of a contingent of Canadian War Correspondents.

Pfoomph, like most traitors, made a great fuss over the new occupants and insinuated himself into adoption by Bill Stewart Canadian Press War Correspondent, who speaks basic dog in three languages.

After howling allegiance to the newsprint commandos, the dog was formally adopted and christened Pfoomph, one of cartoonist Stewart's characters who is really a human Gremlin; a well-meaning one but awfully awkward.

Canadians Avenge Dieppe Overcome Shore Obstacles

By ROSS MUNRO—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 10 — (CP Cable).—Canadian assault infantry, engineers and tank crews avenged Dieppe in their magnificent D-Day attack on a four-mile strip of Normandy coast here. I spent three hours on Thursday walking through German Atlantic wall defences seeing what the Canadians had to overcome. They cracked this line in a bloody, two-hour battle and won—through stern courage, technical skill and careful, long preparations.

Formidable concrete placements were dotted along the stretch of coast covering the beach and approaches with heavy guns and between them were scores of pillboxes well sighted and constructed. There were elaborate trench systems, all camouflaged, and observation posts from which the German fire could be controlled.

Tunnels ran from one gun position to another and behind the first rows of concrete gun emplacements and pillboxes were other strong-points in houses and large buildings which had been fortified with concrete, steel and timber.

Strip Mile Wide.

The defence strip was about a half mile wide. Behind this correlated defence system were batteries of 88mm. and 75mm. guns were sighted on the beaches. There also were

American Troops Batter Forward In Direction Of Cherbourg Another Column Drives On Carentan

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 10 — (CP). — American formations battered their way forward in the direction of Cherbourg today and rammed another column southward in a squeeze attack on Carentan, key town guarding the neck of the peninsula at its narrowest point.

British and Canadian armored and infantry forces meanwhile hammered at German armored divisions in the heaviest tank engagement since the Allied landings in the Caen sector, on the eastern flank of the bridgehead.

One German announcement reported fierce fighting in Montebourg, 15 miles from the great port of Cherbourg.

The American drives fanned out from Ste. Mere Eglise, already captured, northwest toward Cherbourg, and southeast towards Carentan.

Isigny Captured.

American troops captured Isigny, seven miles northeast of Carentan, today's Allied communique announced.

The SHAEF communique said British and Canadian forces were standing firm in the Caen area, despite heavy enemy attacks.

German broadcasts asserted 400,000 men were fighting on the Normandy peninsula, with about 200,000 on each side.

With improving weather, Allied sky fleets last night and today ripped at Nazi railways, roads, troop and tank concentrations and positions behind the battle line, and at airfields in France. Airmen reported Allied shells bursting in Caen, defended by the Nazis as a key point in their protective belt in Normandy.

Supreme Headquarters' ninth communique reported Allied forces were in contact "with strong enemy forces near Conde Sur Seulles," 4½ miles southeast of the cathedral town of Bayeux, which fell early in the invasion. Allied forces also were driving southwest of Bayeux.

A Berlin broadcast asserted "Allied military strength assembled in the Caen-Bayeux area has been thrown in the direction of Cherbourg."

The German high command communique today asserted Allied counter-attacks against Touffreville, six miles east of Caen, had been repulsed. There was no Allied confirmation of fighting on that side of the city which is six miles inland on the Orne river.

In the Cherbourg peninsula area, the American ground commander, Lt.-Gen. Omar Bradley told correspondents he was "satisfied" with American progress but expected a German counter-attack shortly in three-division strength.

American air-borne troops and infantrymen have captured more than 3,000 prisoners, half of them Nazi paratroop veterans of Russia and Cassino, seized after they dropped from the skies.

5,000 Prisoners taken

The Allied forces in all have taken more than 5,000 prisoners. Canadian units took more than 600, field dispatches said Friday.

The German Trans-ocean Agency claimed 1,500 prisoners had been taken by the Germans and 175 Allied tanks destroyed.

Stunning Blows Disrupt Supply Lines

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 10 —(AP). — Powerful fleets of Allied heavy, medium and light bombers today blasted targets behind the Normandy battlelines and German airfields in Northern France in a thunderous follow-up to similar R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. attacks last night.

The day and night blows which broke a 15-hour lull in Allied air activity caused by the weather yesterday were aimed at railroads, highways, heavy gun positions and a concentration of troops and tanks behind the invasion front and a key rail junction near Paris as well as at the airfields.

One purpose of the attacks was to prevent the German Air Force from building up air support for Marshal Rommel's forces in Normandy.

The daylight blow against the airfields was delivered by up to 500 U.S. heavy bombers which took quick advantage of the clearing weather. The night and day heavy bombers also hammered the Etampes rail junction 30 miles from Paris, a key troop dispatching point for the Germans.

Many Fighters.

Aussies Dominate New Guinea

SYDNEY, Australia, June 10—(CP).—New lustre has been added to Australian battle records by ground fighting in New Guinea, where Aussie "diggers" have borne the brunt of combat since the Japanese were turned back from Port Moresby in September, 1942. United States air and naval forces have provided invaluable support but the Australians have been used almost exclusively in driving the Japanese from positions to which they penetrated in the first nine months of the Pacific war.

A polite reminder of the preponderance of Australian ground forces used in the Southwest Pacific was given Americans by Prime Minister Curtin of Australia this week when, in an address at Washington, he remarked that for most of Gen. MacArthur's term of command in that sector, his forces had been principally Australian.

In turning back the Japanese drive and freeing most of New Guinea, the Australians fought against the worst possible topographical conditions, varying from greasy mud flats to sheer, towering mountains.

[illegible]

In all these operations ground forces were principally Australian and much of the aerial support was supplied by the Royal Australian Air Force.

United States infantrymen participated in the first major offensive operation, containing the Japanese beachhead at Buna while elements of the Australian 6th and 7th divisions fought their way down from the Owen Stanleys. Americans also shared the Salamaua operation and dropped paratroopers at Nadzab, inland from Lae.

The 6th, 7th and 9th Australian divisions were the groups particularly responsible for land successes.

It was the infantrymen, who, enduring endless hardships and suffering, turned back a threat which would have given the Japanese a strategic base endangering Australia proper, and by turning it back began the Japanese retreat in the Southwest Pacific.

Huns Retreat In Disorder Fleeing To North Of Italy

By NOLAND NORGAARD—Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, June 10 — (AP). — The German 14th Army fled northward today with increasing disorder, and the Allied command for the first time declared officially that a "catastrophe" has befallen Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's forces in Italy.

Slashing steadily northward after the retreating foe, the 5th Army captured the ancient town of Tuscania, 13 miles northeast of Tarquinia.

Despite the great speed of [illegible] Clark's pursuing troops, which have averaged about 15 miles daily since the fall of Rome, an official spokesman declared they are "unable to catch up with any important elements of Col. Gen. Eberhard Von Mackensen's 14th Army which is withdrawing in this area in a completely disorganized fashion."

8th Gains Speed

The 8th Army also picked up speed in its northward advance near the Adriatic.

Mackensen's flight was considered a peril to the Nazi 10th Army, whose retreat has been slower and more orderly, due largely to demolitions, mine fields and the mountainous terrain which made close pursuit by the British 8th Army difficult.

"East of the Tiber river the German 10th Army is robbed of the support of its sister army and now

Third Division Does Grand Job

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 10—(CP Cable)—Canada's finest trained division, the 3rd, waited three years for its first combat assignment. That came with the invasion of northern France.

It was announced here and in Ottawa yesterday that the 3rd was one of the Allied divisions fighting on French soil.

With only a sprinkling of battle-trained officers and N.C.O.'s, the 3rd Division justified its selection as an assault formation when given the task of making a frontal attack against concrete fortifications "somewhere between Cherbourg and Le Havre."

The division now forging ahead in France arrived in England July 29, 1941. It was composed of soldiers from every province of Canada, with a goodly share of French-Canadians.

While the Canadian 2nd Division fought at Dieppe and other Canadian formations were in action in Sicily and Italy, the 3rd continued its dull defensive role and trained especially for the important part it was to play in the invasion of France.'

Morale may have flagged sometimes but on the eve of embarkation these superbly trained assault troops, each man a Commando, were extremely keen.

Of the way they are fighting in France, reports coming in at headquarters may be summed up this way: The division is doing a magnificent job.

A chance to prove their worth has come at last to the men of the 3rd Division and no formation has gone out with more determination on its first major operation.

LONDON—American troops have captured Trevieres, midway between Bayeux and Isigny.

House Expedites New Legislation

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, June 10 — (CP). — The House of Commons celebrated invasion week by making more progress with sessional legislation than in any week of the present session.

In the four days ended yesterday seven important pieces of legislation were either finally passed or advanced through important stages. Each engendered debate, but the speeches were short and fewer than usual as the members generally kept in step with suggestions made on D-Day by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and concurred in by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, that the members get along with business.

Here is the record of the week's progress:

The $3,600,000,000 War Appropriation Bill [illegible] readings after several months' debate on parliamentary resolution;

The Bill empowering the Canadian National Railways to borrow money as required during 1944, passed through all stages;

Electors Bill.

The Naval Service Bill, revising and consolidating law on the Navy, passed through all stages;

Turmoil Reigns Across France

BARCELONA, Spain, June 10 — (AP)—Border reports reaching here early today said central France was well on the way towards chaos as a result of the Allied invasion of Normandy, German fears of a new Allied invasion of the French Mediterranean coast, and the threat of a general French uprising in the Vichy region.

Barricades have been flung hurriedly across roads by Vichy and German forces. All civilian motor traffic has been banned in four departments in the Vichy area. Vichy police issued warning they would shoot on sight at any non-official car in motion.

Open fighting was reported Friday between Vichy forces and French patriots at Gannat, within 10 miles of Vichy, with a score of persons reported killed.

Two battalions of German police entered Vichy, Friday. It was reported they were sent to help defend Petain's capital against possible direct attack from gathering guerilla forces.

Elsewhere, hundreds of towns in central France were declared by these border reports to have cast off the last vestiges of Vichy rule.

Reds Attacking Karelian Area

LONDON, June 10— (CP)— A Finnish communique, quoted by DNB in a Berlin broadcast, said the Russians launched a general offensive supported by heavy artillery barrages and strong tank formations, on the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad yesterday.

"The enemy in the early morning hours of yesterday started a general offensive on the Karelian Isthmus, supported by particularly fierce artillery fire and strong air formations," said the communique quoted by the Germans.

"The attacks, which were launched at various points, were frustrated except for some minor breaches of local importance.

"The battle is still in full swing."

Invasion Ports Lively Spots
Many Nationalities Among Prisoners

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A BRITISH PORT, June 10 (CP Cable)—Invasion-springboard ports along the coastline are like a three-ring circus—something is happening every minute.

Long queues of every conceivable type of mechanized war weapons converge on the ports and fill the highways and if you work your way through there are interesting things to be seen.

At one pier a LCT (Landing Craft, Tank), its prow open like a whale's mouth, disgorged German prisoners. At the next pier a column of tanks and armored vehicles rumbled into another ship.

Navy men who went through the thick of the assault are itching to get back. Meantime, they watched the loading and swapped yarns about the invasion.

The prisoners — and there are plenty of them—are much like the prisoners we had seen being unloaded at a dozen ports. They are the same young lads, many solemn behind horn-rimmed glasses, the same old men, tired and gaunt.

Most of the men wore the olive green of the Wehrmacht but there were some in the grey of the Luftwaffe. An officer of the LCT which brought them across said he had seen four Jerry planes brought down in 10 minutes.

Predicts Liberal Victory
CCF Brings 16 Speakers Into Province

REGINA, June 10 (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner predicted last night the Liberal party will go back into power in Saskatchewan June 15 with at least as big a majority as it had at dissolution of the last legislature.

(Liberals had 33 members, the opposition 14, and five seats were vacant in the 52-member House.)

The Minister, speaking at Lipton, urged electors to think twice before voting "if you have no more important grievance against the Liberal government than the education tax." He added the Liberals did not like the education tax any more than the people and "any government will get rid of it just as soon as it is possible to pay for services in some other way."

A C.C.F. representative had come to him and suggested a board be set up to tell farmers what they should grow, the Minister said. "I would rather take the judgment of Canada's 750,000 farmers than that of the five best professors I ever saw."

Rupert D. Ramsay, provincial Progressive Conservative leader, said at Moose Jaw C.C.F. speakers did not advocate the same land policy in Ottawa and in Saskatchewan and that they committed a "breach of ethics of political approach" by bringing 16 speakers to the province from other parts of the Dominion.

Three Plans Are Required In Town Planning

The importance of the work being undertaken by the new Town Planning Committee was outlined by Arthur Northover, C.G.E. engineer to members of the Kiwanis Club, Friday, when he emphasized the necessity of preparing now for action in the post war field.

He said that such a plan should be under the direction of a small group of unbiased, public spirited citizens with training in special branches. It was the duty of this group to prepare three plans, the master, the financial and the zoning plans, the last two dovetailing with the master plan.

The first step needed in dealing with the master plan is the preparation of several maps. These should include maps based on reconnaissance, child population density, adult population density, transit traffic maximum rush chart and general traffic maximum rush chart, the speaker explained.

"The location of children's playgrounds should be carefully considered as to the assessment value of surrounding property, the density of child population in the immediate neighbourhood and the distance and accessibility to the homes of the children to be served. Maps analysing the efficiency of bus routing through riding habit and accessibility to route should also be considered and the traffic maximum rush chart would indicate the bus passenger flow during maximum rush hour periods and show efficiency of bus service.

Want Authority

"To ensure the planning committee a working status, the law should provide that all classes of matters which may be affected by long-term planning considerations must be referred to the planning committee before they are finally accepted. Long-term planning would include: layout of streets and parks, new subdivisions, location of new public buildings, semi-public and even private improvements upon which public action is necessary, zoning and all expenditures of funds for capital improvements. Every effort should be made to relieve the planning agency of responsibility not essential to its primary function of co-ordinating and advising on the broad questions of city development," Mr. Northover declared.

This recently organized group is prepared to work with the Medical Health Officer, Police authorities, Board of Education, local bus transit operator, business men and real estate agents, industrialists, Women's council, welfare and service clubs, Chamber of Commerce, County authorities and Provincial Highway authorities.

The site for the town of Peterborough was chosen in 1818 for transportation and mill power facilities, although the town was not founded until 1825, Mr. Northover said. The Chemong portage commenced at the present gas works site and mill power was provided by rapids at the foot of King street. The settlers suffered every hardship and were given every opportunity to die. Lack of co-ordinated planning then produced the gores which characterize the boundaries of the old city, he continued.

Building Replacement

The bulk of the present homes were built before 1929 and only 11 per cent of the 5,300 homes have been erected since this date. The town hall and market were built about 1899, while the fire hall, collegiate, armouries and library were built about 1910. The time is not far off when replacements will be needed for these aged buildings and that some type of location and financial plan must be prepared, Mr. Northover declared.

"Town planning will remove decay at the heart of the city, decreasing property values; traffic strangulation by efficient use of streets; safety analysis and stop sign and light location. It will improve citizens' welfare; civic appearance in smoke abatement and slum clearance; proper siting of buildings and parking areas."

First Planning

The speaker mentioned briefly town planning of earlier days. He said that he believed the Egyptians were the earliest to undertake this project and they were followed by the Greeks who had radial access streets terminating in a cordon street which encircles the Acropolis civic centre of Athens. In the Dark Ages, first mediaeval towns consisted of a town focus containing a market place and church. The town site was chosen for its protective advantages and transportation facilities. Each town was small and surrounded by a wooden wall, he explained. Gun powder was responsible for changing these walls to stone. Five and six-storey houses made these places congested. Quebec is an outstanding example of this period, it was diclosed.

"Town planning is urgently needed now. We must prepare plans for post war work to absorb our returned men and also to create a better standard of living for Canadians as a whole. It is futile to plan improved living and working conditions if we are to lower our standard of living in order to compete through lowered production costs in a post war trade scramble."

The speaker was introduced by William Ovens and the vote of thanks was moved by J. W. Pierce. The $5 War Savings certificate was won by Charles Spearin.

American Troops

One enemy broadcast said Americans in the Carentan area attacked Friday with four infantry divisions and a tank division, and "new paratroops were landed behind German lines forcing the Germans to withdraw northward and northwestward.

An official Allied front dispatch, without identifying the exact sector, declared German resistance which had been strong "began to break yesterday afternoon" and the "indications now are that the Germans are having considerable difficulty, throwing in reinforcements indiscriminately."

Supreme headquarters gave no indication of the distances gained toward Cherbourg from St. Mere Eglise, 19 miles from the port, or in the push to the south toward Carentan.

Berlin admitted some Nazi strongholds of the Atlantic wall had been encircled, but said they still were resisting.

More Supplies and Men

"Despite unfavorable weather conditions the disembarkation of further men and material was uninterrupted," the Allied communique said. There was an overcast sky and lumpy sea in the English Channel today.

The improved weather led to a resumption of strong Allied air support.

Converging on Carentan.

American air-borne troops and infantry were converging on Carentan on two sides. This vital town a third of he way across the foot of the Cherbourg Peninsula, was of great importance to the Germans and they were fighting desperately to hold it.

Field-Marshal Rommel threw three armored divisions into attacks from Caen—and between Caen and Bayeux—in an effort to drive to the sea and break up the beachhead into sections which could be dealt with separately.

But every attempt he made failed, in the face of British and Canadian troops determined to stand or die. They fired at tanks over open sights from less than 200 yards.

Allied weather luck, which held good in every previous European amphibious operation, appeared to be running out. A wind from the north-west piled up waves on the beaches and made disembarkation difficult.

Rommel was reported using all the reserves immediately at hand in his effort to break through.

Bitter fighting occurred at Carentan. The land in this area is marshy and cut by river. If the Allies could smash across the Cherbourg peninsula here, they could turn and deal at their convenience with the important port of Cherbourg on the tip of the peninsula.

In this area the main part of the fighting was by infantry. The country is not suitable for large-scale tank warfare.

American troops also fanned out from Ste. Mere-Eglise toward the port of Cherbourg, but it was not clear how much progress had been made. Here American airborne troops were linked up with infantry coming in from the beaches to form one attacking force.

Nazi Drop Parachutists

The Germans attempted to block the advance of American airborne forces by dropping parachutists of their own but a field dispatch said the Americans had captured 800 of these elite Hitler airborne forces which landed almost on top of American units.

The German radio dropped its extravagant claims of the last few days and the German agency D.N.B. adopted a more conservative tone.

"The tank battle between Bayeux and Caen is rising to a furious crescendo," said the agency. "Having reinforced their beachheads with further hundreds of transport and landing craft in spite of unfavorable weather, tanks continue their fierce attacks in the direction of Caen."

German naval forces made stronger efforts to intercept Allied convoys crossing the Channel with submarines and E-boats but the Allied cordon of air and surface craft kept them at a distance.

Gen. Montgomery, commander of Allied ground forces, sent a special note to the British 50th Northumbrian division, which fought with him across the desert in North Africa and now is with him in France, congratulating it on "a first class fighting performance in the face of very adverse sea conditions and stout enemy position."

A dispatch from the field today told of a break in German resistance in one area with seizure by American troops of one town—possibly Isigny—and a handful of villages and the taking of additional prisoners. This force was described as expanding its bridgehead "and pressing forward against mild resistance."

Resistance Breaks

"A steady advance was scored along the entire American front against reinforced German divisions which the Nazis hurled in prior to the landing," the dispatch added. "Field Headquarters said the Americans had fairly tough going until yesterday afternoon when the German resistance began to break. Indications now are that the Germans are having considerable difficulty in throwing in reinforceents indiscriminately."

The beachhead campaign, entering a critical phase which military men expected would continue for at least another 10 days, seemed focussed on a drive northward from the Allied right flank to capture Cherbourg. Possession of this major port would give the Allies a chance to move in much heavy equipment which the beachhead now lacks.

Increasing numbers of tanks were thrown into the battle for Caen, nine miles inland on the Allied left flank, by both sides. The Cherbourg-Paris railway runs through this communications hub for which British and Canadian troops are fighting and the Allied communique last midnight said "the enemy is making a determined effort to stem the advance."

The Canadian 3rd Division is in the Caen fighting in which elements of two panzer divisions have been identified. Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent with the Canadians, who is in the Caen area, reported yesterday steady, unremitting fighting for the town. But he said the British and Canadian troops continued to hold the initiative. Many prisoners have been taken.

German broadcasters said 400,000 men were engaged in the beachhead fighting—about 200,000 on each side.

THESE ARE OUR DEAD ON THE INVASION BEACH — Americans who gave their lives in the Allied invasion are shown lying on the beach of France. They are the first casualties in the mammoth project to end the war in Europe and defeat the oppressors. —Signal Corps Radiophoto (International)

More than 2,000 prisoners have arrived in England and it was said at headquarters that "several thousand more are en route."

American forces thrust forward from their 26-mile sector of the beachhead and took Formigny, halfway between Ste. Mere-Eglise and Bayeux.

It was disclosed that American parachute troops who landed on D-Day near Ste. Mere-Eglise and hung on to link up with infantry for the successful actions announced yesterday had carried off history's most successful airborne operation. It outranked the German operation which captured Crete in the spring of 1941.

Although the Allied command was chary of mentioning place names it was apparent that the beachheads now had pierced the coastline in depths varing from one to 10 miles. The Germans said a wedge had been driven through Bayeux southwest toward St. Lo, a depth of 10 miles.

Passed First Phase

Thus the battle of the beachhead had passed through its first phase, with the beachheads established and being consolidated and strengthened despite bad weather, and the test of the inevitable German counter-attack in force, in the pattern of the operations at Gela, Sicily, Salerno and Anzio, Italy, still to be expected.

German propaganda proclaimed the Allies had "only nibbled a small piece out of the Atlantic Wall" but had not "managed to synchronize the fighting from Bayeux inland with that of the Americans on the Cherbourg Peninsula."

Admitting that airborne reinforcements were steadily building up Allied manpower in the beachhead the Germans broadcast that the Allies still had many divisions in reserve in England and Scotland, ready to be thrown into a fight.

has to provide, out of itsown means, flank protection against the threat represented by the Allied advance to the Viterbo area," the spokesman said.

"Here, too, there is considerable disorganization noted and prisoners recently taken include cooks, butchers, bakers, some no more than 14 years old.

"Losses in the 10th Army continue heavy and the Hermann Goering division in particular has been reduced to a strength comparable with that with which it straggled back from Sicily."

With the taking of Tuscania, Tarquinia and Vetralla, the 5th Army now has fanned out on a broad front more than 50 miles to the northwest of Rome, and at the same time has stabbed at least 40 miles north of the capital city in a drive beyond Veterbo, a provincial capital and communications centre which was a mediaeval rival to Rome.

The 8th Army captured Moricone, 11 miles north of Tivli and Arsoli, nine miles northwest of Subiaco.

In the Adriatic sector 8th Army units moved steadily forward to maintain contact with the withdrawing enemy, advancing as much as five miles. The battered towns of Orsogna and Guardiagrele, as well as Miglionco and Filetto, were occupied and the river Foro crossed.

The Germans left Guardiagrele in flames, then shelled the ruins to delay occupation.

The continued demoralization of Kesselring's reduced forces was due in a large measure to the Allied air onslaughts. Mediterranean Army Air Force fighter bombers yesterday were credited officially with destroying 246 motor vehicles and 360 rail cars, damaging 150 vehicles and 130 rail cars and knocking out great numbers of horse-drawn carts.

Elaborating on the catastrophe that has befallen the German Armies in Italy, the official spokesman said "we continue to pick up stragglers and deserters from all manner of units," adding that the only orderly unit encountered in the last few days has been the 20th Luftwaffe Field Division which was sent hastily from Denmark.

Stunning Blows

3,500 feet, and the tail gunners silenced one anti-aircraft battery as they swooped past. Targets near the French coast were bombed through clouds with secret devices.

Several hundred fighters which went out escorting the bombers made strafing attacks on the Germans.

Returning medium bomber crews reported they had knocked out a 1½-mile stretch of highway near the front, dispersing tanks along its edge and blocking this route. R.A.F. home-defence fighters patrolling in the battle area last night shot down three German bombers in the air and a fourth just as it was taking off. One of the four airfield targets hit by the heavy night bombers was a scant 30 miles from the front. R.A.F. Mosquitoes in a simultaneous night operation hammered targets in Berlin.

From Normandy came dispatches datelined "R.A.F. Beaches Squadron Headquarters," indicating the Allies were pushing ahead with the important step of getting airfields in operation in captured territory. So far there have been no reports of Allied offensive sorties from planes on the other side of the English channel.

At intervals for more than an hour medium bombers and fighters roared over Folkestone heading for France to-day. They were followed by formations of heavy bombers.

The night drubbing given Berlin was carried out by swift twin-engined Mosquitoes. It served as an ominous reminder to Hitler that Germany was going to have to split her slim air force between two fronts—the invasion area and the homeland.

In a continuation of the campaign to knock out bases from which the Germans send planes to the battle of Normandy, several hundred R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers attacked enemy airfields at Flers, Rennes, Laval, and Le Mans in Northern France. A rail junction at Etampes, 30 miles south of Paris, also were hit. Eight heavy bombers were missing from these attacks.

In the face of considerable anti-aircraft resistance, a large force of the Canadian bomber group attacked the Le Mans-Arange airfield while other Canadian bombers laid mines in enemy waters. No Canadian bombers were lost.

Light bombers pounded enemy communications in the rear of the battle zone during the night, and night fighters and intruder aircraft shot down four German planes off the beachhead. The Air Ministry said the night raiders had to fly through thick clouds and heavy rain.

Aim at U-Boats.

Supreme Headquarters also announced that coastal aircraft were working in co-operation with naval forces "in a vigorous offensive against U-boats which are threatening to attack our lines of communication to the assault area."

R.A.F. planes on anti-E-boat patrols over the western channel lands shot down a Junkers 88, 20 miles off Brest.

During Friday between 500 and 750 American heavy bombers crossed the Alps from Italy and hammered targets in the Munch area of Southern Germany, but the weather over the English chanhel was so bad that for the first time since D-day there were no daylight operations from Britain in support of the invasion.

The Mediterranean Allied air force flew 2,700 sorties (individual plane flights) yesterday in operations from which 23 Allied planes were missing. Thirty-four enemy aircraft were destroyed.

Canadians Avenge

mortar positions inland which could fire on the beaches.

On the sandy flat beach itself there were hundreds of obstacles to trap landing craft as they came in. Many were uncovered at low tide. First was a row of 12-foot gate-like steel obstacles. These were former Belgian anti-tank fences employed by the Germans in this new role.

They were about 500 yards from the sand dunes where gun positions and emplacements had been built. There was not a solid line of these obstacles as the Germans had intended, however, because Allied bombing of the railways in France had slowed up supplies and the enemy was unable to complete this first defence.

However, there was one about every 50 yards and it took good navigation to avoid them. Many of these elements were mined and would have exploded if hit.

Rows of Angle Irons

Closer to shore were what were called Hedgerows—four-foot angle irons stuck into the sand, each with an old French mine or fused French shell tied to it. The mines would have exploded if touched and the angle irons were capable of ripping out the bottom of boats if the landing vessels had scraped over them.

There also were many wooden stakes driven deep into the sand with French shells attached as explosives.

Canadian Infantry, Sappers and tanks sailed in on a rising tide and while many of the beach obstacles were high and dry they had to pass between many others.

It was a terrible ordeal, especially in the heavy sea that was running, and some craft were blown up before they touched the beach. However, great mass of craft and tanks did get through and infantry and engineers raced down ramps over about 100 yards of open beach swept by machine-gun fire and shellfire.

This all was done in broad daylight because of tide conditions and the necessity of having good observation for the tremendous naval barrage that preceded the assault and was directed on a half-mile strip of coastal defences.

Cut Through Wire.

Into the face of this fire went the infantry as sappers went to work clearing away obstacles with bulldozers and demolitions to enable follow-up craft to come in with some safety. At the foot of the sand dunes there were lines of barbed wire and while some of this was blown away by the bombardment, the infantry had to cut their own way through at many points.

Through the wire the infantry passed into the dunes and attacked trench systems, pillboxes, gun casements.

To see it all and examine the defences minutely makes one wonder how the Canadians ever did it, especially on the western flank where the stiffest resistance was overcome.

I walked through one defence point on the east side of the harbor and the German dead still were lying where they fell by their cannons and machine-guns. The base of the concrete emplacements was 1 feet thick in some places, the walls four or five. The Germans fought to the end and empty shell casings littered the floor of the emplacements.

A Canadian Sherman tank was on the beach dead in front of a casement. It had come ashore and made a beeline for this position which was hammering the beach. The tank gunner pumped 30 75-MM shells through the hole where the German gun was pointed and the position was knocked out.

Sgt. Jim Baisley of London, Ont., wast the tank commander. He and his crew came through the action unscathed.

Another tank crushed the barbed wire, churned into the sand dunes and rolled past several fortified houses and hotels which it shot up. Then the tank smashed down a stone wall and with one shot knocked out an enemy anti-tank gun on the edge of the harbor which was supposed to protect the big casements.

Lieut. Fred Seamen of Charlottetown was the tank commander. Others in the crew were Cpl. Bill Slumskie and TR. George Playford, Owen Sound, Ont.

Wipe Out Huns.

On the west side of the harbor a similar casement was attacked and the defenders were wiped out by infantrymen who fought heroically through heavy barbed wire into elaborate trench systems. Some of these Canadian soldiers who gave their lives in this attack still lay there in the grass or in the trenches near German bodies.

On the shoulder flashes of these Canadians I could read the name of a crack Canadian unit.

Burial parties moved through the dunes with padre and patrols of Commando riflemen worked through the catacombs of tunnels linking the defence posts to seek out any Germans holding out there.

I came odwn the bank from those sombre dunes between white tapes marking a lane through mine fields. Twenty feet from an entrance to a tunnel where there were two Commandos with fixed bayonets I saw seven Germans suddenly spring from the tunnel mouth, hands high in the air, a terrified look in their eyes as they looked at the cold steel.

The attack had passed inland but they had stayed there in the bowels of the Normandy west wall. Now they gave up the ghost and surrendered practically under our noses. They marched off through the dunes past the huddled bodies of the dead. An eighth German of this party was wounded. He lay on the stairs just inside the tunnel and died there before medical attention could be given him.

I went back through the defences along the coast. More Canadians had given their lives storming the trenches and concrete emplacements there but they split the defences wide open with an attack that seemed to me almost incredible. They had taken a heavy toll of Germans here, too.

A Canadian unit had a fierce battle and race across open beaches to tackle the largest casement on the front. It was a few hundred yards east of a small, battered town and was the key defence system of that area.

tank battles were being fought.

A dispatch today from Ross Munro, chief Canadian Press war correspondent with the Canadian forces, described vividly the impressive defence works they conquered in making their landing on D-day last Tuesday.

The Canadians are receiving a steady stream of reinforcements and supplies, William Stewart, another CP war correspondent in the field reported.

Striking the French coast Tuesday at Bernieres-Sur-Mer north of Caen, and adjacent points, the Canadian fought their way inland against stubborn opposition as they expanded their front. A breach in their lines was sealed and yesterday at least one Canadian force joined with British units to intensify the attack at Caen.

Also inaction are Canadian paratroopers which before dawn on D-day seized strategic objectives behind the strongly defended coast. French-Canadian troops also are serving with the paratroopers.

Charm of Lord's Boyhood As Told by His Mother

REV. E. R. JAMES

When Jesus was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem after the custom of the Feast."—St. Luke 2, 42.

"When Jesus was twelve years old." A boy's most attractive age. We owe this account to that master of literature, St. Luke. Very probably the Lord's Mother told St. Luke these details towards the end of her life when St. Paul, accompanied by St. Luke, visited the Holy City for the last time.

Some time earlier she told the Boy: "Thy father and I will take Thee to the Passover Feast at Jerusalem." You can understand the happiness in the Boy's heart and mind. From His earliest days He longed to see the Holy City and to worship in the Temple.

A new world was to open up for the Lad Who had been brought up in the seclusion of a little village like Nazareth. He was going up to receive full admission into the Jewish Church. In Jerusalem through the mouth of some famous Rabbi He was to become a "Son of the Law." Then He would take His place among men in the public worship.

The Jews who went up to the various feasts travelled in family groups for both protection and pleasure. It is easy to understand how the Boy was missed on the return journey. Jerusalem was a city of narrow and dark streets. The point of meeting was outside and the various members made their own way to it. That evening the Lad was missing. On the third day the Lad was found in the Temple. His early training is bearing fruit. He is best product of the best Jewish home in which Jehovah was put first and above all else. What a lesson for Christians today. Even at that early age we see in Him the characteristics which make Him the Ideal Man. Irenaeus, a great Church Father, says: "The Lord Jesus became a child for the sake of childhood and by His own experience of childhood he sanctified it."

"They found Him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the doctors, hearing them." The outstanding charactertistic of every child is for knowledge. Your boy is a question mark. He is full of questions.

"He is asking them questions." The popular idea of this is that the Lord Jesus is asking them hard questions, which He alone could answer to show His wisdom and their ignorance. Such an interpretation is horrible. He is asking questions which every Jewish child is encouraged to do. Moreover He shows His deep insight into the things of Jehovah so that those white-haired rabbis and scholars see in Him the promise of great things. "A very promising Lad," they would whisper to one another. You may be sure that every true teacher among those rabbis gave thanks to God for the gift of such a Lad.

"How is it that ye sought Me? Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business." The Boy has a deep sense of duty. He is now a "Son of the Law." He has taken upon Himself the responsibilities of manhood. He is entering upon a man's work and duty. He is answering the inward urge. The Voice within Him is calling Him to a higher vocation. Years later He reminds His Apostles that He has come to do the will of Him that sent Him.

Another reading of this famous story is: "Wist ye not that I must be in My Father's House?" The beauty and the glorious ritual of the Temple awakens something in the Boy's heart and He instinctively feels that this is the place for Him. The dream of His childhood is fulfilled. Does your boy love to go to Church? Are you thankful and glad to go with him and kneel down with the son in prayer when you enter God's House. This writer saw a moving sight. A man in uniform entered Church with his little son of about eight. They both knelt down and with his arm around the boy he whispered a prayer in his ear. Do you think that boy would ever forget that experience—his soldier father not ashamed to confess Christ in the presence of the congregation.

"He went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them." The Boy of great promise and holiest desires goes back to the village home and is "subject unto them." Religion makes us obedient. Think of the narrow limitations of Nazareth for such a Lad and all it meant to His soul. Eighteen long years in that village preparing for scarcely three years of Ministry. Perhaps this is in the mind of the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews when he teaches: "The Captain of our salvation was made perfect through suffering."

"Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." Can you offer a more beautiful prayer for your boy or girl? There has never been a time when your boy or girl will need Divine wisdom and grace to face the problems we shall leave on their shoulders.

That our sons may grow up as the young plants and our daughters may be as the polished corners of the temple. Happy are the people that are in such a case.

Eight Candidates Confirmed At Lakefield Church

LAKEFIELD, June 10 (ENS) — There were five girls and three young men confirmed at the confirmation service at St. John the Baptist Anglican Church recently.

The Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Primate of Canada and Archbishops of Toronto, was guest speaker for the evening. Rev. S. A. R. Wood welcomed him, not only as a primate and bishop but as an old Lakefield resident.

For his discourse the Archbishop chose as his text "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost, as it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be world without end."

Many outsiders said the speaker, in criticizing the English Church order of worship, say that they repeat some parts of the service too many times. "The text", said the Archbishop, "contains the words which we repeat the most often."

Bishop Owen stated he has a firm belief in Canada, the whole country with its resources has a tremendous future before it. He spoke of the time when he was a curate in the beautiful church of St. John in London, England, and how he came directly from there as a young man to St. John's the Baptist church in Lakefield to visit his parents and the contrast between the two churches, the sense of permanacy one felt in viewing the church of St. John in London Square, and then he told how he went back to that church two years ago and found it a mass of twisted girders, the beautiful edifice ruined, the font broken and the lovely stained glass windows shattered—blitzed by the Germans. Coming back to Lakefield to St. John the Baptist church this year—he found it unchanged, untouched by the horrors of war.

Future Guide

Through the trying days ahead Bishop Owen said it was up to the people to keep the tradition of the church. God is working out his plan here and on the beaches in France, he declared.

The Confirmation Service teaches people two things, that God wants them to stand up for Him, and that God gives them power to perform the work He asks them to do. God is with our soldiers on land, sea and in the air, what better beginning and ending could one find for a service than the words of that text said the speaker.

He also spoke highly of the work being done by the Rector, wardens and men and women of the church. He said he enjoyed the service, for those who were confirmed, and the choir showed the result of careful training.

Candidates Confirmed

Those who were confirmed were Naomi Williams-Freeman, Minta Pearson, Mary Ann Wilson, Ivy Remnant, Betty Birch and Archie Hawthorne, William Cosby and Holly Stata.

Following the service, Rev. S. A. R. Wood and Mrs. Wood, Archbishop Owen and Mrs. Owen received in the rectory. Refreshments were served by the members of the choir.

MAKINGS REQUESTED

BATH, England — (CP) — Wartime restrictions have struck at clerical hospitality. The Archdeacon of Bath, Ven. W. M. Selwyn and Mrs. Selwyn, issuing an invitation to their parishoners, stated, "Tea will be provided, but the guests are sadly asked to bring their own milk, sugar and 'eats.'"

Aralac, a protein fibre derived from skimmed milk, has the warmth of wool and can be used to interline quilts for baby.

Sailor's Son Christened

LAKEFIELD, June 10.—(ENS).—Michael Hugh Lampman Clarke, great grandson of the late Dr. A. W. Mackenzie was christened in the picturesque "Grove Chapel" this week. He is the son of Lieut. John A. Clarke, now serving overseas with the navy, and Mrs. Clarke, the former Katherine Lampman, of Lakefield.

Tommy Ryder, a Grove boy, was his small cousin's godfather, Mrs. J. Ryder of Toronto, was proxy for Mrs. C. R. Troup of Montreal, and Sub-Lieut. Peter Cayley substituted for Bremner Green of Oakville.

Rev. S. A. R. Wood officiated for the christening.

Buckhorn W I New Officers

BUCKHORN, June 10—(ENS)—The annual meeting of the Buckhorn Women's Institute was held in the True Blue Hall with a very good attendance. The roll call was answered by the exchanging of plants and paying of fees for the coming year. It was decided to carry on with the oratorical contest in the fall the same as usual.

Mrs. H. A. Shearer reported on the district executive meeting held in Peterborough. Mrs. H. A. Shearer was chairman and Mrs. S. Wood secretary for the evening and all officers and conveners were re-elected to office for the coming year. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Paul's Love Smooths Way Slave Becomes Christian

By NEWWAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 11 is Philemon, the Golden Text being Ephesians 4:32, "Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God in Christ forgave you.")

"PAUL, A PRISONER of Jesus Christ, and Timothy our brother, unto Philemon our dearly beloved, and fellow laborer,

"And to our beloved Apphia, and Archippus, our fellow-soldier, and to the church in thy house." Apphia is thought to be Philemon's wife, Archippus, his son.

Thus Paul begins his letter, often called "The Polite Epistle," which is our lesson today. Paul was getting old, and he was a prisoner in Rome at the time he wrote this letter. One commentator says that "dignity, generosity, prudence, friendship, affection, politeness, skillful address, purity" are apparent in this epistle.

The letter is written to Philemon, who evidently was a man of considerable importance in the city of Colossae, in what is now known as Asia Minor. In his house many of the Christians of the city held their meetings, as Paul mentioned "the church in thy house."

It seems that a certain slave belonging to Philemon had done something he should not have done, and being afraid or ashamed, had fled from Philemon's house and gone to Rome, possibly because he thought that in a great city he would not be recognized or discovered as he might be in a smaller place. In some way he had been brought to Paul, and Paul had converted him to Christ, and had become very fond of him. In fact, in this letter he refers to him, whose name was Onesimus, as "my son."

Asks Forgiveness For Onesimus

In times past, says Paul in his letter, this man was unprofitable to Philemon, but now, since he had become a Christian and repentant for his misdeed, "profitable to thee and to me."

Paul asks that Philemon take Onesimus back, and forgive him, although Paul says he would "have retained him with me, that in thy stead he might have ministered unto me in the bonds of the gospel." Without Philemon's consent, Paul writes, he would do nothing. "Perhaps he, therefore departed for a season, that thou shouldest receive him forever;

"Not now as a servant, a brother beloved, specially to me, but how much more to thee both in the flesh, and in the Lord.

"'If thou count me therefore a partner, receive him as thyself." Now both were Christians, so even though one was master and the other slave, they were equals in Christ—brothers.

"If he hath wronged thee," Paul wrote further, "or oweth thee aught, put that on mine account." Paul was willing to pay Philemon anything that Onesimus owed, "with my own hand, I will repay it," and then hints, ever so delicately that to him Philemon owes the fact that he is now a man of God.

Paul evidently held Philemon not only in the highest esteem, but he loved him, prayed for him, and desired that Philemon also remember him in his prayers. So close were they that Paul has not the slighest doubt but that Philemon would do exactly what Paul asked, and joy in the doing.

Hopes to Visit Philemon

Paul had never been to Colossae, but he has a hope that he may be set free, and asks Philemon to "prepare me also a lodging: for I trust that through your prayers I shall be given unto you." This hope was never fulfilled.

The letter concludes with salutations to Marcus, undoubtedly John Mark, son of Mary, with whom Paul had parted 12 years before; Aristarchus a Thessalonian who started with Paul on his voyage to Rome; Damas, referred to in Colossians, and Luke, who accompanied Paul from Caesarea to Rome.

The letter concludes with:

"The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen."

The Golden Text expresses exactly the spirit of this epistle of Paul's to his friend Philemon: "Be ye kind one to another tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you."

Paul Pleads for Runaway Slave

Scripture—II Corinthians 4:1-5:21

Scripture—Philemon.

Paul wrote a letter from prison in Rome to Philemon, a friend in Asia Minor, about a former servant of Philemon's, Onesimus.

After writing the letter, begging Philemon to receive Onesimus, and treat him as a fellow Christian, Paul sent Onesimus on his way.

Paul asked Philemon to prepare him a lodging at his house, as he had hope that he would be released from prison and visit Philemon.

He also asked Philemon to salute various fellow Christians for him, Paul, one of whom was also a prisoner.

Parks Committee Might Learn

The Parks Committee might learn a lesson from Wartime Housing, which recently rented a piece of property adjoining its Park Hill Road settlement in order to make a playground for the children of that district. For a considerable length of time the matter of playgrounds has been before the Committee, and so far nothing whatever has been done; Wartime Housing has taken direct action and the Committee might borrow a leaf from its book.

This is the baseball season, and in every part of the city boys and girls are playing baseball and softball whenever they can; when the school year is finished they will be playing morning, noon and night. But where are they playing? Some of them are playing in vacant lots, when a lot can be found which is level enough to provide a reasonable diamond; one group of boys which we saw recently were playing on a diamond part of which was in the street and part on the right-of-way of a railroad. Every now and then the owner of a vacant lot drives the children off it, and then there is bad feeling. But why should a man who owns a piece of vacant property provide a free playground, and allow himself to be responsible, to some extent, for what happens on it? If the city were to rent the ground from him, and do a rough job of levelling on it, and accept responsibility for it as a playground, that would be a different matter.

But the Parks Committee has made no move in this direction, nor indeed in any direction. The only work which has been done in Peterborough recently in the way of providing a playground for children has been done by the Lions' Club. Perhaps the Committee thinks that if it can maintain its lethargy long enough clubs and private enterprises will provide enough playgrounds to silence the clamour for them; perhaps the Committee is right in its opinion but we do not think it a satisfactory way to meet the problem. Peterborough, it is admitted, wants population, and population means children; and children must have safe places to play.

Great Britain As a Debtor Nation

When he brought down the Budget recently, Sir John Anderson, Great Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, warned that after this war Britain would no longer be a creditor nation; it will be the first time in more than a century that Britain finds herself in this position. Before the First Great War she was the greatest creditor country in the world. Even after that war she shared her supremacy with the United States. But when this war is over Britain will be cleaned out.

The reason for this change in financial status is that the British people have called on their resources in every part of the world in order to find money to fight this war. And since the outbreak of war Britain has had little to export, and has had to increase her imports enormously. In his address the Chancellor explained that in 1943 the adverse balance of Great Britain in international payments amounted to $2,620,000,000, reckoning the pound as the equivalent of $4 in U.S. currency. The total adverse balance for the war period, excluding lend-lease from the U.S. and the mutual aid appropriation of Canada, amounts to $12,000,000,000. This immense sum is somewhat reduced by drawing on British capital abroad, and by exchange resources, but it is estimated by the National City Bank of New York that the British short-term debt after the war may amount to $8,000,000,000.

The Committee on Post-War Problems of the Conservative Party has estimated that after the war there is likely to be an adverse balance of payments of at least $800,000,000 a year in the period which follows the war, for the income from British investments abroad will be cut in half, and the remainder will be more than taken up in repayment of Britain's debts abroad. The British trade balance will be seriously upset.

What can be done? People who understand these matters say that Britain will either have to reduce her pre-war volume of imports, or else greatly expand her volume of exports. Cutting imports would be very difficult. To ease the situation exports would have to be increased by about 50 per cent. over pre-war figures.

This problem makes it clear why Britain is so keenly interested in Empire trade preferences, bilateral agreements, cartelization of industry, and government participation in foreign trade. It also explains why many British financiers like the idea of the International Stabilization Fund, instead of a return to the gold standard and free foreign exchange. However, as the New York Times has pointed out, Britain's problem will be considerably eased by the great shortage of goods of all kinds which will exist as soon as the war is over. For some time Britain will be able to export everything she can make to ready markets abroad. British trade is acutely conscious of the problem and is already planning for it.

The Man Who Talked Too Much

When the Allies attacked the coast of France they surprised the enemy, but the surprise was by no means complete. The Germans knew that the attack was coming, and they doubtless had a shrewd idea of the form it would take; what they did not know was where our forces would attack and when they would attack. Those were the secrets which were carefully guarded, for their betrayal might have cost us a vastly magnified Dieppe.

But it was necessary that a number of people should know the date of the invasion, and now we learn that one of them betrayed it before a large group of listeners. He was a Major-General Miller of the U.S. forces; apparently he told some people at a cocktail party that they could take it from him that the invasion would have been under way seven days on June 13. For this indiscretion he was reduced to the rank of a Lieutenant-Colonel and shipped home.

Criticism of an American officer is not strictly within the province of a Canadian newspaper. But the secret which this gentleman let slip might have cost the lives of thousands of Canadian soldiers if it had reached German ears. Lieut.-Col. Miller may think himself lucky that he did not receive a discipline in keeping with his very serious offence. He gave away the most important secret about the invasion, he put the lives of thousands of men in danger, and he imperilled the deliverance of millions of people in Occupied Europe. Nothing that he does in the future will ever excuse his conduct; he will be known to posterity as the man who spilled the beans about the most important secret of our time.

Good Work Well Done

Since the early days of the war, when Peterborough became important as a training and munitions-making centre, a number of women in this city have been doing a thorough, though unobtrusive, job in looking after the young people who came here as strangers. The young men at the training camp, young men and women who have come here to work in industry, and the young women who came here to attend the Peterborough School For Skilled Examiners were all given a warm welcome accompanied by plenty of help of a practical kind. We know that the strangers in Peterborough appreciated that help and will always have kindly recollections of this city because of it.

We repeat, many women have engaged in this work, and many organizations have been represented in it. We should like, however, to mention the name of Mrs. Emma Morrison, the Superintendent of the local branch of the Y.W.C.A., as one whose efforts have been unceasing, whose kindness has won appreciation from hundreds of young people. In war there are hundreds of ways of serving the cause, and showing a friendly and practical interest in those who are far from home is not the least meritorious.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Members of the Quebec Legislature insist that Quebec and Ontario be on a 50-50 basis. Instead of on a 13-80 basis as at present?

---

History doesn't always repeat itself. We didn't fiddle—and Rome didn't burn. And where once an invading army lived off the country it now has to take food with it for all the inhabitants.

---

In some parts of Canada people are complaining about zoot-suits; elsewhere the grievance is against girls who wear shorts. In the midst of a great war for freedom the desire to dictate what others shall wear flourishes as never before.

Diary Of A Tea-Drinker

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Had some excellent comb honey for breakfast. A friend who keeps in touch with the insect world informs me that a bee flies about a mile on every journey to and from the hive, and that 60,000 journeys are needed to produce one pound of honey. As far as I am concerned, it is time well spent. After all, what could a bee do with its time that would give more happiness, or do more to raise the prestige of bees in human and bear communities? Dr. Carl Jung once assured me that all bees suffer from a sense of inferiority, and produce honey in order to make themselves important in the eyes of the rest of creation. Go ahead, bees; you're doing fine!....Compare this eagerness to please on the part of bees with the underbred manners and cheap vulgarity of mosquitoes. These insects remind me of certain human beings, who do not hold enough poison to be dangerous but who make themselves detestable so far as their puny abilities permit. My advice to mosquitoes is: try to be bees.

MONDAY: Another letter today—more in sorrow than in anger this time—from a woman who protests that her sex are not the toys of men. Well, if they are not, they should be. It is the privilege of the sexes to refresh each other by wit, cajolery and physical charm in those moments when life seems stale; if I am not mistaken, there is something to that effect in the Marriage Service. There are far too many solemn, dull women whose apathy toward life is reflected in their faces—"unlit faces" as I once heard somebody call them. The more amusing women are, the greater the power they wield; the less women try to be like men, the more men will respect their opinions....In the law office which lies within range of my window, there is a young woman who sometimes passes as much as five minutes with her head pillowed on her typewriter. Is she weeping, or sleeping, or waiting for inspiration? Does she dream of her lover in some far-off land, or is she a victim of vitamin deficiency? After these bouts of depression she raises her head defiantly and attacks her machine with the ferocity which all typists develop. What can I do for her? A gift of a single exquisite rose and a box of liver pills would cover all possibilities.

TUESDAY: The hot weather increases my natural disinclination to work, so I have taken up making my own cigarettes; I know of no better way to kill time. To make the most of this pastime, two kinds of tobacco are needed, Virginia and Turkish, and also a cigarette machine; delicacy should be observed in licking the cigarette paper, and the handle should be drawn—not pulled or yanked—with gentleness and even pressure. Then the cigarette should be trimmed at one end with a pair of scissors, the other being left shaggy. There are people who recommend spraying the tobacco with cologne, but I scorn them as Sardanapalian stinkards....Mosquito stings contain formic acid, I find. Tonight a lady whose small child had been severely stung took me to see it in its bed, and the room smelled like a hospital; I wondered why, but soon recognised the smell, and a little further investigation yielded the secret. If children who are badly stung drink a good deal of liquid, they will sweat out the acid. I am making no extra charge for this advice.

WEDNESDAY: Received a letter today from a clergyman, commenting on what I said last week about the chances of parson's sons rising to fame; my correspondent thought it all the more remarkable, as the clergy are notoriously underpaid and have to squeeze and scrape to educate their children. The question of a preacher's salary is always a vexing one. As he is a holy man, most people do not like to think of him in terms of services rendered and salary paid; that is part of the Oriental heritage of our religion. But neither would a congregation tolerate a parson who crept about in rags, with a beggar's bowl. They want a smartly dressed, free-handed, well-educated, sociable man of God, and they want him, as a usual thing, at a wage which no union craftsman would tolerate. The Catholics have the right idea, in my opinion: they do not sue for a pittance, they demand—and in consequence their priests are a better dressed and more prosperous looking group than Protestant clergy, and are more respected by their people. The strong strain of stinginess in Protestantism is one of its least admirable characteristics. Poverty is not especially godly; why inflict it on preachers?

THURSDAY: Saw a female iceman at work today; here is a portent indeed! For years the iceman has served in our North American mythology as the great threat to domestic bliss—the dark, muscular stranger who drops in when the husband is from home, bringing chills and thrills. Will the timid, stay-at-home husband fall prey to the icewoman? I accept the existence of this ice-tonged Hyppolyta as yet another evidence of social revolution....Went to the flicks tonight and saw "Madame Curie"; frankly, it gave me a pain. A scientist is only dramatic to another scientist; to the layman he is a mysterious drudge whose work is utterly incomprehensible. Radium is dramatic, but the Curies were not; "War And Peace" is dramatic, but Tolstoy crouching over his desk writing it is not. As Curie, Walter Pidgeon always called a laboratory a 'labatory,' which sounded like 'lavatory,' and reminded me of the great Frenchman who said that the nineteenth century would be known to posterity as "l'era du water-closet"; perhaps he was right; the century gave us few things which have so much influenced and ameliorated our lives.

FRIDAY: Was greatly delighted by the sudden appearance of a friend of mine who has been in the Navy for some time and who, for anything I knew, to the contrary, might have been tossing on the billow, or even beneath the billow. He almost crushed the bones of my hand in a naval grip, and we set out to have tea together. It appears that sailors operate entirely on tea, it being to them what high-octane gas is to planes. As the pitiable condition of my cellar (about three ounces of Government brandy, of which fully an ounce and a half was Government water) did not allow of the proper reunion in Nelson's Blood we had to make do with tea, and drank about an Imperial gallon of it, while cursing prohibitionists roundly. What infernal pests all these professionally 'good' people are! Luckily none of the rascals ever go the sea, or they would bring bad luck to their ships, prohibitionists being regarded as Jonahs of the worst kind.

SATURDAY: Australian miners are striking because their butter ration has been cut by two ounces a week, I see. To an astonishing number of working-class people luxury, the good life and all the benefits of democracy and trade unionism are summed up in unlimited supplies of two commodities—butter and tea. If they have all the butter and tea they want, they are happy; cut the butter and tea, and they balk. I have sometimes wondered why some large firm interested in Employer-Employee Relations (which is the new-fangled name for the age-old business of Keeping the Help Happy) does not serve its workers with pint mugs of tea in which half a pound of butter has been dissolved, twice a day. Buttered tea is the popular drink in Thibet, and look how happy the Thibetans are! If my employer served me with two pints of tea a day—"No butter, please; oh well, just an ounce or two if you insist"—I should be twice as loveable and much funnier than I am now.

The Issue In Saskatchewan

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

REGINA.—In the Babel of tongues and the total confusion of ideologies which now rise to a crescendo in Saskatchewan, only one thing is clear—the provincial election is not a referendum on Socialism as the outside world seems to think. Socialism is not the issue. Socialism is hardly mentioned and no significant number of people in this province want it.

What, then, is the election about, an election which is causing national and even international interest even in these crucial days of the war? This correspondent does not pretend to know. He has found no one here who claims to know. He has read a file of newspaper reports of every speech delivered by the various party campaigners and he, like everyone else, arrives at a state of dizzy bewilderment.

So, one suspects, do the electors. The C.C.F. planned it that way. Their campaign, is a masterpiece of obfuscation and cleverly contrived to attract voters of all beliefs, especially the farmers who are fundamentally opposed to the whole C.C.F. philosophy.

THE C.C.F.'s original Regina Manifesto, the blueprint outlined to Maclean's Magazine by Mr. Coldwell, the handbook "Make This Your Canada," and the speeches of C.C.F. leaders all add up to a socialist state in Canada. While it is always asserted by the C.C.F. that it would leave some area for the operation of private enterprise, in fact, the total control of the economy by the government, the government regulation of all industry, even if privately-owned, and the threat of confiscation would kill private enterprise completely, and the C.C.F. knows it and welcomes it. The national C.C.F. is dominated by real Socialists and their friends in the labour unions.

But in Saskatchewan little is heard of these larger plans. The C.C.F. campaign is concerned chiefly with denying that the fundamental principle of the party, state ownership, will be applied to Canada's chief industry, agriculture. Everyone else is to be socialized, apparently, except the Saskatchewan farmer.

The Saskatchewan farmers, or many of them, like that fine. They are for socialism—or the vague plan announced by the C.C.F. under that general label—provided they are left out of it. The C.C.F. assures them they will be. Having made this assurance the C.C.F. speakers, as the record of their speeches shows, do not go on to elaborate the socialist plan for industry in the cities. This is always played down.

MR. DOUGLAS, the C.C.F. leader here, scarcely talks of socialism at all. The whole emphasis is shifted, for the purposes of a local election, in an anti-socialist stronghold, to general complaint against society, to federal issues, to agricultural reforms, to higher farm prices (which would have to be paid by the city socialists, but this is not mentioned. Just as the C.C.F. fails to mention to the farmers here that the high wages promised to the city socialists would have to be paid by the consuming farmers.)

There can be no doubt about the retreat from Socialism in the Saskatchewan campaign and the C.C.F.'s easy manoeuvre is working well in some places. The C.C.F. has strong support among the farmers, who are opposed to its formal policies. This support, it would appear, (though this observer makes no pretence at understanding the Saskatchewan mind) is due to the farmer's belief that a C.C.F. government in Saskatchewan wouldn't do him any harm, wouldn't touch his land, and might give good local administration.

It is true that the Saskatchewan farmer has little to complain about these days, nor any special reason to vote against the existing government. He is making more money than ever before in his life. He is paying off his debts. He is putting money into the bank and into Victory Bonds. His crop prospects, due to merciful rains, are now excellent. But that will not stop many farmers from voting C.C.F. on the general and reliable principle that governments need to be kicked in the pants.

ONE local incident will illustrate this state of mind. A farmer came into a Regina bank the other day and asked the amount of his savings account there. He was told he had $5,000 on deposit. He said he was going to spend part of it buying another automobile. The bank manager said he already had a good automobile, bought a year ago. The farmer said, what of it? He had the money, so why not buy a better car? He then withdrew $50 from the bank, asked his way to the C.C.F. campaign headquarters and hurried there to contribute the $50 to the party funds. He was voting against existing conditions in this country.

This is a psychology hard to beat. How strong it is no one knows and no one will know until the night of June 15. Meanwhile the nation is deluding itself entirely if it believes that Saskatchewan is voting on socialism. It is voting on the record of the present government and a vague promise by the C.C.F. to make things better for everybody by methods not yet explained.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN THE SCHOOLS

Sir,—With reference to the above topic which was broadcast by our local station on Sunday morning last and given further publicity in your paper on Monday of this week, the Home and School Council wish to take the opportunity of asking interested parents and the general public to withhold their criticism on the subject, constructive or otherwise, until the plan has gone into effect and the results of such teachings become known.

We of the Home and School have been working to promote public interest to the need of such instruction to be included in with the curriculum, for the good of every child, and on a resolution from the Federation of Home and Schools, the Department granted permission to the clergy to visit the schools for one-half hour period each week, giving instruction to Grades VI, VII and VIII, as drawn up in the syllabus supplied by the Department. In this city the Ministerial Association was approached by the local Board of Education, on a motion from this council, suggesting that ministers look after the school in their community. These gentlemen have done splendid work, greatly appreciated by most parents and teachers, and pupils have grown to love their spiritual advisers and looked forward with joy to these weekly visits.

However, there are all too few ministers for the number of schools in this Province, and thus many have gone without any religious instruction whatsoever, while others have because of the efforts of conscientious teachers been given training, in some instances, with leanings towards the denominational beliefs of the teacher.

We understand that the proposed course has developed from the experience of other provinces and Britain and a similar plan is to be followed with tribute being paid to the clergy who assisted in the shaping of this course. Little has been left to the individual teacher for the Department is preparing a syllabus expected to be available in September, with both the course and the method of teaching clearly outlined. This is to be strictly non-denominational and has been worked out with a group of Grade I children from a Forest Hill school, with gratifying results because included in this group were Jews, Catholics, Protestants and refugees from occupied European countries.

The encouraging thing to us is that all school age children will receive a knowledge of the Scriptures that will remain with them for life. The memorizing of the Commandments, the Beatitudes, certain Psalms and chapters of the Gospel, all of which are the foundation of Christian living.

Certainly there will be persons giving these instructions who are not genuine Christians just as there are in many of our Sunday schools and churches, but we are willing to give this type of teacher the benefit of the doubt and hope they will derive some benefit themselves from that which they will be called on to study in order to teach.

Home and School members are mostly all Christian, church-going people, endeavouring to put into practice through arousing public opinion, the ethics of Christianity in its broadest sense, the theoretical side alone is all too easy to follow, and in advocating this subject for the school curriculum, we have reason to believe that the unfortunate children of indifferent parents, who care little whether or not the child attends Sunday school or church services, because it is not compulsory, will acquire a knowledge of the principles of life which will promote better Canadian citizens.

Dr. Althouse of the Department has asked the assistance of the Home and School Federation membership in this matter and associations and councils will be happy to receive suggestions that will be dealt with by the Federation committee, for the improvement of this system, should it be found necessary as time goes on.

In the meantime give the matter your consideration in a non-denominational, non-political manner, and also your prayers, so that this new venture may develop into the successful issue we hope for.

S. CHAMBERS
President of Home and School Councils.

Contemporaries

MANY PARTIES

Saskatoon City's pair of seats in the Saskatchewan Legislature will be contested by two Liberals, two Progressive Conservatives, two C.C.F.'ers, two Communists, one Independent and one Independent-Reformer. What, no Nudists, Prohibitionists or Zoot-Suiters?—Windsor Star.

CORRECT CONDUCT

Another prosecution in the police court emphasizes the seriousness of the offence of an autoist leaving the scene of an accident in which he has been a participant. If any motorist is unfortunate enough to become involved in an accident of any kind, the safest and best course is to make an immediate report to the police, and face the consequences whatever they may be.—Chatham News.

DEFICIT

The Blood Bank of the Detroit Red Cross has press turned donor last week and gave a pint to the cause. Feeling wobbly after his experience, the couse. Feeling wobbly after his experience, he visited a bar and ordered a martini. When it failed to give proper stimulus, he downed several more drinks—and collapsed. Friends called an ambulance and rushed him to a hospital, where doctors hastily gave him a blood transfusion of one quart.—Editor and Publisher.

WENT TO EXTREMES

Extremes in spoken words or in writing and editing have little effect. C.C.F. Leader Mr. Coldwell went to the same extremes in his speech in Renfrew in condemning all the daily newspapers as he charges they went to extremes in condemning C.C.F. We happen to know most of the owners and editors of these newspapers personally. They are honest and trustworthy men; they are not seeking any aggrandizement or position for themselves and have the welfare of Canadians at heart even as Mr. Coldwell and his followers have.—Renfrew Mercury.

A Bible Message

And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself. And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity. And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God. And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus had healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people. There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day.

The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering? And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?

And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him. (Luke 13: 11-17.)

Emmett Guerin Killed Shortly After Friend

In a quiet Allied cemetery in Italy today, two simple white crosses mark "30" to the final chapter in the book of life for Sgt. Emmet Guerin and Pte. Jack Conroy. Surrounded by green grass and beautiful flowers, they will find peace from the horrors of war through which they have passed. They were born on the same street grew up together, attended the same school and church, and died within six months of one another on foreign soil.

Pte. Conroy who fought valiantly with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, gave his life at Ortona, December 23. Sgt. Guerin was killed in action May 31 while serving with the Special Task Force attached to the 5th Army.

The second boy from the Immaculate Conception Parish to be killed in action, Sgt. Guerin enlisted with the Prince of Wales Rangers in March 1942. He was one of 15 men to volunteer to change to the paratroop division, then in the process of formation. Eight of the volunteers failed to meet the physical requirements, but Sgt. Guerin made the grade and made two jumps to win the coveted silver wings at St. Helens. The badge of which he was so proud, was a silver parachute flanked by silver wings on a blue felt background.

SGT. EMMET GUERIN

The 32-year-old paratrooper went overseas in October, 1943. Within six weeks he arrived in Italy and was in action on the Italian front with the American forces. For his aunt, Mrs. Gertrude Tobin, Roger street, this is the second paralyzing blow of war. In the first great war her husband was killed overseas shortly after their marriage. Following the death of Sgt. Guerin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guerin, she brought the boy up, and her "son" has died for the land he loved. At the time he enlisted, Sgt. Guerin was employed at the Quaker Oats.

He leaves to mourn his passing, six sisters, Mrs. W. J. O'Toole, Mrs. Raymond Driscoll, Mrs. Robert McCullough of Peterborough; Miss Reta Guerin; Miss Marcelle Guerin, and Mrs. H. Shelton all of Toronto; and three brothers, Jack at Camp Borden; Martin at Niagara Falls; and William of Toronto. His aunt Mrs. Gertrude Tobin, Peterborough, also survives.

BANCROFT FIGHTERS HARD ON GERMANS — These six soldiers are some of the Bancroft men, mentioned in a recent correspondent's story from Italy, who are making things tough for the vaunted German divisions. Tom O'Brien (Outside Right) has established a reputation for himself as a patrol fighter, and on a recent raid accompanied a group of Indians. He only returned to his base after using all his ammunition and throwing his revolver at the head of one of his enemies. The same story which related O'Brien's activities also mentioned the other men, many of whom have been overseas with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment since 1939. Pte. William Fuller is shown (Outside Left), Sgt. William E. Morris (2nd from Left), Sgt. J. G. Milne (3rd from Left), L.-Cpl. J. M. Milne (3rd from Right), and Capt. S. R. Walker (2nd from Right).

Accept Quinte Conference Report Covering Industrial Relations

"We express our appreciation of the many far-sighted employers who have established labor-management committees, and have signified their willingness to bargain collectively with trade unions or employees' organizations or councils."

This was one of the observations in the report of the committee on Industrial Relations presented by its chairman, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, Peterborough, at the closing session of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada Friday afternoon.

"We also place on record our approval of the sane and constructive leadership given by many trade union members in Canada. We are convinced that it is for the welfare of this country that the three parties in industry, management, labor and the consuming public co-operate with one another and thus prevent the occurrence of strikes and lock-outs, which so adversely affect our effort to win the war.

We deplore any tendency on the part of employers or employees to discriminate against any man because of his color, race or creed. "....and hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth." (Acts 17: 26).

Co-Operative Movement

Quotations from the report by Dr. Young continue: "We welcome the growth of the co-operative movement in Ontario and regard it as a constructive, democratic organization. It distributes economic power and stimulates members to help themselves and work together, thus laying the basis for international co-operation, the only real alternative to war."

This committee recommended to the people study of the plan of family allowances, a social security measure to help rectify one of the inequalities of modern life. There were, however, certain limitations which should be included in the measure. (1) No allowance to a one-child family or to the first child of any family; (2) no monthly allowances to exceed twenty dollars to any family; (3) family allowances must not be used to depress wages.

Distribution of Industry

"The committee favors the establishment of industries in the smaller centres of population, for the following reasons:—

(1) There are more healthy conditions for women and children in villages and small towns, though housing needs improvement; (2) the cost of living in the smaller communities.

We recommend:

(1) That ample financial credit be given by means of the "Industrial Bank Bill" to establish these small industries.

(2) That our ministers and congregations help to create a more sympathetic bond between those who produce from the soil and those who labor in the factories.

(3) That we encourage the building and owning of homes by the workers themselves, not only in the villages but also in the towns and cities.

Legislation Commended

We commend the following legislation of the Ontario Government:—

(A)—The amended Factory, Shop and Office Building Act. This bill provides for the safety of the workers, especially of young people and for their physical, social and moral welfare during the hours of employment.

Three excellent provisions of this Act are:—

(1) No person under the influence of liquor, or having in his possession any intoxicating liquor shall enter or be in any factory.

(2) Where 35 or more females

No Recession On Centre Control

The Citizens Co-Ordinating Committee declined Thursday night to withdraw or amend its proposal to the military authorities of this district that administration of the Recreation Centre for men of the armed services be transferred from the Salvation Army to the Canadian Legion.

This subject was brought to the attention of the city council last Monday night by a deputation of young ladies who are hostesses at the Centre, members of the Canadian Legion, including its president, Chief Gimblett, and others, requesting the intervention of the council. A deputation from the aldermanic group was appointed in interview the Co-Ordinating Committee, and their response Thursday night was simply a negative attitude, indicating their wish to confirm their previous action in asking the military authorities for substitution of the Canadian Legion War Auxiliary for the Salvation Army's.

Bay Of Quinte Conference Plans Special Ordination Session

The Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church ended its sessions here Friday night after arranging to meet in special session in Wall Street United Church, Brockville on August 30 to ordain three candidates to the Ministry who are finishing the special wartime summer course in Theology at Queen's and Emmanuel Theological Colleges.

Those to be ordained are Gordon C. Smythe, B.A. of Pembroke recommended by Renfrew Presbytery; Richard R. Bonisteel, B.A. of Lansdowne, and Douglas E. Bradford, Brockville, son of the late Rev. W. G. Bradford and Mrs. Bradford of Brockville, both recommended by Kingston Presbytery. The President of Conference, Rev. Basil W. Thompson will officiate at the ceremony.

In the report of the Settlement Committee given by Rev. Dr. Semple, Chairman and Rev. Harold B. # More Aid Given By Members Churchill Club

No name among the British Commonwealth of Nations has done more to inspire its citizens during the past few years of crises than that of the Rt. Hon. Winston Randolph Churchill, whose leadership has done much to promote the turn of the tide in favor of the Allied Nations cause, from that which prevailed when he assumed the premier position in the British Isles in the dark days of 1940.

Here in the city and district of Peterborough some thousands of miles distant from the immediate sphere of his influence, men and women banded together in a club named after him, have done considerable to assist a cause very dear to his heart, by assisting to relieve the distress of many of those stricken through enemy air raids over Britain through the local and district fund which operates for that express purpose.

And following his lead of eternal vigilance which keeps him constantly working towards the day of ultimate victory, the club members are also again busy to keep up the good work for which they first organized in 1941, and for the second time in less than a week have come forward with further help for the cause, to-day's gifts coming from three new members, each of whom have received their membership pin and card, and ten others have paid a renewal fee to assist the cause, which could well be considered a further tribute to the leadership given by this strong man of the British race as well as an earnest of their continued wish to further the cause for which fund and club are linked together.

Club's Gifts Total $1,058

That this has been and proved a well worthwhile venture on behalf of the war effort and the cause it seeks to aid, is shown by the fact that counting to-day's gifts, a total of $1,058.00 has been given by the club members, after defraying the cost of membership pins and cards and it might be well to add that there are still a few of these on hand fully paid for, for new members who care to become associated with other local and district residents who have identified themselves with the club in an active way.

New members reported today are Mrs. R. Paryon, Reg. Paryon, and Pete McGillen, while His Worship Mayor Hamilton and C. S. Matthews, W. C. Hughes, John E. Keyes, T. F. Doughty, Fred Cripps, Paige Rowell, C. V. Elliott, C. G. Graham, and Bob Everitt have all taken out renewals, their fees being credited in to-day's receipts on behalf of the fund.

One of the most vital necessities that total war inflicts on a nation is the need for constant action, and the fund has endeavoured to make this one of its responsibilities too in striving to give aid to the people of Britain in its own particular sphere. There are times when one gets a little anxious in this respect, so it always comes as a matter of joy to meet a person who offers on his own or some else's account to give the fund a helping hand.

Such an instance occurred when a gift of $5.00 was given as coming personally from Mrs. F. D. Kerr, who has on a number of occasions assisted in a like manner.

Then a lady well on in life of most moderate circumstances also made a personal gift to honor the memory of her deceased husband who served in the 93rd Battalion, rendering a service to his country in that capacity, and she carries on the good work by helping now in the time of need.

Assassinate Jap

LONDON, June 10.—(CP).— The French Morocco radio said early today (Saturday) that the Japanese naval attache to Mussolini's Fascist regime in Italy had been assassinated by Italian Partisans. It said its information came from Milan.

SERVING IN NAVY — William Clancy, son of Mrs. Mary Clancy and the late Robert Clancy, who left Peterborough a few years ago, joined the R.C.N.V.R. in May, at London. He attended St. Peter's School and is now stationed at H.M.C.S. No. 2, Prevost.

Seven Dwarfs Visit City

The Seven Dwarfs of Walt Disney's masterpiece "Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs" came to life this morning at the Examiner, when the midgets who were the original models, paid a visit. They were in Peterborough to present a vaudeville show, which included magic, acrobatics and Dwarf numbers.

While the tiny people are not the original voices of the moving picture, as models they were the characters, and they use the Dwarf songs frequently. Typical of the group is Prince Leon, who is only 42½ inches high and weighs 58 pounds. The three women in the group are the same size as their male counterparts.

The laughing group, looking like school children, included Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Franks, Shandor Roka, Prince Leon, Mary Best, Antonette Scheavone and Semon Franks. Larry Robertson acts as accompanist. They have been touring the United States and Canada and they left this afternoon for Oshawa.

The well beloved picture personalities were projected by the actors. There was "Doc" self appointed pompous leader and "Happy" a roly-poly with a dancing smile; "Sleepy" who is always missing the boat; "Grumpy" the real leader of the group who is "agin everything," but who has a soft heart, "Sneezy" who always sneezes at the wrong time and "Bashful," an incurable romantic who is especially shy and "Dopey," slightly balmy, who gets a kick out of life.

Gnr. Bill Rose Wounded In Italy

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rose, 593 Homewood avenue, that their son, Gnr. Bill Keith Rose, was injured in action in Italy, June 3. No details about his wounds were available.

Rose was not able to go overseas with his original unit so transferred to a Western tank regiment and is now with the R.C.A. He has been in Italy since November 1943.

Before enlisting, Gnr. Rose was employed at Jack Steinkraus' store. He was a member of the Salvation Army Temple band and also of the Songster Brigade. He went overseas in April 1942 and is now 23 years old.

Boy Killed In Italy Formerly At Centre

Gets 3 Months On Theft Count

Three months definite and three months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C. this morning on Joseph Robinson, 19, who had pleaded guilty previously to stealing a watch and a sum of money from the dwelling of Martin McManus in Douro.

Robinson gave his address as Toronto where his mother is now living but the court was informed that the boy had been born and brought up in this district.

Provincial Constable Price Morris in giving evidence stated that McManus who lived alone had been working in the fields and on returning to his home found his watch missing and later discovered some money was gone.

Constable Morris said that he patrolled the roads and eventually arrested Robinson who was found to be in possession of the watch stolen from the McManus house and also of $27 in cash. "He admitted later that he had entered the McManus house and stolen the watch and money" said Constable Morris.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. handed the magistrate the accused's record and Robinson admitted that he had been sentenced here to a year for car theft and had also been in trouble in Muskoka.

Annette Hamel, 16, formerly of Timmins, arrested early this morning in a doorway on George street by Constable Leo Murphy was charged with vagrancy and at the request of the Crown Attorney was remanded until Monday without plea.

Constance E. Wilson entered a written plea of guilty to failing to produce her driver's permit and was fined $5 and $2.50 costs. The charge was laid by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure.

Soldier Is Fined $75 On Assault Count

Pte. Harold Miller, Toronto, was found guilty in police court this morning of having assaulted Gordon Post, beverage room waiter at the Grand Hotel and occasioned him actual bodily harm.

Evidence in the case was heard yesterday and Magistrate Langley rendered his decision after hearing argument by W. J. Arthur Fair, defence counsel, and by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Miller was fined $75 without costs, with the alternative of a month in jail.

"Had I felt that you had gone there that night with the intention of fighting," His Worship told Miller, "I would have given you a jail sentence. However I feel that it was a case of a sudden temper."

In his address Mr. Fair declared that it was the practice of beverage room staffs to load their customers up with beer and then push them out.

Council Seeks Two Properties

The city council has offered the trustees of George Street United Church $300 for the old Methodist Church Cemetery in the north end of the city for the purpose of improving and utilizing it as a park.

The council has also received a friendly reply to a suggestion that the old bowling green property at Aylmer and Brock streets might be leased to the city for playground use, and Basil D. Hall has promised to recommend the idea to the executors of the Sandford Fleming estate.

In the meantime the council authorized Alderman Swanston as chairman of the property committee to "approach the owners of the Brock street lot with a view to purchasing it for a city playground."

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

In spite of the inclement weather last evening, eight men's rinks came out to take part in the weekly tournament. The crowd would have been much larger if it had been a clear warm night. However the boys did manage to get through two games, but were forced to stop somewhere around 10 o'clock. Maybe will have better luck next week-end.

Up till late last night we only had 25 entries for our open doubles tournament for next Wednesday. Twenty local and five from outside. [illegible] short of our objective. And we are afraid that unless the outside clubs give us some aid over the week-end that our tournament will not be as successful as we had hoped.

If the weather is fine, it is more than likely that we will have our usual "Saturday Night" mixed tournament this evening. 7:30 p.m. is the hour.

Winning Rinks

1st—E. Ingall, T. Ryan, J. Detcher, G. Coleman, Sr., Skip.

2nd—W. Ashby, G. Soulby, L. Loftus, Nels Routley, Skip.

Westclox Defeat Johnson Motors

Westclox Seniors reeled off their third straight win of the season at he Ashburnham Bowl on Friday evening when they smothered the young Johnson Motors team 21-1.

The Big Bens had too much power and experience for the Outboard Marines, although the latter never stopped trying.

Isobel Bullock was on the hill top for the winners and fanned fourteen of the Johnson girls and allowed them only four hits. Until the final frame it looked as if she would register the first shutout of the season, but Marg Smith, third base player for the Outboards, averted the whitewash when she stepped up to the plate at the beginning of the ninth and drove the ball to the cars in left for a homer. It was the only run scored by the losers.

Helen Mark stopped the Big Bens fairly well in the first couple of innings, allowing a run in the first and shutting the Westclockers out in the second, but they started rolling in the third, cashing in five runs, and when they came back with four more in the next frame it became only a question of the size of the final score.

Marg. Hawthorne led the attack for the winners with four hits, including a homer on her last turn at bat. Aggie Anderson had two singles and a double. Beryl Dobbin was back at shortstop for the winners, her first appearance of the season with the Westclox squad.

The teams:

Westclox — Aggie Anderson cf, Beryl Dobbin ss, Isobel Bullock p, Marg Hawthorne 3b, Nona Whetung 1b, Jean Castle c, Joyce Withers lf, Verna Patterson 2b, F. Hammell rf.

Hastings Juniors Whip Asphodel By 23-9 Score

HASTINGS, June 10—(ENS)—Hastings juniors loosed a barrage of hits to swamp Asphodel 23 to 9 on the local diamond Thursday night. The score was no indication of the play as the boys from Asphodel, all of whom are engaged on Canada's farm protection front, threatened at several stages of the game and gave their best display of the season. In the last of the ninth they made a real drive on two walks, an error and a smashing double by Ron Warner.

Wilson twirled effectively on the mound for the winners, allowing 10 hits and chalking up a like number of strikeouts. The junior rapped out 23 hits off the offerings of Beavis and several of these went for extra bases. Murray Fife, popular young catching manager of the juniors, well-known for his hockey ability, poled a long home run over the centre-fielder's head in the seventh frame.

Les Scriver, substitute second baseman led the winners at bat with a triple, a double and two singles to his credit. Dick Walsh didn't get a hit but he scored a run for Asphodel and reached first five times on two walks, two errors, and a fielder's choice.

The line-ups:

Asphodel—H. Fife, L. Beavis, J. Walsh, J. Warner, L. Beavis, R. Warner, J. Beavis, J. Elmhurst, D. Walsh.

By FRED D. CRAIG

One of the biggest crowds of the softball season is expected at Riverside Park this evening when the crack Trenton Fliers softball team will clash with the Plazas in a benefit game with the entire proceeds going to the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy. That is a cause that should commend itself to everybody in this navy-conscious community and when there is a chance to help the Peterborough boys in the blue of the R.C.N.V.R. and at the same time to see what should be one of the most colorful ball games of the summer there should be no doubt about the attendance. The battle will get under way at 6.30 o'clock and it is probable that Plazas will start their new twirler Frank Stokoe against the Fliers. Stokoe, a former Toronto player, showed good form in his opening game with the champs and he will likely get the pitching chore this evening. The R.C.A.F. squad, made up of experienced players from all over the country will bring their strongest team to battle the Peterborough representatives and the result should be a thriller of a battle between two strong clubs and with all the receipts going to a most worthy cause. There should be a lot of traffic across the half-million dollar bridge around 6.30 o'clock this evening.

Bill Lewis will be back on the hilltop for the Soldiers Monday night when they clash with Manager Murph Chambers' Switchgear club and that should mean that the Military Training Centre are likely to give the leaders a real battle for the honors. The Peterborough sailor, home on leave, gave the Plazas a tough argument Thursday night and the verdict could quite easily have been reversed. He is a left-hander with a lot of speed and the free-swinging Switchgear may find too much hop on his offerings for their liking. Soldiers are a much-improved squad and with Lewis pitching should give all and sundry plenty of opposition. The quality of ball being played in the loop right now is much superior to the form shown in the earlier games and Monday night's battle should be one of the best of the whole campaign. Bert Harrison, who so far is the only pitcher in the loop to register a shutout will likely get the call from the Switchgear to oppose Lewis. The game will be called at 7 o'clock and the attendance should be in accord with the merit of the attraction. Switchgear have won six games in a row and are evidently gunning at going through the regular schedule without a loss. On the other hand Soldiers are hoping for a win.

Everybody Likes It

The announcement that Whipper Billy Watson has replaced Frank Sexton as a partner for Toar Morgan in the tag team wrestling bout at Brock St. Arena on Tuesday night has put the big show in still a higher bracket. Peterborough fans have been talking about the latest variety of the mat game since the last show here and they were looking forward to seeing Frank Sexton with Morgan as his new partner tangle with the unruly John Katan and the rowdy Bunny Dunlop. But the fact that none other than the Whipper himself is to appear in the brawl in Sexton's place makes the affair bigger than ever and there isn't any doubt of the fact that a new attendance record is likely to be set up. Watson and Morgan are two of the most popular wrestlers to show their wares in the local arena and the two of them working together as a team will have the whole house pulling for them as they deal with the pair of bad actors they face here Tuesday. Watson and Morgan know all the moves and all the answers and between them they should have the hard-hitting villains in frequent jams and eventually turn them into a total loss.

* * * * * *

However one thing stands out like a zoot suit in front of a naval barracks and that is that Katan and his doughty partner Mister Dunlop are not going to fold up and play dead just because the British Empire champion has been interjected into the proceedings. Reputations don't mean much to that pair of battlers. They would just as soon cut loose at a champion as at a punk and in Katan's case in regard to Watson he declares that there is nothing he wanted more than a crack at the popular Toronto mat ace. Katan feels that he should be the British Empire champ and he says he has been trying to get a bout with Watson for months and has been consistently turned down. Now he finds Watson tossed in against him in a team battle and Katan intimates that he will take care of the Whipper himself and let his pal look after Watson's partner, Toar Morgan. Anyway they work it out the clash should be one of the memorable mat engagements of the season, with thrills with almost every move of the battling quartette.

The Colorful Sonny

Peterborough fans will appreciate the following reference to a colorful Belleville ball payer, Sonny Green, whose good-humored antics always made him a favorite when he played at Riverside Park: Whenever Sonny Green's name is mentioned in ball circles reminds us of the many chuckles the Ox Point Indian lad's sense of humor was responsible for in the heyday of the old C.O.B.L. For instance it isn't many fans who knew his pet nickname among his teammates was "Oronhyatekha," or as he would chuckle as he'd strut to bat with the remark—"let old Ron show you how." Oronhyatekha was the great Mohawk Indian Chieftain leader, and Sonny came by his pet nickname honestly as the Tyendinaga lad was a leader himself. Then there was the time when Sonny was relieving Peeny Mills as catcher for Belleville at Peterborough one sunny Saturday afternoon and between Sonny's continued chatter and a smoke screen barrage laid down from behind the plate Oronhyatekha did his forebearer much credit to practically win over the Petes singlehanded. However, funsters like Sonny Green didn't come too often on ball club rosters and he could deliver in the clutch while exchanging verbal cracks with the best of them.

Cal McLish, 18-year-old school boy pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers came up with a masterpiece last night to hold the Boston Braves to five hits and the Dodgers won the battle 3 to 2. It was a close fit at that, however, for the Bums waited until two were out in the ninth before they chased the winning run over, Mickey Owen singling after Dixie Walker had doubled. Pittsburg Pirates and Chicago Cubs went eleven innings when came the rain and the result was that the clubs had to call it a night with the score tied at 3-3. In the American loop the Cleveland Indians made it two straight over the St. Louis Browns 4 to 2 with Manager Lou Boudreau blasting a single with the bases loaded to drive in two runs to give the Tribe their winning margin. The Brownies had plenty of scoring chances for Reynolds was wild but they could not come up with blows when the ducks were on the pond. In the only other game played Early Wynn pitched a seven-hitter for Washington against the Philadelphia A's and the Senators nosed out Connie Mack's men 2 to 1 with Wynn scoring the winning run.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Bas Murphy who started with Switchgear this season and was then released to his old club, St. Peter's, played good ball for the Saints at third base last night....The Saints-Switchgear game was played in 57 minutes, a record for several seasons....Peterborough-Whitaker cricketers were billed to play a game against a team from the Peterborough Rangers at the Oval this afternoon....Quakers and Lock Works will meet in a postponed girls' game at the Bowl Monday night....Last night's win was the sixth straight for Switchgear who have a margin of two full games over the second place Plazas....Unless somebody else can knock off the leaders their present lead should give them top position at the end of the regular schedule as they have only to meet the Plazas once again before the playoffs....Two new battlers will be seen in the preliminary bout of the Tunney show Tuesday night when Ralph Garibaldi of St. Louis will be stacked up against Cherie Vallina in a half-hour tussle.

Switchgear Beats St. Peter's For 6th Victory

Switchgear scored four runs in the first inning of last night's City League game with St. Peter's at Riverside Park and that proved more than enough to win their sixth straight victory. It had to be enough for Gene Reynolds, hard-working pitcher of the Saints stopped the powerful leaders in their tracks for the next eight frames, allowing them only two hits and not a run after that disastrous first inning in which Switchgear bunched three hits with two costly errors to chase in their quartette of runs.

It was a pitcher's battle between Reynolds and Ron Akers for the winners and was the fastest-played game of the season, taking just 57 minutes to run off.

Akers yielded only four hits in reeling off the win and would have had a shut out had not Mike Conroy interjected a triple behind one of the two passes issued by Akers to drive in the only St. Peter's run in the second frame. That was the end of the scoring for the two pitchers were the top men for the rest of the engagement, completely handcuffing the attack during seven scoreless innings.

Reynolds made a real job of stopping the wrecking-crew of the league leaders, Ashmore, Mowry, McCormick and Brockley, a double by McCormick being the only blow the hard-hitting quartette could collect.

Feature fielding play was contributed by Don Holmes, Switchgear third baseman. Hollingsworth bunted with Reynolds on first in the sixth innings and Holmes, dashing in, caught the low fly on the dead run with his right hand and doubled Reynolds who had started for second. McNabb, playing second for the winners went back into right field to make a couple of nice catches of short flies.

Switchgear salted the game away in the first. Jack Carpenter led off with a ringing single into right field and Nicholls walked. Ashmore's roller to short got away from Stewart and Carpenter scored and on a high throw to third Nicholls also ran home and Ashmore pulled up at the dificult corner. He remained there while Mowry grounded ot Condon but registered when McCormick doubled to centre. Brockley popped to Condon but Holmes beat out a bunt and McCormick scored all the way from second on the play after which Akers flied to Prete in centre to retire the side.

That was all for Switchgear. Their only other good chance to score came in the seventh when Akers singled to centre with one out and, after McNabb had fouled out, Carpenter hit solidly to right for a base. Nicholls, however, popped to Murphy for the third out.

St. Peter's picked up their only run in the second. Pearson led off with a walk and Conroy laced a triple over Nicholls' head, the hard-hit drive rolling between Carpenter and McCormick. Pearson, of course, registered on the hit. Prete rolled to Nicholls and was tossed out and Conroy was doubled at the plate, Ashmore to Mowry, when he tried to score on the throw to first.

The Saints got only four men on the bases after that and could not break through Akers' service to do anything about pushing them around. Their best chance came in the ninth when Jack Condon led off with a double but the next three batters went out in order.

Wynn Scores 9th Straight Beats Athletics

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Ernie Bonham's pitching power over the Athletics has faded, and Ace Adams no longer can hypnotize the Braves and Phils, but "win with Wynn" still is Washington's victory formula in Philadelphia.

Navy-bound Earl Wynn today celebrated his ninth straight victory over Connie Mack's crew with a 1.000 life-time average of being the skeleton in Mr. Mack's closet.

When the season started 12 perfect-record streaks existed on the big league record books but one by one the "hexers" have lost their power until only Wynn, Nels Potter and Johnny Allen survive.

Wynn's ninth over the A's came last night by a 2-1 margin and he had to score the winning run to make it stick. After singling in the fifth and advancing on an error, the Washington righthander legged it home on George Myatt's hit.

Cleveland tightened the American race by a 4-2 decision over the leading St. Louis Browns. The Tribe came from behind with three in the seventh, two on Skipper Lou Boudreau's bases-loaded single over Don Gutteridge's head.

In the National the only two games scheduled also were played at night, boosting the major's four-tilt attendance total to 53,492.

Mickey Owen delighted Brooklyn patrons with a ninth-inning single scoring Dixie Walker, who had doubled, with the big run of a 3-2 nod over Boston.

Pittsburgh and Chicago played to a 3-3 tie called by rain in the 11th with Friz Ostermueller and Claude Passeau battling all the way.

ONE FOR MEN IN THE MIDDLE—Nick Etten, Yank first baseman, Right, and third baseman Don Savage both tried for a short high popper by Rosar in 11th inning of the Cleveland-New York game at Cleveland. Both missed and the ball hit Savage on the chest, knocking him to his knees. In this photo, the ball is shown on Savage's chest, where it landed, and his left knee has started to buckle beneath him. The runner arrived safely at first.

Bisons Wallop Orioles 14-10

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Bisons and the Baltimore Orioles are at it again. Yesterday's 14-10 game won by the Bisons was another example of the way those two teams slug the old apple whenever they meet. The lowest score was 6-5 in their first encounter.

Since then the scores have been 7-6, 11-5, 12-8, and last night's double figure tally. The Bisons won the first game, the Orioles the next two and the Bisons the last two. A total of 25 hits were made in last night's game, 14 by Buffalo. In Thursday's tussle, 28 hits were accumulated by the two teams.

Mayo Smith, veteran Bison outfielder, and Frankie Heller, soon to leave for the armed service, were the batting heroes, each having a perfect day, with four hits.

The Jersey City Giants kept pace with the league-leading Bisons, coming from behind to score twice in the ninth and defeat the Montreal Royals, 9-8. Steve Filipowicz continued his slugging with three hits to lead the Little Giants attack.

Dutch Hiller blanked the Toronto Maple Leafs with seven hits to give the Newark Bears an 8-0 victory. Bill Rabe with two hits, including a homer and two walks was the big gun offensively. He also batted in three runs.

The Syracuse Chiefs and Rochester Red Wings divided their twin bill, the Birds winning the first 4-1, and the Chiefs taking the nightcap, 2-1. The Chiefs not only lost the first game, but lost the services of Leslie Goldstein, regular first baseman who fractured his right leg while sliding into second base in the fourth inning.

TORONTO, June 10 — (CP). — There's one haggard individual somewhere to-day who wishes he had stuck to betting at the pari-mutuel window at the race track, instead of patronizing the bookmakers. The story came out after that $3,447.05 daily double Wednesday at Dufferin Park in Toronto.

One of the three winners of the big windfall was a bookmaker. It seems some trusting soul, probably quite leery of his luck in picking, placed a $2 double with the bookie on Apropos and Shoeless Lass in the first two races. The bookie told him he wouldn't be able to pay more than 50 to 1 if the horses did come home first, and the bettor agreed.

Then the bookie went to the track and bet the $2 through the pari-mutuel window. The nags came through, the original selector was paid $102, and the bookie had the rest of the 3,000-odd dollars as a tidy profit.

Incidentally:

While on the subject, that double set an Ontario record for a $2 selection, but was still some short of the previous Canadian high. Pagan Royal and Mesmerist paid $4,-335.55 at Whittier Park, Winnipeg, in 1942 on a $2 double. The biggest Canadian double was $8,496.35, produced when Winnifred Ann and Tabson romped home winners at Thorncliffe Track in Toronto in 1932. But that was on a $5 ticket ....When the races were cancelled in Montreal on D-Day, it marked the first time in the memory of the oldest living inhabitant that anything other than a cloudburst or snowstorm halted proceedings..... John Sweeney, former star in the Calgary Junior Rugby Football League, is carrying the ball with the U.S. Marines in the Pacific now....Pte. A. G. (Scotty) Kennedy, owner of the 37-cent horse Omar's Gift, has just got himself hitched to C.W.A.C. Sgt. Nancy Bisset....The Army certainly did things for Johnny Greco. On his discharge recently he weighed 155 pounds, so his trainers decided to whittle him down to his former welterweight poundage. After two weeks' hard training, he hopped on the scales and tilted them at 160 pounds, so it looks like the middleweights for Johnny.

Already holding 20 National League records, Mel Ott, manager of the New York Giants, is rapidly approaching other long - standing marks of the loop. Ott has scored 32 runs this year to give him a total life-time score of 1,725, only 15 runs below the league record held by Honus Wagner, once-famed Pittsburgh star. The Giants' manager has also run up 998 extra-base hits, only 13 fewer than the record held by Rogers Hornsby. The Giant skipper has played 19 years with one club, which equals Gabby Hartnett's stretch with the Chicago Cubs.

Sam. Byrd, the Michigan shotmaker, continued his winning way in the second round yesterday in the Philadelphia $17,500 invitation 72-hole golf tourney by turning in a four-uder-par 67, compared with his 66 on opening day. At the half-way mark he held a three-stroke lead at 133, with Craig Wood in second position. Another three strokes back was Bud Lewis of Oreland, Pa.

Ex-heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey said last night at Camden, N. J., the chances were 100 to 1 against Sgt. Joe Louis retaining his heavyweight crown for more than a couple of bouts after the war. Louis is now in England with the U.S. troops.

Pitcher Vernon Kennedy of the Cleveland Indians was suspended by Manager Lou Boudreau for alleged detrimental conduct last Sunday, it was announced last night, but the player would be reinstated in time to play against Detroit Tigers next week.

Stewards at Aqueduct Park yesterday set down Bobby Permane, apprentice rider, for 10 days starting Monday for crossing in front of the field on Nebraska after leaving the gate at the start of the second race. The horse finished third.

Rev. G. S. Hendry Nominated To Be Principal

TORONTO, June 10 — (CP) — Appointment of Rev. George S. Hendry of Bridge of Allan, Scotland, as principal of Knox College in Toronto was recommended today to the 70th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The recommendation was made in the report of the College Board of Management but discussion was deferred on a motion of Rev. W. P. McCree who asked that a special committee consider the resignation of Dr. Thomas Eakin as principal.

Dr. Eakin's report from the College Senate protested "the anomalous relations" between the Board and the Senate and said that the Senate had developed into a mere committee of the Board. He referred to a reduction five years ago of the number of Board members from 24 to 10 and said he did not know why this was done.

A special committee will be appointed by the moderator to consider Dr. Eakin's report and the Board's report which was presented by Rev. Peter Dunn.

The Board of Management of the Presbyterian College at Montreal reported that "a favorable arrangement" had been made with the Naval Service Branch of Defence Department for the use of the buildings on a yearly lease until one year after the war.

Yesterday a recommendation that Presbyteries submit nominations by next March 1 for the appointment of a Missionary Education Secretary was placed before the Assembly.

MASSEY REUNITED WITH SON—Captain Lionel Massey, 28-year-old elder son of Mr. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London, was one of the 15 officers and eight other ranks who arrived in London on board the S.S. "Gripsholm" repatriated from German prison camps. Captain Massey, shown with his father, was serving with the King's Royal Rifles in Greece when he was wounded by a bomb splinter which hit his leg.

Reporter Hurt In Barge Near France

The London Bureau of the Associated Press received to-day from Henry B. Jameson—first war correspondent with the Allied Invasion Forces reported injured—the following story.

He reported: "These two takes were all I had time to write before I transferred to another ship bringing me to port. My injuries are not serious, but have incapacitated me for further carrying out my assignment at the present time."

No further word has been received from him.

By HENRY B. JAMESON
Associated Press War Correspondent

ABOARD ADMIRAL HALL'S FLAGSHIP, June 8 — (Delayed)—(AP).—I watched the first 14 hours of the Allied invasion of France from close range aboard a flat-bottomed rhino ferry that had to make four runs for it before being able to land on the most bitterly contested beach.

Because of shoulder and slight leg injuries I was forced to leave the craft after the third attempt, which brought us under blistering fire from the enemy's camouflaged coastal batteries before they were knocked out by the terrific naval bombardment.

Throughout the initial storming of the beaches we floated and manoeuvred in a water "no man's land" between the Allied battleships firing steadily over our heads and the coast.

Three times during the first eight hours of the invasion we pulled toward the beach, but each time were forced to pull back. On the third try we actually hit the beach under German fire and lost some equipment necessary for unloading the barge, so we again pulled out to safer territory.

There were four casualties—one fatal—on the third trip.

The barge finally was beached with most of its equipment the next day.

CANADIAN PRISONERS RETURNED TO CANADA — Back in their native country, Canada, are these men from the exchange ship Gripsholm. They have been prisoners of war of the Germans and repatriated due to medical reasons. Left, Captain George A. T. MacKidd, Winnipeg, was taken prisoner at Dieppe; Tpr. Willard Scheuchner, Centre, from Calgary, also was captured at Dieppe. Pte. Harold Seymour, Right, Toronto, goes to Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, for further medical treatment.

Soldiers Carry Book On How To Behave

Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, June 10—(CP-Cable)—Carried with guns and grenades by Canadian invasion troops was a booklet entitled "France," telling the soldiers how to behave in the country they were about to help liberate.

The book, issued to every man about to embark on the invasion, begins: "This book has nothing to do with military operations. It deals only with civilian life in France and with the way you should behave to the French civilian population."

Function of the book is to suggest that while the war is a big thing, personal relations are cumulatively just as big, especially to the minds of the people who have been enslaved and have been intensely miserable for four years.

The problem, the book points out, in getting along with liberated peoples, is knowing what not to do.

The guide points a stern finger at public misconception No. 1, saying:

"Thanks to jokes about 'Gay Paree' there is a fairly widespread belief that the French are a gay and frivolous people with no morals and few convictions. This is especially untrue.

Essence of the book is that the "French have suffered and are sensitive . . . It is up to us to show that little extra consideration which makes the difference between mere goodwill and friendliness."

Throughout the book is a warning to never criticize the French army's defeat of 1940.

French Soldier Says Bombs Spilled All Their Wine

(Roger Greene was one of the first war correspondents to hit the beach in the invasion of France. Under heavy fire, a 60-pound pack on his back and a portable typewriter in hand, he waded 40 yards to shore 65 minutes after zero hour.

Several men were killed on the beach within an arm's length of Greene, and his knapsack was soaked with the blood of a fatally wounded man close beside him.)

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE ALLIES IN FRANCE June 6 — (Delayed) — As far as we could see after advancing five miles inland, Hitler's vaunted "Atlantic Wall" is a myth. The thickest barrier I have seen is a crumbling old brick wall two feet thick, along an apple orchard where I am sitting deep in the grass writing this story.

The crackle of rifle fire some 500 yards away is intense. The Heinies seem to have our range, and we will be moving on soon.

Aside from scattered pillboxes, barbed wire, and slit trenches, the German static defences so far have been practically nil, and in this sector at least we have seen nothing of the great concrete fortifications 12 feet thick which the Germans had boasted they had erected along the coast.

Their mobile artillery appears their most formidable defence.

I crossed the channel in a small heavily-rolling LCI (Landing Craft, Infantry) with 100 men. It was a rough crossing, but without attack by U-boats, E-boats or planes.

Not until we were about a half-mile from shore did the German shells begin dropping around us. Then they came thick and fast.

I fell on the slippery gangplank as it swayed, and went under the water, but the fall may have saved my life. When I scrambled to my feet I saw a receding spout of water left by a shellburst less than 10 yards away.

Although I belive I was the first correspondent ashore, I had to wait more than five hours before I could send my first story back by boat.

The press field radio which was scheduled to arrive early on D-Day still hasn't shown up.

The first Frenchman I met after landing had borrowed enough gasoline from the Germans for his motorcycle to leave his work on a German gun emplacement and join the Allies. A former soldier in the French army, he said the Allied naval and air assault preceding the landings shook the whole countryside.

"Alas," he said, "we had wine saved to greet the Allies, but now it is gone. Pouf—bombs and wine do not mix. Veree sad."

Dieppe Lessons Saved Many Lives

By RALPH ALLEN
Distributed by Canadian Press

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, June 10—Experience gained at Dieppe by Canadian infantry, British Commandos and American Rangers played a part in breaching the Germans' strong beach defenses in Normandy.

Superior methods of reconnaissance arising out of the Allies' first large-scale landing in Western Europe Aug. 19, 1942, greatly assisted the detailed planning for Tuesday's assault. Moreover, Dieppe affected the strategy of both sides.

This operation so far has successfully defied what used to be a first principle of combined operations—the principle that, to hold a successful bridgehead, an attacking force must obtain a serviceable harbor within two days.

Dieppe taught equally valuable things about this job of mechanics. In carving the first fissures in the Atlantic Wall we used secret weapons which had been developed as a direct result of the needs Dieppe showed us. Perhaps the most important of all was that the fate our tanks met at Dieppe led to a new technique in getting armor ashore fast and fighting.

The appearance of Canadian and British Sherman tanks at well-protected entrances to their gun casements in the first minutes of battle Tuesday was the fatal shock to many German gun crews who had remained in action during the previous air and sea bombardments.

Along one small stretch of wall yesterday I saw two German artillery pieces that had been silenced by the tanks which crept along the shoreline to engage them at less than 100 yards.

It was decided to purchase new curtains for the parsonage where they were needed. Mrs. Charles Airhart offered her home for the September meeting. The association decided to pay the balance on the new organ from the association funds. The members decided to hold a bee at the church on Wednesday afternoon, June 14 for the washing of the dishes which are affected by the smoke and water in connection with the fire.

Price Board Checks Premier Of Canada

VANCOUVER, June 10—(CP)—The Prices Board even checks up on Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

F. A. McGregor of Ottawa, the board's enforcement officer, said here yesterday that he called on Mr. King in Ottawa not long ago to investigate rumors that the latter had appeared in a double-breasted suit.

Mr. King had the suit all right but it was three years old. He had bought it before double-breasted models were banned in 1941 to conserve cloth.

Lifford War Workers Make Overseas Bags

LIFFORD LINE, June 10 (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Staples and Mrs. Lawrence Staples were joint hostesses on Wednesday afternoon to the Lifford War Workers. Eight members were present and the afternoon was spent in sewing. Fifty personal bags for use by girls in the armed forces had been cut out previously and were the material used for work during the greater part of the afternoon. Other articles of wearing apparel were cut out for sewing at a later date. A letter of thanks was read from Signaller George Howe of Italy expressing appreciation for a parcel received on April 25. Arrangements were made to send another remembrance to the boys overseas in the near future.

A report of the card party and dance held in May was given by the secretary, Miss Eileen Peters, and the members were gratified with the amount realized.

Mrs. G. W. Mulligan of Bethany, formerly of Lifford offered her home for a meeting of the War Workers at any early date and she and Mrs. Percy Preston agreed to look after the June and July meetings. Six o'clock supper was served by the hostesses.

Guiana Slides Shown to W.M.S.

Colored slides, showing the people, industries, and aspects of the country of British Guiana, were shown to the members of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, at the regular meeting, Friday afternoon. Views of the wild virgin jungle were particularly beautiful with scenes of waterfalls, five times higher than Niagara, and large river, and the verdant vegetable growth, shown in natural color, creating much interest.

Mrs. E. H. Howson, who read the explantions for each slide, said that there were only about 5,600 Protestant East Indians now living in British Guiana. There is no caste system there, as there is in India, and education, Church work, and industry are beginning to thrive. She explained that a theological college has been started, and the first class will graduate in 1945. Industries include the growing of sugar-cane and rice, and mining for bauxite used in manufacturing of aluminum, and for gold and diamonds.

Malaria was named as the most prevalent disease, but steps are now being taken to control it, and natives are kept busy along the many streams, killing mosquito larvae. Up-to-date schools have been built, and are controlled by the government, which works hand-in-hand with the church on all problems. Views of the capital city, Georgetown, with its beautiful gardens, were also greatly admired.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. James Dutton, and Miss Olive Cullen sang "I Shall Not Pass Again this Way", accompanied by M. B. Chenhall. Mrs. E. H. Howson presided. Miss Nina Davidson was in charge of the lantern.

BACK HOME—Principal Matron Major Frances G. Charlton, R.C.A.M.C., who recently returned to Canada after four years overseas, to assume duties of assistant to Lieut.-Col. D. I. MacRae, Matron-in-Chief of the R.C.A.M.C. Nursing Service, at the National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa.

CWAC OVERSEAS—Sgt. Jessie Stevens, daughter of Mrs. A. Stevens, Calgary, and niece of Mr. and Mrs. G. Taylor, 553 Harvey Street, is stationed overseas. She was formerly employed in the Western Clock Company, and before leaving Canada was a driver for Brig. Logie Armstrong in Kingston.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

DOMESTIC MILLENIUM NEARS

Dad Will Cook Dinner When Mother Out. Wife Will Repair Faucet; Insert New Fuse.

Among the few bright spots in the war is the announcement that a large number of service men are being trained to cook. Couple this information with the fact that thousands of young women are being developed into first-class mechanics and it looks as if the domestic millennium was about to arrive.

For one of the bones of contention over which husbands and wives have fought ever since our first parents went off of an uncooked vegetable diet has been which had the harder task, the man who made the dough, or the woman who baked it, and each has shown little appreciation of the other's labor.

Worse still, husbands and wives have been so inept at each other's work that they could not substitute for each other and there was confusion worse confounded in a household when emergencies arose in which Pop had to pinchhit for Mom in the nursery and the kitchen and Mom had to understudy Pop in his job. Pop may be a man who can cook up a tariff bill or unscramble an income tax report, but his toast and his coffee are deadlier than any poison Lucrezia Borgia ever thought of. Mom may be able to do things to a marked-down basement bargain dress that will make it look like a million dollars, but she can't drive a nail without mashing her fingers and battering up the whole wall.

Home Duties Will Be Interchangeable

So it is interesting to learn that after the war marriage will be a sort of interchangeable affair in which a woman will not have to rush home from her bridge game, because she knows her husband will have prepared a good dinner that will be waiting for her, and when a tired man will not have to worry over fixing a leaky faucet or putting in a new fuse because, thank heaven his wife is a skilled plumber and electrician.

And think of the harmony that will exist between a husband and wife who know from experiences the difficulties that each encounters in their daily lives. No more will husbands say: "I wish I could have it easy as you do with nothing to do but to stay at home and take care of the baby." No more will wives greet weary husbands with a peeved: "I don't see why you complain of being tired and having your feet hurt so you can't go out dancing, when all you have done is to sit in an easy chair at an office."

No man who has ever cooked for a week and assembled the hundred things that it takes to make a good meal ever speaks disparagingly of a gas range. No woman who has ever earned her own living is under the impression that men gather dollars off of trees. She knows better. And, our stomachs being so dear to us as they are, think of the endless fascinating conversations a husband and wife, who are both chefs, can have discussing menus and devising new sauces.

Undoubtedly one of the blessings of war will be teaching boys to cook. The only trouble is that there will not be enough of them to go around and one trembles to think of the carnage that will ensue when women, who have had to eat their own cooking for the duration, fight over the heroes who have been decorated for their souffles and pot roasts.

W.M.S. Prepares C.W.A.C. Picnic

Mrs. Jerry Cuff, Morrow street, was hostess to the Jean Wagar Mission Circle at their last regular meeting.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Cuff. Vera Leggitt read a helpful and interesting story on Christian Stewardship.

It was decided to invite the C.W.A.C. girls to a picnic supper, to be given June 28 at McDonald's Point. Their meeting will be held immediately following the supper program.

Mrs. Les McLaren sang "God's Garden" and Gladys Langton read the poem "Discovering Jesus." The study for the month was in charge of Miss Jessie Martin, who gave an interesting story of a Chinese heroine, written by Dr. Robert McClure. This girl was a student at the W.M.S. Mission School, where she learned first aid, and later served in the hospital which was taken by the Japanese. She remained at her post under great danger and difficulty. Her prayer was that God would not let people harbor any hatred of the Japanese in their hearts.

Two piano solos "Spring Song" and a "Song Without Words" were the contribution of Mrs. Roy Moore.

A generous offering was received from the fifteen members present, and the hostess, Mrs. Cuff, was assisted in the service of refreshments by Miss Margaret Smart and Mrs. Greta VanNest.

Ina Robinson Married In White Brocaded Satin

In a lovely setting of iris, snapdragons and ferns in St. John's Anglican Church this afternoon, Ina Marie Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Robinson, Bridgenorth, became the bride of Walter John Dyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Dyer, 312 Elias avenue, Peterborough. Canon W. P. Robertson officiated at the ceremony. F. G. Mann, L. Mus., was at the organ, and Miss Loretta McDougall sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a gown of white brocaded satin, with fitted bodice, buttoned from neck to waist with tiny self-covered buttons, a full skirt and slight train. Her floor-length veil of embroidered silk net fell in soft folds from a halo of seed pearls and orange blossoms, and she carried a shower cascade of Better-time roses and sweet peas.

Miss Opal Robinson was her sister's maid of honor, in pale orchid sheer over taffeta, with matching shoulder-length net veil, gathered to a wreath of tiny flowers. Miss June Robinson, sister of the bride, and Miss Earla Quick, were bridesmaids. Miss Robinson was frocked in pale blue sheer over taffeta, and Miss Quick was gowned in pale yellow sheer over taffeta. Both wore matching shoulder-length veils, similar to the maid of honor, caught to the head with tiny flowers. All carried nosegays of sweet peas and roses.

Leslie Dyer, brother of the groom, was best man and Reginald Kingdon and Donald Robinson, brother of the bride, were ushers.

At the reception, held at the home of the bride's parents, in Bridgenorth, the bride's mother received, in a gown of navy triple sheer, white accessories, and a corsage of roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in a two-piece ensemble of Queen's blue, with white accessories, a fox fur, and a corsage of roses.

For a trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the bride chose a two-piece dress of powder blue crepe, with matching hat, white accessories, and a silver fox fur, gift of the groom. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Dyer will make their home at 312 Elias avenue.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, June 11

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a propitious one for all affairs of church and state as well as all graces and avocations of the social, domestic and romantic scene. However, there should be some conservatism in indulgences or lavish outlay in parties, or festive occasions. There is a hint of extravagance, or being involved in some form of trickery or imposition. Shun over-generosity.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a happy, prosperous and romantic year, with much stirring by way of celebration, or festive occasions. In this there may be a tendency to over-spend or other unjustified expenditures and this attended by duplicity or imposition. Shun all excessive indulgencies and safeguard all legal writings or contracts.

A child born on this day should have a generous and indulgent nature, making it easily victimized or duped. It may be popular and successful, eventually.

For Monday, June 12

Monday's astrological forecast is for a sudden uprooting of the affairs precedent to rebuilding on a sound and enduring basis, by diligence, hard work, patience and perseverance against several dangers, delays and difficulties, with much duplicity, subtlety and trickery or sinister complications. Take particular pains to read and sign all writings, legal documents or contracts and agreements. With shrewdness and generosity there may be rich rewards.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may avert a radical change or reversal of the affairs by strict attention to all writings, documents or agreements. Subtle dangers or treachery surround these. With fortitude, good judgment and sound tactics there may be enduring foundation for future solid rewards and accumulated benefits.

A child born on this day may be serious and studious, with diligence and faith in future success and happiness, although it may be nervous and restive.

Cornett of Oshawa will be acting Chairman and Rev. J. W. Gordon of Port Hope of the Standing Committee.

Home Missions report: Rev. Geo. Telford, Oshawa, chairman; and Rev. J. F. Lane, Wellington, secretary. The report recommended the repetition of the three-day course of instruction given to lay preachers at Albert College last Easter. Permission was given to the students and lay preachers to administer the Sacraments with the consent of their Presbyteries in cases of extreme illness of parishioners Better furnishing of manses and parsonages was urged on congregations.

An experiment in the "larger parish" idea which is a feature in some parts of the United States will be made for a year in Bancroft where Rev. Robert McLauchlin will be superintendent of a territory about 45 miles radius, with Boyd Beckel, son of the secretary of the Conference, student minister at Fort Stewart, and Miss Lanigan, social worker of the W.M.S. at Maynooth, and preaching on that charge.

Nominations to the Home Mission Board were Rev. George Telford and Herbert Lander, lay missionary to the Indians on Rice Lake at Hiawatha and Alderville.

Pensions Fund: The following were permitted to retire—Dr. James Faulds, Dr. J. R. Cooper, formerly of Warkworth, and Professor J. R. Watts, Kingston, Rev. M. L. Hinton and Rev. William Parker.

Religion in Schools.

Christian Education: The report was presented by Rev. W. G. Fletcher and Rev. F. R. Vanderburg. Rev. Dr. G. A. Mayers, head of the department in the United Church, spoke on "Our Task To-day." His main emphasis was on the need to restore religion to the home. He also outlined the situation now existing in religion in the schools which has quadrupled recently with 1,000 schools having it. He did not agree with all the proposals of the Government and did not think it wise to turn over the teaching of religion to the State, though he agreed that that agency should make provision for its teaching by the churches. He called upon more ministers to avail themselves of the present opportunities to visit the schools. There was a lot of discussion and the Conference reaffirmed the principle of religious freedom and the right and the responsibility of the Church for the teaching of religion. Dr. W. P. Fletcher spoke of the co-operation shown by the Department of Education, and said it was a magnificent thing that the Government of Ontario was thinking of education in terms of religion.

Nominated to the General Board of Christian Education were Rev. F. R. Vanderburg, Conference convener, Oakwood, and Robert Kitchen, Peterborough.

Publications Committee: Rev. C. G. Parks, Whitby, chairman, Rev. W. W. Patterson, Queensboro, secretary. The Publishing House reported the most successful year in its more than a century history, but the Book Steward, Rev. C. H. Dickinson of Toronto, warned that that was a temporary situation. The Church paper, "United Church Observer," and its editor, Rev. Dr. A. J. Wilson, who is a member of the Conference, were lauded. The circulation has increased in five years from 16,000 to 44,000, but only 10 per cent of the families of the Church take it.

Nominations to the General Board of Publications were Elmer Davis, Kingston, and Rev. C. G. Park, Whitby.

World Relations Committee: Report presented by Rev. Oscar Wagar. It complained that such an important subject was not receiving enough attention by Church courts. "In these days the importance of intelligent knowledge of and participation in world problems is evident to all. Our courageous sons and daughters who are engaged in combat desire the leadership of the Christian Church in seeking better world relations." It urged education in world and racial relationships and said the minister was the key man. World relations was ordered to be given a prominent place in the Conference program next year.

Archives: Report given by Rev. A. J. Terrill of Colborne, who was re-appointed archivist.

Rev. James Taylor, B.A., Arnprior, who recently retired from secretaryship of the Renfrew Presbytery after service dating beyond church union, was thanked for his fine service to the Church in 49 years' ministry.

The Conference was quite evidently pleased with the fine performance given on Thursday night by Wilson McDonald, Canadian poet. The Peterborough Examiner was thanked for its fine reporting of the Conference.

INVASION PRAYERS—Canadian sailors kneel on the deck of H.M.C.S. Algonquin to pray for strength before shoving off across the Channel.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

With the warm weather almost upon us we feel that we do not want to do much cooking for suppers, especially Sunday night supper, yet we do want something tasty, something the whole family will enjoy. Four such recipes are what I am going to pass on and I do hope you will get something out of them that appeals to you.

Cole Slaw

Three cups cabbage (finely shredded), one tablespoon chopped onion, one green pepper chopped fine, half cup boiled dressing, one-half cup of whipped cream. Mix ingredients thorough and serve on bed of lettuce leaves. Garnish with paprika and parsley.

Jellied Asparagus Loaf

Two cups chicken stock, one green pepper (cut fine), three tablespoons gelatine, one pimento (cut fine), half cup celery (cut fine). Soak gelatine in cold water. Add hot chicken stock. Stir until gelatine dissolves. Add pimento, green pepper, and celery. Fill moulds with layers of asparagus tips. Pour gelatine mixture over asparagus. Let stand until it sets. Cool and unmould on a bed of lettuce leaves. Garnish with parsley and radish roses. Serve with dressing made by mixing equal parts of boiled salad dressing and whipped cream.

Sunday Night Supper Salad

On centre of tea plate place in cupped lettuce leaves, one whole tomato, stuffed with chicken salad. Radiating from this place four thin slices of buttered bread. On first slice heap ground chives, on second cream cheese, on third ground nuts, on fourth ground cold meat. Place whole stuffed olives on side of plate and garnish with parsley.

Orange Cookies

One half cup butter, one cup sugar, grated rind of one orange (or lemon if preferred), three teaspoons baking powder, one egg, half cup orange or lemon juice, three cups flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Cream shortening, add sugar and mix well until blended, add the egg and beat thoroughly. Add grated orange or lemon rind. Mix baking powder and salt with flour. Add to the first mixture alternately with orange juice. Mix thoroughly. Chill dough over night. Roll thin on a floured moulding board. Cut with round cutter. Brush with unbeaten white of egg and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake on greased baking sheets 10 minutes in a moderately hot oven 375 degrees.

These two recipes, together with a good cup of coffee, make an ideal Sunday night supper. In a previous issue I gave you a recipe for lemon puffs, these would make an ideal extra dish for a Sunday night supper.

ONE LETTER SHORT

LONDON — (CP) — Mrs. M. Marks of Montreal, Y.M.C.A., club hostess, interviewed a dejected Canadian who had received an unpleasant cable from his wife. Trans-Atlantic investigation revealed the reason. The wife had received a cable from the husband in which one word was garbled. It read: "Am on leave in London. Having wonderful time. Wish you were her."

MORE LONDON BUSES

LONDON — (CP) — The Empire capital is to have 61 new utility buses of a type of which five already are in service. They feature woodenslatted seats.

INVASION NURSE—Lt. (Nursing Sister) Doris Boddy, of Oshawa, was the proudest woman in England when she shook hands with the King during a pre-invasion inspection. She is attached to a casualty clearing station of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps.

For up in Heaven we will meet again.

are employed, or where deemed necessary by the inspector, a matron or female supervisor shall have charge of the female employees.

(3) No child under 14 years shall be employed in a factory, shop, bakeshop, restaurant or office building.

(B) Collective Bargaining.

The Collective Bargaining Act, 1943, establishes the right by law of employees to join any bargaining agency they may choose. Labor affairs are now administered by the Labor Relations Board of Ontario (1944) subject to the Dominion Wartime Labor Relations Board.

(C) Workmen's Compensation.

We appreciate the vigorous effort which the government has put into the enforcement of the Apprentice Act, especially in connection with the building trades, together with the Minimum Wage Act which was also enforced with vigor during 1943.

Other Measures

Other helpful measures enacted or projected are:—(1) The establishment of the Ontario Labor Relations Board providing for 14 days' calm consideration of a dispute before a strike can take place. The Board consists of a chairman, vice-chairman and six other members.

(2) The bill respecting hours of work and vacations with pay in industrial undertakings establishes an eight-hour day for employees and a vacation with pay of at least one week in the year. This Act will come into operation on July 1, 1944. Exemptions are possible until December 31, 1944.

(3) We appreciate the value of the Dominion National Wartime Labor Relations Board which has already intervened with success in several labor disputes.

(4) We understand the Dominion Government has before it an intensive program of social measures such as: better housing, family allowances, a floor under farm prices, health insurance and contributory old age pensions. Also an act to establish a department of reconstruction which will promote and co-ordinate planning for national development and post-war employment.

(5) The Industrial Bank Act aims at promoting the economic welfare of Canada by supplementing the activities of other lenders, and providing capital assistance for the financing of small enterprises.

We recommend that the Federal Government consider establishing floor prices under farm products in the near future rather than in the post-war period.

The committee recommends that the following shall constitute the standing committee for 1944-45 Revs. E. W. Young, chairman; H. J. Mahoney, secretary; E. M. Cook, V. R. McNeeley, Gregory Vlastos, Wesley L. Smith. C. W. Trill, A. L. Shorten; Messrs. F. E. Reesor, Elmer Davis, Ed Butler and A. E. Adams."

The report of the committee was adopted.

Maynooth Boy Drops Into Channel

LONDON, June 10—(CP)—FO. Don Goodwin of Maynooth, Ont., baled out over the Channel when he ran out of gas after his tank was hit by flak. He jumped from 3,000 feet, was picked up by a Polish destroyer a half hour later and returned to England by launch the next day after spending the night on the ship.

Goodwin baled out once last year between Sicily and Malta when operating from the George Cross Island.

Invasion News Taken Calmly No Line Of Donors At Clinic

There was little sign of a rush to sign up at the Blood Donors' Clinic this week following the news that the Allies had invaded France, it was announced today. The same good attendance which has been chalked up for several months was maintained. Donors on Monday numbered 73 and on Wednesday 95, many of them from the district.

A number of donors told the clinic staff that though they realized their blood was too late to help in the initial attack, they were glad to give it because it would probably be needed soon. An avid interest in the latest news reports was the only other sign of invasion consciousness.

Donors on Monday were:

LEARN BRIDGE FAST

12—Slam Bidding

THERE ARE many ways of reaching a bid of Little Slam or Grand Slam when your side is lucky enough to have been dealt the cards which can make one. On the rarest of occasions—you may not see this happen in years of play—some one player may get a holding so freakish that he is justified in making an immediate bid of six-odd or even seven-odd, an undertaking to score 12 or 13 tricks respectively.

Most slams come when the strength is pretty well divided between the two partners. In such cases, it is possible to arrive at slam contracts in any of several different ways. Or perhaps it would be better to say there are several ways to save you from bidding slams which cannot be made. To make a slam necessitates two main factors—total trick-taking ability to produce the 12 or 13 tricks for which you contract, and ability to keep the opponents from taking the setting trick or tricks before you get started on your side's tricks.

Between you and your partner, you may have the cards with which your side could take six tricks in spades, five in hearts and three in diamonds—a total of 14. But if you each have two little clubs, the opponents may be able to score two tricks in that suit before you get under way. Hence, you lack the necessary "controls," as many players call them.

Bearing in mind this factor, you may find some deals on which your side can bid to slam naturally. The bidding back and forth may go: 1-Spade, 3-Spades; 6-Spades. Or 1-Heart, 3-Diamonds; 4-Diamonds, 6-Diamonds. Or 1-Heart, 2-No Trumps; 3-Hearts, 5-Hearts; 6-Hearts.

Many good players stick to natural bidding like that to reach slams. Some prefer to indulge at times in what is called cue-bidding, which means the showing of location of aces or blank suits which can be ruffed. Suppose the bidding gets under way like this: 1-Spade, 3-Spades; 4-Diamonds. The suit, spades, having been agreed upon, the first bidder is showing first-round control of diamonds with an ace or blank and wants his partner to show any first-round control. If he responds with 5-Clubs, thereby indicating ability to take the first trick in clubs, he denies first-round control of the more-easily-shown heart ace or blank. That may be just what the first man fears, or just what he wants to hear. He can then bid slam or sign off at five.

Another conventional slam signal is a bid of an opponent's suit after you have heard a bid by your partner. In that situation it indicates ability to take the first trick in the hostile suit and a fit with your partner's, with enough strength to make slam seem likely.

Some players like what is called the "Blackwood convention." After either partner has bid a suit, a call of 4-No Trumps is the "Blackwood" slam signal, artificially asking about your partner's aces. He replies artificially, 5-Clubs, meaning he has none; 5-Diamonds, 1; 5-Hearts, 2; 5-Spades, 3; 5-No Trumps, all four. Following response to the 4-No Trumps, a bid of 5-No Trumps asks about the kings, which are shown by the same general methods, 6-Clubs denying any; 6-Hearts, 2; 6-Spades, 3; 6 No-Trumps, 4. If used carefully, when enough total playing tricks are in sight, this device to locate controls can help you reach makable slams and avoid non-makable ones. But be sure enough playing tricks are in sight if you use it, and while you are a beginner it may be best not to monkey with it at all.

Premier Lauds System Of Education

REGINA, June 10—(CP)—A. H. Bence, Saskatoon Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament, said last night his party in Saskatchewan is offering a farmer's man and a sound program of reform as an alternative to the "spent force" of the Liberals and an experiment in Socialism of the C.C.F.

In Saskatchewan election campaign address at Vonda, Mr. Bence said Rupert D. Ramsay, provincial Progressive Conservative leader, understood agriculture and he had gathered a group of candidates who were capable of looking after the best interests of the people, particularly farmers.

Premier W. J. Patterson, speaking at Simpson, said that despite charges by critics of the government in regard to the education tax, "every dollar collected in this manner, less three per cent for administrative purposes, is used to provide school services."

Use No Force.

He said the education system in Saskatchewan compares favorably with that in any other province and this was shown by the number of Saskatchewan enlistments in the R.C.A.F. early in the war when education requirements were high.

At Kamsack, Harold Winch, C.C.F. leader in British Columbia, said "no one in the C.C.F. has ever said the C.C.F. would use force."

Mr. Winch charged that a message from Premier Patterson to the people in the province, which appeared in the Kamsack Times weekly newspaper, was a "distortion" of what he had said in a Calgary address last fall.

Mr. Winch recalled that in Calgary he stated that when the people gave the C.C.F. a mandate in a province or in the Dominion it would enact certain progressive legislation. If those who oppose the people's government do not abide by the laws enacted they will be handled by law enforcement bodies of the Crown, he said.

German Girls Do Men's Work

By LARRY ALLEN
Associated Press Staff Writer
(Just Repatriated from a German Prison Camp)

NEW YORK, June 10—(AP)—A hundred thousand German girls, tossing coupling links about as if they were powderpuffs, are working on the Reich's great railway system.

Tens of thousands of others are in the Luftwaffe with specially picked squads of "blitz" girls for rescue work and clean-ups after Allied bombings.

During my eight months as a prisoner of war in Germany I was transported through all sections of the nation except the Berlin area, constantly impressed by the girls.

They do a man's job, whether it's coupling cars, inspecting brakes, or "smashing baggage." But they have their weaknesses.

On my last trip through southern and western Germany toward freedom I gave a blonde conductress a bar of soap which mean her first real bath in many months. In return, she gave me my first kiss in nearly two years.

It's wonderful what a bar of soap will do!

Union Finances C.C.F. Election

RAYMORE, Sask., June 10 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner, in a Saskatchewan election campaign speech here yesterday, said a labor organization which "put on a slow-down strike" when farmers were rushing hogs to packing plants was helping to finance the C.C.F.

The Minister said C.C.F. denials that the party received campaign funds from the Congress of Industrial Organization was "hair-splitting."

"The fact is that the Canadian branch of the C.I.O. is called the Canadian Congress of Labor," Mr. Gardiner said.

"They (the C.C.F.) say the C.I.O. doesn't subscribe funds to a political organization in Canada, but they don't deny the C.C.L. does."

Speaking at a campaign meeting in support of Henry Mang, Liberal candidate in Last Mountain constituency, Mr. Gardiner said that slow-down movements at the Swift Canadian plant in St. Boniface, Man., and the Burns packing plant at Edmonton in recent months, had reduced food supplies for armed forces and for the people of the United Kingdom. Many farmers lost money through the delays, he said.

Legion Favors Social Security

VANCOUVER, June 10 (CP) Delegates ot the biennial convention of the Dominion Command, Canadian Legion, today headed home following approval yesterday of a rehabilitation plan designed to improve Canada's economic structure and stressing protection of war veterans.

Extended discussion of the plan, decision to hold the next convention at Quebec City in 1946 and installation of officers resulted in much unfinished business including consideration of 42 printed resolutions and the reports of the Imperials Division and the Soldier Settlement Committee.

The rehabilitation report contained plans for comprehensive social security for war veterans as well as detailed reconstruction proposals for all Canadians. A Dominion-provincial conference was suggested to eliminate any possible obstacles in the way of a full rehabilitation program.

Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche, National War Services Minister, in an address to the closing session, urged all Legion members to work towards elimination of racial dissension in the Dominion.

Prompt Action Saves Youth 17

KINGSTON, June 10 — (CP) — James Webster, 17, of Toronto, today was credited with saving the life of Pat Nobes, 17, also of Toronto, when the two were buried for an hour in a coal pile in the hull of the coal carrier Coalfax.

Nobes had gone into the hull of the boat, during unloading operations yesterday to get shelter from a rain storm, and without warning the coal on which he was standing started to be drawn into the automatic loader. He was caught and his cries for help were heard by Webster, who jumped into the pile and locked his legs around the other youth.

Members of the crew said Nobes was completely buried and that Webster had formed an air channel allowing air to reach him. Neither suffered any ill-effects, although Nobes was taken to hospital for a check-up.

Mrs. Percy Stinson led in prayer, and Mrs. J. H. Barringer presided at the piano.

The secretary's report showed $1.29 from the mile of coppers at the May meeting, $3.90 in fees, and $2 in donations. The account for work done at the parsonage, amounting to $30.33, was presented and ordered paid, and the treasurer, Mrs. J. The shrubs planted last week in front of the church were referred to, and the bill, amounting to about $26, was ordered paid. The hostess team fund is now $25.25, with more to come in.

It was decided to canvass for subscriptions in place of the usual fowl supper in the fall, and the canvassers were appointed. Centre street, Mrs. H. J. # Government Names New Pension Board

TORONTO, June 10 — (CP) — The Ontario Government to-day announced the appointment of separate commissions to administer old-age pensions and mothers' allowances. Previously they were handled by a joint commission with the late J. A. Falkner, former Provincial Health Minister, who died recently, as chairman.

Charles H. Green, formerly of Hanover, is named chairman of the Old-Age Pensions Commission, with Mrs. Mary Powell, former Chief Inspector of the joint Board, and B. W. Heise, Deputy-Minister of Welfare, as the other members. Mr. Green was a vice-chairman of the former Commission.

Capture Churchill

LONDON, June 10 (CP)—The German high command, in its communique broadcast today, claimed that Lt.-Col. Tom Churchill, a British army officer described as commandant of the Island of Lussino in the Adriatic, had been taken prisoner. Berlin identified Churchill as a nephew of Prime Minister Churchill.

Maj. Randoplh Churchill, son of the prime minister, is in Yugoslavia, but he was last reported on the mainland. Nothing was known here about a Tom Churchill.

Last March the German radio reported British Commandos had landed on Lussino—or Lissa island—and were fighting under "a British general by the name of Churchill."

IT'S THE ECONOMY ENGINE

RIGHT ON THE HEELS of our advancing troops a cable-laying truck speeds up the road, spewing out telephone cable as it goes. At a cross-roads the operators leap out and erect poles to carry the cable, or bury it for safety beneath the roadway. Soon the network of communications is bringing in reports and carrying orders to the various army units.

* * * * *

A storm strikes in Canada, telephone poles crash to the ground, and vital threads of communication are broken. But in a few minutes a service truck is at the scene of the damage, wires are connected up and vital messages of a nation at war are again speeding from city to city or across a continent.

A very large percentage of the trucks which serve the Allied Nations here in Canada and on the far-flung battlefronts are rugged, dependable Ford Trucks. The power plant which drives these trucks is the Ford V-8 Engine. This amazing piece of Ford engineering has been developed, improved, perfected through the years, and today it is setting new records of trouble-free performance. Above all it's the economy engine, easy on oil, and extremely saving of precious gasoline.

WAITING FOR YOU, SOLDIER

AS you blaze the victory trail ever nearer to the gates of Berlin and Tokyo, how often, soldier, do your thoughts stray to other highways that lead to the water's edge of your favourite playground? How often, on bombing flights over enemy territory, do you see, in your mind's eye, vistas of sparkling waters bordered by rocky shores and virgin forest? How often, as you search for lurking submarines, do your thoughts turn to other less offensive quarry you have sought in other waters? How often, as you press home the point of the dagger, do you, in memory, relax upon a carpet of pine needles and listen to the soft lap, lap of the water against the shore?

It is all here still—protected by your efforts on distant battlefields—awaiting your return.

Maskinonge Re-echo the Call of Kawarthas

By PETE McGILLEN

MASKINONGE is a magic word to the fisherman, a word that conjures a mind picture of rippling waters, and stream-lined dynamite-laden fish, the mightiest battler of all in Canadian inland waters.

Sportsmen who glory in a battle with this sleek black submarine-like fish have coupled the sport of muskie fishing with the Kawartha Lakes for so long that when one thinks of catching the muskie, the locale presents itself without effort, for no stretch of waters in all Ontario produces more maskinonge in a year than the Kawarthas.

While it is true that larger fish are caught in the Fort Frances district, Vermilion lakes and in the St. Lawrence, many more of the size running from ten to 30 pounds are snagged in the Kawartha chain of waters, and thus down through the years, this part of the country has become the mecca for more and more fishermen anxious to prove to their friends that they fought and conquered the fish that fears nothing in the water, the fish that swims with lightning speed, and whose antics at the end of a fishing line would delight even the man who has battled tuna and tarpon.

Peterborough city, a thriving industrial city nestling in the valley of the Otonabee River, 28 miles north of Lake Ontario, is the hub of the maskinonge country. The Otonabee drains the entire Kawartha chain into Rice Lake, and this lake coupled with the river and the chain of several large sections of water forming a semi-circle north of Peterborough, comprise the Kawartha Lakes. The lakes in question starting at Lakefield, and naming them in their proper sequence include Katchewanooka, Clear, Stoney, Lovesick, Little and Big Buckhorn, Chemong, Pigeon, Sturgeon, Cameron and Balsam.

The surprising thing about the Kawartha chain aside from its rare beauty and fishing reputation is its accessibility, for this section makes no demands on the man who wants things comfortable. He need undergo no hardships either to reach the Kawarthas or to enjoy his holiday there.

Highway 28, running north from Port Hope, on Highway 2, cuts through the heart of this stretch of lakes, and Lakefield, Young's Point, Burleigh, Buckhorn, Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls are all main points along a road that is smooth and modern.

Wherever the water from one lake tumbled in wild array to a lower level of another lake in its journey to Lake Ontario, the early lumbermen had to build dams, then some enterprising settler built a mill, and soon a village sprang up, and these villages grown in some instances to towns survive today to cater to the modern-day tourist who wants a holiday.

Lakefield Inn, at Lakefield, and Lakeview House at Young's Point, both on Lake Katchewanooka, have an established fishing clientele, and their hospitality is such that a visitor will want to return. On Clear Lake there is Clear View Camp, operated by Tom Curvin, whose post office is Young's Point. This is a cottage camp. South Beach Hotel close by is a summer hotel with the little room and tables for the man who likes a liquid appetizer.

On Stoney Lake there is Burnham Lodge, Viamede Hotel, Maple Leaf Hotel, Kawartha Park Lodge, and many others. While at Burleigh Falls there is the commodious Park Hotel, and directly across the lake is Forest Hill Lodge operated by an American.

Buckhorn Lodge, Pearson's cottages, Windsor Hotel and Bayview are prominent on the list of resorts in the Buckhorn area. Oak Orchard Lodge operated by Perry Alexander is on Buckhorn Lake and caters to fishermen who want the best.

Locust Lodge and Whyte's Lodge at Bobcaygeon are summer spots for hundreds of fishermen who want to fish both Pigeon and Sturgeon Lakes, and at the same time live in a village which has many of the conveniences that make a holiday more enjoyable.

These are only a few of the outstanding resorts on the Kawarthas but many others can be spotted by examining the advertisements appearing in this edition.

Other Game Fish Also.

Small-mouth black bass, large-mouth bass, pickerel, catfish and panfish are to be had in any of the lakes to supplement the maskinonge fishing. Stoney Lake in particular has developed into a great spot for pickerel in recent years because of the great number of fresh water herring in these waters. These fish are down deep and the pickerel feed on them, and are growing at a great rate.

Conservative estimates place the number of summer cottages in Peterborough county on the Kawartha Lakes and Otonabee River at upwards of 3,500, and this will be music to the ears of Canadians who are seeking a summer spot close to home. The cottages range from humble two-room affairs to commodious lakeside residences, many with all the conveniences of city dwellings.

Best In Ontario.

Americans rate the Kawartha district with the best fishing section in all Ontario, such as Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor and Ottawa even know of its existence.

This unusual state of affairs in due to the fact that most of the publicity from this area has been directed at attracting the Americans, and in the meantime Toronto anglers and holiday-seekers have wandered far into the north looking for a choice vacation spot, or fishing ground, when all the time they were within one hundred miles of the Kawarthas. The accessibility of the Kawartha district to Toronto is perfect, in that paved provincial highways wind into the very heart of this paradise of beautiful lakes, while regular bus service and train service is available to take tourists to resorts all through the district.

The northern section of Peterborough county has a network of improved gravel roads, serving every resort centre, and the scenery is unsurpassed for beauty anywhere east of the Rockies. Here the tourist can find modern accommodation in a primeval setting, here he can catch fish

Bridge Laid On Surface Of the Water

THE spectacle of a floating wooden bridge, 16 feet wide and with its driving surface just a few inches above the level of the water, stretching more than half a mile across picturesque Chemong Lake never fails to thrill tourists to Peterborough County, who recall that most unusual passage as one of the memorable features of their visit to Canada. It is indeed an unique structure, that anchored contraption of logs and planks giving access from the northwestern townships to the business and municipal town to the south. Most visitors admit that they have never seen anything like it, and they are right for motor traffic in few other places in the world is carried over a floating bridge of that type.

From the earliest settlement of Ennismore and Harvey townships down to the present day, farmers of that area have petitioned governments for a bridge firmly built on piers that would stand up against the buffeting of stormy weather especially during the season when Spring is at odds with lingering winter, and often wind-blown ice floes breached the floating wooden highway was forced to trudge the long way round the west end of the lake.

Obstacle of Expense

Generations have bowed to engineers' estimates of prohibitive costs even when long approaches and fills were considered as possible expedients to reduce the prospective expenditure. And so it came about as a recourse to which there was no practical alternative that the first floating bridge was built about the year 1869.

Farmers of Harvey and Ennismore were trading at Bobcyageon and Omemee, and some even went as far as Lindsay because for many of them the wagon route around the head of the lake at LAZY SUMMER DAYS at a summer cottage on the shores of Stoney Lake is a soothing tonic for jaded nerves and tired business men and women. In the scene above, Walter J. Jurvis, 256 Seaspray Ave., Palm Beach, Florida, and his family find the cooling breezes of a Canadian setting to their liking. The picture was taken while the party was enjoying a holiday at Wantasa Inn on Stoney Lake.

City Is Hub To Great HolidayLand

EAST, west, north and south! Good roads radiate from Peterborough to carry the vacation-bound tourist or the sight-seeing driver in whatever direction the mood dictates. And rare is the route which fails to afford the reward of sparkling blue waters and beauteous landscape vistas.

Peterborough is geographically situated to be the natural starting point for many drives through Ontario's choicest summer playground area, the lake-gemmed Kawartha region. A one-hour drive to the north-east brings the motorist within reach of the spell-binding beauties of the Stoney and Clear Lake system. To the north-west are the summer paradises afforded by Chemong, Pigeon, Buckhorn and Sturgeon Lakes. A short drive over good roads southward leads to 'lunge, pickerel and bass beds of Rice Lake, to the east lie Trent River, Belmont Lake and Crowe Lake.

Several Choice Routes

The picnic-bound or sight-seeing motorist has several route choices if he wishes to see the Kawartha waters to the north of Peterborough. He may proceed over improved road directly to Warsaw and thence to McCracken's Landing, one of the leading Stoney Lake summer colony centres. If he wishes to continue to Crowe's Landing, he will pass through widely-renowned rock setting of Gilchrist Bay.

The west approach to the Stoney Lake system provides access to a different aspect of the waters. One may proceed north on Highway 28 to Young's Point, thence to Kawartha Park to Burleigh Falls and to Viamede and Mount Julian.

Over The Floating Bridge

A fine choice of sight-seeing circuits are afforded to the north-west. Beautiful is the drive to be had by proceeding north on

Shore Dinner Prepared By Indian Guide One Of A Vacations Greatest Thrills

By PETE McGILLEN

EVERY fisherman has visions of what a fish dinner should be like, but few—very few have their dreams come true, because too few people know just how to cook fish properly.

To the American tourist the catching of a fish is at the top of the calendar of vacation thrills, but a shore dinner, prepared by an Indian guide in the Kawarthas runs a close second, and more than once a portly business man from the crowded cities, has leaned his back against a stump or a large stone munched mouth full of tender muskie or delicious pickerel,, and has declared then and there that heaven has nothing that can be more satisfying that that.

It's all too true, and any fisherman using a little care and judgement can prepare a fish dinner in the open that would tempt the gods.

A Standing Rule

One rule stands out above all others: "Have the grease in the pan piping hot before putting the fish in the pan". This above all must not be neglected, and while there are a lot of other things to remember if this one rule is followed, the cook can expect a reasonable amount of culinary success in his meal preparing.

Of course to do the job right, one must remember that to get the utmost benefit from a fish that is to be eaten, care must be taken with it from the minute it is caught to the time it comes out of the pan. A few pointers, simple in themselves and easily remembered should be added to the storehouse of knowledge which every fisherman has. When a fish is caught and is large enough to be a "keeper", he should be killed. Don't throw him on the bottom of the boat and leave him to die, and don't string him through the gills and leave him to strangle. Kill him at once, then make sure he is kept fresh until he is ready for cooking. Fish should be strung on a line, if one is boat fishing, and allowed to hang in the water, "after being killed", or if one is ashore, they can be stored in damp ferns or grass or in a damp cloth. Dress the fish as soon as possible and then wrap them in a wet cloth or paper and put on ice. In lieu of ice, damp ferns or grass and a STONEY LAKE produced this 22½ pounds of battling maskinonge and it was captured after a lively battle by Mrs. Halford of Cleveland. She was casting from a boat about 200 yards off the Mount Julian shore when the underwater monster decided he wanted the lure and the fight was on.

Front Cover

A KEEN amateur photographer with an eye for unusual pictures, produced the picture used on the front cover of the Vacation Edition this year. The shot was made by Major James McGrath, M.M. of Peterborough, and it was taken through the grill in the window opening out of the concrete tunnel in the Peterborough Hydraulic Lift Lock. In the background, the steamer Bessie Butler is shown as it entered the lower pontoon at the lock while proceeding up the Trent Canal. This clever piece of work shows excellent detail and good composition.

HERE IS ONE of the sweetest rewards of a fishing trip to the Kawarthas made in September of last year by Mrs. Walter Booher of Niagara Falls, New York. That's a 23-lb. muskie she's holding, caught in the waters of Buckhorn Lake. Mrs. Booher was staying at Charles Herkimer's at the time she brought ashore this fine specimen of the finny tribe. Note the smile of pleasure; it was spontaneous and not just for the benefit of the cameraman.

Four Species of Game Fish in this District

FOUR major species of game fish maskinonge, bass, pickerel and lake trout are caught in quantity in the Peterborough district, and the visitor who wants some lake trout can get them by driving 42 miles north on highway 28 to the village of Apsley. From this point he has the choice of at least six first class lake trout spots all within a three mile radius of the village, but the lake that seems to hold the most coveted place in the minds of fishermen is Jack's Lake.

This body of water is two miles from Apsley, and just far enough off the highway so that persons cannot see it. There is however a good gravel road right to the shore of the lake. It is a beautiful spot, and is quite extensive with several deep bays branching off, and these with the heavily wooded shores provide plenty of protection on windy days. For years it has been noted as a famous bass and trout lake, but with the building of highways into the hinterland, the trout fishermen for the most part moved on to new fields, up in Haliburton, and other good lake trout spots. Invariably they would return to Jack's Lake, for this spot has retained its reputation down through the years as a fisherman's haven.

George Davis, Cecil Hayes, Carl Hayes, and Fred Goodfellow, of Peterborough have fished lake trout all over the district, and they claim there is not a lake, not even the great Kennessis in Haliburton that can match Jack's Lake for consistently good fishing. In two days fishing the quartet caught 33 trout, and the largest weighed eight pounds, with the average about 4½ pounds.

This gang of copper line enthusiasts use two boats and about 250 feet of metal line. As a rule three of them use monel metal

LIMIT OF SIZE OF FISH

Pickerel fishermen should remembers that there is a limit on the size of pickerel to be caught this year. The fish must not be less than 13 inches in length, measuring from the tip of the lower jaw to the fork of the tail. This is a sensible law because a pickerel this small is all bones, and fishermen should not hesitate to return the fish to thew ater, as the pickerel is a hardy fish and can stand quite a bit of rough handling.

One Big Fish Brought Many Guests to the Heart of Kawarthas

THIS story is about a big maskinonge and all the grief he brought to his finny fellows in Deer Bay a few miles around the bend from Buckhorn, in the heart of the Kawarthas.

That's the way he looked when Ed Thorpe got him ashore at Bay View, W. H. Pearson's summer resort. Just as a remembrance of a grand afternoon's fishing some one got out the camera, and later, on second thought, Ed. decided the big fellow was worth mounting, to be hung on the wall somewhere at home to revive, between season's, the thrills of many a holiday in the Arcadian summer land and lakes of the Kawarthas.

And so to the taxidermist, and finally home to Niles, Ohio; and when it came to picking out a place for his trophy Ed Thorpe selected a conspicuous wall in his show room, a convenient spot in his line of vision, and of easy visibility for his friends and other customers. Wasn't that the man of him!

Thorpe had a popular agency for Johnson outboard motors, Nash automobiles and substantial things of that kind at Niles, Ohio. His home was at Warren, nearby, and Youngstown was really part of the same community.

Fame Thrust On Muskie

Some fish are like some men; they have fame thrust upon them. Of all the thousands and thousands of fighting muskies in Deer Bay, fate singled out the big fellow in the picture to verify and authenticate one of Ed. Thorpe's big days while up in Ontario on a vacation.

The taxidermist had made a good job of it, and although Ed. had long ago passed the novice stage as a fisherman, he was proud of the big fellow that looked stripped and stream-lined for action.

The more demonstrative of his friends were pop-eyed and almost incredulous when they first saw it.

"Why, Ed., you old pirate, where'd you steal that whale?" some of them would exclaim. "Don't tell me you caught it!" And the emphasis might be on the "caught" or perhaps on the "you."

Strangers entering Thorpe's showrooms omitted the personal greeting from their tributes.

"Where the deuce do you get fish like that?" they would ask, especially every one who like fishing.

And to one and all of them, Ed. Thorpe would try to tell where Deer Bay was, and how you get to it up in the Kawarthas beyond Peterborough—and not so long a trip either.

Mr. Thorpe died a few years ago, and in his passing the Deer Bay section of the Kawarthas lost an extremely valuable booster who sent scores, perhaps hundreds, of Ohio people into the district he loved so well, and in which he was as affectionately known as in his own home of Niles and Warren.

So that's the story of Ed Thorpe and his mounted muskie. But, you may wonder, how did Ed. Thorpe find his way to Deer Bay in the first place, and that is an interesting and introductory chapter rounding out and completing the picture. The Examiner heard it some time ago from W. H. Pearson, the proprietor of Bay View. It goes back to a year or two before the war, and incidentally it relates how Mr. Pearson discovered a new and profitable and thoroughly agreeable occupation, gradually developing his present summer resort on Deer Bay.

Just a Woods in 1912

"Up to 1912 I had been farming down near the North Smith cheese factory," Mr. Pearson recalled. "I had this 250 acres on Deer Bay, a lot of it wood land, and I decided I'd fix it up for a cattle ranch. The first thing I did was to build a cottage for the family, my wife and our son and myself. We are still using it. That part of the shore was almost like a park, or at least it was the easiest cleared. There was no road through the woods, just an old lumberman's trail from the time when timber, cut in that district, used to be hauled down to the shore of Deer Bay during the winters.

"Probably the first American I met was John C. Hill of Pittsburgh. He had a party of 10 boys, members of his Sunday School class, camped on an island about half a mile from where we were, and in the direction of Lovesick Lake. It wasn't long until Mr. Hill and several of the boys came over to get some milk and vegetables from us. He liked our shore,

Woman Describes Hooking Big Muskie

LAST August we spent our ninth successive year vacationing in the beautiful Kawartha Lakes in Ontario, and we hope to spend many more there. We expect to even go this year, war or no war.

For me, 1943 was the banner fishing year. I had caught many muskies while trolling, but had never caught one casting until last season. After many thousand hours' practise I finally became good enough so that my husband and son would consent to me casting from the same boat that they were in. On August Sixteen, Bill Guthrie of Toronto, who was also staying at Beachwood on Deer Bay, caught a beautiful lunge and saw another one break water. When he came in with his prize he told me where the other big fellow had been seen. Early the next morning we headed for the spot. We had cast about an hour when we, too, were lucky enough to see this "Old Socker" rise to the surface. Immediately the plugs started to fly furiously. Finally my husband stopped casting and took up the oars to keep the boat in line. I was in the front end of the boat and my son in the rear and my husband in the middle. The wind was high and it was all one person could do to keep the boat on its course with the oars. The motor, of course, was tipped up. As we approached some cat-tail reeds I made a sort case (about 15 feet), just to the edge of the reeds. I had made just about two turns on the reel when I thought a torpedo must have tangled with the plug. I just simply yelled, "I've got something here." About that time Mr. Muskie turned into an airplane and headed for the sky. When I saw how large he was I was really frightened. Seven times he leaped clear of the water, once coming right up over the side of the boat. I was getting all kinds of advice from husband and son and finally said, "If you two will just shut up I will get along all right." It took about twenty minutes to wear that fellow down and the boat was about 300 yards away from where it was when the fight started. After the lunge was safely in the boat we all three shook like a leaf. It was on of the biggest thrills that I have ever had and the memory of that fight will keep me going back to Deer Bay just as long as I can lift a fishing rod. The year before, my husband caught a six-pound bass that took first place in The Peterborough Examiner Fishing Contest, and he had been hard to live with ever since. That bass reposed in

Angling Is An Art Says Walton

"O Sir, doubt not but that Angling is an art. It is not an art to deceive a trout with an artificial fly? a trout that is more sharp-sighted than any hawk you have named, and more watchful and timorous than your high-mettled merlin is bold? doubt not, therefore, sir, but that angling is an art, and an art worth your learning. The question is rather, whether you be capable of learning it? for angling is somewhat like poetry, men are to be born so. I mean, with inclinations to it, though both may me heightened by discourse and practice; but he that hopes to be a good angler must not only bring an enquiring, searching, observing wit, but he must bring a large measure of hope, and patience, and a love and propensity to the art itself; but having once got and practised it, then doubt not but angling will prove to be so pleasant, that it will prove to be like virtue, a reward to itself."—Isaac Walton.

This extract from that well-known English classic "The Compleat Angler," written almost 300 years ago, is typical of the enthusiasm with which the dean of fisherman discourses on his favorite subject, fly fishing. We are reminded of the extract now because spring is in the air and there is an obvious restlessness beginning to appear among those who herald May 1st as the most important date in the year.

Of course the art of angling as Welton describes it is not merely the act of catching fish. This is a simple matter of providing the proper inducement and the means to snare the unwary. The proverbial small boy with pole, string, makeshift hook and can of worms is no artist at the fishing game, but he is invariably successful at catching fish. The inexperienced angler who with a powerful sweep sets the hook and lands the fish with the same excited movement gives no demonstration of either skill or refinement, yet he can catch fish. Trolling with a copper line on a heavy reel attached to the side of a boat and landing the fish by laboriously turning the crank is in no sense of the word artistic, but it effectively does the job.

All of these methods of angling, however unrefined they may appear, are capable of affording excellent sport and the lack of art in the method employed is amply compensated for by the pleasure involved and the results achieved.

The key to Walton's enthusiasm is that sentence in question form, "Is it not an art to deceive a trout with an artificial fly?" He was a keen trout fisherman himself, and even three centuries ago the enthusiasts had learned the added joy which refinements in tackle and skill in operation provide. Fly fishing is becoming more and more popular every year, not only in angling for trout, but for taking many varieties of fish. The use of a fly rod, where such is practicable, and whether or not the angler is skilled in the art of manipulation, will be found to add materially to the thrill of the sport. We have in mind, of course, the lightness, flexibility and general utility of such a rod, and the sense of skill which one feels when subduing a gamey fighter on light tackle.

Having said so much we confess that we are in agreement with Walton when he suggests that "to be a good angler" many virtues and much experience are involved. Expert and accurate casting, a familiarity with natural and artificial flies, a general knowledge or habitat and fish life, these are essential qualifications, but are CHANDOS LAKE, near Apsley, sometimes known as Loon Lake, is a body of water that will intrigue the lake trout fisherman. Noted for its pickerel, bass and lake trout, this Lake also has a lovely sand beach and there are many cottages and a large hotel, called the Lakeview Hotel, which commands a magnificent view of the lake itself.

25½-POUND MUSKIE—Mrs. J. J. Ratchford, Canton, Ohio, landed a 25½-pound muskie in Stoney Lake, and also caught several large pickerel and bass. She was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dunkerley at the time, and Mart McIlmoyle of Lakefield was the guide. Fishing was excellent at the top of the lake last season, and Mrs. Ratchford's. big one was only one of many hauled in during August and September.

Clevelander Battles Muskie Which Weighs 22 Pounds

(See Cut on Page 8)

BOB GOODFRIEND of Cleveland was one of the happiest men to fish the upper Kawarthas last summer all because he happened to catch the biggest maskinonge brought into Burleigh Falls during the season.

He made his first trip to the Kawarthas in 1942 and located at the Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls, which was then operated by Mrs. Nita Doughty, and has since been purchased by Harold G. Weir, of Toronto, a well known merchant in the field of radio.

One day in August he secured Jule Windover, one of the veteran guides of the district and started to fish below the falls in Stoney Lake. It was a glorious day, but the muskies weren't hitting worth a darn. In fact they were on their way home and Goodfriend was trolling when Mr. Muskie decided he wanted the colored tidbit that was spinning through the water. When the fish did snag it, he almost toppled the American out of the boat, and a merry battle ensued. Windover who had seen hundreds of muskies caught, knew they had a big one on, but his client appeared to be handling the fish like a veteran so he just left him alone and looked after the boat.

It seemed ages before the American, with his arms aching was able to get the muskie close to the boat. Three times he was within clubbing distance but each time, as he spotted the men in the boat he cut lose again with rushes to the bottom that had plenty of steam. Finally he was brought alongside, and as he turned over exposing the white belly, the guide whammed him on the head with a club, and he was hauled into the boat.

The fish, a perfectly symmetrical specimen weighed one ounce over 22 pounds, and topped the nearest one to it by two pounds. This 20-pounder was also caught by a guest at the Park Hotel.

Windover, who has been guiding tourists for more than a decade and who is a veteran of both World Wars, stated the muskie fishing in 1943 showed a big improvement over 1942 and he stated more big ones were taken.

It was also learned that Bob Goodfriend, the Clevelander, is coming back in 1944 for another joust with the Kawartha muskies.

not acquired without "discourse and practice" and an enthusiasm for the sport. On the other hand none of these qualifications are difficult to acquire and every angler will find the effort well worth while.

Angling, however, as someone has said, is not so much an art as it is a philosophy—Walton confirms this thought in his recital of the qualifications necessary to a complete enjoyment of the sport—a philosophy combining those virtues which make for happiness and contentment and which, "like virtue bring their own reward."

BURLEIGH FALLS can lay claim to being in the heart of the muskie belt, and this 21-pounder caught July 2, 1943, by Bob Goodfriend of Cleveland is proof. Jules Windover was guide, and both fishermen are shown above with another guest at Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls. The hotel is now under new management, having been taken over by Harold Weir of Toronto. (Story on Page 7)

Where Pickerel and Bass Tie Right Into Bait

FISHERMEN who choose the northern part of Hastings County and Peterborough County near Bancroft are certain to get a variety of fishing that will please the most avid anglers. The country is beautiful and the lakes are more than decorative, for the fishing is tops. There are pickerel, lake trout, small mouth black bass speckled trout and even pike are caught in the York branch of the Madawaska river.

Frank Whitehouse of Peterborough, one of those fishermen who fish all summer and talk fishing all winter had several enjoyable trips to the Bancroft area and one of the highlights of the summer was a visit to Birch Cliff Lodge on Baptiste Lake. Here in his own words is the story of that memorable fishing expedition.

"My fishing partner was Chester A. Wyke of Pittsburgh on the staff of the American Cyanamide Corp. of Pittsburgh.

"We were staying with Art Nicolls, proprietor of Birch Cliff Lodge at Baptiste Lake, about nine miles north of Bancroft.

"The previous night we had asked Art regarding a good fishing spot where we could really catch fish, and he suggested "Grassy Bay," 10 miles up the lake, where Baptiste Lake narrows down into a river which enters into Elephant Lake.

"We had a good supply of bait, including dew worms, frogs, and minnows. About two miles this side of "Grassy Bay" the water is quite shallow, with weeds and stumps all round. This seemed to be an ideal spot for pickerel."

Land Six Pickerel.

"We slowed the motor down to trolling speed, and started fishing, using June-bug spinner and worms and before we had gone twenty-five yards we were both fast to pickerel. Inside of ten minutes we had six pickerel in the boat, none of them under three pounds.

"We finally arrived in Grassy Bay, around noon, and decided to have lunch. Art Nicolls had put us up a shore dinner, complete with everything including frying pan, hand axe, grate, etc.

"While Ches. started a fire on shore, I cleaned two of the fish, and we were soon full of delicious fried pickerel.

"After lunch, we anchored off one of the many stumps in Grassy Bay, and started casting. Ches. was using a vamp Spook plug, and I was using one of Red Edgar's Lucky Strike submarine plugs.

"Ches. caught the first pickerel on his fourth cast, and almost immediately afterwards, I connected with the biggest one of the day."

A Bass Nails The Bait.

"While I was playing it, Ches. was reeling his line in to give me more room. As he was lifting the plug out of the water a bass (small mouth) which afterwards weighed 3½ lbs. zoomed up, and nailed it, jumping clean up out of the water. In the excitement both tackle boxes were knocked over, and the boat was a mess. However, to make a long story short, Ches. landed his bass, and after locating the net which was full of plugs, he finally slipped it under my fish, and eased him into the boat. Later on in the day, after we had arrived back at the lodge, the fish weighed just a fraction under 7½ pounds.

"We started the motor up again, and decided to do some casting, drifting down along the shore. From then on we caught smallmouth bass. On a number of occasions we both had fish on at the same time.

"In all, we hadn't fished in Grassy Bay over three hours, and we started back to camp, each with a limit catch of bass and pickerel. Four of the bass weighed four pounds and over, and as I said before, the largest pickerel tipped the scales at almost 7½ lbs. It was a very successful fishing trip, and one that will long be remembered by both of us.

"Art Nicolls has everything at his lodge, boats, outboard motors, individual sleeping cabins with Marshall spring mattresses and Hudson Bay blankets, and the best meals to be had anywhere. All his guests are welcome to second helpings, and most of them take advantage of it!

"Other Peterborough guests included Mrs. and Mr. Roy Turner, Mrs. and Mr. Charles Lacheur (of the Post Office), Mrs. and Mr. Bill Swiss, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clarke."

25-Pounder Battles With Guide

By R. S. HANCOCK

WHEN my daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Steed of Toronto, whilst on a visit to us at Bewdley last summer, expressed a desire to go out after the big ones, although it looked a little threatening, we started out in the motor launch Mary. After seeing my son off with another friend whose boat headed for Pengelleys Bay.

As I had not fished a certain stretch near Stoney Point for some time, we headed that way and some distance out cast out our baits. My daughter used a silver flash minnow and fortunately a new 28-lb. test silk line. We were trolling along with a small sinker with about 75 feet of line. Of course we were talking quite a lot and hoping one of the big ones would feel hungry and naturally Cicely and Ewart wanted to catch something so as to beat my friends boat.

I was adjusting my bait, when my daughter called out: "I've caught something". On hearing her, I turned the boat and saw quite a sight, a real beauty making one of those spectacular leaps, telling Cicely to give the fish lots of line, which she did, at the same time handing over the rod to Ewart, who himself had never caught a large fish. A little coaching and he certainly handled that muskie like a veteran, giving the fish line, when the tension was heavy and winding in line when he was able and the fish coming. After about 20 excitingly minutes the fish came up for the final swirl. Ewart started to wind him in, and when close enough, I gaffed him, and you can imagine the excitement of these two when they saw their first big Muskie in the bottom of the boat. Of course they wanted to try to get another, so I made for the other boat which was about one-half mile ahead in the bay. You should have heard the shout go up when Ewart lifted the fish up for them to see. After trolling a little while longer without any more strikes and as sundown was approaching we headed for Bewdley. It weighed one ounce over 25 lbs.

(Bob Hancock is a veteran guide and fisherman at Bewdley, and for almost half a century has been guiding tourists on fishing trips to all parts of Rice Lake and the Otonabee river.)

A RICE LAKE MUSKIE—Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Steed of Toronto are shown with a fighting muskie taken near Bewdley in Rice Lake. This monster went one ounce over the 25 pounds, and gave Mr. Steed a thrilling battle. Mrs. Steed is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hancock of Bewdley, and her father is one of the outstanding guides in the Rice Lake district.

Rice Lake Maskinonge Is Mistaken for Sea Serpent

THE fish and game regulations point out that game fish must be caught with rod and line, not with an axe, a spear, a rope of a hay fork, but what is a man to do when he sees a monster muskie near the surface and has an oar handy.

While there may be a strong flavor of "tall tale angle" to this yarn, nevertheless certain people claim it is the real McCoy so we will pass it along as it came to us.

As the story goes Dever Peak of Toronto and his son Fred were fishing for pan fish off Bewdley last September 4 in Rice Lake, when Mr. Peak saw what he though was a sea serpent coming to the surace close to the boat. Grabbing an ore to defend him-

1943 Big Year for Muskies in Trent Waters

WATER levels in the Trent River have played an increasingly important part in the fish propagation in the Rice Lake and Trent districts during the past few years. Hydro dams on the system control the water and those interested in the fish have watched with dismay the antics of the water levels in the Spring when maskinonge were spawning and a drop in the level meant fish killed in great numbers. But in the Spring of 1943 when the floods raised the levels to new heights and did considerable property damage the men who think of the fishing were for one Spring able to smile, because the water could not be controlled rigidly and the maskinonge got in and spawned. The spawn hatched and got out and thus a mass of young muskies were saved for the fisherman's lure. One such year is insurance for years to come that our tourists and fishermen will know they are there. Add to this the constant, careful restocking carried out along the system, and you have the reason fishing is not slipping in the reaches of the Trent waterway.

Good Season Last Year

More muskies than have been taken for many seasons were pulled from the waters of the Trent in 1943.

A 20-pound beauty culminated a July three week's stretch of good fishing for A. Sprinks of Toronto, who spends his summer holidays at Cedar Dale Lodge, Trent River. Mr. Sprinks and a party of American friends, Mr. Richards and Rip Kyle of Youngstown, Ohio, had been trying to outdo each other for a week, and on the day following the departure of the boys from the U.S.A., Mr. Sprinks hooked his 20 pounder. He had to do his crowing by letter and by snapshot. The fish was caught at the head of Mud Lake.

Lands Big One in Canoe

Just to show the visitors don't get them all, John Garneau, well known riverman, hooked one that weighed 22 pounds in Maskinonge Bay, and landed it in his canoe, a 13 foot trapping canoe. Jack said it wasn't too difficult a job. Just try it some time folks.

Perhaps the largest maskinonge brought in to the bridge during the summer was by Dr. Darsie and Dr. Hadfield of Pittsburgh, Pa., guided by Jim Cook of Maple Inn. And thereby hangs a real fish yarn Fishing near Steamill Island, one mile above the bridge the fish was hooked just at dusk by Dr. Hadfield and after a terrific battle, the big fellow was brought alongside the boat. Mr. Cook, having no net that could handle him used his fish club and hit him very hard. So hard in fact the bait flew from the fish's mouth and he sank slowly from view, to the groans of the disappointed anglers. However Mr. Cook was sure he had killed the fish with the blow, and so early the next morning he went back with the boys to the same spot and there floating belly up in the weeds lay Mr. Lunge. The mark on his head showed that indeed he must have been killed by

TAKEN NEAR KEENE—Jimmy Elmhirst, whose father operates summer cottages about two miles east of Keene village on Rice Lake, caught this maskinonge off Foley's Island in Rice Lake, weight 20 pounds. He is shown above with the Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Anglican Church, Peterborough, who is admiring the beauty.

A BEAUTIFUL BROOKER—Howard Hannah, of Hamilton, takes pride in showing his 5¼-pound brown speckled trout, caught near Campbellford during July, 1943.

New Yorker Gets Excited

WHEN Harold Ball of Hamburg, N. Y., hollers for help in Belmont Lake it does not mean he is drowning or being robbed, but simply indicates he has hooked so large a fish, that he can't land it alone, and not wanting to lose the prize, sends a clarion call for aid, echoing across the waters.

Harold had been fishing half the forenoon last July and only had indifferent luck, when suddenly felt a jerk at his rod, only to discover a broken line. Not to be outdone, he steered for shore and fully armed with stronger tackle and a determined heart he went back to the exact spot. After trolling but a couple of minutes, when a big fellow launched an attack at his bait, and then soaring skyward, to show the fisherman, he was in for a battle. Every conceivable antic of that berserk fish was tried, and it was twenty minutes, before Harold could gaily battle this 22 lb. sleek black master fighter of the deep into submission. Mr. Ball is an ardent fisherman and says Belmont Lake has no equal.

NO MEAT PROBLEM—Lee Trenholm, of Toronto, director of public relations for Underwood Elliott Fisher, Limited, and president of the Advertising and Sales Club of Toronto, with a 25-pound muskie caught at Belmont Lake, Havelock. His tackle consisted of a light casting rod, 18-pound-test line and a double-spoon. He was staying at John Rogers' camp.

Crochet Cotton Used as Line To Land 22-pound Muskie

IT'S a difficult enough task to subdue 22 pounds of fighting maskinonge when one has first class tackle including a 20 or 30 pound test line, but when one is using No. 3 crochet cotton and has little knowledge of its tensile strength then the problem is multiplied.

Peter Haig of Havelock, may aptly be termed a veteran in the realm of fishing, he knows fishing and has a healthy respect for the power and cunning of the maskinonge. Last summer he was presented with a ball of No. 3 crochet cotton by his son-in-law Morley Byam of Toronto, when he was on a fishing jaunt to Round Lake, a few miles north of village. He took the gift with some misgiving hop-

George Hubbell, Earl Parr, Jack Kennedy and Joe Bard take a trip every spring into the lakes north of Havelock with a truck load of bass fry for depositing in Tangamong, Trout, and the other lakes in the back section of the district, thus supplementing the natural growth of the bass population. This restocking has helped maintain the bass at a high level.

Highlands of Haliburton Fashioned To Delight of Vacationists

By PETE McGILLEN

NATURE was in a lavish mood when the Highlands of Haliburton were being fashioned to delight mankind, and today this beautiful section of Ontario is a matchless vacation section, having without exaggeration a combination of attractions for the holiday seeker, that is making Haliburton the premier resort area of the province.

Truly a vacation wonderland, this county is a large area of rugged hills, lovely lakes and streams, and stretches of woodland and vista that beggar description. There are more than 1,000 lakes, 550 of them named, and the fishing particularly for lake trout and speckled trout is truly satisfying.

No matter what type of vacation a person seeks, this section warrants an investigation. For the fisherman, there is bass fishing, speckled trout and lake trout. For the man who wants fun and comfort, there are commodious modern lodges, golf links, riding horses, swimming, boating, dancing, hiking, sandy beaches, congenial company, and many other summer frivolities.

In recent years tourists have been clamoring for a holiday spot that possessed all of its primeval beauty, and yet boasted all of the modern refinements that spell luxury and comfort to city-bred people. Haliburton is the answer.

Holiday Resort Area

To make the picture of this summer playground a little more clear in the mind's eye, it can be said that the holiday resort area is roughly 12 miles in diameter with the village of Haliburton, the hub. Lake Kashogawigamog which lies just south of Minden-Haliburton Road has about 11 major resorts on its shores, and the other prominent summer places are not more than 10 miles in any direction. This lake is about 13 miles long and stretches from Haliburton village at the northeast corner in a southwesterly direction until it ties into Burnt River through a series of smaller lakes and streams. The lake averages half a mile in width and at its widest point is a mile and a half wide. Good roads follow the shores of this stretch of water and high hills rise all round. There are bass and trout here but the type of tourist who comes to the resorts on this body of water seldom fish, for life is just one round of pleasure after another, with swimming, golfing, dancing, campfire parties and a dozen other diversions.

There are two or three resorts that cater to the people who want a nice quiet spot with good food and accommodation, and Locarno-on-the-lake is one of these. Chateau Woodland too will appeal to both young and old alike. Family groups and young people will find lodges that meet the needs of every member of the family.

On the south shore of the lake is the Haliburton Golf Links, a 9-hole course which holds the unique honor of being the most picturesque course in the province. The first tee is near lake level and the 9th is about 350 feet above lake level. A large cruiser makes regular trips to all resorts on the lake to pick up golfers and others and golf clubs may be rented. There is a well-managed dance pavilion, the Golden Slipper on the north shore of this same lake, but in most cases the young people prefer to hold their own dances in the recreation rooms of the lodges where they are staying.

Plenty of Tennis

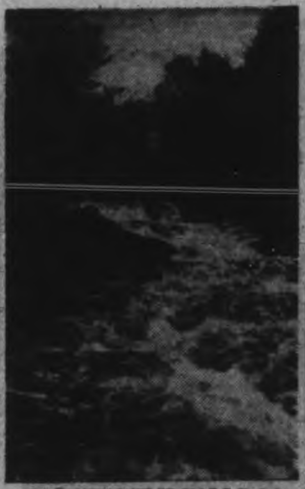
Tennis tops the list of sports, and the courts at the major resorts are kept in top-notch condition. Several have three or four courts and these are usually crowded with regular competitions, part of the daily program. Horse-back riding, archery, ping pong, lawn croquet, deck tennis, in short every summer sport is going all the time, and there need not be an idle moment for those who have energy to spare. Large lawns well shaded with comfortable lounging chairs are popular and along the north shore the beaches draw big crowds.

Huge bonfires are common at night and the guests gather round to enjoy hot dogs, bacon snacks, corn roasts or story telling, and even amateur theatricals are part of the fun menu. Every resort employs someone to organize the playing, and to see to it that all are entertained. Haliburton village has a large cool dance pavilion and often guests from the lodges motor in for a fling to another dance band.

The lodges most popular on Lake Kashogawigamog are Wig-A-Mog, Deer Lodge, Bonnie View, Birch Lodge, Chateau Woodland, Royal View, Chinook Lodge, Glen Muil Lodge, Northern Eagle, and Silver Birches.

Drag Lake Lodge and Haliburton Lodge are both located on Drag Lake, a spot that combines plenty of good clean fun with excellent fishing. This lake is beautiful and the shoreline is attractive to bathers. Highland Lodge is situated on Placid lake, and small mouth black bass limit can be caught almost at will from any of the canoe docks along the shore.



BUTTERMILK FALLS, between Hall's Lake and Boskung Lake, is a beauty spot in Haliburton.

Paradise Lodge on the lake of the same name is well-developed and has cabins and main lodge accommodation.

On the road leading north from Minden is Hart Lodge at the junction of Mountain and 12-mile lake, and farther up this same highway is Matabanick Inn, a beautiful spot on the upper end of a chain of lakes including 12-mile lake. Red Umbrella Inn on 12-mile lake is set on a grassy shore surrounded by silver birches and the fishing in this lake is satisfying.

Sunrise Cottages on Loon lake are modern, clean and well equipped and are located on the Haliburton-Wilberforce road. Noremac Lodge at Wilberforce is on Grace lake in the heart of a perfect fishing section Redstone Lodge, operated by Rex Boice on Redstone lake is the rendezvous for the man who likes fishing and is a popular family resort too.

Persons intending to spend holidays in any of the resorts named in the foregoing should make reservations at once for usually there is a waiting list, and even though the owners increase their accommodation almost every year, they somehow don't seem to be able to keep up with the demand.

There is an easy air of informality about these resorts that is positively refreshing. Business suits are taboo, the vacationists wear summer clothes, slacks, shorts, bandannas, wide brim straw hats, kerchiefs, sweaters and skirts. On the golf links and at the dance halls, people are friendly, and in the lodges they don't get all dolled up when its meal time.

Proper Study is Necessary Before Re-stocking Lakes

INDICATIVE of the keen interest taken by the Ontario Government in the conservation of propagation of game fish in the lakes of Ontario is the report compiled early in 1944 by Professor W. J. K. Harkness of the Ontario Research Fisheries Laboratory covering the operations in research during the year 1943.

A special laboratory located in Algonquin Park carried out the research work, studying fish resources in the Park, and despite the restrictions imposed by wartime conditions, considerable valuable data was acquired.

In other years it has been accertained that some of the lakes gave much better returns than others to the anglers. Measures of conservation undertaken consisted of stocking certain lakes and streams with speckled trout fry and fingerling, transferring lake trout from in-Park lakes to those more heavily fished, closing certain lakes in alternate years and introducing food fish such as perch and lake herring for bass and trout into those lakes where it was found the food supply was inadequate.

Creel Census

It is necessary to obtain some measure of the fish production from the various lakes from year to year in order to evaluate the various conservation measures being applied. The best method of obtaining this measure of the fishing for a large number of lakes and streams from year to year is through the creel census carried out by active co-operation of the anglers. The great importance of the Algonquin Park creel census lies in its value as being a measure of both the fish available to the anglers and the improvement or decline of fishing in the various lakes and rivers from year to year. For this purpose the work has been divided into three areas. Algonquin Park South, Algonquin Park North, Opeongo and adjacent lakes. The creel census of Algonquin Park North was carried out in 1943 for the first time.

Report of the 1943 Algonquin Park creel census:

| | Lake Trout | Speckled Trout | Bass |
|---|---|---|---|
| Algonquin Park North | | | |
| Fish Reported | 327 | 332 | |
| Number of Lakes | 16 | 16 | |
| Algonquin Park South | | | |
| Fish reported | 609 | 128 | 580 |
| Number of lakes | 35 | 19 | 10 |
| Opeongo Lake area | | | |
| Fish reported | 1047 | 648 | 266 |
| Number of lakes | 12 | 8 | 1 (Opeongo) |
| Total | | | |
| Fish reported | 1983 | 1108 | 846 |
| Number of lakes | 63 | 43 | 11 |

Planting

The creel census has already shown that planting of fish in some lakes and rivers has improved the fishing while in other lakes the planting has given little or no return so it is now possible to emphasize the stocking of those waters which promise the most satisfactory returns. In 1943, 11,880 speckled trout were planted in 26 lakes in Algonquin Park North and 49,000 speckled trout were planted in 36 lakes in Algonquin Park South. The stocking with fish in 1944 will be carried out with emphasis upon those lakes which give best promise of returns and upon some additional lakes which are being studied for the purpose of carrying out stream improvement to increase the production of trout.

Lake Closure

It has also been found that alternate annual closure of lakes is having a good effect on increasing both the size and numbers of fish available to anglers in many lakes and this practice is being extended to protect and improve the game fish in the smaller lakes where the creel census indicated a dangerous decrease in the game fish available. All of those lakes which were reported in the Algonquin Park Newsletter of June 1943, as being closed for last year will be open to fishing during 1944. The 23 lakes which are to be closed to fishing during 1944 are reported in the Newsletter of February 1.

Lake Trout Studies

The work on the food and growth of lake trout has been continued. It has been found by Dr. Fry that lake trout reach a catchable size at an older age than speckled trout and as a result of this it takes a longer period for them to respond to conservation

Deer Lodge, on beautiful Lake Kashagawigamog, is surrounded on three sides by water. From this point of vantage and from the shores of our island, one can view for miles the exceeding loveliness of Mother Nature. Our island is adjacent to the mainland and connected therewith by bridge. The pure warm waters furnish excellent opportunities for bathing and swimming, and the fisherman, too, may indulge in his favorite pastime as Black Bass and Lake Trout abound plentifully in these lakes.

Sports and Amusements—Among the varied pleasures to be enjoyed are boating, bathing, fishing, golfing, hiking, dancing, tennis, quoits and other outdoor and indoor games. Full cooperation and encouragement is given the guests in having masquerades, boat regattas, weiner roasts, bonfires, etc. Swimming may be enjoyed to the full as the water is pure and quite warm and the bathing beaches are safe for children. Our large recreation room with its splendid hardwood floor, together with our musical equipment, provides for the pleasure of dancing. Besides this there is a dance hall about half a mile from Deer Lodge. Our tennis courts rank with the finest in the country and for those who desire to golf there is an exceedingly fine scenic nine hole course about half a mile distant.

They are equipped with clean, comfortable beds, affording restful repose. For those vacationing early and late in the season cabins are heated. Our sanitary arrangements are modern with running water.

We appreciate the fact that our guests are holidaying, and with this thought in mind, we together with our hostesses and capable staff bend every effort to see that each one enjoys their visit with us to the utmost. # 14-lb. Trout In Bag 15 Beauties

JACK Edwards and his wife of Oshawa gave Leslie Lambert of Welland some competition in lake trout fishing up at Redstone and Kennessis lakes in Haliburton last summer but on the home stretch of the holiday, the man from Welland carried off top honors.

Kennessis is a huge stretch of water, difficult to reach, and noted as the home of many huge lake trout, while Redstone Lake is just a few miles from Haliburton village, and on this lake is Redstone Lodge, operated by Rex. Boice, a genial host to hundreds of fishermen and deer hunters.

A party of three headed by Lambert spent a morning on Big Kennessis and came back shortly after midday with 15 beauties, the largest a 14 pounder landed by Les Lambert, while the others averaged five pounds. The Oshawa man earns his living as an employee of General Motors, and he chose to do most of his fishing in Big Redstone. The largest trout on the string which he took home weighed ten pounds while his wife landed one weighing seven pounds even.

Another party of fishermen, visited Redstone Lodge early in May and they caught more fish than they wanted to take home with them. The party consisted of Dr. E. A. Young and C. Campeau of Riverside, Ontario, Hubert Schleeman, W. P. Reanaud and E. U. Dugall all of Kitchener.

This section of Haliburton is a veritable paradise for fishermen who want small mouth black bass, speckled trout or lake trout, as all three are to be had in abundance, except of course, the best speckled trout fishing is in the early months of May and June.

Bitter lake, lying north of Redstone is perhaps the gem of all the lakes in the section if one favors speckled trout, while McDonald lake, also close by, and reached by a short easily travelled portage produces both lake trout and small mouth black bass.

BEAUTIFUL BROWN TROUT, caught in Haliburton on a hook and worm, is shown here by Simon Koebel of Waterloo, Ontario. This species of trout has been stocked regularly in Bancroft and Haliburton waters and the fish apparently like the environment for they are thriving, and several over five pounds in weight have been caught in the last few years.

Bass and Trout Caught In Highlands of Haliburton

MANY people have the idea that Haliburton is strictly a trout country but this is absolutely untrue as some of the finest strings of bass taken during the summer season come out of the lakes in the Highlands of Haliburton. Moreover the tourists catch plenty of speckled trout in the fast flowing streams and in many of the lakes, as well as the usual amount of lake trout and brown trout.

Going After the Bass

P. G. Hollingsworth and Walter Rush of Clarksburg, West Virginia are both bass fishing enthusiasts. They claim trout fishing becomes a little tedious and they like action and plenty of it. One day last summer when the pair was at Miner's Bay, they induced the Rev. J. E. Windsor of Cincinnati, another guest to drive with them over to Head Lake, eight miles away for a spot of bass fishing.

FAR FROM THE MADDING CROWD, with a tent pitched on the shore of some Kawartha lake. This scene so typical of many in the Kawarthas shows Mr. and Mrs. T. Mr. Blackett seems eager for a whack at the fishing, but his wife prefers a comfortable chair and her favorite magazine. They spent part of their vacation near Burleigh Falls on Stoney Lake.

Bass and Trout Caught

This lake is treacherous, having many submerged rocks and shoals, which although ideal as sunning spots for the bass present a hazard to the man operating an outboard motor and care must be exercised.

Catch 17 Dandies

The three men caught 17 small mouth bass and large mouth black bass in an hour and a half and they averaged over 3½ pounds each. Seven of the 17 on the string weighed over four pounds.

The three men got all the bass casting, and they used a variety of baits, having the best luck on pointed plugs, and a few of the fish were taken on June bug spinners with worms. The trio will be back again this year with more friends who saw the fish, when they were taken back to the United States.

SURE-FIRE BAIT

Soft shell crabs are the sure-fire bait for small-mouth black bass. This bait is not available in the Kawarthas but many Americans bring it with them from the States, and some bait shops in Toronto stock these crabs.

Conservation Makes Land Better Place To Live In

CONSERVATION — which is freely defined as the wise and prudent use of our resources—is one way of making the country a better place to live in, and is a primary requisite in any scheme of national defence. Natural resources are fundamental to economic development and social progress, as represented by standards of living, and if these are carefully used a perpetual annuity is established which will not only help to maintain these standards, but provide the means and inspiration for a zealous defence of them.

Wildlife is a renewable resource, capable of self-replenishment if given a reasonable chance, but it suffers from the fact that it is an asset administered not only for its economic worth but also for its recreational value, and in the latter respect the public has a freedom of access and possession which might quite readily become destructive without proper safeguards. These safeguards are embodied in the general conservation program and every phase of it has a direct bearing on the development of this heritage.

Without an abundant wildlife the outdoors would lose much of its value as a tourist attraction, and as this is an industry directly or indirectly affecting the prosperity of every individual in the Dominion and virtually important, those who use this resource must assume their share of responsibility for maintaining the supply. This is not only a personal obligation but a patriotic duty.

The recreational and moral values of fishing and hunting in times of stress such as we are going through at the present time cannot be over emphasized.

In the environment of the outdoors, too, there is physical and mental rejuvenation, the opportunity to bolster morale and view life in its proper perspective, and a powerful antidote to subversive influences. Wildlife is a dominant factor in this environment, therefore its conservation as defined by regulation and sporting ethics is of supreme importance. Let us surround it with all the safeguards of trusteeship and it will pay big dividends in health and happiness.

THEY ARE ALL THE SAME

If you hear a Canadian talking about dew-bugs—he means dew worms, and if an American says "night crawlers" he means dew worms too, or if you wish to be more specific ordinary earth worm.

A SPLENDID BAIT

Helgramites, a splendid bait for bass and pickerel, are often called gallanippers by the natives. These insects are at their best when they shed their black coat and become yellow, just before entering the adult stage when they grow wings and fly away.

RAYMOND C. HETZEL, 1512 MAIN STREET, BUFFALO

Land O' Lakes Section North of Tweed Paradise of Attractive Fishing Spots

PEOPLE who don't mind roughing it a bit, but whose prime desire is to enjoy good fishing would be wise to give considerable attention to a stretch of vacation country of which little is known to the general public.

This section is known as the "Land o' Lakes" and it lies north of Highway 27, about 72 miles east of Peterborough. The area is bounded on the west by Highway 62 which runs north from Kaladar to Eganville, and the tourist country is crisscrossed by good gravel roads which make all the resorts quite accessible.

15 Lodges In Section

All told there are about 15 lodges in the section, most of them in existence for quite a number of years, but patronized almost exclusively by Americans. The lodges are modern, comfortable and roomy, but few of them have the playtime facilities that one finds in Muskoka and Haliburton. In brief perhaps it would be more correct to call them modern fishing camps, for excellent fishing, and excellent food seem to be the two features that brings the tourists back year after year.

Primarily this section is lake trout country, but extensive long range restocking has introduced successfully, speckled trout, pike, small mouth bass, large mouth bass, pickerel and sometimes, fishermen bring in a fish that is neither pickerel nor muskie, but which has the characteristics of both. This is believed to be a hybrid, and the last one caught weighed 14 pounds.

There are several villages scattered across the country, with Plevna being the most central, but Northbrook is the largest. Cloyne, Ardoch, Fernleigh, Coxvale and Harlowe are all tiny hamlets with a store and a post office at least.

Kaladar on Highway 7, 72 miles east of Peterborough is on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and is at the junction of two highways, 7 and 62. At this point there are two service stations, a store, and Glen Brydson, well known golfer and hockey player has a standard hotel.

Accommodate 100 People

On Lake Mississagagnon, George Salmond operates a large resort with accommodation for more than 100 people, and farther along this same road on Long Lake, formerly known as Kashwakamack, is Fernleigh Lodge, the most up-to-date, and popular of the entire district. This resort is run by John Ahr, of Buffalo, and it has been popular with Americans for years. Ahr is a genial, energtic chap, who puts the comfort of his guests first, and who guarantees that everyone will catch a satisfying quantity of fish. On the same lake, Anton Weiss has a resort known as Twin Oaks.

Levi Kring, reeve of Clarendon and Miller townships is the owner of Levi Kring's Lodge on Sandy lake, a beautiful spot and a noted rendesvous for fishermen.

At Lucky Lake, Fred Gorr has well-equipped cottages, and this lake is ideal for large bass and large lake trout. Moreover it is convenient to Grindstone lake and several other choice spots.

Judd Tooley's resort is located at the head of Mackey lake, and is accessible only by boat. In the fall it is a hunting lodge for deer and bear hunters. Meals are grand, and there are plenty of boats, and good guides.

At Harlow, James Hill operates Viking Lodge, and A. H. Wilson has a large resort on Cross lake. Kennbec Lodge on the lake of the same name is owned by C. W. Thornton of Arden, and this latter named summer spot is being developed fast into one of the classiest resorts in the district.

Dunc MacGregor, a husky fisherman and good humored host, operates MacGregor's Lodge at the western end of Long lake, near the junction of Marble, Georgia, and Long lakes. It is a cosy spot, and a grand place for the fisherman.

Tooley's resort mentioned in the foregoing sends fishermen to Brule, Fortune, Mackey, Big Schooner and Little Schooner lakes, and those who stay at Fernleigh Lodge may also go to Fortune lake and Brule lake, as John Ahr has lodges on both of these stretches of water. Brule lake is best for trout, and Fortune lake without any exaggeration is the best small mouth bass lake in eastern Ontario.

Fred Lemke of Coxvale has his lodge on Cross lake, and it is called Cedar Crest Lodge. Summor-Rest-Lodge operated by Joe Perry Junior is close to Myer's Caves on the main road leading in from the village of Cloyne. Happy Landing lodge is close by too and is run by Charles Johnson.

In the northern section of the territory on Buckshot lake is a lodge owned by Bev. Woolnough of Toronto and this resort is called Birch Lodge. It nestles on the west shore of the lake near the road, in a grove of beautiful birch trees. The long sandy beach is in perfect condition, and the fishing is good too. Lake trout, speckled trout and bass are available. He has several newly-erected log cabins equipped for light housekeeping, or the tourist may sleep in the cottages and eat in the main lodge.

CITY TOURIST CAMP

If you want a cool spot or a place to park the trailer in a tourist camp with all the facilities, just enquire for the Hunter street bridge and under the bridge is the tourist park, with a bathing beech, playground, and cooking facilities.

POLICE WILL HELP

Acting-Chief of Police Jack Thompson, of Peterborough is a fisherman and a native of the district. Tourists who want advice on fishing or on anything concerning the city can get it from this genial officer.

PIKE AND PICKEREL — Howard Swanze (Right) of Buffalo, New York, gathered in this catch of pickerel (wall-eyes) and pike while staying at Fernleigh Lodge in the Land o' Lakes north of Tweed. The largest wall-eye weighed seven pounds and was taken on a flatfish. John Ahr of Buffalo operates this lodge, located on Lake Kashwakamak.

TWEED VISITORS—Bert Bryant, New Toronto, and Jack Donohue, also of New Toronto, had a busy time when Bryant hooked this 30-pound maskinonge at the foot of Lake Stoco near the Moira River at Tweed in September, 1943. The fish made it a battle royal all the way, and Donohue expected any moment that the light tackle he was using would be shattered but it stood the strain and the fish lost the argument.

Buffalo Visitor Lauds Land O' Lakes

BUTCH ALLEN, hunting and fishing editor of Radio Station WEBR, Buffalo, who visited The Land of Lakes district north of Tweed last year, proclaimed it one of the finest fishing grounds he has yet visited in Canada. He was the guest of The Ontario Tourist Bureau and was accompanied into this fishermen's paradise by Sam Curry, editor of the Tweed News, who took the Buffalo broadcaster to his favorite haunts in this section of North Frontenac.

The pair were guests of John Ahr's Fernleigh Lodge. "Butch" who is an ardent angler, having visited many of the famous fishing spots in north-western Ontario, said that "Land of Lakes" should attract a great many American visitors after the war. He gave the district a nice boost on his program after his return home.

"Land of Lakes" is that section north of No. 7 Highway from Kaladar to Sharbot Lake and there are dozen of small and large lakes, all offering nice bass, wall-eye, northern pike and trout fishing. The area is well-served by numerous camps and summer hotels on Long, Gull, Massasagan, Mazinaw, Sand and Trout Lakes. A new association was formed in 1943 with C. W. Thornton, Arden as president and John Ahr, Fernleigh, as secretary. This group, which embraces most of the tourist camps, plan to develop and advertise the area, particularly for the post-war period. "We have one of the finest districts in Ontario for hunting and fishing and it should be publicized," John Ayr, the secretary, says.

Another pair of anglers who visited this section with unusual success last year, were Andy Clark who broacasts "Neighborly News" every Sunday morning and Gillis Purcell, superintendent of The Canadian Press. They were greatly enthused and hope to come back at an early date. Tweed, which is the gateway to this fine holiday county, is situated on Stoco Lake, home of the big fighting muskies.

Bon Echo Canada's Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR of Canada is the name given to a huge rock formation which rears itself more than 400 feet out of Lake Mazinaw down in the Land o' Lakes. This immense stretch of rock is more than a mile long, and many Indian legends have been handed down through the years by the tribes whose scattered members still occupy different parts of Ontario.

On the face of the rock in many places are ancient inscriptions carved by hands long since crumbled into dust, but the writings remain, mute testimony of another civilization which existed when the red man was king of Canada, and the different tribes lived their nomadic lives, following the good weather as the seasons changed.

The rock is better known perhaps by its present name "Bon Echo," so named by the early French traders who travelled up the Ottawa River then switched over to the Madawaska and Mississippi to find their way into the mighty Mazinaw. It is believed that two canoes of traders and trappers had became separated and sighted one another when their canoes were about a mile apart on the Big Mazinaw. A shout from one trapper echoed from the walls of this huge rock and was heard plainly by the other canoe load of men, hence the name was coined on the spot, because the men were overjoyed at finding their companions who had been lost for more than ten days.

A Sacred Place

Bon Echo, however, to the Indians is a sacred place, and few Indians have been known in recent years to go near the place. They claim the bodies of brave warriors lie buried on top of the peculiar formation, men who fought and saved a large tribe of Chippewas who were menaced by a marauding band of Iroquois. As the legend goes the Iroquois defeated the leading band of Chippewas in a fierce battle near the junction of Long and Crotch Lake, and the remnants of the band retreated to a spot near Bon Echo, where the chief and the other warriors in the tribe had massed their forces ready for the final stand. It was at this point that the wily chief of the Chippewas evolved a plan of luring the attackers on to the big plateau where escape for them would be cut off by another band of Chippewas lying in ambush. The plan worked perfectly, but the Iroquois had been reinforced and when the two bands met on the plateau the brave Chippewas were outnumbered.

However, they had the Iroquois with their backs to the lake, completely surrounded by the thin line of Chippewas who, although outnumbered, causing a huge their leader in a charge on the invaders. When the fight was at its height and the fierce Iroquois were taking heavy toll of the defenders, the great god of the Indians intervened, causing a huge slice of the plateau to crumble into the lake, carrying more than half of the Iroquois warriors to their death in the waters 400 feet below. The Chippewas made short work of the remaining invaders, but when the exultant shouts of victory had died, the happy Chippewas discovered that their beloved chief had been carried away with a few of the front rank warriors and had also died in the huge landslide.

Noble Fighter Lost

Their great victory was tempered by the loss of this noble fighter, and to commemorate his death, the Indians carved the story of the battle on the face of the rock. Subsequent rock slides have all but obliterated the writing, but other writings, according to the natives, are still visible at different places on the sheer rock face, close to the water.

Today the gigantic rock formation attracts the attention of every motorist who passed up or down Highway 62, but to them it is just a glacial formation, left behind as a freak of nature to add beauty to the scenery, which is already more beautiful than most sections of a land noted for its scenic grandeur.

Maskinonge Fishing Lures Tourists to Campbellford, Trent River

By FRANK LINTON
Campbellford

WHY is it so many people return each year to holiday along the Trent River in the vicinity of Campbellford? We asked an American who had been coming over regularly for the past nineteen years this question, and though most of his answer regarding hospitality, friendliness, and beauty of scenery, might have applied to many parts of Canada, there were several features of this particular district that lured him back each year.

The big attraction, of course, is the muskie fishing and that section of the famed and beautiful Trent that winds between gently sloping hills marked with verdant woods and lush green meadows, between Healey Falls and Campbellford has for many years enjoyed the fame of providing the finest maskinonge in the province. And this reputation is particularly applicable to the section of river that begins just below the jagged rocks of Healey Falls where the river's course was diverted to provide power for one of its largest hydro electric installations. Here, extending from where the Crow River joins the Trent to move on majestically to the Bay of Quinte, is the veritable paradise of the muskie fisherman, known as Crow Bay.

Scores To Prove Claim

Nor is the statement of Crow Bay's fishing mere heresay. It is backed by the experience of scores of fishermen who years ago established that the waters of this area formed a natural breeding ground par excellence for the muskie. Large weed beds that flank the shores reaching out till they threaten the main channel, comprise nearly two-thirds of the water area that flows over a distance of five miles to form the bay. These ideal, conditions tend to foster more rapid growth of the fingerlings and thus lowers the normally high mortality at this stage of development.

No finer proof of this fact, and the government's re-stocking program is needed than the evidence seen in reports of fish taken from this section of the river annually. From one camp alone, operated by Fred Smith, a count revealed 168 lunge were taken during the past season, and many of these went to fishermen of the old school who year after year return to this same camp in the full confidence that they will be rewarded.

23 In Two Weeks

A two-week stay at a Crow Bay camp last year yielded 23 muskies for a trio from Salem, Ohio, that included Harry Percival, Fred Blevins and Carl Graber. All have been returning annually for the past fourteen years, and last year with gasoline in short supply they sacrificed many week-end jaunts so that they would have enough gas to bring them back. Their ample catch was deemed adequate reward for their earlier sacrifices and they long ago completed plans for their 1944 expedition.

Another party already booked for 1944 fishing at Crow Bay includes Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Kropp of Ravenna, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. John Martin of Salem, Ohio. Last summer their efforts were rewarded with five huskies, all of them over 25 pounds and six smaller ones. They believed in doing their trolling the easy way, and landed at the Bay completely rigged with two outboard motors, and though they parted during the actual fishing operation, each having his own particular course along the weed beds, the Kropps and Martins were all cooperation when either had a strike. It was their practice to signal the other boat whenever they hooked a big one and when the second boat drew alongside it was left to float on by itself as all clambered aboard the one craft to take a hand in the landing. Though not recommended as proper procedure by the Society for the Prevention of Drowning the plan had its good points since there is unquestionably greater satisfaction in having been in the boat that landed the big one than in simply seeing it landed from another boat across a few yards of open water.

Which reminds us of the trouble the games committee of the Campbellford Bowling Club had for a spell last summer. It seems that a mixed tourney was in progress at the local club, whose greens are so close to the river that in years past a number of bowls left the green to sink in its depths, when a resident who refused to take seriously the claims that few fish ventured into these waters, was in the process of landing one. The fisherman was trolling around within thirty feet of the club house when he hooked a twelve-pound muskie and his art of landing the fish broke up the tournament for a full fifteen minutes while it was being pulled into the boat and for another fifteen when he pulled ashore and gave bowlers an opportunity to examine the specimen. Campbellford is five miles below Crow Bay thus making it a natural centre for tourists who throng the various resorts both above and below the town on the river.

YW Operates Girls' Camp

THE Y.W.C.A. "Camp Inglestane" on Eagle Mount Island, Stoney Lake is the answer to every girl's question: "Where shall I go for my holidays."

This year the camp program promises an even better holiday than ever. Committee, staff and counsellors have been planning for some time. There will be three special camp groups. Juniors, 9 to 12, June 30 to July 8; Intermediates, 12 to 16, July 8 to 31; Seniors: August. Extension of time for school girls and arrangements to suit the holidays of business girls will be considered on request.

The camp committee feels that the facilities and recreational program of camp are especially interesting to business girls. Individuals and groups will be most welcome to come in to the local Y.W.C.A. and talk over their hopes and plans for holidays. 'Y' Camp will help you find a restful, recuperative holiday in the out of doors with fun, friends and lots to do when you feel pepped up and ready for exercise.

You can have three weeks holiday at Camp for the price of one week at most resorts and stunt nights, parties, dramatics, lake trips, hikes, swimming, handicraft, music and all included.

This string of small-mouth black bass are being held by Dorothy Davidson of Kentucky and Mrs. J. Unsworth of Detroit, and the fish were caught at the top end of Silent Lake, near Paudash Lake.

Boy, 9, Lands Big Muskie

LOWRY Smith and his wife of Rochester are two Americans who cross off the days on the calendar tabs trying to make the time go faster so the July 1, the opening day of the bass and muskie season will hurry and arrive.

Dyed-in-the-wool, anglers, both of them, they have spent many pleasant hours in a boat off Bewdley on Rice Lake, and both have been favored with some beautiful catches of bass, pickerel and muskies. One of the most stimulating highlights of their holiday last summer came after they had invited 9-year-old John Erwin of Colborne, Ontario to come with them on a jaunt after bass. The youngster had been staying at Rice Lake Inn with his mother and eagerly accepted the invitation.

Secured Their Limits

The Smiths had bagged their limit for the week of pickerel and muskies, and on this particular day decided a fling at bass fishing would round out a perfect holiday.

Arriving at a spot designated by one of the natives as one of the best bass beds, alongside a huge stretch of weeds, they rigged up a rod and line for Johnny Erwin, baited the hook with a green frog and told him to start working. The youngster was all enthusiasm, and sent the frog soaring through the air, to light within two feet of the edge of the weeds.

He didn't have to wait long for action, the frog had barely hit the surface, when wham, a fish rose out of the depths, grabbed the bait and headed for the bottom. The youngster tightened his grip on the rod, like a frightened child trying to halt a runaway team, but it was a losing battle, for within a matter of seconds, Johnny was bending over the side of the boat, and in grave danger of taking a header into the lake. Mr. Smith spoke quickly advising the boy to feed the line off his reel, that need no stretching, and in short he can find every feature that is essential to a perfect holiday, not excluding moderate rates.

ANOTHER MUSKIE—And it weighed 17½ pounds. This stream-lined fighter took almost half an hour before he was subdued by Walter Clarke, who never knew before that a fish can make one's arms ache. Clarke is shown above with his fishing partner, Rod Davis, and both are from Cleveland. They were staying at Mount Julian during the fishing trip, and caught the muskie in Stoney Lake, a short distance from Viamede.

Stoney Lake is called the "Gem of the Kawarthas" and the description is no misnomer, for this stretch of water with its 1,100 pine studded islands, stands alone in its rare beauty. The water is clear and uncontaminated, and the shores are granite rock, broken at intervals, by level stretches where smooth sandy beaches offer swimming spots to young and old alike. It is estimated that there are more than 800 cottages on this lake, including the island summer homes, and the resorts cater both to the fisherman and the entire family, providing recreational facilities for all.

Peterborough city has a claim to greatness unmatched by any city in the entire Dominion of Canada. This feature is that while the city has a population of 30,000 people, every type of inland game fish can be caught in waters within a ten-mile radius of the city and include maskinonge, small-mouth bass, large-mouth bass, pickerel, speckled trout, brown trout, lake trout, mudcats, perch, sunfish and any of the smaller pan fish. This is amply borne out by fishing records. Bun Cuthbert of Peterborough caught a 30-pound maskinonge in the Otonabee River, within five minutes' walk of the town clock in the heart of the business section, 2 years ago. Bass, muskies and pickerel are caught daily during the open season by Peterborough residents and tourists fishing in Little Lake and the Otonabee River inside the city limits.

Peterborough is a beautiful city of wide streets, shady trees, and modern, well-kept homes. Its industries are diversified and for the most part provide twelve-months a year employment to the workers. With the added pressure of war production, the employment index has climbed steadily and city industries are providing the United Nations with tools of war. The Otonabee River flowing through the city provides an ample supply of fresh water, which is piped through the city mains, one hundred per cent. pure. There are eight hotels, 14 restaurants, and a business section embracing six city blocks, where every commodity sought by the tourist may be purchased including woollen blankets, diamonds, fine English china, and the most up-to-date clothing.

Well Served By Trains

Located 28 miles due north of Lake Ontario, Peterborough is well served by trains and highways. Highway 28, Port Hope to Bancroft connecting with Highway 2 runs north and south, while Highway 7, Sarnia to Ottawa runs east and west. C.P.R. and C.N.R. provide daily train service, and there is a bus terminal where highway buses pick up travellers for all points outside of Peterborough. The bus service operated by Collacutt Lines, ties in with the Toronto main lines leading to all parts of the province.

Peterborough is famous for its Hydraulic Lift Lock, the largest in the world, and for its mile-long wooden floating bridge, over Lake Chemung, which is the only one of its kind in the world of the same size.

Bass 'Takes All Wind Out' Of Eleven-year-old Girl

BASS Lake, 20 miles north-east of Havelock, by good gravel road is not fished to any great extent because it is comparatively unknown, but residents of the district who know this spot, claim it to be the tops for small mouth black bass.

11-year-old Muriel Forsythe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Forsythe of Havelock was back at the lake in the summer of 1943 with her parents, and went out in a flat bottomed boat alone to try her skill as a fisherwoman. She had no person for company except her chubby doll, and she surprised the family when she rowed ashore with a lovely small mouth black bass which weighed 3 lbs., 12 ounces and was 19 inches long. She was using a green frog and told her parents it "took all the wind out of me" to land the bass.

PETE McGILLEN, telegraph editor of the Peterborough Examiner, and well known for his articles on fishing, has written the majority of the stories in this edition. He knows the district intimately, and his weekly chats on fishing over radio station CHEX for Lucky Strike Bait Company had a host of listeners. Readers who seek more information are invited to send all requests in his care to the Examiner, Peterborough.

Dives In After Fish

FRANK Buck, the man of bring-'em-back-alive fame has a pupil in Archie Cumming of the R.C.A.F., who has a summer home at Belmont Lake. It appears that Archie hooked a large muskie one day last summer and played it gingerly to a point of exhaustion, and was about to haul it into the boat when the muskie gave a leap, and broke free. "You can't do that to me" hollered the flier and dove overboard, coming to the surface a few seconds later with the big muskie in his arms. His companion on the trip had a terrific time trying to get the fish into the boat, without having Archie upset it, but the task was finally accomplished and the fish topped the scales at 11 pounds even.

ASK US WHERE THE GOOD FISHING IS!

TRULY A VETERAN—G. B. Sanders, 82-year-old Havelock fisherman, states after more than half a century of fishing that it is one sport that never fails to thrill. He is shown above with an 18-pound maskinonge which he took out of Belmont Lake after a brisk battle just off Big Island. This lake is the annual rendezvous for hundreds of Americans and is noted for its bass and pickerel fishing too.

Veteran Nips Big Muskie

EVERY fishing expedition has its own particular high spots and G. B. Sanders, 82-year-old veteran of Havelock, claims that after 65 years of fishing he still gets a thrill out of tying into a big one. Belmont Lake, about seven miles north-east of Havelock as the crow flies is his favorite spot, and year after year, with an uncanny knowledge gained from a lifetime of angling he brings home a goodly quota of large muskies.

One of the most perfectly proportioned, although not the largest muskie which he took last summer was an 18 pounder, which he snagged while trolling on the north side of Big Island. He had quite a battle with this maskinonge, but finally succeeded in gaffing it, and as he flipped the fish into the boat, it threw the hooks, and flipped off the gaff, teetered or a moment on the side of the skiff, then flopped into the boat, as the old timer breathed a sigh of relief. It came close to being a fish-less Friday.

Mr. Sanders, sister-in-law, Mrs. Edna Boyd of Hespeler was with him at the time, and she said afterwards that she stopped breathing when she noticed the muskie dangling on the edge of the boat. This is just one of the heart throbbing moments that make fishing the most unusual and exciting pastimes known to man, and explains to some extent why young and old go back year after year for a fling at matching wits with the finny denizens of Canadian lakes.

25 Pounder At Belmont

A MRS. Beerbower of Niagara Falls, New York put the male fishermen under wraps late in August last year when she made a few enquiries as to where was the most likely spot to catch a muskie, took the advice and went out and hauled in a 25-pounder.

It was a rather sheepish lot of fishermen gathered around John Rogers camp when the American woman came marching back with the big one. John Rogers had advised her to troll up and down over a deep stretch in the lake, and she merely followed his suggestion with admirable results.

An active Chamber of Commerce gives up to the minute service to tourists, and there are branches of the more prominent service clubs, including Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Y's Men. There are three modern hospitals nine large city parks, and a daily and weekly newspaper. Radio Station CHEX was completed and went on the air on March 30th of 1942. It is located in The Peterborough Examiner building.

4-POUND BASS—Mrs. C. W. Nicholson is shown with a 4-pound small-mouth black bass caught on a Lucky Strike silver flash near Hiawatha on Rice Lake, and Mrs. C. B. Neal is holding a nice-sized pickerel. Both women are from Peterborough and were enjoying a holiday at Neal's cottage when they made the catches.

Crochet Cotton Used as Line

ing he would not bang into a big one and see it disappear with half the line in it mouth.

He had been casting alongside one of the large weed-beds at the south end of the lake, when a miniature submarine took his plug and headed for the bottom. Haig knew it was a big one, because the fish sulked near bottom refusing to rise, and his arms ached as he exerted all his skill and strength to land the battler without smashing the thin cotton line. To add to its mooring and he had to do some rapid manipulating to get it back in place. All the time the muskie was executing a series of dives and runs that would delight the heart of any angler, and as the battle progressed Mr. Haig gained confidence for the crochet cotton was standing the strain in great style. Finally the muskie tired and half drowned reached the surface and as it turned on its side near the boat, Mr. Haig leaned over and with the practise gained through many years of angling, drove the gaff into the fishes head.

In a matter of seconds the beauty was lying in the bottom of the skiff, thoroughly subdued by two wallops from a headache stick that had descended before the gaffing took place.

The muskie was weighed just as soon as the fisherman reached his cottage and tipped the beam at 22 pounds even.

Work was continued on the study of the insect population of streams as fish food and the studies of the temperature and oxygen conditions in lakes as related to the movements of fish. Experiments were continued on the rate of digestion of food by fish to determine the amount of food used by fishes during a year as the basis for measuring the productive capacity of game fish of the various Park lakes.

The staff of the Laboratory in 1943 consisted of the following persons: Dr. R. R. Langford and Mr. M. Neal who were in charge of the field work, D. Kirk, E. Bowden, N. Martin, K. Rothfels and D. Roche. Dr. F. E. J. Fry spent two weeks at the Laboratory studying trout streams and Dr. J. G. Oughton.

THAT HAPPY GRIN is a sure sign that the fisherman has come through and the 35 pound muskie which John Rogers of Belmont Lake, near Havelock, is holding is proof. Rogers hooked this big fellow in the deep water off Big Island, just to show his guests that there are still whoppers to be caught. Rogers operates Belmont Lake Camp, and is an American, but has spent so many summers in Canada, that the natives accept him as one of them.

Bass Takes All Wind Out

Oak Lake, 16 miles north of Havelock village is another fishing spot that affords variety, for bass, lake trout and pickerel are on the holiday fishing menu for the visitors. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Layzell of Hamilton, annual visitors to this summer spot, had grand luck during their visit in the summer of 1943. A 9 pound pickerel and a six pound lake trout were the top catches, and they bagged 7 pickerel and 12 bass in two days fishing, at Wannetta Lodge.

Caught Loon On Fish Line

THE chances are you have never caught a bird on a fish line and that you have no real ambition to do so. However, you might be curious to learn how such a feat could be accomplished; and if you're the skeptical kind, you might even deny that it had ever been done. In that case, we can prove you're wrong.

This is a true fish story. The persons involved were Harold Naylor and his companion, Alphonse Shannon, both of Marmora, who one day last August started back after fishing without success down Crowe River below the bridge. It was along about supper time, and they had a live herring on their lines for bait.

Absently Mr. Shannon noticed a loon making its dive into the water a litle away ahead of the boat. A few minutes later, Mr. Naylor, fishing with 25 feet of line out behind the boat, experienced a sudden jerk and a strenuous tugging on his line. Judging by the pull being exerted, he quite reasonably assumed he had one of the prize fish of the season and settled down to business.

"I'll bet it was that loon I saw diving in the water," said Mr. Shannon, in an effort to throw water upon his friend's growing enthusiasm. "Oh, heck it can't be," replied the angler, occupied with his absorbing task. After a while the "fish" came to the surface of the water and succeeded in releasing itself. Then it flew away.

Boy 9, Lands Big Muskie

and the amateur fisherman, responded to every order, so that he soon had the big fish tiring. Smith a veteran knew it would be a red-letter day in the boy's life if he could land the fish himself, coached the boy carefully and the battle lasted for almost 20 minutes.

A Determined Laddie

Sweat poured in tiny streams off the boy's forehead, and the muscles on his little arms were tensed, but he was a determined laddie, and he just gritted his teeth, and did what he was told —that fish wasn't going to beat him, and it didn't. Obviously the fish was securely hooked, for soon the youngster had it alongside the boat, more by straight hauling than clever fishing, and Smith was amazed to see that it was a huge muskie, and not just a large bass. Just as soon as the muskie turned over on the surface, Smith reached over, and stunned it with a club, then flipped it into the boat while the boy, his eyes shining exclaimed: "Gee, isn't he a whopper". That was no exaggeration for the muskie tipped the scales at 21 pounds. That was the climax for this modern day Tom Sawyer, and although the Smiths carried on and caught their limit of large mouth bass, Johnny was only mildly interested, he could scarcely keep his eyes off the sleek, greenish black monster which was his prize.

When they returned to Rice Lake Inn, Johnny was fairly bubbling over with the description of the battle, and over and over he told the tale of the big battle to his mother and the delighted guests who were glad to listen. Johnny too expects to be back this summer when the summer breezes are singing through the reeds along the south shore of Rice Lake.

5-POUND PICKEREL — Fern Trennum, Peterborough, landed this five-pound pickerel while fishing in the Otonabee River about two miles south of the city, using a June bug and worms. She is the daughter of Police Constable Gordon Trennum and Mrs. Trennum.

CALLED WALL-EYED PIKE

Yellow pickerel, so common to the waters of Peterborough county are not recognized by Americans when that name is used. The people south of the border call this fish a "wall-eye"—short form for wall-eyed pike, and the fish gets its name from the queer color of its eyes.

Tourists Like Scenic Spots

LIFT OF 65 FEET

The hydraulic Lift Lock at Peterborough on the Trent Canal rates attention from every tourist who visits the district. The largest of its kind in the world, the structure has a lift of 65 feet between lower and upper canal stretches.

FLOATING BRIDGE

A wooden floating bridge about three quarters of a mile in length spans Lake Chemong, 6 miles north-west of Peterborough. This bridge, one of the scenic spots of the district is a freak that invites a trip across the lake, but frightens timid souls.

GOOD BASS STREAM

Indian River, a shallow lazy stream that winds its way from Gilchrict Bay on Stoney Lake south to Rice Lake is a first class stream for bass casting, and often muskies are hooked there.

and one thing just led to another until I promised to build a cottage for him. I believe I had it ready in 1914, the year the war broke out. Mr. Hill arrived with a party of 24 from Pittsburgh, 12 or 15 young fellows and some of their parents. And that is how I got started in the summer resort business. Some of the original visitors are still coming to Bay View, but of course they are grown up and married.

Met Ohio Party

"By 1915 I was going over to Lovesick and around Burleigh Falls way selling milk and eggs and things like that to the campers. There were only a few cottagers. One day I called on a party of 20 from Niles, Ohio, camped at Burleigh Falls. One of them was Dr. Hoffman, a dentist. Talking about things in general, they asked where I came from, and I told them 'over on Deer Bay.' They said they'd come over and see me, and sure enough they did. They liked the surroundings, took our address, and said they'd be back the next year.

"I didn't think any more about them, but one day in the summer of 1916 a neighbor up the line telephoned us, asking whether we were expecting anybody. We told them no, and the neighbor said 'three cars full of people have just passed going in your direction,' and it wasn't long until Dr. Hoffman and his party landed in on us. They pitched tents around the yard and immediately made themselves at home.

"I happened to ask Dr. Hoffman how he came into the Kawartha district in the first place. He said he used to take a holiday in the Muskoka section, but for some reason or other he didn't like it up there. So, he struck out to see some more of the country and arrived at Young's Point. About a mile north of there he took the turn to the left and followed the road to its end, almost at Deer Bay. They walked the rest of the way to the Bay and could see across to our shore. Then, he drove back to Young's Point and went on up to Burleigh Falls, and finally I chanced on them while they were camping there.

"Fishing was good in the Bay, and Dr. Hoffman said one day 'we ought to have Ed. Thorpe up here,' and when they went home they recommended our place to Mr. Thorpe. It wasn't long until we had the Thorpes coming, Ed. and his wife and their girl and boy, and they in turn told other friends back in Ohio.

"Ed. used to tell me that when he was talking to people in his office about Deer Bay, he used to say to some of them, 'But there's no use you going up to Pearson's because they wouldn't keep you,' and to others he would urge them to come along."

Over a door leading off the central living room at Bay View is a significant sign, "No gambling or dancing."

Family Atmosphere

"Mrs. Pearson and I determined from the outset that we wanted to make our resort or boarding house a wholesome place to which families would like to come, a homey atmosphere, and that is what it had been. New visitors were always recommended by those who had come before them, and we have never had anything unpleasant. In fact it has always been the other way, and since we started in 1912-14 I suppose we have had thousands of summer vacationists, mostly Americans.

"I happen to think of Robert L. Wallace, a lawyer of Newcastle, Pennsylvania. Twenty years ago he and his two sons and one of their chums were camping on that first little island out there. They came over to our place for groceries and provisions, and Mr. Wallace told me that Bay View was the first summer place he had ever been where he would like to have his family for their holidays. After that they began coming to our place. In the course of time, Mr. Wallace's wife died, and when he remarried he came to Bay View on his second honeymoon."

Accommodates 100 Now

Mr. Pearson said that Bay View had sleeping accommodation for 40 guests. In addition to the large central boarding house with its broad verandahs, there were eight cottages and various other cabins, facilities for about one hundred persons. At times some persons arrive with tents, and on occasions there have been one hundred and twenty-five people in the Bay View summer colony.

The McCaughtry's of Warren, Ohio, were among the originals, husband and wife and one son of about 12 years. The boy is now Dr. Roger McCaughtry, and in later years his brother had also been coming to Bay View. Then there was Tom Underwood of Washington, Pennsylvania, who had been coming into the central Kawarthas for 20 years before he found his way to Deer Bay. Mr. Pearson recalls Mr. Underwood as a man of infinite good humor and always "the life of the party".

"Possibly you remember the time Tom Underwood led the tame bear they had at Burleigh Falls down to Peterborough, just as a joke. His family were here last year. Their daughter married Olan Yarnal, a lawyer of Washington, and they liked our place so well that they sent us scores of their friends. About 10 years ago they sent so many that we couldn't accommodate them all, and I had to write Mr. Yarnal and tell him how it was. The family went up to Lake Simcoe one summer, had an attack of ptomaine and broke up their vacation. The next year they were back with us at Deer Bay.

"Most of the men who spend their holidays here take a great delight in fishing, but their main object is to get a rest in the healthy air we have at Deer Bay. They are all like one family, and their sociability makes the days and the evenings very pleasant for everyone."

Mr. Pearson told the Examiner that he is preparing for an active summer. From the number of letters he has already received he feels certain that the tourist activities at Bay View will be as likely as ever.

self—so he says— he whammed the monster and soon had a huge muskie lying stunned on the surface of the water. Not having any kind of a gaff, he took a length of rope from the bottom of the boat, fashioned a lasso, and slipped it around the big fish. Then he grabbed the oars and rowed for shore towing the big fellow behind. As they reached the beach, the muskie showed signs of coming to life, so a few more applications of a stout headache stick was introduced to finish this bizarre fishing battle.

The muskie weighed 32 pounds, and is a mounted specimen in Percy Parr's summer hotel at Bewdley—he says the tale is correct and has the muskie to prove it.

Maskinonge Fishing Is Super-nightmare

MASKINONGE fishing may be a fisherman's dream to most people but to Jim Fleming of Cleveland, it is just one super nightmare.

He tried it once, and once was plenty.

It all happened at Lake Chemong near Peterborough last summer. The Flemings with their six-year-old daughter, Betty and a spaniel dog, hired a skiff and went fishing. They had loads of enthusiasm but no experience.

About a hundred yards offshore, Fleming left the boat drift, and handed his wife a hand-line with a baited hook. Betty was comfortable in the bow, and the dog snoozed on the bottom between Fleming and his wife. It was truly a tranquil scene.

Bait Taken With A Rush

Mrs. Fleming's bait had scarcely disappeared in the green depths when some monster took it in a rush under the boat. She hung on grimly and screamed for help while Fleming moved to aid her. With amighty tug he horsed about ten pounds of squirming, fighting muskie into the boat, and the fish free of the hook plopped down on top of the dog. Terror-striken the spaniel yelped and jumped overboard, Fleming made a dive for the muskie and the boat shipped water. Mrs. Fleming fainted, and Betty screamed and burst out crying. Meanwhile the muskie was slithering around in the water on the bottom like some thing possessed of a thousand legs. Vainly Fleming tried to corral the fish, and as he tried to grab it, the fish bit him (so he said later). Finally with a snarling muttered curse, he grabbed the fish and tossed it overboard, reached into the water and pulled the dog into the boat, then rowed like mad for shore.

Arriving there he revived his wife, pacified the little girl and stroked the still badly frightened dog. With an effort he collected his wits, and made a lasting decision in a hurry.

Muskie fishing—was too jam-packed with dynamite to suit his temperament—he was through, and to top it off the boat owner laughed so hard at the incident he forgot to charge the American for the boat.

CLOSE TO PETERBOROUGH, in the Otonabee River, Joseph Micolucci, well-known Peterborough tailor, snagged this 22-pound maskinonge, while casting from a rowboat, and he was an excited fisherman for many minutes for this fish never stopped fighting, and was still ready for battle when another member of the fishing party leaned out of the boat and whammed Mr. Muskie with a headache stick.

Small Fish Is Problem

THE problem of freeing undersized fish after they are securely hooked is one that has plagued sportsmen down through the years, and many a man has been heard to mutter, "what's the use putting them back when I know they will die anyways, wouldn't it be better to keep them". There is a lot of commonsense in this statement, and perhaps a little information on the knack of freeing fish without doing them too much injury will save the fishermen a lot of worry.

Cy Ballam, a noted conservation and representative of the Wild Life Conservation Federation of Madison, Wisconsin has this to say on the subject: "Legal size limits aren't much use unless the fish that are thrown back survive the experience."

On the same subject he adds "We have known for a long time that when the mucus covering that waterproof's a fish is broken by handling, fungus growth often appears and kills the fish. All good sportsmen wet their hands and hold a hooked fish as tenderly as possible.

But a fish that takes a baited hook often swallows it so that removal often results in fatal injury. Tests have proven that if the line is cut and the hook left in the fish, no harm results. There is no infection and the hook promptly rusts away. It is suggested that fishermen carry a small wire clipper in their kit, and by clipping off the barb of the hook, the latter can be removed easily without tearing the gills. A further advantage to having such a clipper along, is that should anyone be so unfortunate as to become hooked, it is a simple job to remove the hook with a minimum of pain.

Do Not Suffer Pain

Fish do not suffer pain as warm blooded animals. Fish have been hooked twice within an hour or so. Many an angler can recall instances when he hooked a fish, only to break the line, and have either himself or some one else in the party catch the same fish, with the hook still in it within a short space of time.

The use of barbless hooks is a mark of high sportsmanship, but the conservation of undersized fish is carried on just as effectively by cutting the line and saying goodbye to the hook or fly when an infant fish is caught.

If we are to practise conservation and put a stop to this almost wholesale destruction of game fish, we must become reconciled to sacrificing a few hooks, in order that the bass seven eight and nine inches long will have a chance to survive and become the fighting beauties that make sport with the rod and line the incomparable pastime.

Caught Six Trout

Rae Williams, Havelock merchant, caught six speckled trout on worms in Plato creek at the edge of the village in less than half a hour during the spring of 1943. It was in June, and Williams was using worms. The largest brook trout weighed 1 3/4 pounds and none of the others went below the 3/4 pound mark.

cool spot will keep them for some time if they are cleaned, but remember fish deteriorate fast, and should get proper attention if they are to be kept. Don't wash them, rather wipe them dry.

Preparing Fish

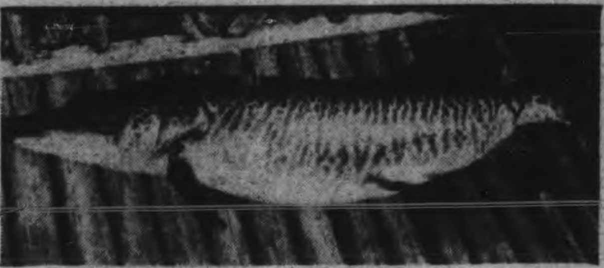
Cleaning the fish is a matter of personal style, but one sound rule is that if fish are caught in muddy warm water, skin it, for most of the taste acquired in these waters is in the skin. If they still taste after skinning, rub the next batch with salt, inside and out and hang them in a cool place for a couple of hours. Some people parboil fish in salty water with the skin on to get rid of this muddy taste and the method is said to be effective, but this fisherman has never tried it.

Generally speaking any rule that applies to an open camfire will for the most part apply at home, but as we are most interested in the man who cooks his fish over an open fire, this article will deal with outdoor cooking.

A bed of hardwood coals—the kind one gets after a brisk fire lasting about 20 minutes is the best for fish cooking. If hardwood is not available, then spruce, pine or any of the other native resinous woods will do.



TIGER MUSKIE—Rare fighting fish, is shown above. This specimen, one of the largest ever taken in Canada, weighed 30¼ pounds. The distinguishing characteristics are the uneven stripes, and the short stubby body. It was caught at Vermilion Lake, near Sioux Lookout, by an American staying at Mike Ament's camp, during 1943.

Fried Fish

Most people fry fish, and here is a recipe that should satisfy the most amateur cook-fisherman. Fry small fish whole, cutting the backbone so they won't curl, such as sunfish, rock bass, perch or shiners. Cut large fish into portions and if they have not been steaked cut the ribs loose from the back bone so they will lie flat in the pan. Wipe dry after washing and season with a little salt and pepper, or if you prefer this seasoning can be done when the fish is in the pan, just as the color turns.

Some people like butter best for frying, or olive oil, or clear meat dripping or bacon fat or lard, but the Kawartha Indian uses half butter and half bacon fat, and he knows his stuff. Whichever you use heap it deep in the pan, and heat very hot—until it is bubbling merrily. Rub the fish in cornmeal, or flour or powdered crumbs—or even ground up cornflakes, thinly and evenly. Yes—you might even emulate Mother and make an egg batter, then immerse the fish in the batter before rolling it in the powered crumbs or cornflakes. Drop the pieces one at a time in the boiling fat, slowly so as not to stop the boiling, then turn the pieces at once, starting with the one into the pan first. This sears the outer flesh, keeps the flavor in and the fat out. Don't stab the fish with a fork, this lets the fat in and interferes with the perfect flavor.

Fed Drops of Lemon Juice

As was mentioned before very hot fat is the secret. Now move the pan to more moderate heat but keep the fat bubbling slowly. Turn the fish occasionally. Add a few drops of lemon juice if you wish. When fish turns a golden brown, move pan to strong heat again to crisp the outside of each piece—but be careful, don't make it too crisp.

Even large pieces will be cooked thoroughly this way, and will not taste greasy. Pickerel in particular will taste tops if this method is used and is equally efficacious for bass and pan fish. Frying time for an average size fish is from five to seven minutes, small fish fried whole a little less, and of course the individual knows this depends on the fire heat and the size of the fish or the pieces of fish.

Fish, Roasted

(Use camp reflector or home oven.) Better than baking, comparable to expertly done broiling. Very good flavor because fish is basted in own juices and worked on by direct action of fire. No better way to cook a fairly large fish whole except perhaps planking. Scale fish, slit belly and remove entrails and gills, head optional. Wash and dry with cloth. Rub all surfaces lightly with butter inside and out (or olive oil, bacon grease, meat drippings). Salt and a little pepper. Put in greased pan with two or three gobs of butter (or substitute) around it. Roast before good fire, just like you would camp biscuits. Baste and turn occasionally. Take care not to overroast and burn up gravy.

Fish Steaks, Roasted

Prepare steaks, put into well greased reflector (or oven) over pan, dot with butter (if available) gobs, season with salt and a little pepper. Put before hot fire as for biscuits. When near steaks begin to brown, turn pan. Take care in removing from pan, using pancake turner preferably.

Fish, Baked And Stuffed

Use large fish, but be sure it fits pan. Clean, scale, remove fins, gills, but leave on head and tail. (Or, if you prefer, remove head and entrails without slitting belly.) Wash and dry. Now prepare stuffing. This one is good and easy to make:

1 cup dry bread crumbs.
1 small onion, chopped.
2 tablespoons butter.

Shore Dinner By Indian

Approx. ½ teaspoon salt, little pepper.

Put crumbs and butter into frying pan over fire and stir till browning begins. Then add enough boiling water to moisten them. Add onion and seasoning.

Here's another delicious stuffing if you happen to have wild rice and spare time:

1 cup wild rice.
1 small onion, chopped.
2 slices bacon, diced.
Approx. ½ teaspoon salt, little pepper.

Heat 1½ quarts of water to which salt has been added to boiling point. Pour in wild rice gradually, keeping water boiling, then add onion and bacon. Boil vigorously about 30 minutes until rice is cooked. Drain the rice.

Season fish well inside and out. Cram in stuffing. If belly has been slit, sew up opening or wind string a few times around fish. If head has been cut off with belly skin whole this can be dispensed with or partially close opening with thread or available materials. Lay several strips of salt pork or bacon in pan, put in fish. Sprinkle over all a little water, bread crumbs, touch of salt and pepper. Bake in hot oven (or reflector or Dutch), basting frequently in reflector. Turn pan occasionally in reflector. Time, about 1 to 1½ hours.

Fish, Broiled

Broiling gives a delicate "fire-taste" flavor to fish that can't be had otherwise, requires more attention than frying, but takes little if any longer. A point to remember is that you want broiled, not smoked fish. Hardwood coals, well burned down, are needed for superlative results. But you can broil successfully, too, above or at one side of low flames. (See previous note on broiling fire.) Distance from heat varies with type of fire and flames. Broil very small fish whole. Up to medium large, remove head, split down the back instead of the belly. Fish steaks are delicious broiled. Always grease broiler, lay strips of bacon or pork across it. Broil over fairly moderate bed of coals or at safe distance from fire but close enough so inside will cook well done. Small fish, though, may be broiled more quickly over hotter fire. When done, sprinkle with salt and pepper, spread on butter (unless you've used bacon) and hold over fire till butter melts.

Bridge Laid On Surface

Fowler's Corners to Peterborough was too long. But, they had a prior claim on Peterborough County to provide some traffic accommodation across Chemong Lake, and eventually the anchored bridge was constructed. It was rebuilt in 1901 when a swing span was incorporated at a cost of $31,000. The Ontario government contributed $3,500, the Dominion government $8,000, and the county paid the rest.

This is the bridge which is still in use after 36 years of weathering wind and water and ice. Its total length is 3,683 feet including approaches and embankments, and the floating span is 2,626 feet long.

The clear width of the bridge is 15 feet, but at five regularly-spaced points bays have been built out from the bridge to enable vehicular traffic to meet and pass in safety. These sections increase the width to 24 feet. The bridge is anchored every hundred feet with chains and large boulders, and a stout hand railing lines each outer edge from shore to shore.

The westerly approach is 400 feet long, and the approach on the Smith shore is 513 feet.

At the east end of the floating part of the bridge is a steel swing span of 74.5 feet long and 11 feet wide, operated by man power. It is a steel truss swing on a fixed crib pivot pief and provides a clear waterway of 36.5 feet for navigation. The permissible concentrated load is five tons.

Tourists crossing the bridge during the usually calm weather of summer when the lake is a ripple and the sun glints along the friendly waves may get the impression that traffic is uneventful. They should see it on those late autumn days and nights when the waves are tumbling and sweeping over the wide flooring, boom timbers groaning, and the idyllic atmosphere is heavily dramatic, or when winter is breaking up and a gale is blowing down from the west, and great cakes of ice pound at the bridge clearing off stretches of the hand railing, straining the booms until at last some weak sections give way. Occasionally when the ice is deep on the bridge and snow piles additional weight on it, the booms threaten to sink with their winter load, another threat and hazard of the year's changing weather.

The floating bridge packs a keen thrill for even the stoutest-hearted motorists on dark nights when the water is raging across it, two feet deep in places, splashing against the windows, and giving the whole structure an undulant motion, in spite of the anchorage, creating a feeling of uncertain and unsolid footing, and an apprehension that the bridge may part anywhere along its half mile length or that the car may skid off through the handrail.

See the bridge in the moonlit dusk of a June evening, in all its repose, slender dark outlines from one shore and lost in the shadows of the other, and then get a glimpse of it when the ice barrage is hammering at it, or on a stormy November night, and you share some of the contrasting moods of the bridge which has lost all aspects of novelty to the Ennismore farmers, and the people of the little Smith side community of Bridgenorth.

Air Force Attacks Clicking With Army Instructions

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press War Correspondent

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 12— (AP)—American heavy bombers and streams of lighter craft pumped a steady hail of bombs and lead into German defences to-day in the greatest aerial blows to date supporting the French invasion.

Flying in fine weather, the Allied Air Forces by noon had run up more sorties than all day yesterday — when 7,000 planes slammed the Germans from dawn on— after a night in which R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers pounded four key rail centres in France and went to Berlin— heavies, mediums, lights, fighter-bombers, and fighters raced over the battle lines and far into France, bombing and strafing.

A significant new point in the support campaign became apparent. Squadrons of R.A.F. fighters were attacking specific targets in rapid-fire order on calls from the ground units — which meant that newly established air bases on the French soil were clicking.

Besides the speedy knockout of particular objectives immediately in front of the troops, the campaign was proceeding along two main lines—disruption of transport lines within 100 miles of the battle line over which Marshal Rommel is trying to bring up his tactical reserves and the bombardment of rail centres beyond the 100-mile radium through which the Germans might draw on strategic reserves in Southern France.

Opposition grows.

The German air force was responding with increasing strength. About 100 enemy planes were over the battle area last night and American fighter-bomber pilots returning from an early morning foray reported opposition "the roughest yet."

American light bombers hit railroad and highway bridge targets at Aunay Sur Odon, south-west of Caen, La Haye du Puits, west of Carentan, and Conde Sur Noireau, south of Caen, without loss, and panicked concentrations of troops at Failaise, south-east of Caen, flying so low that a sergeant gunner reported, "You could pick out German lieutenants from sergeants and shoot the lieutenants."

Earlier, railroad yards, German road convoys, and a seaplane base near Caudebec, were attacked by R.A.F. mediums.

Then a force of about 1,000 heavy bombers with swarming hundreds of escorting fighters swept in upon some of the air bases into which Germans belatedly were shuttling part of their lean air force.

The heavies bombed the fields at Lille-Nord, Montbidier, Evreux-Fauville, Dreux, Vitry-en-Antois and Beauvais-Tille, while part of armada concentrated on bridges and the escorting fighters strafed small targets.

For some hours after dawn the noise of aircraft was heard over the English south coast as planes headed out to give direct support to Allied troops on the Normandy battle front. The formation of heavy bombers winged its way over London.

At 9 a.m. (3 a.m. E.D.T) the Paris radio left the air in the middle of its news broadcast, indicating that area again was under attack

The big thunderbirds of the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. seventh straight night of invasion-supporting raids ranged over France last night all the way from the Paris

Reds Advance Into Finland Gain 25 Miles

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 12 — (AP) — Launching a major offensive designed to knock Finland out of war and isolate approximately 100,000 Nazi troops in the northern part of that country, the Red Army rolled forward along the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad today after cracking Finnish defences on a 25-mile front.

A communique last night announcing the new drive said Soviet troops already had advanced 12 to 25 miles and indicated they were moving forward everywhere in high gear.

This offensive evidently was coordinated closely with Allied operations in France, and represented a step in the grand Allied strategy worked out at the Teheran conferences.

Troops under Col.-Gen. Leonid Govorov, who lifted the siege of Leningrad, launched the push Friday, just one month after the fall of Sevastopol—a month devoid of major activity along the long front.

The Soviet communiqpe declared Russian forces had captured 82 towns and villages, including the rail junction of Terijoki, 27 miles airline northwest of Leningrad and 160 miles east of the Finnish capital of Helsinki.

Also captured, the bulletin said, was Yappilya, described as "an important strongpoint' seven miles northeast of Terijoki.

Terijoki, situated on the Leningrad-Helsinki Railway, is about six miles west of the 1936 Russo-Finnish border, and 70 miles east of the frontier established by the Peace Treaty which ended the war between the two countries in the winter of 1939-40.

Forest Of Cerisy Captured By Americans
Nazis Abandon Carentan
Canadian Paratroopers Engage Hun Tanks

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 12—(CP).—American troops have driven 18 miles inland in the centre of the Normandy beachhead, capturing the whole forest of Cerisy and fierce fighting between British-Canadian forces and German troops continues east and west of the city of Caen, the Allied command said late today.

The forest of Cerisy is 18 miles due south from the coastline and 10 miles southwest of Bayeux. German reports indicated that British and Canadian forces are thrusting southwest of Bayeux in an endeavor to effect a new junction with American formations in that region.

Headquarters said the bridgehead now is 60 miles wide and added that the situation is "a little better than satisfactory."

The Germans claimed Caen is entirely in Nazi hands today.

British and Canadian forces east and west of that strongpoint six miles inland on the Orne River were engaged in furious encounters with German units. Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, in a field dispatch said "Although Caen is not captured yet a considerable German force has been brought to battle and hit hard."

9 Miles Past City.

German broadcasts said Caen near the eastern flank of the Allied zone, was menaced by encirclement, with British and Canadian troops slashing nine miles east of the city. Munro reported the British 6th Air-Borne Division—which includes Canadian paratroopers—was engaged in hard fighting with German armored forces east of the city.

The German high command said the strategic city of Carentan guarding the base of the Cherbourg Peninsula, has fallen to American forces. Headquarters did not confirm this, but said American formations were within 14 miles of Cherbourg itself from the southwest, and had punched half-way across the peninsula threatening to seal off the tip.

American forces in the forest of Cerisy region also are thrusting towards the key road junction town of St. Lo, less than nine miles southwest of the forest.

Nearing Montebourg

Supreme headquarters said further gains were made around Montebourg, 14 miles southeast of Cherbourg, and reported "considerable progress" around Carentan, a vital junction.

A Berlin Trans-Ocean Agency broadcast reported seaborne forces had landed at St. Vaast La Hougue 15 miles east of Cherbourg port.

In the widening hole in the centre of the beachhead to the southeast, Berlin said British and Canadian formations were concentrating in the Balleroy area, 12 miles inland, flanking Cerisy Forest to the east.

Headquarters said the German command had been forced to throw in reserves piecemeal, sapping potential strength from his anticipated major counter-attack.

Lose Town

The Germans, however, claimed they halted the British-Canadian drive in the Tilly Sur Seulles area southeast of Bayeux, and there were indications the Allies had lost the town of Tilly itself, 12 miles inland, although still occupying high ground around it. Heavy fighting raged in this hill sector seven miles south and slightly east of Bayeaux.

Cerisy Forest was used as one of the greatest ammunition and fuel dumps in Western France by the Germans, and had repeatedly been bombed.

On Cherbourg peninsula, American troops advancing westward from Ste. Mere Eglise had crossed the

Chaotic Retreat Continues Across Italy

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, June 12 —(AP)— Fifth Army troops have occupied Monte Fiascone, an important road junction near the shores of Lake Bolsena, and other columns pushing along the Italian west coast approaching Orbetello, 71 miles northwest of Rome, Allied headquarters announced today.

Eighth Army columns advancing up both sides of the Tiber neared Bagno Reggio west of the river and Rieti east of it.

In the mountainous central sector, Avezzano and its neighboring villages have been occupied while in the Adriatic sector all Germans have been cleared from the area south of the Pescara river and Allied troops have pushed ahead to maintain contact with the withdrawing Germans.

A gain of 15 miles was announced

Japs Encircle Changsha City

CHUNGKING, June 12.—(AP).—An indication that the city of Changsha was encircled was contained to-night in a communique of the Chinese High Command which announced the Japanese were assaulting the Hunan capital incessantly "from all directions."

Invaders attacking from the east reached a point only six miles from the beleaguered Canton-Hankow railway city, but attempts to cross the Liuyang river directly to the east were repulsed, the High Command said.

Japanese troops apparently striving to establish a "west wall" along the Canton-Hankow railway to protect their home islands, were reported authoritatively to have opened a drive northward along the rail line to match their southward offensive in the Changsha area.

A dispatch from United States 14th Air Force Headquarters said the new enemy push from the Canton area, combined with the battle for beleaguered Changsha, had brought the China war to its greatest pitch since 1938.

In the drive south along the railway the Japanese are hammering at the gates of Changsha, major objective in their Hunan province offensive, the Chinese High Command announced last night. The Japanese have claimed capture of Changsha, but there was no confirmation of this from the Chinese, who said the invaders were halted at the outer defences of the city to the northeast.

In Yunnan province, meanwhile, Chinese troops have occupied Lungling, scoring "the greatest success to date for our troops in the Salween offensive," the Chinese High Command said.

English Clamor For Support Of De Gaulle

By SIDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 12.—(CP Cable.)—A new cry for the recognition of the French National committee as the Provisional government to play a full part in the liberation of France was raised by London's week-end press, which met with sympathy General de Gaull's plea to "end confusion" between the Allies and the committee.

This fresh evidence of Britain's strong feeling about an old political sore was given against a background of report after report being received from war correspondents on the Normandy beachhead that the French people's choice of Gen. de Gaulle as their leader was emphatic and unequivocal.

The squbstance of all front dispatches concerning the General is summarized in one which reported one Frenchman as saying "he, as well as Britain and America, has been our constant hope through the

Tito's Partisans Score Gains

LONDON, June 12.—(CP).—Marshal Tito announced to-day his Partisans had liquidated enemy strongholds on the Tuzla-Zvornik line about 80 miles southwest of Belgrade and that Yugoslav batteries were successfully shelling strong points at Koraj and Celici 10 miles north of Tuzla.

The broadcast communique recorded in London declared further that "in the Majevica mountains northwest of Zvirnik-Tobut an enemy stronghold has been captured with a large quantity of ammunition."

Violent fighting was said to be continuing in western Bosnia.

The Germans were declared to be withdrawing from Glamoc and its surrounding strong points. Glamoc is 40 miles northeast of the Adriatic port of Split.

He Won't Pay

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 12—(AP).— A traffic ticket for illegal parking finally caught up with Capt. James D. Adams, now stationed in New Guinea. He returned it, observing: "I sure would like to be parked approximately 10 feet from that fire hydrant right now?"

Britain To Need Export Trade

TORONTO, June 12 (CP)—"Britain is going to need export trade more urgently after the war than we have ever needed it in the past," A. M. Wiseman, senior trade commissioner for the United Kingdom at Ottawa, declared today in an address to the convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

He estimated Britain would need to increase her exports by some 250,000,000 sterling merely to regain the standard of living she enjoyed in 1938 "when we had perhaps as many as 1,500,000 people unemployed in the country."

It was too soon to say when United Kingdom manufacturers would again be able to offer freely their goods in the Canadian market, Mr. Wiseman said. "But the manufacturers of Britain have not forgotten this market and they are all looking forward to the day when they will be able to offer their merchandise as freely as ever they did before the war, in as wide or even wider variety, throughout the length and breadth of the country."

Need to be Pressing

Chairman of the conference on export trade was J. A. Terrace of Toronto, who declared that in consideration of the problems of foreign trade after the war ends in Europe it was necessary to bear in mind that "there will be immediate and substantial demands from the countries now occupied by Germany, and from Britain and Russia."

"The needs of Europe will be so pressing that they cannot be put off until cash can be paid," he said. "Some form of inter-government financing will therefore have to be worked out."

Addressing the same section of the conference this afternoon J. H. Eng-

Huns Expected Allies To Attack Ports

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN FRANCE, June 11 (delayed)—(AP)—British and Canadian troops in this blazing northern sector pressed forward to within a few miles of Caen today after blasting the Germans out of town late Friday.

(This field dispatch did not enlarge upon this point. London dispatches said there was no suggestion there that Caen was yet in Allied hands, but the field report was taken as indicating that the heightening Allied flanking threat had prompted the Germans to pull back at least the main body of their armored force from the stronghold.)

Marshal von Rundstedt is feverishly attempting to rush forward reserves from as far distant as Paris to combat the deepening Allied beachhead, it was reported at advanced Allied field headquarters.

Roads Churned

Armadas of Allied planes churned the roads, railways and bridges into chaotic ruins, however, and along one road a column of German transport being rushed into the area was able to move only 15 miles in four hours.

A powerful encircling sweep is developing around Caen with Allied columns driving ahead from both flanks.

The atmosphere at headquarters was one of mounting confidence.

Marshal von Rundstedt's failure to uncork a smashing counter-blow against a thinly-held Allied beachhead in the first few days was believed here to have been a result of his being out-smarted by Gen. Eisenhower's strategy.

The whole German defence structure apparently was based on the conviction that the Allies would have to attempt to capture a big port such as Cherbourg or Le Havre.

Instead, the Allies landed at a comparatively isolated area and pushed supplies through shallow - draft beaches, leaving von Rundstedt sitting tight in his powerfully defended ports. Now the great Allied air fleets are methodically paralyzing Nazi communications.

Volunteers Save Ontario Crop

TORONTO, June 12 —(CP) —Ontario Department of Agriculture officials to-day said reports of early crop threatened with disaster being saved by prompt action of farm commando brigades in sending out volunteer help already have started to arrive.

One report from the Chatham district said approximately 100 acres of onions were saved from disaster when more than 300 volunteers went to the fields to aid in weeding and thinning the plants after the farmer said the crop would be ruined unless help was available immedately.

A similar report was reveived from Tillsonburg district.

Big 4 Consider Post-War
Form International Security Organization

WASHINGTON, June 12 — (AP) — A mid-summer meeting at Washington of Britain, American, Russia and Chinese representatives to discuss the formation of an International Security organization apparently is in the making.

The State department is reported to have received informal assurances that Britain and China are ready to talk business on implementing the Moscow pact and a Russian acceptance is expected as soon as it can be cleared through diplomatic channels. Andrei A. Gromyko, the Russian Ambassador is returning to Moscow and officials here expect him to report on the matter there.

Meanwhile, Allied diplomats are known to be working on an agreement for the handling of a defeated Germany in the time immediately to follow the fighting. While there is no evidence here that any early collapse of Germany is expected, the attitude is: to be prepared for any possibility.

Terms for Germany are understood to call for its complete industrial demobilization — dismatling of all war plants that can not be devoted to peaceful production.

Accidents Kill 22 On Weekend

By The Canadian Press

There were 22 fatalities in eastern Canada over the week-end and in addition two airmen are missing and the body of a man who has been missing since May 6 has been found with several bullet holes in his body. Traffic accidents took the heaviest toll, accounting for eight deaths, three persons drowned, three were killed in an airplane crash, two were murdered, another was the victim of gas fumes, one died of unknown causes and a baby died of poisoning.

At Summerside, P.E.I., names of three aimen killed in a crash Friday were announced: Flt. Sgt. J. A. Ringer, Winnipeg; LAC. R. C. Bonnell, Belmont, N.S.; L.A.C. L. C. Gibbs, Montreal. At Halifax, Eastern Air Command announced that two airmen were missing in a training plane from a base in the Annapolis valley.

Two Women Perish In Fire
Life-Long Companions Lost In Picton Blaze

PICTON, June 12.—Two elderly women lost their lives in a fire in their home early yesterday morning. They were Mrs. Thomas Owens and Mrs. Nettie E. Green, life-long companions. They were alone in the home of Mrs. Owens at the time. The second story of the palatial home was badly damaged by the fire.

That Mrs. Green had attempted to assist her friend and that Mrs. Owens likewise had gone to arouse her companion, was indicated by the finding of the bodies. That of Mrs. Green was found near the door of Mrs. Owen's room, badly charred, while that of Mrs. Owen was found in the adjoining bedroom of Mrs. Green.

The fire was noticed shortly after 4 o'clock by Constable Walter Boyer and Morley Baynor, who experienced great difficulty in entering the locked house. With Walter Nicholas, caretaker, they reached the second floor, but were driven back by the flames. Firemen succeeded in getting the fire under control sufficiently to recover the bodies, and later extinguished the flames, which burned through the roof. Origin of the fire is a mystery. An inquest will be held.

Don Jail Guard Murdered; Police Hold 2

TORONTO, June 12 — (CP). — T. M. Gourley, Ontario Inspector of Prisons, to-day began a thorough investigation of the slaying of Robert Henry Canning, 49-year-old jail guard at Toronto's Don Jail on Saturday night.

Charged with the murder are Allan M. Baldwin, 32, and William Joseph O'Sullivan, 34.

Baldwin, who escaped from the jail after the slaying, was captured by a posse of more than 200 police last night hiding under a bridge over the Humber River just outside the western city limits, but O'Sullivan was arrested in the jail shortly after the discovery of Canning's body.

O'Sullivan, who was convicted to four years in Penitentiary on a charge of armed robbery, was being held in Don Jail pending his transfer to Kingston Penitentiary. He will appear in court to-day and is expected to be remanded a week.

Got Long Term

Baldin, sentenced to 15 years in Penitentiary for his part in the $34,000 robbery of the Royal Bank of Canada branch at Wheatley, Ont., last September and an additional four years for receiving stolen goods, was taken to hospital after his arrest for treatment to a broken right forearm suffered in his escape from the jail.

The police magistrate is expected to go to the hospital this morning, read charge to Baldwin, and also remand him for a week.

Arrested an hour after the capture of Baldwin, were Harry Hedderson, 34, and Steve Bahry, 25, on charges of aiding a prisoner to escape. They were taken into custody after a struggle with police. Arrested with them was Vernon Lacroix, who is charged with escaping from the Galt Jail in 1940.

Canning, a veteran of the First Great War, had just been discharged from the Army last March and taken on the staff of Don Jail in April. He has two sons in the armed forces. He was killed about 10:30 p.m. while making his rounds in the jail hospital.

Police said he was repeatedly struck over the head with a metal pipe and then strangled.

James N. McGill Dies Suddenly

MILLBROOK, June 12 —(ENS)— James Norman McGill, township clerk here for the past 30 years and secretary-treasurer of the Millbrook Agricultural Society for 35 years, died on Sunday in his 70th years. Although he had been in ill health for some time, his death was sudden.

Born in Manvers township, Mr. McGill came of pioneer stock and was the son of the late John James McGill and Mary Anne Coe. The family moved to Cavan when he was two years old, where his father kept a store for more than 40 years. Educated at Lindsay and the Peterborough Collegiates, he farmed for a short time thereafter, but then moved to Millbrook Township 30 years ago.

Provincial auditors had high words for the extreme capability of Mr. McGill in his many years as township clerk, and were accustomed to saying that the books of Millbrook were the best kept of any in the province. Since his illness about a year ago, Arthur Thorne had relieved him in the position. Before being secretary-treasurer of the Millbrook Agricultural Society, which position he resigned a year ago due to poor health, he was a director of that organization and was also a director of the Lindsay Fair Board. Mr. McGill was in the fire and life insurance business.

A veteran of the last war, he served as a captain overseas with the 136th Battalion of the Durham Regiment. In his youth, he was interested in athletics and played as a pitcher on baseball teams in the Midland League. He was a Mason and an Oddfellow, belonging to Millbrook I.O.O.F. No. 308; and he was also a member of J. B. Hall Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 945. A member of the Presbyterian Church, he was a Conservative in politics.

Mr. McGill was married 43 years ago to May Armstrong, daughter of the late A. T. Armstrong and Mrs. Armstrong. He is survived by his widow; a brother, Oscar of Peterborough; a sister, Mrs. E. Stone (Lulu) of Toronto and a niece in the same city; and two nephews overseas.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the late residence, Park Roadway, and Rev. Walter Patterson will officiate. Interment is to take place in St. John's cemetery, Ida, in the family burial plot. The funeral will be under the auspices of the I.O.O.F.

darkest hours. He is the only leader for us."

France An Ally.

The substance of Britain's feelings on the status that ought to be accorded the committee is summarized in a Sunday Times editorial which, noting that responsibility for law and order must pass from military to civil authorities as more and more of France is liberated. Asked:

"Who can these be in France but Frenchmen? Who except the National committee can be given the authority to direct and co-ordinate their work?"

The urgency of the matter was pointed out by political correspondents on the Daily Herald and the News-Chronicle. The Daily Telegraph editorially joined thre Herald in warning against using President Roosevelt's invitation to General de Gaulle to visit Washington as an excuse to delay solving the current problems.

"France cannot simply be shelved," the Telegraph said, "somehow France must be treated as France and not as Italy—that is to say like an Ally and not like a former enemy and co-belligerent."

for 5th Army units along the west coast. Near Nunziatello the Germans counter-attacked with two companies, but the Allies beat them back and continued the drive.

Headquarters disclosed the 6th South African Armored Division was among the 8th Army units which advanced through the Iri and Sacco valleys.

After distinguishing itself in engagements there, this division made a "ghost move" by entering 5th Army territory, passing swiftly through Rome despite the congestion of the city and then shooting northward more than 50 miles up the west bank of the Tiber.

Army Dispersed

"It is now quite clear," a headquarters announcement said, "that the original 14th Army of Von Mackensen has been dispersed to the four winds.

"All that remains is a few scattered remnants who mainly are engaged in stealing one another's transport to get away as fast as possible. Prisoners describe the situation as wholly chaotic.

"The most striking evidence of the degree of disintegration was provided by the fact that captured stragglers were provided with passes saying the bearer was authorized to proceed either alone or in small groups to an assembly place near Florence."

What is left of the German army, which once included the 4th Parachute, the 65th and 362nd Infantry and 3rd Panzer Grenadier divisions, thus appears to have been put on an every-man-for-himself basis in a retreat to Florence.

Stretcher bearers are shown going down the ramps and plunging through the surf in the amphibious assault which resulted in the capture of Wakde Island and Sarmi — important for their strategic air strips on May 17 and 18.

area to the west coast port of Nantes.

They bombed the rail junctions at Evreux, Nantes, Tours and Massy-Palaiseau. Nantes and Tours, respectively 225 and 130 miles southwest of Paris, are junctions through which Field Marshal Rommel's embattled forces might receive reinforcements from the German army group in the south of France. The Evreux and Massy-Palaiseau junctions are potential channels for German reinforcements to the area of heavy fighting around Caen. Evreux is 70 miles east of Caen.

The blow against Berlin was delivered by twin-engined Mosquitoes which pounded the German capital with 4,000-pound bombs.

Nearly 7,000 Allied planes, flying in support of the Normandy offensive yesterday, gave the Germans the heaviest series of daylight blows since the invasion began.

A paucity of reports from aerial bases indicated R.C.A.F. participation in these Allied operations as not as great as it had been on previous days. Presumably Canadian squadrons were reorganizing after a strenuous week.

A small force of Canadian heavy bombers last night joined the R.A.F. in attacking rail targets. From R.C.A.F. operations over the past 24 hours, one heavy bomber and one fighter were missing.

Use Russian Bases.

Across Europe U.S. heavy bombers took off from new bases in Russia and bombed Balkan air fields of the Axis yesterday during their return trip to the Italian bases they left on June 2.

Both on the outbound trail-blazing shuttle trip to Russia and on the homeward journey the American heavy bombers were personally commanded by Lt.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker, Chief of the Allied Mediterranean Air Force.

"Every inch" of the enemy positions along the 50-mile-long Normandy battle front was declared scourged by yesterday's blows. These attacks, plus flights from Russia, provided the final dramatic touch to a week-end which saw the Allies give these further demonstrations of their mastery of the air over Europe:

1. Allied planes were declared on Saturday to be flying from French soil for the first time since 1940. The first planes to take advantage of newly-constructed Allied landing strips on the Cherbourg Peninsula were American C-47 troop carriers, which were used to fly wounded men back to Britain.

2. Squadrons of Italian-based U.S. ships went out on the longest fighter-bomber mission ever flown in the Mediterranean theatre Saturday, and attacked the last major refinery still producing for Germany in Romania's Ploesti oil fields. Leaving the target enveloped in flames, these fast, twin-finned planes strafed locomotives and tank cars on the way home.

Widespread Attacks.

3. R.A.F. heavy bombers delivered a huge blow Saturday night against the rail yards of Versailles and Acheres near Paris, the Orleans yards 90 miles from the fighting front in France. Mosquitoes hit Berlin both Friday and Saturday night, serving notice on the German air force that it will have to divide its strength between the fighting zone and the Reich homeland.

A force of 1,000 U.S. heavy bombers spearheaded yesterday's aerial operations in support of the Normandy beachheads. They smashed at nine enemy airfields, eight bridges, a German army headquarters and other objectives in area stretching from the beachhead to Paris and as far north as the Pas de Calais area.

Allied aerial losses over France yesterday were 26 planes, most of them victims of German anti-aircraft guns. In all operations, a total of nine German planes were reported knocked down—five of them by the 8th Air Force.

The R.A.F. lost 20 heavy bombers during the attacks Saturday night on French rail yards, while six German night fighters were brought

French Underground Rises Occupy Scores Of Towns

IRUN, Spain, June 12—(AP). — French Partisans occupied strategic centres in the cities of Toulouse, Limoges and Tarbes in Southern France and have shot the prefects of police, mayors and other collaborationist authorities in all three cities, direct despatches reaching here said Sunday. The despatches did not make clear whether the actions constituted a general uprising, saying only that importants points in the three cities as well as in the regions surrounding them were occupied by the Partisans.

(A major uprising by French patriots, extending from Metz to Avignon—almost the entire length of Eastern France—and including a "major coup" at Bellegarde near the Swiss border, was described in Swiss and Swedish newspaper accounts. About 100 French patriots were said to have seized the Bellegarde railway station, location of a Nazi headquarters, and to have "proceeded systematically to sabotage all the installations." About a mile away, the reports said, 48 Germans were killed and 150 taken prisoners in a "violent clash" between Germans and patriots last Thursday.

Allies Supply Arms.

(The German - controlled Vichy Telegraph Agency said Nazi occupation authorities had assumed full "executive power" in the four departments of South-Central France —Allier, Cantal, Haute-Loire and Puy de Dome.)

A traveller said the Partisans have been receiving arms constantly from the Allies for the last fortnight, enabling them to attack Germans and collaborationists in force.

This traveller said the French roads were "in a more chaotic condition than in 1940," as the collaborationists fled the countryside for the cities and German protection. Inhabitants of coastal regions were reported trying to reach Central France despite German resistance.

Take Several Places

One carload of weary travellers crossed the Irun frontier today from Paris and Belgium, and reported that French underground guerrillas were leading an uprising in South-Central France. These guerrillas, they said, had occupied scores of smaller towns as well as points in the three large cities. They said they were told by trainmen that saboteurs had wrecked the direct Paris-Bordeaux line.

On the fighting front the French underground was carrying out orders of the supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force, serving as guides and furnishing information on German troop movements as requested in a broadcast before D-Day.

Despite their joy at being once more free, the liberated French have not neglected traitors and collaborators, and violence against these persons continues daily.

To the south, far from the point, French guerilla forces resorted to arms and it is believed they have seized both sides of the Rhone and Saone Valleys and are in action both north and south of Lyon.

Thirty collaborationist militiamen were reported killed at Macon on the Saone, while the tricolor waved in city halls, windows and balconies through towns and villages in the region of Auvergne, where Chief of Government Pierre Laval had an electoral stronghold for years.

Berlin Reports

railroad leading to the port on a seven-mile front.

As for Caen, German broadcasts asserted that a British-Canadian drive had reached nearly to Troarn, nine miles due east of that city six miles inland on the Orne river and that British-Canadian parachutists had landed south of Caen. British and Canadian formations were pushing ahead west of Caen, threatening the other flank. Field Marshal Rommel has mounted his fiercest armored counter-attacks in this Caen sector, and Berlin said major Allied forces were concentrating for a full-fledged assault on the town.

The German Trans-Ocean Agency quoted a Berlin military spokesman as saying Gen. Montgomery has tried "during the last 24 hours to surround Caen, but the town is still in German hands."

As the American frontal attack across the Merderet river on Cherbourg peninsula reached within 12 miles of the west coast roads—whose capture would seal off Cherbourg—the German-controlled Vichy radio reported American troops had pushed into Quineville on the east coast.

German reports said 300,000 to 400,000 Allied troops already had been poured into the bridgehead and that these represented only one-third of the assault forces poised in Britain to hammer home attacks against the Continent.

"The bulk of the huge forces of the 21st amphibious army group is still standing by to pounce on some important harbour," a German broadcast asserted.

Continuing a stream of reports on new Alled landings, the Berlin Transocean Agency also said seaborne forces had been put ashort yesterday at St. Vaast La Hougue near the northeast corner of the peninsula and east of Cherbourg.

Cross Orne Estuary.

Other enemy repors said the Allies had crossed the Orne estuary, ferrying across tanks and threatening Caen, which Marshal Rommel by his counter-attacks had made a testing point.

The crossing of the estuary forced the Germans to evacuate two towns before the Allied onslaught was checked near Troarn, eight miles east of Caen, by German account. A break-through here would link up infantry with British and Canadian parachute troops which the Nazis said had landed in the Rouen area earlier.

Heightening the prospect of encirclement of Caen was the German report of other parachute troop landings south of the town.

To the west British forces also were flanking the town by a thrust through Tilly Sur Seulles where armored columns were engaged in fierce combat.

Still farther west, American forces were said by Allied Headquarters to have smashed with gathering force beyond the flooded Merderet river at several points and into the forest De Cerisy, a defence point for the communications hub of St. Lo.

The fighting swayed close to Carentan at the narrowest part of the peninsula, where American forces have pushed west of that city in flanking movements. The Germans, who earlier reported heavy tank attacks on this flood-guarded bastion, said the Americans had "penetrated" to the city in a night attack.

Official reports said only that British and Canadian formations were holding their own satisfactorily in the bitterly-contested Caen sector, but field dispatches said Gen. Montgomery had mounted a powerful encircling sweep, with the Allies driving ahead on both flanks around the town.

Move Up Reserves

Headquarters communique No. 13, issued today, reported that intense fighting against German armored columns raged without respite in the Tilly Sur Seulles area on the British sector of the front.

Field Marshal Rundstedt was moving reserves up from as far back as Paris to meet this mounting menace, but his new men and guns, and the roads over which they moved, were under bomb, cannon, rocket and machine-gun fire of an Allied air armada which before noon had flown more sorties than all day yesterday.

Allied warships—among them the British battleships Warspite and the U.S. battleships Texas and Nevada — hurled tons of explosives miles inland upon German guns which still were able to subject the invasion beachhead to sporadic fire.

The targets of the warships were principally the Nazis' mobile guns, for by now almost all fixed-position defence batteries were knocked out.

The invasion beachhead was regarded as secure and progress inland along the whole front, now roughly 55 miles wide, was viewed officially today with "sober satisfaction."

The fight had reached the phase of exploiting the beachhead success and now, favored by the best weather since D-day, the Allied command was expected to accelerate operations.

Situation Improves

Sector by sector, this was the latest position:

Cherbourg—whatever the basis of enemy-reported parachutist landings east of the port, American troops were only 14 miles away in the outskirts of Montebourg.

Valognes-Carentan—A broadened foothold across the Merderet river brought American formations within 10 or 12 miles of the road up the west side of the peninsula, the last main escape or supply route for the Germans holding Cherbourg.

Carentan-Isigny—American troops slugged on yard by yard through flooded marshland, closing in upon the Carentan stronghold from which the Germans control the defence flood system. The German high command communique today said Carentan has been evacuated by the Nazis.

Lison-Trevieres—American forces penetrated the Cerisy forest some 10 miles from the mid-Peninsula crossroads town of St. Lo.

Tilly Sur Seulles—held firmly by British units as both sides poured armor into a tank battle for control of firm, rolling country 12 miles or more inland.

Caen—British and Canadian infantry and armored formations took all Marshal Rommel has yet been able to hurl at them, and according to field dispatches, fought forward doggedly to by-pass the town on both sides.

Use 25 Divisions

German radio accounts asserted Allied pressure northward along the canal from Caen to the Bay of the Seine had increased this morning. One enemy broadcast claimed the Allies had thrown 20 regular divisions and four to five air-borne divisions into their 55-mile front.

Allied troops in the Caen-Bayeaux sector included the Canadian 3rd Division, now seeing its first combat after three years of training in Britain. Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent in the field, yesterday report a "general move forward" all along this part of the front, after Nazi counter-attacks had been beaten back.

Few E-Boat Raids

The Germans asserted their bombers sank a 7,000-ton Allied troop transport in the Bay of the Seine last night and damaged another.

The German air force was little in evidence yesterday, but Allied planes had to cope with intense flak in many places.

Despite German claims of E-Boat attacks on a powerful Allied convoy guarded by cruisers as it was crossing the western part of the Bay of Seine, SHAEF regarded the enemy's overnight E-boat action as on a diminished scale.

It was pointed out, however, the fight against the torpedo sting of German small boats must be regarded as a continuing battle, since the Germans have hundreds of them.

Admiral Ramsay of the Royal Navy, head of Allied naval forces, visited the assault area yesterday in the British destroyer Kelvin, conferred with Rear Admiral Sir Philip Vian and Rear Admiral Alan G. Kirk, and declared himself "very satisfied with developments and the progress made."

American units captured Lison, 10 miles inland and south of Isigny.

LONDON, June 12 (CP) — The Tempest, Britain's newest single-seater fighter plane, is taking part in the invasion of Europe, it was learned yesterday. Few details of the planes have been released although it is known to have phenomenal speed and a highly super-charged engine which enables it to fight at great heights.

Civilian Goods Remain Scarce

TORONTO, June 12 — (CP). — There is little prospect for early resumption of the manufacture of civilian goods which can be deferred, J. G. Godsoe, chairman of the Wartime Industries Control Board and co-ordinator of controls for the Munitions Department, said to-day.

In a comprehensive review of the supply situation in Canada, given in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Mr. Godsoe said that while some materials now were in easier supply stocks of other goods remained tight.

Materials still in very short supply include steel, copper, brass, rubber, coal and tin. Increased quantities of aluminum, lead, magnesium, nickel, zinc and timber are available but not necessarily in quantities sufficient to allow general relaxation, Mr. Godsoe said.

New demands for steel, combined with other factors, have necessitated a tightening in construction controls and more rigid restrictions are being put into effect, he disclosed.

The new tightened construction policy will have an effect on practically all types of building, Mr. Godsoe said.

"With the recent tightening in the steel supply position we are no longer able to authorise any projects requiring structural steel unless they are immediately essential to the war effort," he said.

"During 1944 the housing program must be lifted," Mr. Godsoe said.

"We will not be able to permit building of all the houses which we would like to authorise, but must confine the issuance of licensing to projects which are needed to provide homes for those without accommodation. Projects which aim merely to provide improved accommodation must be deferred until the period of scarcity is over."

Capt. C. S. Rutherford Is Officer Assistant

KINGSTON, June 12 — Captain Charles Smith Rutherford, 52, of Colborne, Ont., winner of the Victoria Cross, the Military Cross and the Military Medal in the Great War, has been promoted to that rank and appointed officer assistant at Royal Military College, it was announced today by National Defence Headquarters. Captain Rutherford, an officer of the Veterans' Guard of Canada, some months ago completed a tour of duty with a formation of Veterans Guardsmen in the Caribbean area, on guard duty. He is a farmer and orchardist in civil life. Originally in the ranks of The Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto, in the Great War he won the M.M. at Passchandaele and as an officer of Canadian Mounted Rifles won the M.C. at Amiens, and the Victoria Cross for the single-handed capture of Monchy le Prieux, and a force of 80 Germans with it, an exploit called the most masterly bluff of the war, and which allowed his unit to advance.
